The Personality of this Store

THERE is a personality about this store. You feel it and believe in it if you are familiar with the store. The attitude of this personality toward the public has revolutionized trade in the last few years. You who remember the old shopping methods of years ago can best appreciate the difference now from then, and can realize how many of the inconveniences and unpleasant features of shopping have disappeared in the last half dozen years, since the policy of pleasing people under all circumstances has been established.

But it is not the old attitude of "bowing and scraping" to cajole a customer into a bad bargain which could not be righted afterward. It is an attitude of assurance in the worth of the merchandise presented. An attitude of confidence that establishes the law that every salesperson shall tell the absolute truth always, and reply to all questions asked frankly, pleasantly and intelligently. This store follows the old policy—tell the truth about merchandise. If a piece of dress goods has cotton in it, that is no disgrace. We tell it frankly. Many people prefer a little cotton in a certain class of dress goods. If a customer wants an all-wool dress it is here. If the price is higher, it is right. If some other store has told the customer that a part wool is all wool, and that customer thinks our goods dear, and goes to the other store to buy the deception, we have lost a sale, but kept our reputation, and will probably get that customer back when the cotton begins to show in the cheat.

It is not a question of morals or sentiment. In the cold logic of fact, "Honesty is the best policy." This store's personality presents an attitude of pleasantness, confidence, frankness, helpfulness, anxiety to please and satisfy in every transaction. Whenever this store fails in any of these particulars some human agency has failed in its loyalty to the principles of this store. And where there are many human minds and each with a pair of human hands, with the instincts of human frailty, composing an organization, human weakness will at times fail. But the idea is ever present. The intent is in every pulse-beat, and every error is promptly, pleasantly and, if possible, effectually righted, the flaw in the machinery corrected and endeavor continued. We are trying to deserve the success that has come to our store. If we knew how to serve the whole public better, we would do it. The best that seems possible today we are doing; we hope to do better tomorrow.

WATTS BILL.

Text of North Carolina's New Liquor Law.

The following is the full text of the Watts bill as it passed the house, except the last sections, which provide for elections in the towns:

"Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation to manufacture, sell or otherwise dispose of for gain, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or intoxicating bitters within the state of North Carolina, except in incorporated cities and towns wherein the sale or manufacture of liquor is not or may not hereafter be prohibited or regulated by special statute: Provided, this act shall not be construed to forbid the sale of such spirituous, vinous or malt liquors by druggists for sickness upon the written prescription of a legally qualified physician having such sick person under his charge: Provided further, that this act shall not be construed as to apply to wine or cider manufactured from grapes, berries or fruits on the lands of the person so manufacturing, or purchased by the manufacturer from the growers thereof: Provided further, that this act shall not be construed to apply to brandy manufactured from fruit or grapes and sold in original packages of not less than five gallons.

"Sec. 2. That it shall be unlawful for any person, persons, firm or corporation to manufacture, sell or otherwise dispose of for gain any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, intoxicating bitters, except as hereinbefore provided, in any incorporated city or town, without first obtaining, as provided by law, a license therefore both from the board of commissioners of the county in which said town or city is situated and from the board of aldermen or city councilmen, or the governing authorities, by what ever name called, of said city or town.

Sec. 4. That any person violating the provisions of this act with reference to the sale, or disposition for gain, of spirituous vinous or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or fined not exceeding $200, or both, in the discretion of the court.

"Sec. 4. That any person violating the provisions of this act with reference to the manufacture of spirituous, vinous or malt liquor, or intoxicating bitters, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction be imprisoned not less than four months nor more than a year, or fined not less than $200, or more than $1,000, or both, in the discretion of the court; second offence felony.

"Sec. 5. That any physician who shall make any prescription, except in case of sickness, for the purpose of aiding or abetting any person or persons who are not bona fide under his charge to purchase any intoxicating liquors contrary to the provisions of this act, and any druggist who shall duplicate the prescription of a physician for intoxicating liquors for any person or persons not bona fide under his charge, without the written direction of the physician who gave the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court, for each and every offence; and all druggists selling intoxicating liquors by prescription as aforesaid shall keep a record thereof which shall bear the true date of the sale and be subject at all times to the inspection of the solicitor of the district and of the mayor and police officers of the city or town in which said druggist's business is located (and all other persons); and any druggist failing to keep the record aforesaid or refusing to permit examination of such record by the officers named and all other persons, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court.

"Sec. 6. It shall be unlawful for any person to sell wine manufactured from fruit or grapes grown by himself in quantities less than one gallon, and said wine shall not be drunk upon the premises where sold. Any person violating the provisions of this section, either by selling in quantities less than one gallon or by drinking wine on the premises where sold, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished at the discretion of the court. Provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to churches wishing to procure wine for communion services."

