Progress

Progress is the law of life. When things cease to grow to betterment, decay begins. The store which stands still is dead. The good store of yesterday is commonplace today and out of date tomorrow. To do better today the thing done well yesterday, to serve better today the public which we served well yesterday, is the day-by-day labor that makes this store progressive.

We are determined to close the ends of winter goods. There has been much buying for the last few days, but there are lots of winter goods left yet. Every item in the store has the true economic ring. Low prices predominate through this week and next. All winter goods must be closed out by March 15, as we need the space on our floors for spring goods.

Saturday, February 28th,
we will sell Ladies' Fine
Shoes, sizes 2 to 4½, worth
2.50, for

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS

NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., Feb. 28. Misses Lena Spain and Ida Moore went to Kinston Friday night.

Winterville is to have a new factory. A stock company is already organized. The business will be incorporated. Site is being prepared for building on side track south of A. G. Cox Mfg. Co. Have not learned what the style of the firm will be nor what will be their main line of manufacture, but have heard that it would be largely building material with probably some furniture for the present.

G. A. Kittrell went to Kinston Thursday night.

J. R. Smith and E. A. Baldree spent yesterday in Greenville.

Mrs. J. D. Cox is having a new coat of paint applied to the boarding house. A plenty more such jobs of painting and Winterville will not look like the same place.

E. A. Parker, of Kinston, was up here Wednesday taking pictures of the school, dormitory &c. as well as some private work.

It was the dormitory girls and not boys as printed in Wednesday's items, who had such a lively time taking in the A. G. Cox

Mfg. Co's establishment Tuesday afternoon. The typesetter spoiled the whole thing.

Uncle Pig Forbes will be down Monday. Beginning at that time he will take the Winterville Tar Heel Brass Band through a course of instruction continuing several weeks. The citizens of the town as well as surrounding community recently showed their appreciation of the earnest efforts of the band boys by contributing a nice little purse to aid in their further advancement.

Public school for this district closed yesterday.

Mrs. G. H. Hill and brother, of Chocowinity, came Thursday night to visit at W. S. Dickersons.

J. S. Barber is building a new store adjoining the one now occupied by Harrington, Barber & Co. It is already raised and will be completed sooner than some think.

Whenever we don't hear from A. G. Cox Mfg. Co. it is because they are too busy to write. If you could call at their shops now such turning as you would see. The fact is the orders are coming so fast they are about snowed under. They'll come yet though, you watch if they dont.

We learn that Professor Lineberry, of Winterville High School, is requested to make an address before the next North Carolina Teachers assembly.

Greensboro has not yet claimed the spots on the moon.

Program for Teachers' Association March 14th, 1903.

10 a. m. Devotional exercises—Rev. J. N. Booth. Reading of minutes. Roll call. Report of teachers. Suggestions of president.

1:30 English:

1. Primary English and composition work. Paper, Miss Mattie Grimes. Discussion, D. W. Arnold.

2. Secondary English, or grammar. Paper, Miss Mary J. Whitehurst. Discussion, Prof. G. E. Lineberry.

3. Advanced English, literature, etc. Paper, Miss Lizzie Anderson. Discussion, State Supt. J. Y. Joyner.

2:30 Paper, The Teacher's Work and Reward, Miss Alyce Harper.

2:45 General business—reports of committees.

An Old Servant Leaves.

Agent J. E. Moore, of the A. C. L., was expressing some regret at the depot this morning that an old colored woman, one of the faithful old time darkies, who had been many years with his family, had to leave. Seventeen years ago, when Mr. Moore was agent at Elm City, he hired this woman to cook for his family, and when he moved to Greenville she came with him and remained all these years. At her old home are some grandchildren who have been left with no one to care for them, and she felt it her duty to go look after them. She is 70 years old.

GRIMESLAND ITEMS.

GRIMESLAND, N. C., Feb. 27, 1903.

T. F. Proctor went to Greenville today to spend a day or so.

Dr. C. M. Jones went to Washington today.

Miss Mattie Buck is on the sick list this week.

On Tuesday night last quite a number of our Grimesland people went to Washington to hear Rev. Sam Jones lecture. They reported a good lecture.

J. O. Proctor & Bro's new store will soon be completed, and ready for business again.

Mrs. J. W. Mayo is spending some time with her mother near Jamesville.

Rev. J. R. Tingle filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

Miss Vinia Ward, of Pactolus, is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. C. M. Jones.

