What Constitutes Satisfaction?

The Century Dictionary is the most able authority and we will give it first say. "Satisfaction—the state of being satisfied; a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind; tranquility resulting from a gratified desire; content; gratification."

It is so simple to say "satisfaction guaranteed" the motto is trite, though its justification is rare enough. The mere returning of money paid for goods that prove unworthy is by no means satisfaction. This slight act of justice by no means repays a customer for the time spent in making the purchase, and for having to go and do it over again. It gives no gratification, produces no tranquility of mind. This kind of questionable satisfaction can be obtained almost anywhere nowadays, demanding varying degrees of insistence and inconvenience to secure it. The assurance of real satisfaction before the event as well as afterward is secured only in a store that is particular about its merchandise. This store has established a standard of quality that is universally maintained by expert knowledge. Thus we know, and that part of the public familiar with this store knows, that all purchases made here will, in the matters of quality, price and service throughout, give the satisfaction that produces in the purchaser a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind, tranquility resulting from a gratified desire.

Civil War Feeling Exists North, Not in South.

New York, March 14.—Reverend Thomas Slicer, the famous Unitarian minister, returned today from a tour conducted for his church throughout the Southern states, eleven of which have large Unitarian congregations. In speaking of the South he said:

"I was much impressed by the evident prosperity of the South as a whole. I believe that I can say truthfully that the civil war feeling has died out in the South. I had not thought this for many years but it looks to me now that the feeling in the matter exists in the North. The Southern men, while many of their states have large cities, have not gotten on the degree of hustle that is seen on every hand in the North and there is more politeness shown by the men I met down South. As to courtesy to ladies, it is manifested on every hand. I also believe that the South has only one fault to find with Roosevelt and that, but for the president's negro policy at least half of the Southern section would support him for a second term." Several of the newspapers in their morning extras are condemning Rev. Mr. Slicer for his candid utterance on northern feeling.

Gen. Bryan Grimes' Prayer Book.

Raleigh, March 13.—In the "Hall of History," in the state museum here, are two copies of the book of prayer of the Episcopal church. On one of these, handsomely bound in morocco, is stamped in gold "Bryan Grimes, Major General Second Army Corps, Army Northern Virginia." Bishop Cheever, of this Episcopal diocese, looking at this book, said to me: "Let me show you a singular thing. You see this book was printed in London. You notice also that here is the prayer for the president of the Confederate States, but look at the prayer for the navy. Here you see that the printer made no change from the old prayer book, and that the prayer remained for the fleets of the 'United States.' This is really very singular. Now let me tell you about how these prayer books got here. The clergymen of this diocese bought five bales of cotton, sent these to England, through the blockade, sold them and with the proceeds bought these prayer books. Only one edition was published. The books came through the blockade to get here, but only a part of them succeeded in reaching North Carolina, a vessel having a number of copies on board having been captured. These books were bought by the churches at Wilmington, Raleigh, Charlotte, Fayetteville, Scotland Neck, Pittsboro, and possibly one or two other places. The books are now extremely rare."—Cor. Charlotte Observer.

There was a time when Beecher spoke for Cleveland with some effect. Let us hope the speech of Cleveland will now make green the grass on Beecher's grave. We know the intentions are equally good in the latter as in the former instance—Beecher may have made Cleveland president—Cleveland is now adding a laurel leaf to Beecher's monument.—Florida Times-Union.

The many friends of John Blount will be pleased to learn that he has entirely recovered from his attack of rheumatism. Chamberlain's Pain Balm cured him after the best doctors in the town (Mon, Ind.) had failed to give relief. The prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

DR. BASS DEAD.

He Makes an Ante-Mortem Statement.

Special to Reflector]

Tarboro, N. C. March 17.—Dr. H. T. Bass, who was shot here yesterday morning by Dr. Julian M. Baker, died at 11:30 o'clock last night. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

Every possible effort was made to save Dr. Bass's life but without avail. An operation was performed, the liver patched and incision stitched. The ball entered just to the right of the navel, passed through both walls of the stomach and penetrated the liver. The wound was just like the one on President McKinley with the exception of being on the right side.

After making his will Dr. Bass made an ante-mortem statement which was taken down in writing. He stated that he did not intend to kill Dr. Baker, but he had been aggravated so from time to time by Baker that he could not rest until he gave him a sound thrashing, which he was confident he could do. Even though he knew Baker was armed he knew he could prevent any shooting if friends did not interfere. Such interference resulted in the shooting.

Bass was being pulled away from Baker which gave Baker a chance to shoot and he did so. Bass was prevented from shooting although he made an off hand shot in another direction. Baker's pistol was discharged once in the scuffle while Bass had hold of it trying to prevent Baker from shooting. Bass made a statement to this effect and it was also indicated by powder marks on his hands.

Dr. Bass leaves a wife and five sons, one of whom is nearly grown. His dying wish was that his son take no revenge, which will be respected.

