What Constitutes Satisfaction?

The Century Dictionary is the most able authority and we will give it first say. "Satisfaction—the state of being satisfied; a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind; tranquility resulting from a gratified desire: content; gratification."

It is so simple to say "satisfaction guaranteed" the motto is trite, though its justification is rare enough. The mere returning of money paid for goods that prove unworthy is by no means satisfaction. This slight act of justice by no means repays a customer for the time spent in making the purchase, and for having to go and do it over again. It gives no gratification, produces no tranquility of mind. This kind of questionable satisfaction can be obtained almost anywhere nowadays, demanding varying degrees of insistence and inconvenience to secure it. The assurance of real satisfaction before the event as well as afterward is secured only in a store that is particular about its merchandise. This store has established a standard of quality that is universally maintained by expert knowledge. Thus we know, and that part of the public familiar with this store knows, that all purchases made here will, in the matters of quality, price and service throughout, give the satisfaction that produces in the purchaser a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind, tranquility resulting from a gratified desire.

Our buyer is away, buying Spring and Summer Goods. Wait for us and we can serve you to your entire satisfaction.

THE IDEAL IN EDUCATION.

[Essay read by Miss Bettie Tyson before Pitt County Teachers Association.]

Everything good has its ideal. In the morning of creation man was made the ideal of all creatures, being perfect in word, thought, and deed, but later he transgressed and lost his first estate. Since then the ideal is something we all have to strive for, and our ambition should be to reach this point in all our undertakings. It is all important that we as teachers should fully realize what the ideal in education means, so that we can more easily help those whom we teach to reach this ideal, and, in accomplishing this, we help them to live nearer an ideal life.

That we may understand more clearly just what this subject means we will discuss the question first negatively, then affirmatively.

First, we assert that it is not information. Though information is very necessary, and that to a great extent, yet to have information with no power, no force or ability to help others, we could not be said to be truly educated, but would rather appear as nothing more than a walking encyclopedia.

Secondly, we affirm that it is not simply a knowledge of books. "Bookworms" may be bookworms only. A knowledge of books, like information, is a very necessary factor, but this knowledge without other attendants could never reach the ideal.

Often we make the mistake of considering those who are familiar with Latin stems and Greek roots, who recite poetry with ease, and can discuss all the latest literature of the day as the ideal educated man, when after all this, he may not know the first principles which would distinguish him as an ideal educated person.

Again and thirdly, it is not alone gigantic intellect. Although some of us may almost doubt this statement when we have striven so hard day after day to develop that which is known as intellect and yet without any visible results. While in others, where far less attention has been paid, we watch the increase of power. Yet a man of wonderfully developed intellect is not always an ideal man, for were not Plato, Aristotle and Bacon giant intellects? Authors of philosophies which changed and shaped the thought of the world—Darwin, Huxley and Ingersoll, master minds, yet surely no one of these is the ideal man. Byron and Burns, men of great intellect, but not ideal in thought, writings or life.

In the fourth place, we would say emphatically that it is not merely polish and faultless manners. A man may be a Chesterfield in speech and manner, yet an Atila or Nero in thought and deed. Just here we would quote, "All that glitters is not gold."

Fifth and last, negatively. The ideal is not a combination of all these. A man may possess information, a knowledge of books, have becoming manners, and still fall far below the ideal educated man. But to the affirmative side of the subject. Since these do not, what will give the ideal? We name in the first place and we might say in importance.

The development of broad liberal views of things and life. Broad liberal view here does not mean a person who simply acquiesces in the wishes and opinions of others for the sole purpose of being called broad minded, for surely we could have no respect for a person so devoid of stability.

No man who is narrow minded or contracted in his views can ever do much good in life, for he has not laid the proper foundation upon which to build.

We must realize our relation to each other, to the world, to eternity, and our creator. Then we have the foundation, and the structure reared can withstand the severest storms. We would name as the second essential, a well preserved body with proper care for person and habit. The body is the home of faculties, and the vehicle that carries them. Although all the requisites of greatness may exist, should the body be poorly developed and preserved, they can never be used to benefit others. To help along this line almost all schools are supplied with well equipped gymnasiums etc. The impression one makes and to a great extent his opportunities in life depend on his neatness in appearance.

More especially should the habits be looked after, indulgence and intemperance in everything should be avoided.

