The Personality of this Store

THERE is a personality about this store. You feel it and believe in it if you are familiar with the store. The attitude of this personality toward the public has revolutionized trade in the last few years. You who remember the old shopping methods of years ago can best appreciate the difference now from then, and can realize how many of the inconveniences and unpleasant features of shopping have disappeared in the last half dozen years, since the policy of pleasing people under all circumstances has been established.

But it is not the old attitude of "bowing and scraping" to cajole a customer into a bad bargain which could not be righted afterward. It is an attitude of assurance in the worth of the merchandise presented. An attitude of confidence that establishes the law that every salesperson shall tell the absolute truth always, and reply to all questions asked frankly, pleasantly and intelligently. This store follows the old policy—tell the truth about merchandise. If a piece of dress goods has cotton in it, that is no disgrace. We tell it frankly. Many people prefer a little cotton in a certain class of dress goods. If a customer wants an all-wool dress it is here. If the price is higher, it is right. If some other store has told the customer that a part wool is all wool, and that customer thinks our goods dear, and goes to the other store to buy the deception, we have lost a sale, but kept our reputation, and will probably get that customer back when the cotton begins to show in the cheat.

It is not a question of morals or sentiment. In the cold logic of fact, "Honesty is the best policy." This store's personality presents an attitude of pleasantness, confidence, frankness, helpfulness, anxiety to please and satisfy in every transaction. Whenever this store fails in any of these particulars some human agency has failed in its loyalty to the principles of this store. And where there are many human minds and each with a pair of human hands, with the instincts of human frailty, composing an organization, human weakness will at times fail. But the idea is ever present. The intent is in every pulse-beat, and every error is promptly, pleasantly and, if possible, effectually righted, the flaw in the machinery corrected and endeavor continued. We are trying to deserve the success that has come to our store. If we knew how to serve the whole public better, we would do it. The best that seems possible today we are doing; we hope to do better tomorrow.

Saturday evening, February 21st, from 3 to 6 o'clock, we will sell

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Feb. 25. Tuesday evening after school (With Professor along they broke no rule) The dormitory boys complete Gave the manufacturing boys a treat.

Beginning at the beginning They saw all the machinery running, While every workman doing his best, Declared he did his very worst.

At last a little man they found Sand-papering wagons out on the ground; This man, a little bachelor, Has painted wagons years galore.

He's not afraid of girls, you bet, And it has been already guessed That when he is dressed in his Sunday best, If one of them don't share his home, 'Twill be because she will not come.

Miss Clide Dawson, who has been visiting friends here, returned to Grifton Monday night

Rowan Cooper and L. L. Kittrell went to Bethel on business today.

Miss Lena Harris, who is teaching school near here, went to Kinston last night to attend the Wooten-Hines Wedding.

Rev. C. W. Blanchard returned to Cary Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Chapman, of Calico, were visiting at R. G. Chapman's Sunday.

J. G. Galloway, of Grimesland, who has been home some days on account of sickness, returned this week to resume his studies.

Don't forget the meeting of road supervisors at Ayden March 7th.

Several buggy loads of people went from this place Sunday afternoon to hear Mr. Blanchard preach at Tucker's school house.

Leonard Hamilton and Fernando Tucker were at Shelmerdine Sunday.

Misses Vida and Pearl McGloughon of Ayden, were visiting Misses Mabel and Yula Cox Munday.

We had quite an exciting double runaway here Saturday afternoon. Dr. Cox's horse, which was tied at his office, becoming frightened, broke loose and ran in the very worst place he could—among a lot of new timber. Getting clear of the timber he continued to run at full speed down the road. The top buggy to which he was hitched was almost a total wreck. Old "George" (A. G.'s old horse) seeing the other horse running began to run also, but soon got tired and stopped. He was hitched to a wagon load of beef.

WATTS AND LONDON

Join Forces and Pass a Temperance Bill.

Information comes from Raleigh today that the Watts and London bills had joined forces. The Vau-Warren substitute in the senate was killed and the Watts bill as amended and adopted then passed by a vote of 27 to 14. All needed now is its ratification to become a law.

Small Fire.

About 10.30 o'clock this morning a house occupied by colored people, in the section of the town called Little Washington was destroyed by fire. The fire department turned out in response to the alarm, but the house was too far gone to save. The building belonged to Mr. J. C. Lanier.

His stables, buggy and wagon were also burned. The buildings were insured.

To the Public.

By mutual agreement having severed my connection as superintendent of the A. C. Cox Mfg. Co., I take this method of thanking my friends and patrons for their favors of the past and request them to watch the columns of this paper as they may in the very near future find something to their interest.

Respectfully
ROWAN COOPER.