Miss Eva Harvey's school closed here Tuesday.

Misses Maggie Rollins and Lucy Gray, of Robersonville, are visiting Mrs. E. D. Holiday.

Miss Addie Johnston, of Greenville, has been spending a few days with Mrs. J. O. Proctor.

Rev. F. F. Eure will preach here Sunday in the M. E. church.

Miss Stella Munford, of near Grifton, has been spending some time with Mrs. J. L. Gibson.

L. E. Elks went to Washington Monday.

Mr. J. L. Williams and Miss Ida Holiday were married Wednesday evening at this place. Miss Ida has many friends in Grimesland and they extend best wishes.

W. E. Proctor made a trip to Washington Wednesday with his boat.

Rev. W. E. Powell, of Newport News, Va., will preach in the Christian church here Sunday morning and evening.

WANTED—A NICE YOUNG MAN.

Who Came to Greensboro Last Week and "Worked a Racket."

Last Monday a week ago a nice looking young man arrived in the city and put up at the Benbow hotel, registering as J. C. Harrington, of New York. He soon looked up the Young Men's Business association and introduced himself as being from New York and representing several capitalists who wished to locate a large knitting mill in the state, a mill that would cost about $150,000 and work about 600 hands. He produced letters from different prominent men and well known capitalists as to his standing, etc. He was taken around and introduced to the different real estate men of the city, the Southern Loan and Trust company showing him what property they had on hand that would be well suited for the mill he wished to locate.

He was well pleased with the place and expressed himself as believing it very likely the mill will be located here. He said he had run a little short of money and got the Southern Loan and Trust company to cash a draft for $50 drawn on his own account at the Chemical Bank, of New York. When the draft reached New York the Chemical Bank at once telegraphed back here that the draft was worthless, as the said J. C. Harrington had no money deposited there. Friday afternoon Harrington went to the Vanstony Clothing Co. and ordered two suits of clothes sent to the Benbow for him to try on. The suits were sent and that was the last seen of them. They were worth about $50. Harrington left Friday night for Charlotte and it is not known where he went from that place. He told the people here that he expected to go from here to Augusta, Ga., and in Charlotte he said to have stated that he was going to Birmingham, Ala.—Greensboro Telegram.

We throw the following, which we clip from the Clarkton Express, into the very face of the doubting Thomas of the Charlotte Observer, as evidence in behalf of the bloodhound, even of his efficiency when he does not do as when he may be called on to do. Our friend of the Express develops the science of the thing in a way which should appeal to the conscience of the Charlotte professor. It says:

"Bladen county needs a pair of good bloodhounds, and we hope our commissioners will take action and purchase them at once. While bloodhounds are not always successful in running down criminals, yet a criminal is not near so apt to try to escape if he knows that a dog is on hand to be put after him."

When the bloodhound can thus contribute to the victory of mind over matter, we insist that his usefulness is established.—Morning Post.

Honor Roll.

The following pupils of Mrs. Blow's school are on the honor roll for the month of February:

Lucy Outterbridge, Lillian Burch, Allie Greene, Essie Whichard, Eloise Ellington, Julia Harris, Essie Ellington, Jesse Kennedy.

When you feel blue and that everything goes wrong, take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse and invigorate your stomach, regulate your bowels, give you a relish for your food and make you feel that in this old world is a good place to live. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Your Toggery Wants, Gentlemen,

are well looked after at this store. There's a whole lot of things in Furnishings we'd like to tell you about, if you would take the time to read. Still it will be far more satisfactory all around if we can induce you to come in and see the new smart things in Haberdashery.

Our Neckwear, our Shirts, our Gloves, our Underwear, Collars, Cuffs, Hosiery, all smack of newness and originality. Not the every day kind you can buy anywhere, but different—and not a fancy price attached to a single article.

THE KING CLOTHIER.

PERSONAL NOTES

Brief Mention of People Met With in the Social World

Standard Keeper J. A. Harrington, of Ayen, spent today here.

F. M. Hodges and little son, Churchill, went to Tarboro today.

W. H. Dail, Jr., went to Kinston Friday evening and returned this morning.

Mrs. J. W. Dixon, of Kinston, came over this morning to visit her sister, Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse.

Misses Mula Quinn and Myrtie Proctor, who are attending school at Winterville, came up this morning to spend today here.

