The Personality of this Store

THERE is a personality about this store. You feel it and believe in it if you are familiar with the store. The attitude of this personality toward the public has revolutionized trade in the last few years. You who remember the old shopping methods of years ago can best appreciate the difference now from then, and can realize how many of the inconveniences and unpleasant features of shopping have disappeared in the last half dozen years, since the policy of pleasing people under all circumstances has been established.

But it is not the old attitude of "bowing and scraping" to cajole a customer into a bad bargain which could not be righted afterward. It is an attitude of assurance in the worth of the merchandise presented. An attitude of confidence that establishes the law that every salesperson shall tell the absolute truth always, and reply to all questions asked frankly, pleasantly and intelligently. This store follows the old policy—tell the truth about merchandise. If a piece of dress goods has cotton in it, that is no disgrace. We tell it frankly. Many people prefer a little cotton in a certain class of dress goods. If a customer wants an all-wool dress it is here. If the price is higher, it is right. If some other store has told the customer that a part wool is all wool, and that customer thinks our goods dear, and goes to the other store to buy the deception, we have lost a sale, but kept our reputation, and will probably get that customer back when the cotton begins to show in the cheat.

It is not a question of morals or sentiment. In the cold logic of fact, "Honesty is the best policy." This store's personality presents an attitude of pleasantness, confidence, frankness, helpfulness, anxiety to please and satisfy in every transaction. Whenever this store fails in any of these particulars some human agency has failed in its loyalty to the principles of this store. And where there are many human minds and each with a pair of human hands, with the instincts of human frailty, composing an organization, human weakness will at times fail. But the idea is ever present. The intent is in every pulse-beat, and every error is promptly, pleasantly and, if possible, effectually righted, the flaw in the machinery corrected and endeavor continued. We are trying to deserve the success that has come to our store. If we knew how to serve the whole public better, we would do it. The best that seems possible today we are doing; we hope to do better tomorrow.

Tragedy in Raleigh.

A shocking tragedy occurred in Raleigh Saturday afternoon, in which Mr. J. Ludlow Skinner was shot and almost instantly killed by Ernest Haywood. The tragedy occurred on the principal street of the city near the postoffice. The two gentlemen had been in brief conversation and as Skinner turned and was walking away Haywood shot him twice. Both were prominent men of Raleigh and connected with the best families of the city. Skinner was a son of Dr. Thos. E. Skinner and his mother died only a few days ago. Haywood is a lawyer. He was committed.

Anti-Saloon League.

At the meeting of the Anti Saloon League in the Christian church, Sunday afternoon, Prof. W. H. Ragsdale and Mr. F. C. Harding made report of their recent visit to Raleigh as representatives of the league in the interest of temperance. Of course they could not tell just what will be the outcome of the pending legislation.

The league will hold a meeting in the Baptist church on the second Sunday in March to decide whether to continue the organization permanently. This will be determined by the action the legislature takes on the temperance question.

Our Raleigh Letter

Notes from the State Capital

Raleigh, February 23.—In the legislature the last several days were what may be termed "liquor bills week," and the hall of the house and the senate chamber have resounded with the oratory of representatives and senators on the subject of temperance, prohibition and liquor legislation.

In the senate a minority of the committee having the Anti Saloon League bill (known as the "London bill") in charge, reported a substitute for that measure, which its advocates claimed was practically the London bill, except that provision is made so that the country people and residents of towns of less than 300 population can vote on the question of the manufacture and sale of liquor, as well as those in towns and cities of greater population.

This substitute bill was first taken up, and three days have already been consumed (including night sessions) chiefly in its discussion. A vote will be reached on it and the London bill at noon Tuesday, that agreement having been reached by the senate Saturday afternoon.

The house has wrestled with the "Watts bill" day and night for a week. Amendment after amendment was offered and voted down. Finally the bill, after being slightly altered by some amendments, passed its second reading by a vote of 71 to 38, and on Friday night it passed the third and final reading by the vote of 48 to 38. It now goes to the senate.

It looks now as though the senate might pass the London bill, with section 5 stricken out (its advocates agreeing to that), and if it does, there will necessarily have to be a conference on the part of the two branches, through a conference committee, and agree on a compromise bill.

And they'll have to hurry, if they get any kind of bill at all enacted into law.

The senate has passed the "anti-child labor bill" almost unanimously, and the house will concur in it, probably this week.