Again we note the third requisite. There must be a keen and rightly adjusted moral perception, and a desire to follow what is right. The foundation of all real worth is character, and to have a strong character we must have an enlightened conscience to govern us—should our conscience allow us to regard the right frequently "our power to distinguish correctly what the right is has been lessened and with each step we are going farther and farther from ideal greatness.

Therefore it is all important that we have an enlightened conscience to help us lay this sound foundation—character.

We name as the fourth essential, a symmetrically developed intellect. In this great age of abnormally developed faculties viz. specialist; we would say symmetry adds beauty to everything and it is not less true when applied to the intellect. A school with a specialist at the head of each department would be an ideal school, but the ideal student must be developed along more than one line or there is danger of narrowness or contraction, closely following this is the fifth requisite of the ideal. It is a personal realization of the obligations and purposes of life, together with a determination to live up to these. Simply to assent to or admit the truthfulness of anything is not a personal realization of it, for one does not effect the life, while the other controls it. A man to be great must realize some great truth, and there is no greater truth than the purpose of life, and he who lives up to his knowledge of this as best he can moves the world toward good and God.

In conclusion, fellow teachers, let us seek these things so that we may realize ourselves and teach others, that "life is real, life is earnest" and we may so live that we "can make our lives sublime, and in dying, leave behind us footprints on the sands of time."

The Machine is Waiting.

Now and then the question is asked us when will THE REFLECTOR sewing machine prize be awarded? That depends entirely on the disposition of the tickets. There are only a few over a hundred now on hand, and as soon as these are given out the prize is ready for the holder of the lucky ticket. If you owe for THE REFLECTOR come pay up and get a ticket for each dollar you pay. If you do not owe us anything, say something to your neighbor about coming after a ticket. In this way you help dispose of them and somebody will get the machine that much sooner.

NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND BUSINESS NOTES.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., March, 18.

"Money makes the mare go" and orders make the boys go. The entire force of the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co. is getting a move on.

Leslie Smith, of Kinston, spent a few hours in Winterville Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmundson, of Fremont, have been spending a few days here with their son, a student in the Winterville High School, who has been quite ill with pneumonia, but is, we are glad to say, very much better.

Uncle John Gus Edwards has got his hog back anyway, even if we did describe it in terms not understood by some who insist on calling a hog a hog and nothing more. If it had been a razor back sow we would have so described it.

J. E. Nye, of Ashpole, N. C., father of Prof. F. C. Nye, of this place, has been spending two or three days down here. He left his order with A. G. Cox Mfg. Co., for guano sower, tobacco trucks, &c.

Miss Mollye Bryan, who has been away from home for several days visiting at W. O. Barnhill's, in Greenville, returned last night.

Bill Haurahan and son must have the contract to paint the wholletown. As soon as they are through with one building they begin on the one next to it. Some day, if they keep on long enough, they will get around.

Guy Taylor and Miss Bessie Moore, of Kinston, were visiting Misses Hattie and Edie Kittrell Sunday.

John Peele came in on his regular sixty day around last night.

The Tar Heel Brass Band is not the only band Winterville can boast of. She has had a string band, for some time. The boys have found it out, too, and supplied themselves with bass violins (they already had the others) and are waking us up at night with strain of music which seem to leave a body in a better mood than common. Now we'll have competition, and who says it is not a great thing.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Cox and children were visiting at W. J. Munford's, near Ayden, Sunday.

Dr. Cox's new soda fountain came yesterday and it is a beauty. Now that the doctor is in the cold drink business let's all patronize him so as to get the benefit of his medical advice as to which drinks are healthful and which harmful. Of course, though, he will sell only the healthful kinds.

T. C. Hart, of Hugo, was here yesterday leaving some special orders with A. G. Cox Mfg. Co.

If you have wire fencing ordered and cannot wait for it to come, just drive right over here and get it from the factory, or phone and it will be shipped on first train.

PERSONAL NOTES

Brief Mention of People Met With in the Social World

Lee Bland went to Tarboro this morning.

J. W. Clark has returned from LaGrange.

G. M. Tucker returned to Whitakers today.

Miss Ellie Smith is visiting Mrs. R. L. Smith.

Rev. F. A. Bishop left this morning for Hyde county.

J. R. Davenport and J. J. Rollins, of Pactolus, were in town today.

H. P. Harris, of Tarboro, has taken a position with Bryan & Nichols.

Mrs. W. B. Brown and children left this morning for Portsmouth to visit her father.

