SPRING 1903

NEW WHITE GOODS WELCOME

COLOR is eliminated from the card today. White Goods first in store displays as they will be in your thoughts, we trust. Ten years ago, yes, four or five years, even—who would have dreamed of the beauty to be brought out in fabric art without a touch from rainbow tints? Pure white, but so varied have been the dreams of designers, so cleverly have loom wizards wrought, that there is hardly a limit to variety. White has only been thought of as a repellent for summer's heat. The sheerest effects have been sought, but now, however, white fabrics, chevrons, madras and piques are brought out in rich style assortment. White has overstepped the limits of summer months and hereafter will be an all-the-year-round factor.

WHITE PIQUES
In a large variety of the up-to-date styles and designs in imported Piques that are worth your while to inspect at 12 1-2, 15, 20 and 25c.

WHITE DIMITIES
In all of the newest designs and weaves, dots, stripes and lace stripes at 8 1-3, 10, 12 1-2, 15, 18, 20, 22 1-2, 25 and 30c.

WHITE MADRAS
In Crepe de Chine designs with Satin stripes that will retain its lustre after it is laundered at 30 and 35c.

WHITE LAWN
In Lace Striped and Hemstitched Patterns. Such a line has never before been your pleasure to see in Greenville at the following prices per yard:
10, 12 1-2, 15, 18, 20, 25, 35, 40 and 50c.

FEBRUARY was a month for clearing out all winter goods. Low prices were marked on entire stock of goods that were not wanted. This week and next we must clear the shelves of the remainder of winter stock. Bed Blankets, Comforts, Ladies' Jackets, Skirts, Fur Scarfs, Men's Overcoats, Clothing and Furnishings.

Friday, March 6th, we will sell Comforts that were $1.50 for 98c.

On Saturday, March 7th, we will sell Men's Macintosh Coats, with Cape, 44 inches long, former price, $3.00, for 98c.
SIZES 34 TO 46.

WHAT A FAKE.

Associated Press Working the Newspapers

Some enterprising(?) representative of the Associated Press got hold of something about the burning Standard Oil Company's tank here, and a day behind time worked off the following sensation on the papers served by the association:

OIL TANKS EXPLODE

PEOPLE DRIVEN FROM GREENVILLE BY THE FIRE.

Houses Wrecked by Explosions of Oil and Gasolene—The Imperial's Great Factory Damaged.

(By the Associated Press)
Norfolk, Va., March 4.—The burning of a stable adjoining the storage tanks of the Standard Oil Company at Greenville, N. C., today caused one of the latter to explode with great damage to property. Other tanks, one of which contained seven thousand gallons of gasolene, exploded later and the people of the town are leaving in fear of further danger. Houses, so reports received here state, were wrecked and much damage was done, not only to the residence and business houses of the town, but also to the large factory of the Imperial Tobacco Company.

Perhaps there is no need of surprise at this being printed in papers which had nothing about it the day before, but the Raleigh News and Observer palming it off on its readers a day after having printed the facts as given by its Greenville correspondent, is really laughable. Any observing newspaper printing the first article ought to have seen at a glance that the above coming a day later with a Norfolk date line was simply a rehash with fake features added.

For the Summer Girl.

Pulley & Bowen have received a complete line of art nouveau embroidered shirt waist patterns that are due to create a sensation when they appear upon the streets of Greenville in their proper position. Each piece is a work of art that is a delight to look upon. Attired in a shirt waist made of these patterns the most homely woman in creation would become a picture to set the hearts of men a-fluttering.

Communicated.

AYDEN, N. C., Feb. 28, 1903.

The farmers of this section of Contentnea township met in Lyon's building last Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with H. C. Cannon, Jno. Hemby and Richard Wingate members of Greenville township association of North Carolina Farmers Protective association, and effected an organization with 21 members. The meeting was called to order by H. C. Cannon and the following officers were elected: H. C. Cannon, president, Woodie McGlohon, vice president, John Cheek, Secretary, R. Sumrell, Treasurer. Sam Munford and Watt Quinerly were elected delegates to the county association to be held in Greenville March 7, 1903.
JOHN CHEEK, Sec.