Rev. Ada C. Bowles, of Boston, who has been spending some weeks here with Mrs. E. A. Moye, left Friday evening for Kinston.

Some Who Are Moving.

Joseph Rawls has moved from his former residence on the corner near the Methodist church and now occupies one of the Corey houses near the Christian church.

J. T. Meadows, who formerly occupied the Corey house, has moved to one of Dr. Moye's houses west of the railroad.

J. L. Starkey, who has been occupying the Daniels house on Greene street, has moved into one of Miss A. M. Perkins' houses on the same street.

J. S. Smith has purchased the Daniels house and will soon begin remodeling and enlarging it. As soon as the work is complete he will move his family there.

Thanks.

The Universalists here desire to return thanks to the county officials for the use of the court house in which to hold the recent services conducted by Rev. Ada C. Bowles; also to the Christian church for the use of hymn books and to friends for the loan of lamps.

For awhile this winter Sundays seemed to be the rainy days, but lately about the worst weather of the week has come on Saturdays.

BOOM YOUR TOWN.

Do Not Fail to Sound its Praises Wherever You Are.

Every citizen should believe in the town he lives in and if he doesn't think it is a little better in most respects than neighboring towns then he should move out. When away from home do not neglect to give those with whom you come in contact to understand that you live in a live town populated by enterprising, go ahead, progressive people, and one that is advancing instead of retrograding.

If you can truthfully speak in commendation of the ability of your professional men, the square dealing methods of your merchants, the superiority of your schools, etc., let nothing prevent you from exercising that privilege. It will not be necessary to mention the drawbacks, if there be any. Strangers seeking a location are always greatly influenced in favor of any place where the citizens are enthusiastic in its praise.

Unless its inhabitants appreciate the excellence and virtues of each other and will collectively spread abroad their faith in the prosperity and future greatness of their own locality no city or town can expect to attain prominence over its rivals. When rightly utilized, talk can be made effective in many directions, and this is one of them.—Oxford Public Ledger.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 28, 1903.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Today rounds up a quarter of a century that the editor of THE REFLECTOR has been in editorial harness. The last week in February, 1878, he, with and older brother, took charge of the Greenville Express, and from that day his life has been associated with newspaper work. Believing that success comes best by taking hold of a thing and sticking to it, that idea has been followed through all these years, and the pencil, scissors and paste pot have been his daily companions.

These twenty-five years have given him a fair knowledge of the ins and outs, the ups and downs of newspaper life. There is its bright side and its gloomy side—it has days of pleasure and days of regret, and the man who follows it gets his share of all. Newspaper life has its rewards and its trials, its delights and its responsibilities.

More than this, these twenty-five years have taught him much of the people with whom a newspaper man must deal. And here is variety again. There is the friend who is the friend indeed, there is the enemy who is ready to back-bite and strike in the dark. There is the sunny-faced man who always greets one with a smile and a pleasant word, and there is the sour skinflint who always wants to complain about something. There are those who look upon a newspaper as a business enterprise requiring bairn, energy and money to conduct, and deal with it on business principles; while others regard it as a pack-horse or cat's paw to be used by them at will without compensation. There are those who speak words of encouragement and those who discourage; those who build up and those who pull down; those who help and those who hinder. Yes, the newspaper man in twenty-five years' experience comes in touch with these and almost every other phase of humanity.

But in all this there is more or less fascination, and the editor who loves his work is willing to push ahead and meet conditions as they arise, not trying to please all, of course, but with honest purpose endeavoring to do what he thinks is best and right.

And so the completion of a quarter century of service finds the writer more in love with his work than ever, for really it seems a part of his life, and unless some unlooked for change of mind arises, it is his purpose to stick to his post to the end.

CODE COMMISSION.

Thursday night the legislature held a joint caucus to name a code commission. There were twenty seven names presented to the caucus and it required five ballots to make the nomination. The three selected for the commission were Prof. N. Y. Gulley, of Wake Forest, ex-Judge T. B. Womack, of Raleigh and Col. W. B. Rodman, of Washington. The salary attached to the office is $1,000 each per year for not longer than two years. There is also an allowance of $1,500 for clerical help.

Senator A. L. Blow, of Pitt, received 20 votes for commissioner on one ballot.

The same caucus renominated M. O. Sherrill for state librarian by acclamation.

The late London bill had one section intending to prevent liquor being shipped into any prohibition town. This was called the "anti-jug law," declaring the place of delivery to be the place of sale. A separate bill containing this provision has been introduced in the legislature, and the committee to which it was referred has reported it favorably.