Every place of business closed this afternoon for the funeral.

Dr. Baker's plea will be self defense. He has been placed under $5,000 bond which has been agreed between counsel shall continue from day to day. At present he is not in town.

Winterville Wagon Factory.

Winterville Manufacturing Company has been incorporated, with a capital of $30,000 for manufacturing wagons, agricultural implements, etc., by W. J. House, L. L. Kittrell, A. D. Cox and others.—Raleigh Times.

In seeking to work up a sentiment in favor of temperance the anti-saloon league is pursuing the proper course, as a temperance law without sentiment behind it will amount to nothing.—Durham Herald.

New York state is saved. In his personal organ. Senator Platt announces this morning that after the close of the extra session "I shall take a more active interest than I have in the last month in affairs at Albany." Mr. Platt's solicitude is extremely touching.—New York Post.

From the accounts in the paper, and the numerous places they are seen passing, the crop of wild geese this year must be enormous. They are going North in great numbers every day or so. According to old beliefs this is a sign that winter weather is about broken and the wild geese is making his annual tour into regions that are yielding to the softness of a genial sun. But many a wild goose has gone North a little too early and been plucked of his feathers.—Durham Sun.

It is a Wonder.

These mental anguish suits some times develop strange facts. Last week a white man who had insured the life of his wife before he married her and whose child was born in the poor house, asked for $2,000 because there was a delay in delivering the telegram notifying him of his wife's death. Within the year of her death he married again. The court decided against the sadly bereaved claimant.—Charlotte Observer.

In every department of industrial life young men of parts are wanted—young men who are willing to work intelligently; not those who in their self confidence think they can take the helm but those who really know and can do—those who are schooled in industry and are honest, truthful and clean in their lives and habits.—Asheboro Courier.

Died at his Child's Bedside.

Wilmington, March 15.—Sitting at the bedside of a little daughter who had just undergone an operation for spinal trouble, W. B. Bowden, a wellknown health inspector of Wilmington, fell from a chair at the James Walker Memorial Hospital this afternoon and died almost instantly. Death was due to heart failure. Mr. Bowden only a few months ago lost his wife, who died at the home of her parents in Lumberton. She left to the husband a little son, Walter, who is now in school at Lumberton, and the little afflicted daughter to whom he was tenderly devoted and at whose bedside he died. Mr. Bowden was a native of Wilmington and had held various offices in the city government. He was about 55 years of age and was in apparently the best of health when the unexpected summons came.—Charlotte Observer.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 17, 1903.

Isn't it about time Senator Norris of Wake, had finished "replying"?

Charlotte ran short on water the other day. The saloon must have had a picnic.

"Better late than never" is apparently the present motto of the Father of Waters.

Let us all be thankful that we live on higher ground than the Mississippi bottoms.

If the thing keep up we'll have to go to the wild and woolly west to escape being shot.

Asheville has caught the oil craze, and there is going to be some boring near that city.

Wilmington has just five candidates for mayor. After the primary four of them can say they also ran.

The North Carolina town which is taxing itself to realize funds for advertising purposes is way ahead of the balance of the state.

The Hearst boom will die anyway, but there are two ways of hastening its last cough—ridicule it or refuse to notice it.

What in the world can be the matter with Greensboro? It has been at least a day and a half since that town asked for anything.

Editor Hearst has often preached the propriety of the office seeking the man, but he is not the first to preach one thing and practice another.

The Durham Herald has moved into a home worthy of such a clean, sensible newspaper. If we were asked to name the newspaper that does the least slopping over we should select the Durham Herald.

A Greensboro correspondent of the Charlotte Observer has brought up a man who claims to have discovered what beat Mr. Watson. The rest of us knew sometime ago that it was Mr. Overman.

We thought we had settled the question as to whether the United States "is" or "are" but the Charlotte News is "still harping on my daughter." The News fails to state whether North Carolina is one of "them" or one of "it" states being referred to.

So far, we believe, Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, has escaped being mentioned for the democratic presidential nomination. He was very prominently mentioned during the days preceding the last two national conventions. While we are naturally inclined to shy at anything from Chicago, it is true that Carter Harrison possesses one requisite of a reasonable candidate, that is, the capability of being elected. N. B.—This is no boom.

There is a lesson in the news from Missouri. The state has struggled along under the weight of a heavy debt, piled up on account of reconstruction hard times. But better days are at hand, for the last cent of the state's indebtedness was paid recently, the bonds representing the debt being burned in the presence of a large and cheering crowd. During all these years democratic officials have been in charge of the state's affairs and they have proven true to the trust of the people. Long live "old Missouri."

Col. John S. Cunningham, of Person county, will address a meeting of the farmers of Wake county who will assemble at Goldsboro on March 21st for the purpose of forming a branch of the North Carolina Farmers' Protective Association. Colonel Cunningham is deeply interested in the organization of the farmers of the state and good results are likely to follow. Being the largest tobacco raiser in the state, a man of much enthusiasm and perseverance, the colonel will undoubtedly be successful in the great work which lies before him and which is close to his heart.—Raleigh Times.

