The prices we have marked on our entire stock of fine Dress Goods, Clothing and Furnishings should appeal to you in a most forcible manner. If we are reasonable we are right, and if we are right we are bound to be reasonable. The most economical buyer has investigated and found prices as priced. At no time in the year does this store offer more to its patrons than at the closing of a season. Our Raleigh Letter

Notes from the State Capital

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 16, 1903. The question of child labor legislation is practically settled, and the compromise bill will become a law this week. The mill-owners changed their tactics at the second hearing before the committee, and instead of "fighting any and all legislation on the subject," they agreed to recede from that position and assist the committee in framing "a just and satisfactory law."

If passed by both branches of the general assembly as recommended by the majority of the committee, which is probable, the law will go into effect January 1, 1904. The bill simply provides that children of either sex under 12 years of age shall not be employed in any manufacturing establishment at any time, and no exception is made. That not exceeding 66 hours shall constitute a week's work for all except in repairing breakdowns—engineers, firemen, machinists, section or yard men, watchmen, superintendents, and office men excepted. That a statement in writing giving age of children employed shall be furnished employer by parents or guardians, and if falsely stated a penalty of $100 is provided. That is all. Nothing said about employment of children of 12 years and up at night and no word about compulsory education. The absence of these features makes the bill unsatisfactory to many, and an effort to amend it will be made in open house and senate.

The law ratified by the South Carolina legislature last week eliminates children under ten this year, those under eleven next year and those under 12 January 1, 1905.

The liquor question is having its innings now. The debate began in the house last Friday, and the first night session was held Friday night for a continuation of the debate—the Watts bill being under consideration with a favorable report. The senate committee on the same day reported the London bill favorably, after amending it in several respects, but not so as to materially affect its text or interfere with its chief aim and operation.

Mrs. A. M. Moore Dead.

Information has reached here of the death of Mrs. Mary Moore, widow of the late Hon. A. M. Moore. It is reported that she died last week at the home of her niece, in Alabama, where she was visiting.

Mrs. Moore lived several years in Greenville and a large circle of friends here regret her death. She was an excellent woman, beloved by everyone.

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

Father Objected, but the Young Lady Escaped from Home and was Married.

A marriage took place in Greenville Sunday night that was attended by romance, the contracting parties meeting with much difficulty in carrying out their purpose. But despite the obstacles they reached the goal and won out.

On Saturday Mr. W. E. Moore applied to the Register of Deeds and obtained a marriage license for Mr. Burton G. Albritton and Miss Bessie Keel. The young lady is a daughter of Mr. H. F. Keel, of South Greenville, and while her father opposed her marriage all other members of the family were in sympathy with her and gave her their co-operation as far as possible. It was planned that the couple should run away Sunday and go to Black Jack to be married there. With this idea Mr. Moore went to Black Jack Sunday morning, taking the marriage license with him, and waited there for the couple, who did not arrive. The father in the meantime had become aware of their intentions and prevented Miss Bessie leaving home.

For the time being it looked like the young people were foiled in their purpose, but during the day more planning was going on, friends on the outside assisting in keeping the couple in communication. About 9 o'clock at night Miss Bessie eluded her father's eye and escaped from home. She had to leave the house barefooted, but carried her shoes in her hand and stopped at the first opportunity to put them on. She went alone to the home of Mr. J. T. Abrams, on Dickinson avenue, where she was joined by Mr. Albritton. Rev. D. W. Davis was sent for and he soon arrived and made them man and wife.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple, accompanied by a few friends, left for the home of the bridegroom about three miles from town.

Mr. Albritton is mail carrier on one of the rural delivery routes going out from Greenville, and is a young man of good habits and character. His bride has for some time had a position at the millinery store of Mrs. L. Griffin, and is quite a handsome and popular young lady.

LETTER TO S. M. SCHULTZ.

Greenville N. C.

Dear Sir: You sell good goods and give full measure. It's a pleasant way of doing and it pays, besides.

We do it for the same reason, and it has made us the foremost paint-house in the United States.