The last sections of the bill provide for elections in the towns upon the petitions of one-fourth of the registered voters, upon the questions of dispensary, distillery and license.

Sent Them to Raleigh.

A pitiful sight was seen at the Union station this morning. Two women and seven little children, including two babies, got off the Southern eastbound train.

When approached by a Times reporter one of the women said that they came from Winston. That they stopped in Durham when the authorities there gave them enough money to buy tickets to Raleigh. They were thinly clad and excited the sympathy of the people assembled at the station.

They had only forty cents between them. They do not know what they will do in Raleigh.—Raleigh Times.

After Cold Climate Oranges.

In an effort to procure a hardy orange, one impervious to frost, the scientists of the department of agriculture labored four years and have produced—a lemon! The orange growers of Florida complained to the department that the orange growing industry was unprofitable because of the destruction of fruit by frost.

"We'll produce an orange that will grow with icicles hanging to the trees," declared the scientific experts of the department.

Plant breeding was begun and hybrids were obtained which would grow almost at the North Pole. Money was appropriated by congress to carry on the work. The scientists, after four years, reported progress and asked for an additional appropriation. The congressional committee asked: "What is the quality of this frost resisting orange you have produced?"

"Well, it is not exactly an orange," replied the scientists; "it is a lemon."

"Then it will not take the place of the orange?" was asked.

"If we get the money it will," was the answer. "From the hybrid we now have we expect to produce the real orange." They got the money.—Washington Dispatch, 21st.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 26, 1903.

While the Watts bill, which has now become a law, does not fully meet the wishes of many temperance advocates throughout the state, yet it is a long step toward temperance reform and should be accepted and acted upon by all. Enforce the law enacted by this bill and there will be a decided lessening of the whiskey evil. Under this law no whiskey can be sold or manufactured except in incorporated towns, and it is within the province of county commissioners not to issue licenses for towns not having ample police protection day and night. This ought to eliminate the sale in little places with a mere handful of inhabitants which have been incorporated for the sole purpose of having a barroom. Another good feature of this law is that any town upon giving prescribed notice can hold an election for prohibition or dispensary and rid itself of saloons and distilleries. The law can only serve its best purpose by having the support of all temperance advocates. In the absence of a stronger law, see that the Watts bill is enforced.

The Greenville REFLECTOR observes that whether it does much for the state or not the legislature is a big thing for Raleigh, that it keeps hundreds here, and adds "the old town will be comparatively dull when they go home." We are disposed to take the REFLECTOR as an authority on the vitality of the Capital City, but its comment invites one reflection. There has been less legislation of a character to draw large crowds here than any legislature certainly in six years. Two years ago we had the book fight, the fertilizer matter, the impeachment and several other matters that drew large crowds and kept them here many days. During the present session, outside of the senatorial contest and the temperance legislation, there has been little to cause an influx of people. The local questions that always bring crowds have not been more numerous than usual.—Raleigh Times.

When we wrote that "the old town will be comparatively dull when they go home," we didn't take into consideration such events as murders and scandals in high life.

General William Booth, of the Salvation Army, at a monster rally which was held in Boston said:

"We have in our shelters at this time more than thirteen thousand criminals and if the rich do not give us funds to carry on our work we will turn them loose and give them the addresses of these rich."

Here's 20th century civilization with a vengeance. Some of the rich no doubt deserve the noted salvationist's measure, but it would be hard on Messrs. Rockefeller and Carnegie, who have done so much to educate the criminals, so that they could give up their disreputable calling and cheat their neighbors strictly according to law.

We'd like to get some of our public men off to themselves and make them listen to the following homely truth from Artemas Ward till they could see the sin of "slopping over." "G. Washington was about the best man this world ever set eyes on. He never slopped over. The prevailing weakness of most public men is to slop over."

"Mr. Craig might as well become a candidate for governor along with the rest of them," speaketh the Durham Herald. By that time that also ran feeling will have subsided somewhat.

It may be all right to place a statue of General Lee in Statuary Hall, but when we have passed into the great beyond we hope our relatives and friends will see that a house cleaning takes place before they attempt to place our noble duplicate there.

"Visiting is a lost art," says the wise young woman in charge of the feminine section of an exchange. We cheerfully subscribe to that assertion, and venture to state that the art was found by some people living not over a thousand miles from this town.

We had hoped to be spared the following from the Winston-Salem Sentinel:

It looks as though North Carolina is going to have some temperance legislation. In a short time we shall know Watts what.

When it comes to which has the biggest case of swelled head, Poulney Bigelow or Kaiser William, we give it up. There's nothing with which to measure the cranial ponderosity of either.

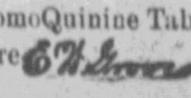

If Dr. Parkhurst writes for his ideal newspaper as he talks, it will no doubt have the largest circulation in freak museums and institutions for the care of the mentally aberrated.