It is learned that a catamount was killed near Jennings' post-office, in north Iredell, a few days ago. Mr. Wilkerson Jennings was burning a broom sedge field and roused the animal. It took refuge in a tree and was shot by Mr. Jennings. It measured three feet in length and weighed 25 pounds net. It is reported that there is another one in the neighborhood.—Statesville Landmark.

What they call appendicitis in New York must be a terrible thing. A New Yorker who was operated on for this disease was found to contain a few tacks, knife-blades, pieces of glass, etc. This is a new phase of the 'citis. But some of the Yorkers have pretty strong stomachs.—Durham Sun.

Ridiculous in the Extreme. The Greenville Reflector has the best article we have seen touching the Hearst boom in North Carolina. The whole thing is ridiculous and every one seems to see it except the Edenton editor and it is probably not to his interest to see it.—Durham Herald.

While the Mississippi river is not doing so well, it is at least able to be out of its bed.—Newport News Times-Herald.

What's in a Name? Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Jno. L. Wooten.

Her Taking Ways.

She took the books I sent her and on
me her thanks bestowed,
She took the rhymes I wrote for her professing love undying.
She took the flowers that I gave, for which my shekles flowed,
She took the bits of music that I took delight in buying.

She even with her kodak took my picture once, and framed
The mounted print for her boudoir
with ribbons red and yellow,
She took a view at last for which the girl I've often blamed—
She took conceit all out of me and—took the oher fellow!
—Roy Farrell Greene.

Haywood-Skinner Tragedy.

The Charlotte Observer of Saturday prints the following sensational telegram from Halifax, Nova Scotia, appropos the Haywood-Skinner tragedy at Raleigh a few weeks ago.

Halifax, N. S., March 13.—Ernest Haywood, a lawyer under arrest at Raleigh, N. C., on the charge of murdering Ludlow Skinner, spent last summer in Halifax with a handsome woman whom he said was his wife. The party also included a colored servant and two children. While in Halifax the woman gave birth to a child. Dr.
Slayter was in attendance. One day a letter came to the house addressed to Mrs. Tucker and the woman explained to the owner of the house who happened to be present that her first husband was name Tucker. Haywood apparently was very jealous of the woman.
They spent lots of money, and checks were always drawn in the name of Mrs. Tucker. The latter stated that she met Haywood through his being a lawyer engaged to settle the estate of her deceased husband. She and Haywood and the two children came to Halifax apparently from Raleigh.

During periodical visits to Raleigh, Haywood represented to Mrs. Tucker's sister that he did not marry Mrs. Tucker and knew nothing of her. They nevertheless rented a furnished room in Halifax and lived as man and wife, as Mr. and Mrs. Haywood. They took the infant with them, but it is understood it disappeared before Haywood returned to Raleigh.
Haywood stated while in Halifax that he and Mrs. Tucker were married in Montreal.

Fabric of Daily Life.

It is not of lofty or heroic deeds that the enduring pattern of character is woven, but rather of the seemingly small things of life. Little unheralded acts of helpfulness, slight self denials that bar against selfishness, conscientious attention to trifling details of duty, standing firm to the right in spite of banter and contempt (really the most difficult thing for young or old to withstand), adherence to scrupulous honesty in word and deed even in what others consider of no import, sticking to principle though one may be called
"old fashioned," "unprogressive" or "puritanical"—these are the golden strands which, woven into the fabric of daily living, make men and women invincible.—Success.

Mistake in the Locality.

That keen rivalry which western towns feel is probably responsible for the story about Seattle, which may well have been said of some other place at some other time. It concerns a Seattle man who died and went to the hereafter.

"I don't see," he remarked, after a casual survey of his new quarters,
"that heaven is so much better than Seattle."

"But this isn't heaven," explained a bystander.—New York Tribune.

How the Ancients Regarded Iron.

The ancient Egyptians believed that iron was the bone of Typhon, the enemy of Osiris, and for this reason it was considered impure. No one could make use of it even for the most ordinary requirements of life without polluting his soul in a way that would cause him harm both on earth and in the other world.

Reading.

Were I to pray for a taste which should stand me in stead under every variety of circumstance and be a source of happiness and cheerfulness to me
during life and a shield against ills, however things might go amiss and the world frown upon me, it would be a taste for reading.—Sir John Herschel.

He Had.

"Have you ever written anything," said his cynical friend, "to make the world happier or better?"
"Rather," quoth the insurance agent who sometimes dabbled in verse. "I have written $400,000 worth of life insurance within the last year."

What Did He Mean?

He—What lovely flowers! Do you know, they remind me of you.
She—Why, they are artificial.
He—Yes, I know, but it requires close examination to detect it.