Short weight and adulterations are the vices of business. They are a natural response to the demand for cheapness. The world is full of them—the grocery world and the paint world, and every kind of world.

You know and we know that it doesn't pay. People change their grocer or paint man as soon as they find it out.

We don't know about groceries—tell your people about them—the full measure and unadulterated paint is Devoo Lead and Zinc.

Fewer gallons—take less Devoo Lead and Zinc than of mixed paints to paint a house. Wears longer—twice as long as lead and oil mixed by hand.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOO & Co.
P. S.—H. L. Carr sells this paint.

Place Them Where They Belong.

It is strange but true that nearly all the men who are against temperance reform claim to be prohibitionists. They boast loudly of some vote they claim to have cast years ago and still say they are in favor of temperance reform. While making these claims they object to every temperance bill suggested and are determined not only to vote against every such bill but offer such amendments as will weaken or tear down or nullify these bills. Don't count any such men friends to your cause. Put them down as enemies, no matter what they say.

The men who would not fight in an army because all enemies could not be destroyed in one battle would be counted poor soldiers, and the men who will not work for temperance reform unless liquor can be put entirely out of the country are no friends to temperance. We count such men against our social life, against the schools and churches.—Smithfield Herald.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 16, 1903.

WHAT WAS YOUR SHARE?

A boy scarcely 16 years old, the son of a farmer, reeled out of a Main street brothel Saturday night. He was drunk, beastly, insanely drunk. He stumbled along in the darkness, muttering curses and drunken gibberish. The darkness of a back street swallowed him up. What part did YOU have in making this boy a drunkard?

Introduction of a bill into the legislature against wearing high hats in theatres moves the Greenville REFLECTOR to make the mean remark that it would be hard on "two telegraph poles" in that town. And the REFLECTOR man may count himself lucky if he doesn't find himself strung up to a telegraph pole one of these fine mornings.—Gastonia Gazette.

Oh! we were referring to a couple of elongated specimens of the genus homo—in other words, two mere men. You can say any thing you please about a man, you know. And while we are drawing a diagram of the thing we may as well explain that any kind of hat worn by the men referred to would be a high hat unless it were worn on the heel or elbow.

The negroes of Wilmington are evidently a hard set. There were two unprovoked assaults upon white people by negroes in the above city during the latter part of last week, one of which was particularly savage and brutal. We are no advocates of lawlessness, but we are inclined to believe that a few more new negro tombstones would keep the lawless element of the black race in check.

We welcome the thirty-third volume of the esteemed Franklin Times to our table. Editor Thomas has been at the helm of the Times for 26 years, during which time his paper's course has ever been laid by the compass of truth. We felicitate our contemporary and wish it many days of usefulness in the land.

Reed Smoot, senator-elect from Utah, not being satisfied with being fool enough to have more than one wife, now appears as a devotee of the Rooseveltian "policy" of negro equality. Aren't there any trees or telegraph poles conveniently located and provided with halters and things in Utah?

Either way is right. Webster says "travel," Worcester says "travell." Congress committee says "United States is," Greenville REFLECTOR says "United States are." The REFLECTOR adds "North Carolina is one of 'them', not of 'it'".—Winston-Salem Journal.

Well, let's compromise and have it our way.

The editor of the Durham Herald is likely to die of paragraph-alysis if he keeps up his present record of 9,703 editorial paragraphs per annum. If the country can show a more prolific paragrapher, trot him out. And they are good paragraphs, too.

Every dog has his day, but man must work night and day.

Reed Smoot, the Mormon who is trying to break into the senate, did have some little show, but it's all over now since the Wilmington Star credits him to Idaho. Is the Star color blind in its geography?

The action of the senate of Virginia is voting for a statue of General R. E. Lee in Statuary Hall, Richmond, is worthy of "Ole Virginia." She will never tire of honoring the loved commander.

If Dr. Kilgo really did say that "the average woman can be led anywhere with a diamond ring," the remark opens the way for the suspicion that the doctor has done some leading in his day.