As passed it allows adult operatives in cotton mills and workers in other manufactories to work over sixty-six hours a week, if they choose to do so. But minors under eighteen years cannot work longer than eleven hours a day, or an average of sixty six hours in any one week. Children under twelve shall not be employed, under any circumstances. That's all.

I greatly regret to tell you that there is apparently no hope at present for the better care of the unfortunate insane now confined in county jails and poor-houses. The legislative committee on asylums for the insane have agreed to report against any extension of either of the hospitals at this time, and appropriate only what is necessary for maintenance of the number of patients now confined therein, with small appropriations for absolutely necessary improvements.

On Saturday evening the senate passed an important bill in reference to improved public roads. It allows the county commissioners to build a good road for three miles from court house and to levy a special tax, if necessary, not to exceed ten cents on the $100, to pay cost of same. Some twenty-five or thirty counties are exempt from the bill.

This being a holiday on the New York exchanges no market reports were sent out.

The Cake's Ours

THE finest and best men's toggery is here. Put that word "Finest" in your pipe and smoke it, for we mean it.

Clothes first, of course—that's our chief business. But you must have Haberdashery, too. This store is one of those "satisfactory stores" you run into now and then; but they are few and far between. In a satisfactory store you feel that you have made a satisfactory trade. If you want to experience this feeling, come here for a Hat or some Underwear, a Shirt, a pair of Gloves, or anything you may need. Quality of the goods and the prices give you that feeling at once.

LETTER TO DR. ZENO BROWN.

Greenville N. C.

Dear Sir: You can put $100 in your pocket if you can put us in the wrong.

Devoo Lead and Zinc is all paint. It takes fewer gallons to paint a house than with mixed paints. It wears longer than lead and oil—mixed paints, too. The State chemist of Main, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania have analyzed it and say it is pure.

If you can prove that any of these things aren't so, we've a hundred dollars waiting for you.

If these things are true, what paint will you use next time you paint your house? What will you say to the people that ask you for doctors get asked queer questions.

If you know of an honest young painter who isn't getting the grip on life that he ought to have, give him this hint: Devoo lead and zinc—that'll do it, if he does his work as well as the paint does its.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOO & Co.

Senator Baldwin, who introduced the anti-high hat bill, will be lucky if he gets in his back door without good and sufficient explanations, when he returns home.—Daily REFLECTOR. This is funny. We think Senator Baldwin could enter his bachelor apartments without the slightest danger of molestation.—Winston Journal.

The Greenville REFLECTOR might have known that the man who introduced that bill was a bachelor.—Wilmington Messenger.

We'll admit we should have known Senator Baldwin was a bachelor. Married men are generally under better control.

Nevertheless the senator from Forsythe is in real danger. He has made a splendid opportunity for some young woman to marry him in order to reform him.

"The negroes are raising money to fight the Virginia constitution." Yes, and the whites are raising money to educate these same negroes, says the Wilmington Star. Yes, and the whites will raise a certain other crop if there should happen to be a serious case of Jim-hayesism.

We are afraid the temperance sentiment in the state is of so quick a growth to prove either beneficial or lasting.—Durham Herald.

What is there in that to be afraid of?

South Carolina is not so bad after all. Jim Tillman has been refused bail. It begins to look as if he will be treated like other murderers.

We like our new friends of the Winston-Salem Journal, and wish them much success, but those half tone cuts are simply awful.

The Salem Sentinel thinks it is highly important that the children of that place should be kept off the streets at night, and therefore advocates a curfew law that is the shifting of parently responsibility and duty to the shoulders of the municipal authorities. That's what a curfew law amounts to.—Richmond News.

Senator Lodge Has Novel Idea.

Washington, D. C. Feb. 20.—During a discussion of cloture rule in the senate, which was brought about by Senator Quay's resolution, setting forth that it was the sense of the senate that a vote on the statehood bill should be taken before March 2, Senator Lodge advanced one of the most unusual arguments ever heard in the senate. He said that inasmuch as the party in power was responsible for all legislation passed during its administration, a majority of the majority party should constitute a majority in the senate, and declared that a majority of the majority party co-operating with the minority party should not constitute a moral majority. He referred to the financial bill of Congressman W. A. Jones, of the First district, which swept the majority measure off its feet and passed the house. He said that in that instance a small minority of the majority party co-operating with the minority party defeated the majority bill and, while it might be a legal majority, it was not a moral one.