In printing the names of those voting against making any change whatever in section fifty by inadvertence we omitted the name of Senator Blow, of Pitt. He has shown himself a wise senator from the first day of the session—Raleigh News and Observer.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature to incorporate the Union Loan and Trust Company of Greenville.

Only the short-sighted egotist is capable of mistaking his little chip for the whole mountain of truth.

ELECTION CALLED.

On Questions of Issuing Bonds for Improvements and Graded Schools.

At their meeting Thursday night the board of aldermen called an election to be held on Tuesday, April 7th, to decide the question of issuing bonds for improvements and for establishing a graded school, as provided in the bills recently passed by the legislature. An entire new registration was ordered. The following were named as registrars and judges of election in the several wards to conduct the election:

First ward—Registrar, H. Harding. Judges, B. T. Bailey and W. J. Cowell. Voting place, the Eborn house, on corner of Second and Greene streets.

Second ward—Registrar, J. N. Booth. Judges, Allen Warren and J. L. Starkey. Voting place, Rev. J. N. Booth's residence on Third street.

Third ward—Registrar, L. W. Lawrence. Judges, G. E. Harris and J. D. Gordon. Voting place, court house.

Fourth ward—Registrar, J. C. Bowling. Judges, T. E. Hooker and G. C. Moore. Voting place, J. H. Starkey's store at Five Points.

Fifth ward—Registrar, J. C. Lanier. Judges, W. H. Dail and J. S. Tunstall. Voting place, Farmers' warehouse.

TOWN MATTERS.

Proceedings of the Board of Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen met in regular monthly session Thursday night, with all members present.

An election was ordered to be held April 7th on the question of issuing bonds for improvements and graded school.

The police officers, tax collector and chief of fire department made their reports for the past month.

The street committee was instructed to proceed to open the street through West Greenville from Fifth street to Dickinson avenue near the depot.

The board ordered that the well on Evans street just south of Fourth street, and the cistern near Greene & Hooker's will be filled up, both being unfit for use. The cistern in tobacco town will be repaired and cleaned out and a reservoir will be constructed near Evans street at the lower end of the culvert where the branch crosses the street, these to be used for fire protection.

Orders to meet current expenses were drawn on the treasurer.

Two Pastors Called.

At a congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church, held last Sunday morning, the church extended a call as pastor to Rev. F. G. Hartman, of Staunton, Va. He has accepted and will serve churches at Greenville, Falkland and Parmele.

At a meeting of the Christian church Wednesday night, a call was extended to Rev. W. E. Powell, of Newport News, Va., to become pastor of that church. It is understood that he will accept and soon come to take charge of the church. His entire service will be given to this church and he will preach every Sunday.

For the School Fund.

Mayor H. W. Whedbee has paid over to County Treasurer J. B. Cherry $24.02, the amount of fines imposed by his court and collected during the month of February. This is the smallest amount collected in any month of Mayor Whedbee's administration. The amount for January was $56.06.

PERSONAL NOTES

Brief Mention of People Met
With in the Social World

A. R. Forbes is sick.

Ola Forbes went to Norfolk today.

O. L. Joyner returned Thursday evening from Raleigh.

Jesse Speight returned Thursday evening from Baltimore.

Thomas McGee returned to Goldsboro Thursday evening.

Mrs. J. A. Dudley and child left Thursday evening for Ayden.

J. A. Perry went to Henderson today.

D. S. Moore and Peter McLawhorn, of Ayden, spent today here.

E. A. Moye went to Kinston Thursday and returned this morning.

Mrs. R. R. Cotten and daughter, Miss Elba, left this morning for Philadelphia.

Rev. J. N. Booth left today for Hertford, at which place he will preach Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pender returned Tuesday evening from a visit to Tarboro.