"No advice as to a state of war between Salvador and Honduras has reached the state department at Washington," says the Durham Sun. You might look in the police court news, brer.

Senator McMullan is certainly well endowed with the milk of human kindness if he can forgive the News and Observer for the alleged portrait of himself in Thursday's paper.

Greenville claims the distinction of being the only town this side of Tegucigalpa whose citizens are entirely satisfied with the improvement bills passed by the legislature.

Nothing so shatters a woman's delusions regarding the man she loves as his first failure to take advantage of the opportunity she gives him to kiss and make up.

The Asheville Citizen falls in line with the trend of the times and raises its subscription price to city subscribers to $5.20 per year. And it's worth double.

It is said that Senator Depew quoted from an almanac during his recent speech on the statehood bill. Bet it was of the aintage of '76.

If some of the gas furnished by the coal strike commission could be converted into fuel, the commission would not be altogether useless.

The Lincoln, Neb, financial fad and the Princeton, N. J., duck hunting fad do not seem to get along well together.

That ancient Russian who claims to be two hundred years old should beware lest he make enemies of the czar and some of Chauncey Depew's jokes.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Gallery gods move in the highest circles.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Christman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

Lots of men talk like philosophers and act like fools.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A pain that doubles a man naturally increases his sighs.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

Jno. L. Wooten.

Lovers, like armies, get along well enough till the engagement begins.

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is an antiseptic and quick healing liniment for cuts, bruises and burns. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Wise is the man who marries young, makes a hit and doesn't brag about it.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.

The only positive cure for blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema and all abrasions of the skin. DeWitt's is the only Witch Hazel Salve that is made from the pure unadulterated witch hazel—all others are counterfeits. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is made to cure—counterfeits are made to sell.

Invalids often think they need more rest, when all they need is less medicine.

CONTROL OF CIRCUMSTANCES

Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.

Billy Burton, alias "Kid" Burton, was facing a situation that even he, philosopher though he was, admitted was unpleasant. Indicted for murder in the first degree, with a chain of circumstantial evidence that was without a flaw, locked securely in a newly built jail, with no means of escape and no pal within a thousand miles to furnish such means, it was but natural that he should mutter to himself that he had "gone de pace and must walk de plank fer it." Yet he accepted his fate with stoicism that was admirable. Always expecting arrest and dreading detection, he had come to consider that the events which constituted his life must naturally and necessarily terminate upon the gallows. And now that the blow had fallen he accepted it resignedly.

The door swung open, and John Narvall, attorney at law, stepped inside. The warden locked the door and left them together.

For a moment each man stood measuring the other. Narvall saw a man of great physical strength, whose better nature had been warped by circumstances. Burton saw a slight, athletic man of perhaps twenty-three or twenty-four, with pale, aristocratic features and an inscrutable countenance. Burton was in the presence of a superior and realized it.

These two were representatives of the extremes of society.

"I sent fer you, guv'ner, to see what you could do fer me. You see, it's like dese: I'm slightly up against it dis time and"—began Burton, but Narvall stopped him.

"Wait and let me state your case to you. You are indicted for murder in the first degree. The evidence is all against you, and you haven't a single witness. The indictment states that you administered poison to your late employer, Mr. Hartford. The poison was nitric acid, and the prosecuting attorneys have in their possession half a bottle of the acid left which will be introduced as evidence."

"Dat's straight, guv'ner."

"And, now, will you pay me $3,000 if I have you acquitted?"

"Don't jolly me, guv'ner. You know it can't be did. I've got de swag all right; but say, swag don't go wid dat judge ner wid de jury dat's to try me. I knows."

"I don't bribe judges and juries," said Narvall coldly. "Will you pay me that fee?"

"Yes, but say—"

"Then that closes our business. And, now, listen. I will not see you again until your case comes up for trial. It is set for next Wednesday, six days from today. No matter what I do at that trial, you are not to show surprise." Narvall turned and called to the warden.

"Just er minute, guv'ner. Do you b'lieve I'm guilty?"