The American republic must go at last. Austria and Germany are preparing to form a combine to freeze us out. Still there's some hope as long as we have J. Pierpont.

The Asheville Citizen heads a news article "Mr. Rockefeller Leaves Today." It is gratifying to note that John D. will leave something.

If there is anything or any body that our republican statesmen are not in favor of pensioning, we have yet to hear of it.

The North Carolina legislature can do things when it is properly wound up.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."

I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.

HIS BALANCE WHEEL

(Original.)

Herbert Hathaway was a very bright fellow. He was not only bright, but practical. Before he was thirty he had accumulated a snug little fortune, and since, to use a paradoxical expression, no one feels so old as a young person he concluded that his work was finished and that he would retire from business and devote himself to travel. He got no farther than Florence, Italy, when he met an American family and fell in love with one of the daughters, who was studying art. He spent a winter there winning one thing and losing another. What he won was Kate Spencer's heart; what he lost was his fortune. A part of each day he was with Kate, either in her studio or gadding. In the evenings after 11 o'clock he was always at a club, where he developed a passion for gambling. It was there that he dropped his accumulations.

One spring morning he borrowed sufficient means from his prospective father-in-law to take him back to America. This was a disappointment both to himself and to Kate, who had promised to be his wife. But Herbert was plucky and had plenty of confidence. He told Kate that three years at most would see him as well off as he had been when he reached Florence. Spurred on by love, he went to work in earnest and was lucky enough to regain all he had lost. Two years after his departure from Florence he returned there to claim his bride.

"Herbert," said Kate, "suppose your old habit of gambling should come back to you. We might have to wait two years more, and papa says that every time a man begins over again it is much harder. You might never make another fortune."

"No, thank you; no more gambling for me. Let us be married at once and go for a trip to Egypt."

"Remain in Florence just long enough to test your resolution. Then it shall be as you desire."

A few evenings later Kate proposed that she and Herbert should amuse themselves with a game of cards, without a stake, of course. Herbert rather objected at first. Cards had the same effect over him that drinking at a soda fountain might have over a drunkard. They were liable to kindle a desire for the real game. Kate urged him, however, and he consented. They had not played long before Count Guilemo Marini, a friend of the Spencers, came in and was invited to take a hand. He did so, but soon began to yawn, then proposed that they play for a small stake to make the game interesting.

A paul was quite enough. A flush came to Herbert's cheek. Kate was watching him to see what he would do. He looked at her to see what she wished him to do. To his surprise, she said:

"To play for a little stake like that is no harm."

In half an hour the game had grown to such proportions that Kate withdrew. As soon as she had left the table the other two not only raised the stakes, but raised the limit. Kate took a seat at another table, took up a book and began to read, now and again casting a troubled glance at her lover. At 11 o'clock the count proposed to end the game, but Herbert insisted on going on, inasmuch as he had lost nearly half of his fortune. Then the count proposed to adjourn the sitting to his club. To this Kate objected and told them either to cease to play or continue where they were.

At 1 o'clock Herbert begged his fiancée to go to bed. She declined. At 2 she asked how the game stood, and Herbert told her that he had lost nearly everything he possessed. At 3 he excitedly announced that he had regained three-quarters of his losses. Then he proposed to double both stake and limit, to which the count consented. At 4 Herbert had but a thousand dollars in the world. Kate got up from her seat, went over to the table where the two were playing and looked at the game. Herbert, who was betting high, won $2,000 on one hand and lost $3,000 on the next. Taking out a pencil, he figured his losses and found that he had nothing left. He looked up at Kate piteously. They must wait till he had made another fortune. But it was not this that caused the greater suffering. It was that the passion for gambling had him again in its toils.

Kate put her arms about him.

"Herbert," she said, "when you proposed to be married at once and visit Egypt I did not believe the plan was advisable. It is plain that you must be at work in order to refrain from gambling, for you know that when you are busy you have no temptation to do so. If you like, we will be married to-morrow, or, rather, today, and go at once to America, you to take up your business as soon as you arrive."

"Signorina," interrupted the count, "although I am a close friend of your family, it is not meet that I should be present at this interview. Permit me to settle accounts with you, and I will withdraw. As your agent I have succeeded very well. I should not boast, for, though I rarely play, I am considered the most expert player at my club. These memoranda, all signed by Mr. Hathaway, foot up $155,000, which, with the amount you gave me to risk, makes in all $155,025."

Herbert Hathaway, who had by this time taken in the situation, threw his arms about his fiancée and sobbed.

"Kate," he said, "without you I am useless to myself or any one else; with you I may always be successful."

At 10 o'clock a wedding couple, the bridegroom rather sleepy looking, called at the American embassy and were married. At 1 o'clock they took a train for Calais, thence to New York.