Representative Alexander, of Mecklenburg county, recently introduced in the legislature a bill compelling all barrooms to close at 8 p. m. The bill was referred to the house committee on propositions and grievances and the committee reported it favorably. The News and Observer says the outlook is for a warm fight, but the bill may pass.

One newspaper intended to head an article on the polygamous senator from Utah "Smoot the Mormon" but the line was printed "Shoot the Mormon." Maybe he deserves it, but don't you think a man who has to take a half dozen samples of jaw from as many wives ought to get some little sympathy, even if he did get himself in that fix?

"Arthur L. Bishop does not want to go to the penitentiary," says the Charlotte Observer. Certainly not, and what other culprit does? Bishop ought to be thankful that he saved his neck and got off with as light a sentence as five years in the penitentiary.

The legislature is also after cigarettes. A bill has been introduced prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigarette paper in North Carolina. The house committee on public health has reported the bill favorably.

"The Republicans will at once begin a campaign for the next election. We Democrats must keep awake," observes the Winston Salem Journal. Maybe it will be best for all for the other side to keep us awake.

"White shad has made their appearance on our streets," says the Greene County Standard. We hope they "has" been careful not to get their feet dirty.

R. J. Gatling, inventor of the famous gun bearing his name, died suddenly in New York Thursday. He was 83 years old and a native of North Carolina.

Tendency of the times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases medicine have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold of from an attack of influenza (grip) and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proved in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when no danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted; it always cures. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

It begins to look as if the efforts in congress to save the fur seals would survive the seals.

A Weak Stomach.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health."
 Jno. L. Wooten.

The statement is made that Gen. Miles left Russia without seeing the czar. Perhaps the czar saw him first.

A Mother's Recommendation.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore North Star, Mich. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

One peculiarity of the Monroe doctrine is that no definitions of it can be accepted as genuine unless approved by the United States.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble.
 Jno. L. Wooten.

Capt. Mabau is telling Europe just what the Monroe doctrine means. But his magazine articles don't tell half so much as the ones that your Uncle Sam is having rushed to completion at the arsenals and powder mills.

The scratch of a pin may cause the loss of a limb or even death when blood poisoning results from the injury. All danger of this may be avoided, however, by promptly applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. # A Well Planned Flight

(Original.)

A handsomely dressed man was walking back and forth on the platform of a railway station when he noticed a lady, also handsomely dressed, awaiting the train with great anxiety. "I beg pardon," he said. "You seem to be watching for something. Can I do anything to hurry matters?"

"Oh, no. My baggage hasn't come, but it will be forwarded. There's the train now."

"May I hand you aboard the car?"

"Thank you."

They entered a parlor car, the gentleman securing the seats and taking care that they should be together. They were going to Boston and lived in adjoining towns near the city. The gentleman so won the lady's confidence that she confessed that her story about her baggage was a fabrication. She was heiress to a great estate, and relatives, in order to secure it for themselves, were endeavoring to confine her in an insane asylum. She was flying to escape the horrible doom.

"Will they not telegraph to the police to arrest you on your entrance to the city?" he asked.

"I didn't think of that." Her anxiety was turned to terror.

"H'm," said the gentleman, who seemed to know more of the ways of the world than the girl. "I must think of some method by which you can elude them." He sat for awhile plunged in deep thought, then added: "My country place is situated at the next station. I keep it shut up in winter in care of a man and his wife. We are about the same height and could wear each other's clothes. What do you say to getting off there, exchanging garments and going on, I as Algernon Starkweather, you as—"

"Lucy Atterbury. But I never, never, could put on men's clothes."

"It's your only chance."

Mr. Starkweather finally convinced Miss Atterbury that donning men's attire for a few hours was much less to be dreaded than being shut up in a lunatic asylum. When they reached the next station, both left the train. Mr. Starkweather called a carriage, and they drove to the grounds of a palatial residence surrounded by many acres laid out in a marvel of landscape gardening.

"Remain here for a few minutes," said Mr. Starkweather, "while I prepare the way."

Going round to the rear of the house, he soon appeared at the front door alone. Miss Atterbury alighted and entered. In an hour the train reappeared in vice versa costume, the lady wearing a beard, the gentleman cleanly shaved. Re-entering the carriage, they drove to the station, digressing by the way in order not to arrive before the next train. When it came, Mr. Starkweather engaged a compartment which the two entered.