That's The Time

Wednesday Night, March 4, 1903. The Celebrated Musician and Instructor in Music of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N. C., will be in Farmville, at Christian Church. Hear him and be convinced that he is the greatest musician in the United States today. He is at the head of the largest music class in the World. The next largest is in Germany; but he is in North Carolina.

Your Toggery Wants, Gentlemen,

are well looked after at this store. There's a whole lot of things in Furnishings we'd like to tell you about, if you would take the time to read. Still it will be far more satisfactory all around if we can induce you to come in and see the new smart things in Haberdashery.

Our Neckwear, our Shirts, our Gloves, our Underwear, Collars, Cuffs, Hosiery, all smack of newness and originality. Not the every day kind you can buy anywhere, but different—and not a fancy price attached to a single article.

PASSING OF THE GALLOWES.

What's the matter with North Carolina juries? Is hanging going out of fashion? Is "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" lapsing into disuse? What is the law of the land coming to, when murderers need no longer fear death as a punishment for their crime?

The North Carolinian of today may well ask himself these questions, for it seems that a man can no longer commit a hanging crime in this state. We either turn our murderers loose or take care of them for a few years, or in the severest instance imprison them for 15 or 20 years or for life.

It is too often the case that a murderer's money or his friends and influence save his neck. Of course it is right that jurisprudence should recognize degrees in murder as in every thing else, but if we can't convict a man of murder in the first degree, we ought to repeal our law which authorizes hanging.

It is our opinion that in several instances of late happening far from exact justice has been executed in the imprisonment of men whom almost all people believe to be guilty of nothing less than murder.

There is no discounting the enterprise of the Charlotte Observer. That paper is really the only daily newspaper published in the state—that is, gets out an issue every morning in the year. (Let us say by way of parenthesis, while we do not approve of the necessary work to be done on Sundays to carry out this policy of the Observer, yet it does this to meet the demand of its army of readers for a paper every day.)

The Observer's last stroke of enterprise eclipsed anything before undertaken by a North Carolina newspaper. The tragedy in Raleigh in which Ernest Haywood killed Ludlow Skinner occurred late Saturday afternoon. The first particulars of this were sent to the Observer so that the Sunday morning edition of that paper contained in substance about what the Raleigh and other papers published. Knowing the eagerness of the public for further news of such a tragedy, and that there would be no other morning paper except its own published until Tuesday, that paper met the opportunity. A special staff representative of the Observer was hurried to Raleigh Sunday morning to gather all the facts that could be obtained bearing upon the tragedy, with the result that the Monday morning edition contained by far the best and most readable account of it that has been printed.

And the Observer's enterprise in this instance did not stop here, for no sooner did that Monday morning edition come from the press than another special man and four of its own carriers were sent with a great pile of papers to Raleigh, and though they carried 1500 copies they were all sold in a short while, and the demand could not be supplied. The Charlotte Observer is a great paper.

Additional information in regard to the Raleigh tragedy evens up things somewhat. Reliable witnesses say that the men engaged in a hand to-hand altercation prior to the shooting, and that both men made a motion to draw guns at the same time. Skinner was too slow and his life paid for it. The tragedy is deplorable, and the capital city is still shadowed in gloom and sorrow.

"The only hope for the success of the republican party in the South is in a strong and intelligent white man's party," says a Virginia newspaper. And President Roosevelt will see to it that it is a forlorn hope.

We endorse the proposition of the gentleman from Texas to the effect that "luds and jooks" who come over to this country and marry heiresses be licensed. That's the law in North Carolina, anyway.

Some enterprising papers have already begun to get a line on Haywood's appetite, the way his cravat is tied and several other important details.

Having proven that he can be a gentleman in debate, it is to be hoped that Senator Tillman will now see the ugliness of the other kind of oratory.

Money and society (!), what are their fruits when the summing up comes? For answer look at the Raleigh tragedy and its preceding scandal.

The George Washington cherry tree yarn will now take a 365 days' rest.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

An order from South Africa for 18,000 eight-horse plows has been received by a plow manufacturer in the United States.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

It is estimated that the bees of the United States have produced, during the season just closed, 7 million dollars worth of honey and wax.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

BY HELP OF SUE

(Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.)

"Come, Jed; don't be a fool about it now."

"Sue, I'm afraid they'll catch us. It's too risky." The boy shrank back in the doorway of the humble brown cottage.

"Risky!" cried his sister scornfully.

"Who pulled you out of the airhole? Who near lost his own life for your miserable little skin? You come along!"

Still the small brother paused, anxious, irresolute, glancing at the starlit sky.

"It's so light," he muttered, "an' ma an' pa's likely to come home any time."

"An hour yet." Susan Bates' ill shod little foot tapped hard on the stone step, her voice ringing angrily. "I'm waiting," she said.