S. W. Andrews, of Elm City, who has been here a few days, returned home today.

Mrs. W. J. Cowell and little daughter went to Washington today to visit relatives.

C. S. Forbes returned Tuesday evening from the northern cities, where he had been after new goods.

Mrs. Charles Skinner and Misses Pattie Skinner and Jerusha Whedbee returned Tuesday evening from New York.

Miss Sallie Hardy has accepted a position at Miss Della Erwin's millinery store.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 18, 1903.

PRINTERS' INK'S THE THING.

We quite agree with the Durham Herald that it is wholly useless and wasteful to attempt to make a creditable exhibit of North Carolina's resources at the St. Louis exposition with the measly $10,000 appropriated by the state. The Asheville Citizen and Charlotte News are inclined to take the Herald to task for its views on the subject, but it seems to us that it is the News and Citizen who have incorrect ideas about advertising.

St. Louis will be a city of millions and billions, not thousands. $10,000 will not make a beginning unless the whole sum is used to advertise North Carolina in the St. Louis newspapers while the exposition is in progress. We are all agreed that advertising is the ultima thule of such expositions. Is there any responsible man in North Carolina, a true and patriotic citizen, who will undertake to make a creditable exhibit for North Carolina with $10,000? We think not, and to make a failure is worse than no exhibit at all, for it would be a standing reflection upon the entire state. We are enthusiastically in favor of making North Carolina's exhibit through the newspapers. Ten thousands dollars worth of printers' ink properly used will do us more good than all the apple and cabbage shows between now and the final cataclysm.

ON TO AYDEN.

The Greenville REFLECTOR speaks about Greenville having trolley cars to Winterville. Why not extend the line to Ayden?—Ayden Baptist.

Sure, it would never do not to have Ayden and Greenville connected. But as Ayden is going to beat us and get electric lights first, it would be a cinch for that town to start the trolley first and annex Greenville.

The Wilmington Star says:

"The (Post) correspondent informs us that while Senator Fairbanks is not giving open encouragement to this movement he is giving it aid and comfort on the sly, the presumption being that he is also putting up some currency. It will be interesting to watch this game as it progresses."

Which is another way of saying that it is Senator Fairbanks who makes the "ghost" walk in the Carolinian office.

The Winston Journal ads a society column, but declines to make known the name of the feminine attachment to its staff, "at least for the present." We trust that the Journal's society column is different from the same article in northern papers to the extent that its editor does not wear suspenders and smoke cigars.

Wilmington is going at the thing right. The board of aldermen of that town have appropriated $300 to help the chamber of commerce advertise the town.

Judge Brown attributes the increase in crime in North Carolina to the growth of population and increased immigration, but this doesn't explain recent homicides at all, as the parties thereto were some of "our best people."

Durham can stir other things as well as a union depot question. That town has one of the most active anti-saloon organizations in the state, and they are going to win out in the fight against saloons.

A man in New York state recently bought a baby for 30 dollars. By this time he is probably anxious to close out his stock of babies at and below cost.

The war in North Carolina has broken out again. How would it do to import some Filipino holomen to teach us the gentle art of civilization?

It is really unkind of the president to go off on a fourteen thousand mile journey without relieving the suspense of Wilson's colored postmaster.

If the president intends to do any hunting while on his present trip doubtless he can bear where a choice lot of coons are located.

So long as "our best people" indulge in murderous street fights the lower twenty will follow suit.

Very few people are murdered while attending to their own business.

Greensboro is wrestling with a Carnegie library proposition.

The devil seems to have gotten into Tar Heel pistols lately.

Jim Crow Law Upheld.

New Orleans, March 16.—The Louisiana supreme court today decided the jim crow street car law, which was put in operation in November, constitutional. The law has been vigorously opposed by the negroes who resent it greatly, and many of the better class have ceased using the street cars since it was put in operation. The court declares that the Louisiana legislature has a right to separate the races in the cars if the negroes are given equal accommodations with the whites.

It is reported that the Elizabeth City Carolinian, one of the oldest republican papers in the state, is to be moved to Raleigh. And this is probably the beginning of the finish of the Carolinian.—Durham Herald.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Jno. L. Wooten.

MUNFORD'S BIG STORE.

March is Here—Spring Enthusiasm Permeate the Store.

Diffused through every aisle and floor is the sweet fragrance of Spring Merchandise. Crisp and bright as the morning glory, stocks shimmer in the blaze of newness. The store season is far more advanced than the weather.