Mr. J. D. Christian is an artist in one particular, at least. He can take a rough piece of wood and turn out of same a handsome walking stick, nicely carved and unlike anything we ever saw. With certain little tools he can place the likeness of a man on the stick—can cut in good shape whole verses of poetry or almost anything he desires thereon. The work is all done by hand. Mr. Christian showed us a stick yesterday that he made to send to Mr. W. F. Parker, at Raleigh, representative from Halifax. An excellent likeness of Mr. Parker, about two x three inches in size, has been cut near the head of the stick, and under which, in large, well-shaped letters, appears the following significant lines: "Honor and shame from no condition rise, Act well your part, there all honor lies." "Therefore vote for the London bill." It is really a work of art and no doubt will be highly prized by Mr. Parker.—Rocky Mount Motor.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject of how to prevent disease, rather than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The man who achieves his ideal is to be pitied.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

Jno. L. Wooten.

There is no door of doubt in the temple of Faith.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Misery loves company and never has any trouble in finding it.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

It is easy for those who have never suffered to say, "Their grief is all put on."

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It is an antiseptic and quick healing liniment for cuts, bruises and burns. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

WHAT GAME OF A PASSION FOR BOOKS

(Original.)

On the coast of Maine, snuggling between the bases of adjoining hills and overlooking a small bay, is a little town occupied almost exclusively by lumbering people, while on both sides of the harbor are scattered houses. One morning from one of these houses came a girl whose complexion was darkened by the sun and winds and whose hands showed plainly that she was used to toil. She wore a pair of man's boots, her dress was of calico, and on her head was an unadorned felt hat. She hurried to the rockbound shore and, shading her eyes from the sun, which at the moment burst out between stormclouds, stood looking across the bay at a catboat coming under double reef. There was something in the girl's appearance and attitude that would have struck the fancy of an artist—a supple figure, fluttering skirts, a pair of honest eyes and a firm mouth. Besides, there was on the face an intellectual cast in strange contrast with her attire. The boat came on, and a man at the tiller, luffing up to the wind, brought its nose quietly against a rock, then stepped out, holding the painter. "Yer late, Sam," said the girl. "I thought ye wasn't comin'."

"Beatin' against this wind's slow work, Alice. I fear we'll have a hard time makin' land on the other side. The wind's fresher than here."

"I must go. The schoolmaster tole me he'd have the book for me, an' I must return it in two days. If I don't go now, I may miss the chance."

She stepped into the boat, and the man, leaning against the mast, shoved it off, stepping aboard at the same time. He took the tiller, while Alice sat amidships, facing him. "Yer cross today, Sam," she said. "Waal, that's somepin to make me cross. I don't like this craze ye got fur learnin'. Ye know I've sot my heart on to ye, an' ye got yer heart sot on to books."

"Better git yer heart sot on to some one else, Sam," she replied, not unkindly. "I own I've got a passion fur books. Lor's a mercy, that was a big one!" as a wave beat against the boat's quarter and nearly turned it over.

"The wind's been fresher'n' ever since I started, but I don't fear nothin' except makin' the inlet on the other side. It's full of logs."

When they neared the shore, the breakers were rolling over the bar furiously. A number of people were standing on a beach flanking the inlet watching the boat.

"It wasn't like that when I started," said Sam, scanning the landing place with dismay. "Guess we'll have to go about ag'in the wind," said Alice. "We'd be swamped. No," resolutely; "we're in fur it. I fear we'll be knocked out ag'in the logs. I'll do the best I kin fur ye, Alice, an' if ye come out alive I hope ye'll have all the books ye want an' be happier with 'em than ye would with me."

The girl stared at him with blanched cheek. "Don't talk that a-way, Sam," she said. "Y' got the same chance fur life I have."

"No, I haven't. I'm agoin' to look out fur you. I can't do that an' look out fur myself."

Steering for the mouth of the inlet, Sam approached the bar. The first breaker flung the boat into the air, and as it slid down the opposite side the lee gunwale shipped a barrel of water. The second wave tossed it slantwise on its crest, and when it reached the trough it was nearly full. The third sent it up heavily, as though tired of its weight, then threw it downward without a pause till it reached the sand.