Herbert Hathaway never touched a card again. ROGER T. HOWELL.

One Client Lawyers.

The poverty of briefless barristers is as proverbial as that of the church mouse. It would not be an unnatural mistake to consider a barrister with only one client hardly better off than one with none. But the modern "one client lawyer" is usually a prosperous individual. Said a man well known in the business world some years ago to a friend: "I want a young lawyer to put down at a desk beside mine. I'll familiarize him with my affairs, and then I want him to keep me out of trouble." The counterpart of this lawyer, whose duty it is to act as his own client's ounce of prevention, may be found in the office of many large concerns. He is often connected with trust companies, banks, banking houses, railroad and other transportation companies and large wholesale mercantile houses. When a merchant found himself in a tangle, it was once the custom for him to go to his lawyer for advice. The results were a written "opinion" and a fee. The business man today obtains a lawyer who shall work for him alone. Again, the field of the general practitioner is narrowed.—World's Work.

Miss Hauck as a Drummer.

Mme. Minnie Hauck was once singing at the Berlin court opera in Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment." Emperor William I., after the opera, called her into his presence and told her she had sung very nicely, but that her drumming—as the Daughter of the Regiment she had to play the drum—was very bad. Next morning a drum major of the First Grenadier regiment called at her hotel and said he had come to give her a drum lesson. The diva was bound to accept the instruction and learned the whole art of drumming in a couple of dozen lessons. Then the kaiser sent to ask how she was getting on, and hearing that she had made excellent progress, he commanded a performance of "A Daughter of the Regiment." Mme. Hauck acquitted herself excellently in the drumming scene, and the kaiser complimented her warmly, sending her next day a real official military drum with a silver plate and inscription.

An Interrupted Story.

Captain Williams, a jovial Irishman, known everywhere as "Bob," used to be a favorite in Dublin society many years ago. His stories were famous. Give him an incident, and he would set it out to the general admiration.

One evening he went into the club and there began telling the true tale of rescuing a lady and her daughters from a dangerous situation into which their spirited horses had brought them.

"I quieted the ladies," said he, "and I quieted the horses. And the gratitude of the ladies! Me boys, I shouldn't be surprised if her ladyship left me!"

At that moment a little Irish page in livery appeared.

"Sir," said he, "Lady Arnold says she lost her purse when yez helped her out of the carriage, and plaze, she says, do yez know anything about it?"

The captain's story was never finished.

Dodging an Interview.

A young reporter once called to interview Senator Quay and found him reading. After formal greetings had been exchanged the senator said: "Do you play poker? Of course you do once in awhile. Then you will find this one of the best poker stories you ever saw," handing the newspaper man a book. The reporter out of politeness read a page. "Ah," said the senator, "I see you are interested. Take the book along and read it at your leisure. Good evening." And the dazed young journalist was out on the sidewalk before he could recover his breath.

It's Never Given Away.

"Pa," said Johnny, who is a persistent knowledge seeker, "what is a lawyer?"

"There isn't any such thing, Johnny," replied the old gentleman, who had been involved in considerable litigation in his time.

"But this book says that somebody was a great lawyer," persisted the youngster.

"Then it's a mistake," rejoined his father. "Law is never given; it's retailed in very small quantities at very high figures."

How He Kept Humble.

Hiller—You'll excuse me, but I never see your name in the list of subscribers for the poor of the village.

Slender—Naturally. You see, it is this way: I pity the poor awfully and I am rather proud that I do pity them. If I should go so far as to give them money, I'd be no saint there'd be no living in the same town with me.—Boston Transcript.

Harking Back.

"You were telling Miss Gauspiss this morning that you were going to be married again, weren't you?" said the shrewd man.

"Why, yes," the widower gasped in surprise. "How did you know?"

"After you left her she began to count on her fingers."—Philadelphia Press.

Sarcasitic.

Barber (testing razor)—Do I hurt you, sir?

Baird—No; not so badly as the last man who had me in his chair.

Barber (highly gratified)—Who was that?

Baird—The dentist.

Take Your Choice.

Student—What is pessimism?

Philosopher—The faith of cowards. "Then what is optimism?"

"The faith of fools."—New York Weekly.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

One may get a very good idea of the prices paid for leaf tobacco during the past season from the recent statement of a prominent North Carolina farmer, to the effect that he had received more for his crop of the weed than his entire farm had been worth formerly.

With such facts as this in sight, it is hardly probable that the man who tries to restrict the acreage this season will have an easy task before him. There are any number of people who have been making comfortable incomes from grain and other crops, but who will plant tobacco this year in the hope of securing phenomenal returns, little thinking that there was ever in existence such a thing as the law of supply and demand. The sooner the farmers come to a realization of the fact that there is such a law, the better it will be for all concerned.—Southern Tobacco Journal.