Millinery, Garments, Lingerie, and other wearables blossom into completeness—the showing is superb, reflecting the highest type of apparel from the world's best conjurers of fashion.

Below, on the surface floor, Silks, Dress

Goods, Wash Fabrics and a host of other stocks are making their Spring debut. Human ingenuity has exercised exquisite taste. You observe it in the designs and weaves; it is spread before you in the ready-to-don things.

Wherever novelty breathes charm C. T. Munford's Big Store has it.

You are welcome, of course, whether as an observer or purchaser. The store is yours to enjoy in the broadest sense of the meaning.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP.

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of our bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store.

WEAK EYES MADE STRONG

BY

J. W. TAYLOR, Graduate Optician, Ayden, North Carolina.

If you are troubled with your eyes, it is very likely you need glasses, and it would be to your interest to see J. W. Taylor, who will fit your glasses by means of the latest scientific methods. All errors of refraction carefully corrected, even astigmatism in all its forms.

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. No charges for examination

Read the following, which are a few of the testimonials from persons whom I have fitted:

KINSTON, N. C., March 2, 1903.
J. W. Taylor, Optician, of Ayden, N. C., fitted some glasses for me in the Fall of 1901, which have given entire satisfaction. I believe Mr. Taylor understands his business and is perfectly reliable. C. W. HOWARD.

AYDEN, N. C., March 9, 1903.
It gives me pleasure to testify to any good work, and since we have had ample time to try the glasses fitted by J. W. Taylor for myself and daughter, I deem it my duty to certify that they have and are giving perfect satisfaction and that they are all he claimed for them. No one with affected eyes need hesitate one moment in placing their case in his hands. Yours very truly, D. G. BERRY, agent for Ayden Lumber Co.

AYDEN, N. C., March 9, 1903.
It affords me great pleasure to certify to the optical work done by Mr. J. W. Taylor for me and my wife. My case being a very difficult one, yet the glasses he fitted to my eyes have proven just as he said, and have proven of inestimable value. He is the third ophthalmologist to fit me with glasses and of the three his work cannot be excelled. Very truly,
E. G. Cox, Sec'y Ayden Milling and Mfg. Co.

AYDEN, N. C., March 13, 1901.
An the 15th of last October Mr. J. W. Taylor, optician, Ayden, N. C., fitted me a pair of glasses and they have given me perfect satisfaction and I can cheerfully recommend Mr. Taylor to anyone in need of glasses, believing that they will be pleased with his work, and the amount of money saved from what regular specialists charge. I know my eyes were in just as bad condition as anybody's will ever get, to be cured with glasses. JOHN S. HART.

Carolus-Duran's Revenge on Sargent.
When John S. Sargent, the famous portrait painter, studied in the atelier of Carolus-Duran in Paris, his teacher showed his fondness for him by painting in his head in the great ceiling of the Luxembourg palace. Even after he branched out for himself his master often sent for him to come over to his studio and pose, his hands having especially won the admiration of Carolus-Duran. The time came, however, when Sargent could no longer answer the beck and call of his teacher, for he was getting work of his own to do, which would not allow him to leave his studio at a moment's notice. One day, it is related, Carolus-Duran sent a hurry call for him, and when he received a note saying that Sargent was compelled to decline his request owing to pressing work he was furious. A few days later a friend, to whom he had confided his anger at his recalcitrant pupil, asked him: "Well, how is it with Sargent? Have you made up? How is he?" "Ah, no," said the painter, and he looked sad and his shoulders went up. "How is it with Sargent? 'C'est fini!'" Another shrug. "'C'est fini! It's all over! I have been to the Luxembourg. I went and I got a ladder, and I painted out his head!"

A Ghost Test.

When you think you see a ghost, how can you tell whether it really is a ghost or not? A recent writer gives the following scientific method: "We assume that a person sees an apparition. It may be objective—i. e., having existence outside the observer's mind—or merely a creature of a disordered brain, subjective. The seer, while looking at the vision with both his eyes, gently depresses one eyeball with his forefinger from outside the top eyelid, so causing a squint. If objective, whether bogus or not, two outlines of the 'ghost' will be seen, but one, of course, if it be subjective. One may prove this by trial any time with any object, near or far. I mention this because of the many nervous and brain-wearied people who see spooks and to whom it would be better that they should know that the trouble is within themselves and so seek a capable doctor than continue to be haunted, as they believe, by the supernatural."