Meanwhile Sam had grasped Alice and when they were in the water clung to her, at the same time buffeting to keep her afloat. The tide, driven by the wind, set inward, and they were borne along till they reached the scattered logs bobbing up and down in the more subdued billows of the inlet. Beaten against one of these logs, Sam put himself between it and Alice and saved her, though three of his ribs were broken. Still he struggled on. The next log was passed, with another blow that stunned Sam, and both sank. They came to the surface and by this time had reached a comparatively clear space in the center, while the shore was thickly packed with logs. Drifting against one of these, a boat hook was caught in Sam's clothing, and the two were dragged up on the logs. Sam was laid on a plank binding the timbers together, the blood from a gash on his head forming a pool beside him.

Sam just passed the death line without stepping over it. Alice did not receive a single blow and suffered only from exhaustion. By the time Sam was out of danger she was ready to nurse him and never left his bedside till he recovered. One day she said to him:

"Sam, I guess if I have to choose between you an' books I'll take you."

"No; y' won't do that, Alice. Maybe I kin trot alongside of y' an' yer books."

"Oh, Sam, wouldn't that be nice?" That winter the two spent the evenings with their books. At first Alice was the guide, and Sam followed docilely. But Sam's brain seemed to open with the spring, and what had been planted during the winter bore fruit. Alice, on the contrary, after making certain progress never got any further. Sam in time entered a law office and was admitted to the bar. This took him into public life and eventually to congress. He is now one of the principal judges of his state. His library is one of the best private libraries in the country.

STAGECOACH DAYS.

Story of a Trip From Portsmouth to London in 1780.

There are men and women—and they are not always the old—who deplore the breathless pace of the age. In stagecoach days, they tell us, life was a different thing. People journeyed through the years leisurely then; existence had a flavor. A century ago a journey meant fellowship and merry adventures and a comfortable enjoyment of the beauties of the landscape. All this may be so, but a traveler who made the journey from Portsmouth to London in 1780 shows that even stagecoach days had their shadows.

"The getting up on the coach alone was at the risk of one's life," he wrote, "and when I was up I had nothing to hold on to except a little hand at the side. The moment we set off I thought I saw certain death before me. The machine rolled with tremendous rapidity over the stones and every minute seemed to fly in the air, so that it appeared to me a complete miracle that we stuck to the coach at all."

"This continual fear of death at last became insupportable to me, and I carefully crept along the top of the coach and ensconced myself in the basket behind."

"On a sudden the coach proceeded at a rapid rate down a hill. All the boxes, iron nailed and copper fastened, began to dance around me, and every moment I received such violent blows that I thought my last hour had come. Shaken to pieces, bleeding and sore, I crept back to my former position. And it rained incessantly, and as before we were covered with dust so now we were soaked with rain."

"My neighbor every now and then fell asleep and when in this state perpetually rolled and jolted against me with the whole weight of his body, more than once nearly pushing me from the seat to which I clung with the last strength of despair. I looked and certainly felt like a crazy fool when I arrived in London."

The letter is realistic. It is possible that twentieth century traveling, although unromantic, has its compensations after all.—Youth's Companion.

POULTRY POINTERS.

When chickens grow very fast, it sometimes causes leg weakness.

Under usual conditions a variety of food is better than any medicine that can be given.

The only safe way of disposing of dead fowls that have died of any contagious disease is to burn them.

Clover contains two elements that are in demand by the hens—nitrogen and lime. It is rich in the elements required for the whites of eggs.

When roup gets into a flock, it invariably leaves some ailment behind. The fowl that has been subject to it is seldom healthy again.

There is no cure for feather pulling except by more labor and time than an ordinary flock is worth. The best plan is to get rid of the guilty fowls as soon as possible.

A hen seldom begins to eat eggshells until she finds one broken or until she becomes accustomed to eating eggs thrown out into the yard. The safest plan is always to crumble them up fine before feeding.

Taming the Cheetah in India.

The cheetah is tied in all directions, principally from a thick grummet of rope around his loins, while a hood fitted over his head effectually blinds him. He is fastened on a strong cot bedstead, and the keepers and their wives and families reduce him to submission by starving him and keeping him awake. His head is made to face the village street, and for an hour at a time several times a day his keepers make pretended rushes at him and wave cloths, staves and other articles in his face. He is talked to continually, and women's tongues are believed to be the most effective antispasmodics. No created being could resist the effects of hunger, want of sleep and feminine scolding, and the poor cheetah becomes piteously, abjectly tame.—Beast and Man in India.