"The judge and jury will decide that. My duty is not to determine whether or not you are guilty, but to establish your innocence." He turned and walked out.

The six days passed by slowly to Burton. At times he thought that after all Narvall must have been "jolly-ing" him, but in the end the first impression of him still remained.

At last the day for which his trial was set arrived. He was taken into the courtroom and his case called. The jury was drawn and impaneled and the witnesses for the state were examined. Every iota of the testimony was against Burton. When the state solicitor rose to make the opening argument, the net of circumstances that surrounded Burton was without a broken strand. Not a man on the jury doubted that he was guilty. The state solicitor ended with a smile of triumph. This would be one more conviction to his credit.

Then Narvall rose. He was slightly paler than usual, but a faint smile hovered about the corners of his mouth.

"If it please your honor and gentlemen of the jury, in the face of such evidence as has been introduced I have but one argument to make. They tell you that deceased died from the effects of half the contents of this bottle, administered by the defendant." He picked up the little vial and looked at it thoughtfully. "And now, gentlemen, if that be so it must necessarily follow that the remaining contents will have the same effect upon a human being as the other half is alleged to have had. This, I assert, it will not do." Every ear was strained to catch his speech; every eye was fixed on Narvall's cold, inscrutable face. No one saw the small capsule that slipped from between Narvall's fingers into the vial.

"Yes, in spite of the fact that learned chemists have testified to the contrary, I say that this is not poison. And now for the proof!" He raised the vial to his lips, and before the astonished attorney, who sprang forward, could reach him he had drained every drop.

A low murmur of horror went up from the crowd without the bar. A stillness as of death reigned for a few moments and was broken by the calm, collected voice of Narvall: "Gentlemen, if within half an hour I am dead of course the defendant is guilty; otherwise you can but acquit him."

An hour later, when the jury had brought in a verdict of "not guilty," Burton pressed forward and extended his hand to Narvall. The latter stared at it coldly.

"I guess you're right, guv'ner," said Burton. "You're a gentleman."

O. A. LANE.

An Early Norman Dinner.

The Saxon dinner arrangements were orderly compared with those of the early Normans, when the halls and passages were frequently the scene of a free fight between the servants bringing in the food and the crowds of hangers on endeavoring to snatch it from them. This nuisance became at length so intolerable that ushers of the hall and kitchen were established by King William Rufus to protect not only the cooks bringing in the dinner, but the guests arriving to partake of it. Upon the occasion of his great feast at Westminster 300 of these officers were on duty, some to guard the visitors as they ascended the steps and others to defend the threatened dishes.

Such was the uncivilized state of society at this period, but when later on the marauders disappeared from the great houses it became customary to carry in the dishes in procession, sometimes preceded by music and headed by the steward with his wand of office. It was the duty of an "asseur" or placer to arrange them upon the table; the ewers and napkins with which to perform their ablutions were presented to the guests by the esquires and pages, while it fell to the lot of the almoner to say grace.

A Great Feast.

There has never been prepared at any feast a bigger bowl of punch than that which was brewed by the Right Hon. Edward Russell when he was captain general and commander in chief of the forces in the Mediterranean seas. It was made in a fountain in a garden in the middle of four walks, all covered overhead with lemon and orange trees. In every walk there was a table the whole length of it, and on every table was a cold collation. In the huge fountains were the following ingredients: Four hogheads of brandy, eight hogheads of water, 25,000 lemons, twenty gallons of lime juice, 1,300 pounds of fine Lisbon sugar, five pounds of grated nutmegs, 300 tonsted biscuits and a pipe of dry mountain Malaga.

Over the fountain was placed a great canopy, while in the midst of this lake of liquor there sailed a little sailor boy who filled the cups and replenished the glasses of all those who had a desire to drink. More than 6,000 men put in an appearance at this feast.—London Tit-Bits.

The Feet of Chameleons.