W. C. Hines, who has been quite sick several weeks, was able to get down town today.

Misses Mamie and Lena King, Mary Moye, Emily Higgs, and J. L. Carper and T. W. Skinner, went to Farmville Wednesday evening to attend the musical by Prof. Shockey, professor of music of the A. C. college of Wilson, and returned Thursday evening.

Well Again.

The many friends of John Blount will be pleased to learn that he has entirely recovered from his attack of rheumatism. Chamberlain's Pain Balm cured him after the best doctors in the town (Monon, Ind.) had failed to give relief. The prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

What is a gate to imprisonment on this side will prove the door of release on the other.

Proper Punishment for the Pistol Toter.

Along with the numerous shootings in the state comes the cry about carrying concealed weapons and how the law is ignored forbidding the totting of a pistol. The fact is the laws in question do not produce the smallest impression upon the criminal classes. Good citizens observe them, with the result of placing themselves at the mercy of all the vicious and drunk ruffians in town. In effect we disarm the respectable and arm the criminal element. The intent of the law is wholesome enough. Its operation is without value to civilized society, if not actually mischievous. Indeed, we have almost reached the conclusion that the statues, as they stand, may as well be repealed outright, and, in their stead, we should have laws providing that persons who are taken in the act of using deadly weapons upon the street shall be sent to prison, no matter what may be the result of their malign activity. In cases of actual murder, of course, the simple and unostentatious remedy of the scaffold will serve; but any one arrested with a weapon in his hand, which he has used or tried to use, should be condemned to hard labor in the penitentiary for a term ranging from one to twenty years. The carrying of a concealed weapon cannot be prevented by legislation. Our daily experience and observation prove that beyond controversy. But when the concealed weapon is displayed and the offender is taken red handed, then the law can be invoked, and to a beneficent and useful end. It is not a case for fines, or for thirty days in jail. These penalties do not rise to the dignity of child's play. It is a case for absolute elimination, covering a period suggested by the circumstances.—Greensboro Record.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Jno. L. Woot

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 6, 1903.

FAITHFUL SERVANTS.

Pitt county has good cause for gratification in the able manner in which it has been represented in the legislature by Senator Blow. No district has had a more efficient, painstaking and conscientious senator and we believe we voice the sentiments of the democracy when we congratulate Senator Blow upon his fine record. He has taken the right position on every measure, and has been highly honored by his associates in the senate. Pitt could not have made a better choice.

Representative Little has also shown himself a true and faithful servant of the people. One member of the house of representatives paid Mr. Little a high and well-deserved compliment, when, in a discussion, he made the earnest statement that Mr. Little was a man who would keep his word to all men, regardless of circumstances or conditions. We extend the best wishes of THE REFLECTOR and Pitt county democracy to Mr. Little.

MAKE YOUR KICK AT THE POLLS.

With due regard for the opinions of those who are opposed to issuing bonds for improvements, we submit that government by injunction is not a particularly desirable ingredient of municipal affairs. It is not only unpatriotic and undemocratic, but it is a fruitful breeder of discord and bad feeling. Therefore we would impress upon our citizens the fitness and wisdom of casting their ballots according to their convictions and abide by the consequences. If you are opposed to bonds it is no very deep disgrace. Go to the polls and vote that way, and for ever afterward hold your peace.

We hope and believe that the bond proposition will carry, and that Greenville will shed its skin of dirt and all-around appearance of being behind the times. Certainly no town needs it more. However, if a majority of our citizens think otherwise, we shall accept the decision, but keep on preaching progress.

200 LASHES THE REMEDY.

Some of our contemporaries are condemning the law recently passed by the legislature making two years' abandonment sufficient cause for divorce. It is argued that the law makes divorces easier to obtain, with a resulting lowering of the standard of morality, or some such fanciful theory. We are not upholding the too rapidly growing divorce habit, but we fail to see wherein the law is particularly vicious.

We are confronted by two conditions, and must decide which is the course most to the benefit of society. When a man has deserted his wife for two years, is it best to compel her to remain his wife in name only, with the attendant shame and misery, or free her and allow her to make the best of the days which remain to her?