Tunnel Discomforts.

The prairie dog that had started out to see the world was taking in the sights in a neighboring village inhabited by his own species.

"Well," he said as he backed hastily out of a subterranean dwelling that a rattlesnake had pre-empted. "I see they have the same tunnel problem to solve here that they have in other cities."—Chicago Tribune.

A Platform Speaker.

"That man," remarked Smithers, "makes a hundred speeches from the platform every day."

"Some great political leader?" asked Smithers.

"No," replied Smithers, "street car conductor. He says, 'Move up forward, please!' every time any one gets on his car."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Advantage of Waiting.

Her Father—But, my boy, surely you are too young to marry Aurelia. How old are you?

Her Suitor—One and twenty, sir.

Her Father—And she is twenty-seven—too great a disparity. Why not wait half a dozen years? Then you'll be twenty-seven and she'll probably be just about the same age as you.

A Sage Conclusion.

Uncle Reuben says: "Arter arguin' fur forty y'ars dat de whale couldn't possibly have swallered Joner and makin' three or four enemies a y'ar ober I I has come to de conclusion dat my belief, one way or de odder, wouldn't affect de past 2 cents' wuth. I have simply wasted a heap o' breath fur nuthin'!"—Detroit Free Press.

Farmer Suicides.

Tarboro N. C., Feb. 21.—John R. Pitt, a farmer who resided on the James Wiggins place, several miles from town, died yesterday morning from the effects of laudamum taken with suicidal intent. An empty bottle was found by his side and another bottle of the drug, untouched, was in his pocket. Physicians were summoned but all efforts to arouse him failed. Despondency is presumably the cause of suicide. Pitt was about 48 years old and leaves a wife, and three children.

Pitt was in Greenville some time ago, trying to rent a tobacco farm. While here he acted as if mentally deranged, and drank a great deal of laudamum.

Mrs. M. M. Nelson, the popular saleslady for M. Hoffman & Bro., left some days ago for her home in Greenville. She has been with the Mess. Hoffman three years, and the constant strain of business caused some nervous prostration and she had been in bed three weeks before she went away. Mrs. Nelson's host of friends here greatly regret her leaving and would be delighted to see her return. She made friends of all whom she met and her departure from the town is regretted by all. She has countless charms of life and character and her impression and influence upon the people of Scotland Neck will remain for many, many years. She will always find a warm welcome by all whenever she may choose or chance to come this way.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

THE REFLECTOR has just received a copy of the Kodol Almanac and 200 Year Calendar, which is certainly a most unique and useful book.

With a copy of this publication at hand one is in possession of a calendar which covers as far back as the day of our national independence, meets all the requirements of the present and dates as far in the future as near the beginning of the next century. By reference to this calendar the day of the week, of any given date in any given month of the year, from 1776 to 1976, may be found at a glance. This information cannot be found in any other publication extant. Another feature of remarkable interest that this publication possesses, is its weather forecasts. These predictions are not only full and complete, and as accurate and reliable as it is possible to calculate, but they are definite geographically, thus localizing the predictions and foretelling the weather which may be looked for in each section of the country.

Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, are sole owners and publishers of the Kodol Almanac and 200 Year Calendar, and while several millions of copies are in circulation, they have yet a few hundred copies of the first edition, and will send one copy to anyone enclosing a two cent stamp with a request for same, provided this paper is mentioned.

A Trenton, N. J., milkman cleared 22 cents the other day by quick hustling. He had an armful of milk in bottles, was near the river bank when the wind lifted his hat and wafted it riverward. He dropped those bottles, which went to smash, and he went for the hat, grabbing it just as it was about to go into the river. He lost $1.28 on the milk and bottles but saved $1.50 on the hat, which put him 22 cents ahead on the jump.—Wilmington Star.

Tell it to the Marines.

It is given out now that the Southern railway, whose "Palm Limited" was recently held up for two hours to pick up the Vanderbilts, would have held its train just the same and sent the engine back 22 miles if the people left on the platform had been two negroes! This may satisfy and even delight some Southern people, but there are few marines up this way capable of accepting it. The American jury has disposed of this case. Explanations, however thin, are too late!—Hartford (Conn.) Courant.

Attention Farmers.

The Greenville Township Farmers Protective Association will meet in Court house Saturday Feb. 28th, to permanently organize and elect delegates to county association. All farmers and others interested will please attend.