Chameleons, as no doubt readers are aware, all belong to the old world, and particularly to Africa. In their tongue, their feet and their eyes they differ remarkably from other lizards. Their feet, though possessing five toes, are divided into two grasping groups, looking like a hand in mittens, and only by close examination you perceive the presence of the two or the three opposing respectively, but so close together as to appear like one broad one.

On the padded soles or palms of these grasping limbs you can feel and see the small—may one say—palpi, which enable them to grasp so firmly that it is difficult to detach a chameleon from its foothold. These clinging feet, together with their prehensile tail, enable them to sustain themselves on the branches in the strongest gale.

Paying a Call in China.

A Chinese bride called upon a foreign lady, she a missionary. On entering the room she deliberately turned her back upon her hostess and made an elaborate obeisance. Of course the foreign lady was amazed and annoyed, but she found out the reason of the strange proceeding afterward. The bride's conduct had conformed to Chinese etiquette.

She had performed her obeisance, her Ko'tou, to the north because that is the direction of the royal abode. If the foreign lady was so ignorant as to stand on the south side of the room, that was not the bride's concern. She knew, if her hostess did not, in what direction to bow her head.

Bolled Oysters.

In "Social Life in the Reign of Queen Anne" Swift writes to Stella, "Lord Masham made me go home with him to eat bolled oysters," and then he obligingly adds the recipe: "Take oysters, wash them clean; that is, wash their shells clean; then put your oysters in an earthen pot, with their hollow side down; then put this pot, covered, into a great kettle of water and let it boil. Your oysters are then bolled in their own liquor and do not mix with water."

Raphael's "Paul."

While Raphael was engaged in painting his celebrated frescoes he was visited by two churchmen, who began to criticise his work without understanding it. "The Apostle Paul has too red a face," said one. "He blushes even in heaven to see what hands the church has fallen into," replied the indignant painter.

 GOLDSBORO, N. C., Aug. 25, 1902.
 Gentlemen—Some six years ago I began to have sciatica, and also a chronic case of muscular rheumatism. At times I could not work at all (my business being baggage master on Southern R. R.). For days and weeks at a time I could not work. My suffering was intense. Physicians treated me, without permanent relief, however. Tried a number of advertised remedies without permanent benefit. Finally I tried "RHEUMACIDE." It did the work, and I have had excellent health for three years. I can cheerfully say that all rheumatics should use "RHEUMACIDE," for it is by far the best remedy.

Exchanged Pulpits.

Sunday night the pastors of the Methodist and Baptist churches gave their respective congregations a surprise by exchanging pulpits without previous announcement, Rev. H. M. Eure preaching in the Baptist church and Rev. J. N. Booth in the Methodist church. And both congregations express pleasure at the change for the night.

Speaking for the Baptist congregation, we can say that they enjoyed a grand sermon. Rev. Mr. Eure was at his best and delivered a discourse that was filled with good thought and earnestness. His line of argument that no success can be attained, either in the material or spiritual life, without climbing the mountain of difficulty, was superb. He showed that to reach the lowest depths required no effort whatever, only a drifting along with the tide like so much rubbish gathered by a swollen stream, but to reach the heights of success there must be exertion, activity, and a putting forth of ones best efforts to surmount all difficulties that may arise.

Some who were in the Methodist congregation tell us that Rev. Mr. Booth also gave them an excellent sermon that was much enjoyed, his subject being "The Love of Christ Constrains Us."

Bad Conduct.

The conduct of the boys in doing much damage to fences Saturday night is generally condemned. It is expected that boys will have fun in carrying around valentines, but they have no right to injure property and create such disturbance as to be a nuisance. If a few of them were taken before the mayor and punished such conduct might stop.

Charming Singer.

The large congregation at the Baptist church Sunday night was delighted with the singing of Miss Ruth Gold, of Wilson, she very kindly rendering a beautiful solo during the service. Her voice is magnificent, rich in melody and of unusual power and sweetness. It is a rare pleasure to hear such a sweet singer. Miss Mary Ausin, of Tarboro, presided at the organ during Miss Gold's solo.

Miss Lena Matthews returned from Washington today.