"Can I ever thank you for your kindness?" said Miss Atterbury.

"Don't mention it."

"But it has just occurred to me that it is unnecessary to disguise yourself."

"? My disguise is necessary for this reason: You will surely have to pass the eye of the police at the Boston depot. I shall be in your company. It would never do for me to be known in this transaction. When I get you through the depot, I shall stand by you till I get you out of the city."

"How will you do that?" asked the heiress eagerly.

"We shall see."

The train drew up in the depot, and Mr. Starkweather gave Miss Atterbury his suit case to carry. Then, leaning on her arm, they alighted and were walking through the depot when they were stopped by two men.

"Rats!" said one to the other. "The description is nothing like that. This baby faced fellow doesn't tally at all."

"Right you are, but there's something suspicious about him."

"Oh, Bob," asked the lady on his arm, "what are they talking about?"

Miss Atterbury, considering her inexperience in playing such a role, carried herself so remarkably well that the men apologized and permitted her to pass on. Entering a carriage, Starkweather directed the coachman to drive to a pier on the bay. When he arrived there, he scribbled something on a bit of paper and hired a boatman to take it out to a yacht in the harbor.

When the messenger returned, he brought the yacht's dingy with him, rowed by a sailor. Starkweather whispered something in his ear. Then the fugitives got into the dingy and were pulled to the yacht.

"What does all this mean?" asked Miss Atterbury, astonished.

"You shall see as soon as we get aboard."

On reaching the yacht their apparel was exchanged. When Miss Atterbury left her stateroom and went on deck, the yacht was skimming along the surface under a full head of steam.

"Why, Mr. Starkweather," she exclaimed, "what a head you have for planning! But how did your yacht happen to be ready at this time of year? I supposed such craft didn't come out till May or June."

"I'll tell you," said the gentleman in a whisper, dropping from a well bred tone to that of a low bred Englishman.

"This is Starkweather's yacht, and I'm his major domo. I've got no end of his money in that suit case you lugged through the depot. I owe you one for that, and I'll pay it. But, come now. You're not flying from a lunatic asylum. You're playing a game yourself."

The lady chuckled.

"Own up same I've done."

"I'm Miss Atterbury's lady's maid, and I've got part of her jewels in my pockets. The rest I'm wearing."

"Well, now, we are a 'appy pair of birds, aren't we?"

BESSIE TURNLEE COYNE.

Animal Superstitions.
 There are many animals that the superstitious consider it unlucky to kill. Among them may be mentioned a lady-bird, a martin, a robin, a stork and a money spider, while to kill a wren means that you will break a bone before the year is out. Many animals are also supposed to herald death, and superstitions in this direction are so numerous that only a few can be mentioned here. The most commonly known is the clicking or tapping of the beetle called a death watch, which is reckoned as an omen of death to some one in the house.

The howling of a dog at night near a house is supposed to predict the death of a sick inmate, as also the setting of a white pigeon on a house bodes death to some one in the house, while, again, an old saying among the superstitious runs, "No person can die on a bed or pillow containing the feathers of a white pigeon."

That the gnawing of furniture by rats presages death is also a common superstition. To meet certain animals is considered lucky, while to meet others is the reverse. For instance, to meet a sow with a litter of pigs is very lucky, but it is unlucky if a sow crosses a traveler's path. To meet a weasel is lucky, but should a hare run across the road in front of you it augurs bad fortune.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.
 Will Low, the painter, told a story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.

"Louis," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one of our party got heated and aggressive.

"Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson sprung to his feet and caught the missile.

"Tut, tut, George," he said to the thrower; "tut, tut. If the bottle is passed so quickly, none of us will be able to stand out the evening."—New York Tribune.

Reason to Be Happy.

What is the use of being at odds with the world? What is the use of being blue and despondent? The world is full of trials for us all—has plenty of trouble and worry to hand out even to the best of us from time to time. But there would be no need for men and women—we could all be babes—if there were no great life problems to solve, no burdens to bear, no sorrows to live down. These are the balance wheels of life. They are the trials we have to face in order to strengthen us and broaden us to the opportunities and the real happiness that riches do not command nor poverty bar.—New York Mail and Express.

The Butler Was in Doubt.