"I—don't—know!"

Two strong brown hands shot out and shook him fiercely. "I'll go!" articulated Jedediah gaspingly.

"That's right; pick up the tools by the gate. Get your cap first. Don't whimper, Jeddy. I'll carry the saw."

In the shadow of the rock maples the two stole silently, then off the road by the pasture fence, along the row of chokeberries and brush into the lane leading to Munn's barn.

"Careful, now," whispered the girl, bending her lithe young form in crouching watchfulness. "He's in the second stall, eh?"

"Yep," Jed shuddered.

"Crawl up on your knees. Don't mind the dirt. There! They'll never see us. The house is rods away. Give me that chisel."

The crack between the old barn boards widened. "Chip, chip."

"The saw now, Jed. I'll have to use it."

"You'll make an awful noise."

"Shut up!" The moonlight cast a profile against the gray wood—a girl's bare head, the upturned nose, the round set of the firm jaw, the curly mass of hair. To the boy it seemed uncanny, quivering there. He shivered again.

The saw rasped slowly through and squeaked on a nail. Susan's face was white as her dark eyes stared weirdly at her cowering companion.

Again, eighteen inches above, then the next plank; it was easier now. The pieces were removed; then a careful silence, listening.

"I can get through, Jed. Thank goodness, we've got so far! I'll call him now. Sam!" The low voices trembled into the dark interior, mingling with the sound of cud chewing cows and restless animal movement.

The young horse thief wrenched at his bonds, striving to rise.

"Who's that?" with a note of hope in his strained voice.

"It's me—Sue. Where are you? Keep talking—not too loud."

"Over here in the stall. I'm tied."

"Your knife, Jeddy. Here!" She withdrew her head, gave him a quick caress. "Take the things and scoot," she whispered. "You're safe."

Five minutes later a man, crazed and blinking, crouched outside the aperture. "Hurry, Susie," he pleaded.

"They've gone for an officer. I expect 'em any minute."

"Right away." The girl groped in the musty blackness. "I've got it—Munn's saw. Scatter those chips and scrape up the sawdust. Lucky I knew where he kept it. Now, Sam."

He helped her out. Together they crawled cautiously away through the lane, through the pasture by the sheltering saplings on to the great clump of pines. Safe!

Before them rose the rugged domes of the Taconics—fastnesses all for such as Samuel Willey. He laughed in triumph, gloating at the prospective wrath of his captors. "Tomorrow night I'll be in Massachusetts," he grinned. "Guess I'll work south."

His rescuer was fumbling at her pocket. "Here, Sam! It's the best I could do—only bread and butter. We didn't have any meat."

"My God!" cried Willey, with sudden, broken words. "You thought of that, too, Susie! Oh, I ain't worth all this!"

Slipping the poor little package into his coat, he held out his arms, and the girl nestled happily, her face buried in his rough blue flannel shirt, open at the tanned, muscular throat.

"I'm glad I could do it, Sam," she breathed. "You are worth it. You know what you promised."

Something warm and wet fell on her cheek. She looked up amazed. The man was crying. It could not be.

"Why, Sam—why, Sam, dear!"

"By the Lord, Susie, I'll quit the business. I ain't far in. It's just because I love a horse. You know I ain't bad. Will you—will you—if I go way off—Canada or out west—and can make a home—will you come? I'll have to change my name."

He was in deadly earnest, holding her tightly.

"I'll go anywhere—o-h-h!" She sobbed hysterically for a moment, then smiled up at him in the faint moon glow. "I'm willing to change my name, too," she said.

"Busted his cords, found my saw an' cut loose," observed Caleb Munn, stroking his nose. "Thought I hed him fast."

The startled group burst into expletive.

"Waal," pursued Caleb, "'slong's I got my hoss back nothin's lost 'ceptin' Sam, an' he ain't a mean feller. I dunno what the rest of you thinks, but ez fer me, derned ef I ain't glad on't. Come on up ter the house, boys, an' hev some cider."

Study the Right Side.

A photographer was asked the other day if there is any special reason why most photographs show the left side of the face and not the right.

"Yes, there is a reason," he answered.

"In a majority of cases the left side is the good looking side, and photographers know this and take advantage of it. On the other hand, if you want to get at the real strength and character of a person's face, man or woman, study the right side of it—the ugly side, as some portrait painters call it. There you will find the lines bold and harsh, comparatively so at any rate, with every defect accentuated. On the left side, however, everything is softened down, and the face is at its best."

"Whenever you suspect a man of trickery or deceit, or a woman either for that matter, stand on his right and closely watch his expression. There never was an actor skillful enough to cover up the marks of his real personality, as nature has stamped them on the right side of his face."