The spirit of the criticisms referred to seems to us to be the spirit which vainly strives to legislate people into being good, which has ever been a failure. "Laws may not make a man good, but they may keep a man from being bad," says George Horace Lorimer in the Saturday Evening Post. When a man deserts his wife for two years the law ought to give her freedom, and the same law ought to punish the deserter with a couple of hundred lashes laid on good and strong. Then we'd see how many cases of "incompatibility of temper" would result in a two years' abandonment for the sole purpose of obtaining a divorce.

The Wilmington Star becomes fearfully tangled up—we hope it was not tanked up—and gives the Elizabeth City Economist the discredit for launching the Fairbanks presidential boom, whereas the Star should have laid it at the door of the Elizabeth City Carolinian. If the Economist were a paper of less renown the Star might be pardoned, but the North Carolina editor who does not know that the Economist and its grand old chief are landmarks in North Carolina democracy ought to take a kindergarten course in journalism.

The closing days of the legislature are crowded with business. The revenue bill, which consumed much time in discussion, has been finally completed and put on its passage. As to the issuing of state bonds the amount agreed upon was $300,000, and provision made for borrowing the remaining $100,000 needed to meet outstanding indebtedness. Many bills of a local nature continue to be offered; some pass and some do not. Of the multitude of bills introduced hardly one-fourth have passed.

Bishop, the slayer of Wilson at Charlotte, is now in the penitentiary beginning his five years' sentence. Notice had been given that an appeal would be taken, but at the last moment Bishop decided to serve his sentence rather than undergo another trial for his life and run the risk of losing his neck or getting a longer sentence.

Teddy stuck to his Crum, but congress failed to confirm his appointment as collector of customs at Charleston. Perhaps the president will carry his point by giving Crum a recess appointment and letting him hold to it until congress can get another whack at him.

We have no inclination to read the Morning Post out of the party, but for a democratic newspaper, we think the Post is handing Ex-Senator Pritchard a deal too much "soft sawder." Jeter C. has a record to live down, and North Carolinians will see to it that he doesn't take a short cut to that end.

A Chicago club woman has uttered this speech:
"We don't do men justice. We can't get along without them, and there is no use saying that we can."
This is treason of the rankst brand and calls for a prompt rebuke. Who can calculate the terrible effect of the spread of such sentiments among the ranks of the women's clubs of this country?—Asheville Citizen.

READ IT THROUGH.

'Twould Spoil this Story to Tell it in the Headlines.

To use an 18th century expression, this is an "o'er true tale." Having happened in a small Virginia town in the winter of 1902, it is a story very much of the present. Up to a short time ago Mrs. John E. Harmon, of Melfa Station, Va., had no personal knowledge of the rare curative properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. "Last January," she says, "(m) baby took a dreadful cold and at one time I feared she would have pneumonia, but one of my neighbors told me how this remedy had cured her little boy and I began giving it to my baby at once and it soon cured her. I heartily thank the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for placing so great a cure within my reach. I cannot recommend it too highly or say too much in its favor. I hope all who read this will try it and be convinced, as I was." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The sacrifice that is not consumed will soon become corrupt.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Jno. L. Wooten.

The memory of blessings furnishes a remedy for the blues.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the two year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Teuth street, Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

He who keeps the power of passion in his heart must not be surprised if there is an explosion.

The Stomach is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Jno. L. Wooten.

The beauty of our lives depends on the clearness with which God can shine through them.

Colds are Dangerous.

How often you hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learns that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. It always cures and is pleasant to take. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

"The discussion of the negro question is apparently causing some concern to Mr. Roosevelt and his friends," says an Indiana paper. Well, yes; a little more than ordinarily.

Why don't some of these southern people who seem to have the president's ear put him next and let him know that any kind of a negro officeholder is objectionable to the South and that his character or fitness has nothing to do with it.—Durham Herald.