The recent St. Andrew's dinners, according to the Westminster Gazette, have been noteworthy for the profusion of Scotch stories, which in several cases fairly set the tables in a roar. Some of them have an ancient ring, but there is one that is perhaps not generally known. A doctor was attending a dangerous case where a Scotch butler was engaged. On calling in the forenoon he said to Donald, "I hope your master's temperature is much lower today than it was last night." "I'm no' sae very sure about that," replied the butler, "for he de'd this morning."

An Authority.

Peter McArthur was once talking with a friend when he quoted another man as a financial authority. His friend disputed the right of the person quoted to be considered an expert. Mr. McArthur insisted that the man had a right to speak like an oracle.

"What is your definition of an authority?" asked his friend.

"My idea of an authority," retorted Mr. McArthur, "is a person who bluffs beyond my limit."

Strained Relations.

It took place in a dairy. The dairymaid was pouring large quantities of milk through a fine wire netting.

There were microbes in the milk.

Other microbes by the hundred were sitting on the edge of the crock and gaily looking on.

Their relations were being strained.—Baltimore American.

Science to the Rescue.

Housekeeper—Has any way been discovered to kill the pests that destroy carpets?

Great Scientist—Yes, madam. Take up the carpets, hang them on a line and beat them with a heavy stick.

"Will that kill the insects?"

"Yes, madam, if you hit them."

After the Fact.

What a pity it is that our learned anthropologists never discover that a man has criminal eyes, mouth, ears and nose until after he has committed a murder! Oh, science, how many frauds are perpetrated in thy helpless name!—New York Press.

Painless Pulling.

Sufferer—Do you pull teeth without pain?

Dentist—Well, not always. I sprained my wrist last time I pulled a tooth, and it hurts me yet occasionally.

It makes some men prouder to be the friend of a rich man than it makes other men to be rich.

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

Miss Monie Bowey.

Wine of Cardui makes women more womanly by curing their weakness and making them stronger. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Bowey. As a medicine for all women in every trying period of their lives can you think of a better medicine for yourself, your sister, your daughter or your mother? Can you think of a more acceptable present to give your friend than a bottle of this medicine which will bring her health and happiness? You are suffering? Your duty is to rid yourself of this pain. If your daughter, mother, sister or friend is sick and in need of relief, your duty is equally great to them. Many women, now well, owe their lives to friends who brought them Wine of Cardui.

Wine of Cardui is adapted to women at any age in any walk of life. For the working woman it gives her strength for her tasks and better treatment than a doctor for very small cost.

Your druggist will sell you a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui. Secure the medicine today. Take it in the privacy of your home. Relief will come to you as surely as you take it.

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

Weak lungs are mostly due to a neglected cough. Only a small percent of the millions who have consumption inherit it. A slight cold, a tickling or hacking cough is the beginning, and after it has reached a certain advanced stage there is no ending except the grave.

Any case of consumption that is curable; that is, any one having consumption whose family or friends still hold on to a ray of hope, may take comfort in the knowledge of the fact that One Minute Cough Cure will give instant relief and finally cure.

This famous remedy does not pass immediately into the stomach, but lingers long in the throat, chest and lungs, producing the following results:

- (1) Relieves the cough.
- (2) Makes the breathing easy.
- (3) Cuts out the phlegm.
- (4) Draws out the inflammation.
- (5) Kills the germs (microbes) of disease.
- (6) Strengthens the mucous membranes.
- (7) Clears the head.
- (8) Relieves the feverish conditions.
- (9) Removes every cause of the cough and the strain on the lungs.
- (10) Enables the lungs to contribute pure life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood. Cures Croup and all Cough, Lung and Bronchial Affections.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

"My physician told me one year ago that I would die of consumption inside of a year. I commenced taking One Minute Cough Cure for my lung trouble and it cured me. I have gained 20 pounds and I am a pretty live 'dead woman.' One Minute Cough Cure saved me." MARY F. SULLIVAN, Grand Rapids, Mich.

CENTRAL BARBER SHOP. I have moved my Barber Shop to the shop in front of Munford's new big store. I have also associated with me Julius Fleming, who has been working with me for a long time. We have fitted up for the handsomest shop in the town, and offer the public the best service ever offered here. We appreciate highly the liberal patronage we have received in the past. We cordially invite all of our past customers and all others who desire first-class service to come to see us in our new shop. We intend to please you and will do so regardless of expense or labor. We are ready at all times to accommodate you with first class shave or hair cut.