"Lunnon" Likes It "Oo."

It may be that the quality of imagination was lacking in the Boston and Salem merchants who attempted in 1842 to introduce American ice into London. One of them tried to attain this end by demonstrating the merits of American ice drinks. He hired a hall, as the story goes, and trained a number of men to mix the cool beverages of his native land. The members of the Fishmongers' association, presumably as fond of turtle as aldermen themselves, were the guests. The waiters made an imposing entry, but, alas, the first sound that met the ear of the American "promoter," expecting a chorus of approval, was that of an English voice calling for hot water and saying, "I prefer it, all in all."

The American completes the story, "I made a dead rush for the door, next day settled my bills in London, took train for Liverpool and the steamer for Boston and counted up a clear loss of $1,200."

—M. A. De Wolfe Howe in Atlantic.

The Charge at Marengo.

As an instance of magnificent blundering, sung by poets and treasured in story, no record is ever likely to come up to that of the Light brigade in the Crimean war. But, perhaps, most remarkable was Kellerman's charge at Marengo. From daybreak till late afternoon the Austrians had the best of it. Desaix said to Napoleon, "The battle is completely lost," adding, "but it is only 4 o'clock. There is time to gain another one." A little later Kellerman with 400 mounted sabers—carefully hidden by a vineyard till the fateful moment arrived—dashed out upon the flank of the Hungarian infantry. The onset was irresistible. Two thousand imperial soldiers surrendered with their general, and the French, inspired to a final effort, wrested a brilliant victory—unique, even in Napoleon's career—from their opponents.

In Doubt.

In one of Wilkie Collins' published letters he writes:

For the last week while I was finishing the story I galloped along without feeling it, like the old post horses. Do you remember how the fore legs of those post horses quivered, and how their heads drooped when they came to the journey's end? That's me, my dear; that's me. Good gracious, is "me" grammar? Ought it to be "I"? My poor father paid £90 a year for my education, and I give you my sacred word of honor I am not sure whether it is "me" or "I."

Personal Magnetism.

Two men address an assembly on the same topic and in nearly the same words. One is listened to with indifference, if at all; the other sits to every fiber our being and our souls thrill responsive to his lightest touch. It is not what we hear, nor is it graceful pose or elegant diction; it is nothing comprehensive or tangible, but an invisible, mysterious force which we acknowledge and yield to even against our convictions and reason. This strange attribute is not hereditary, nor can it be acquired.

The Thirsty Elm.

It has been computed that if the leaves of an elm tree sixty feet high were spread out on the ground edge to edge they would cover five acres of land. These leaves, averaging 7,000,000 to a full grown tree, will absorb water to the amount of seven tons during the normal summer day. Were it not for the ingathering by the stomata during the night a few felms would soon draw off all the water from a district.

The Modest Actor.

"Shakespeare took some great risks in his dramatic effects," said the literary analyst.

"He did, indeed," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, with the innocent egotism of genius. "For instance, when he wrote his plays he had no idea that I would be born to see that they were properly produced."

Could Live on Love.

Father—The idea of marrying that young fellow! He couldn't scrape enough money together to buy a square meal.

Daughter—But what difference need that make? We haven't either of us had a bit of appetite for months.

MENSTRUAL irregularities are generally the beginning of a woman's troubles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weakened, the digestion disordered, she goes about pale-faced, hollow-eyed and haggard, a piteous contrast to the blooming health of her former self. But over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual periods Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most persistent and aggravated case of weakness.

to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelligence in the matter of medicines, observing results, they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McEiree's Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Theodor's Black-Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer because the disease has run longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

GALLOWAY-LATHAM.

A Lovely Afternoon Home Wedding.

Miss Louise Latham, daughter of the late Hon. L. C. Latham, was at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon united in marriage to Mr. Harry Graves Galloway, of Surry county, N. C. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Col. Harry Skinner, uncle and guardian of the bride, with whom she has resided since the death of her father six years ago.

The Rev. Father Leo, of New Bern, was the officiating clergyman, and the ceremony was witnessed by a very large number of loving relatives and friends to whom Miss Latham had greatly endeared herself by her loveliness of disposition and character; and the good wishes of the whole community will follow her to her new home. The wedding was in all respects quite a society event.

Misses Winnie and Nell Skinner and Miss Grace Galloway were the bride's only attendants, while the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Gaston Galloway, his nephew, Mr. Ernest Galloway, and Mr. Frank Wilson, of Greenville.

Miss Latham was elegantly attired in heavy white silk with garniture of red lace.

The presents were very numerous and exceedingly handsome, testifying to the popularity of the young couple, who after partaking of elegant refreshments, had only time to don their traveling costumes and board the train for a trip north.