HIS FIRST PATIENT

[Original.]
Ethel Woodbridge was the belle of the village. The farmers' sons in that region flocked about her at the dances and vied with each other in making her presents. Nevertheless she would listen to none of them when they spoke of love. The reason for this was that Henry Brownell, the son of a retired banker, who lived near her home, had long before he had a right to think of marriage, asked her to be his wife. Then he had gone east to college and after that had studied medicine in Philadelphia. Her father had written Ethel regularly during her first year at college, irregularly during her second year and only once during her third. While he attended medical lectures he did not write at all.

Henry had shown fair ability in college, but when he became a student of medicine it was plain that he possessed a remarkable aptitude for that profession. The fame of his great promise spread abroad, and, having relatives in the Quaker City, he became a favorite socially. The girls he had met while in college began to seem very plain people to him compared with the high bred dames of Philadelphia, while his former country sweetheart seemed a very low order of being. A marriage with her seemed out of the question. But what could he do? He must return home for awhile after finishing his medical course and must meet Ethel. Before being graduated he received a very flattering offer to become the assistant of a noted surgeon and wrote his father that he would remain in Philadelphia, entering upon his duties as soon as he had taken his degree.

While he was mingling with the elite of an aristocratic city Ethel remained the same plain country girl, with the same sweet, unpretentious bearing, the same true heart. She was beloved by every one who knew her and would still have been sought in marriage had she consented to listen to proposals. Such girls do not give their hearts and take them back easily. Ethel was much troubled by her lover's treatment, and when he did not return after having been graduated she realized that he had passed beyond her. She neither wrote upbraiding him nor spoke a word to his discredit. She told her parents that Henry was right. His social station had always been above hers, and, now having met the refined people of a great city, she could not hope that he would prefer her to her more refined rivals. Then she burst into a passion of tears and ran away to her room.

From that day she was changed. The color faded from her cheek, and she grew thin and was troubled with a hacking cough. The village doctor was called, but reported that he could do nothing for her since her malady was occasioned by some mental trouble.

Mr. Brownell, Sr., was an honorable man. He knew of his son's course, but made no comment, intending to wait until Henry had taken his medical degree. When Henry wrote that he expected to settle in Philadelphia, his father sent him a telegram to come home at once. Henry had no choice but to obey or suffer his father's displeasure. From the latter he shrank and reluctantly took a train for home.

It was a spring morning when he reached the station, where he found his father, who had come to drive him over several miles to their home. "Henry," said the father, "I desire that you begin your medical life right here. After a year of work among your old friends, if you desire it, you shall have my consent to return to the city."

"But I can never advance here," said the son. "The field is too narrow."

"You will have my influence to secure patients."

Henry leaned back in the carriage with a frown. "To prove that I can help you," continued the father, "I am going to drive you to the house of one who has been falling for a long while. You, a recent graduate, should be far in advance of the fogies about here who have failed to cure the patient, and you will have a good opportunity to show your skill."

There was something in the tone with which his father spoke that Henry did not like, but the enthusiasm of youth stepped in and suggested that, after all, he might show his old friends, the country doctors, how little they knew. Glancing out of the carriage, he saw that they were approaching the Woodbridge farm. He cast a quick side glance at his father, but the elder man wore an imperturbable though serious expression. They turned into the gate and alighted at the door. Henry was led upstairs, a door was thrown open, and there on a bed lay his discarded love.

The windows were open and the odor of flowers was borne into the room by the south wind. A vine climbing about the casement was twisting and turning to thrust its latest sprouts into the chamber. Ethel, in the midst of this revival of life, was unrevived. She lay looking over the fair scene without, unresponsive to its freshness and beauty. "There," said Mr. Brownell to his son, "is your patient. Cure her."

For a moment it seemed to Henry that the past seven years had been obliterated. It was at this season that Ethel had given him his first kiss in the garden below, which was now sending up its perfume. He forgot the girls of the college town, the high bred dames of the city. Going to the bed, he bent over his patient.

"Ethel, can you forgive me?" Her reply was to raise her arms and throw them about his neck.

Dr. Brownell in all his long subsequent career never effected a more marvelous cure, though he became a famous surgeon.
