What Constitutes Satisfaction?

The Century Dictionary is the most able authority and will give it first say. "Satisfaction—the state of being satisfied; a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind; tranquility resulting from a gratified desire; content; gratification."

It is so simple to say "satisfaction guaranteed" the motto is trite, though its justification is rare enough. The mere returning of money paid for goods that prove unworthy is by no means satisfaction. This slight act of justice by no means repays a customer for the time spent in making the purchase, and for having to go and do it over again. It gives no gratification, produces no tranquility of mind. This kind of questionable satisfaction can be obtained almost anywhere nowadays, demanding varying degrees of insistence and inconvenience to secure it. The assurance of real satisfaction before the event as well as afterward is secured only in a store that is particular about its merchandise. This store has established a standard of quality that is universally maintained by expert knowledge. Thus we know, and that part of the public familiar with this store knows, that all purchases made here will, in the matters of quality, price and service throughout, give the satisfaction that produces in the purchaser a gratified or contented feeling or state of mind, tranquility resulting from a gratified desire.

THE HOME OF WOMENS' FASHIONS.

His Life a Mistake.

Can anything excuse a thief? When a man has education and a good brain, when he knows that there is always a reckoning for sin and that he who sows trouble must reap shame, can there be a valid excuse that will set him right with the public?

There is the case of Mr. — and there are tears in every paragraph of a life story.

He loved a woman and that woman became a confirmed invalid. There are men and men. Some forget love when sickness comes. They don't want to be chained to a hospital. And others love most when sickness and adversity come. This man knew that his wife could never be strong and well again. When he realized that the light of his life was destined to fade away like a broken flower a great tenderness took possession of him. He made up his mind that her every wish should be gratified; that her home should be bright; that he would surround her with every comfort, no matter how great the cost.

He was a thief for her sake. He was treasurer of the American District Telegraph Company in Brooklyn, and he looted the funds of the concern for years to buy things for the sick woman at home. He did the awful thing with his eyes open. He knew all about the consequences. He knew that "Thou shalt not steal" is God's law and man's law, wherever human beings exist.

And he kept on stealing, his only desire being to postpone the crash and prison till after he had kissed the dead lips of his wife.

The crash came, but the funeral was over, and Mr. S. Shivered said to the authorities: "I am a thief, and I'm ready to take the consequences, gentlemen."

What a mistake he made. How little he knew about women—about that woman who was his wife.

Couldn't he realize that she would have been happier hungry with an honest man than surrounded with luxuries purchased with stolen money? Why didn't he know the average wife loves truth, and honesty and uprightness so much that she will welcome privation and pain so long as shame does not enter her life?

He loved her and he harmed her, and it is well that she could creep into her grave before she could learn that a man made a holy passion his excuse for crime.

It is easy to be sorry for the man. It is easy to shed tears over the story of a great mistake and a great affection. The world has an especial tenderness for men who patiently devote their lives to invalid wives, but the excuse for this man's crime does not exist.

Legally and morally he made a mistake and should pay the penalty.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Wins.

"Ah," she sighed, "the great men are all dead."

"But the beautiful women are not," he answered.

Then she looked soulfully up into his eyes and told him she had said it just to be contrary, and not because she thought it for a moment.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Found Them Tame.

"Your friend with the loud tie says he visited a number of the tough resorts in New York and thought them very tame. What do you think of that?"

"Oh, he's from Kansas. What he visited was the New York drug-stores."—Kansas City Journal.

March came in February and now we are getting April in March.

One Family of 24 and Another of 20

Wm. Skidmore, of near Stanley, probably has the distinction of being the father of the largest family in Gaston county. He has 22 children. Some of them died before reaching manhood. J. W. Ferguson, of Clover, was in town Saturday with his family and the group was taken by Photographer Green. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson were married on March 2nd, 1874, and to them have been born 18 children, 12 of whom are now living; two of them are twins. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson still look young, and they are not old. Mr. Ferguson is 51 and doesn't look over 40.

The youngest living child is 6 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have four married daughters and eight grandchildren. Mrs. E. B. Plyler, of Gaffney, was here to be taken in the group. Mr. Ferguson says he doesn't feel as young as he did a number of years ago, but says it is because he has played baseball and it did more to make him old than working on the farm.—Gastonia News.

Making False Returns.

Postmaster J. R. Payne, of Gentry, Rockingham county, was brought to Greensboro by United States Deputy Marshal L. T. Priddy, of Jewel's, Stokes county.

Payne is charged with making false returns. The evidence against him was secured by United States Postoffice Inspector Sam G. Fry.

The prisoner was taken before United States Commissioner J. M. Wolfe, who placed him under a bond of two hundred dollars for appearance at the next term of Federal Court. The bond was given.

"The Greater Georgia Association" has been organized. This shows a spirit of progress. The object of the association is to induce people of other states to come to Georgia either as farmers or as manufacturers. This effort will not be without results. People will be induced to go and see the state and this will insure the settling of many. The turpentine and lumber dealers are leaving the state, having worked up most of the material, they are leaving one of the finest farming sections in the entire South, land rich and level, water and climate exceptionally good. There is no finer farming section any where in the South than will be found in South Georgia.—Raleigh Times.

The first annual report of the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Great Britain and Ireland, has been issued, showing a most prosperous condition of the great trust.

During the year the company has bought several large competing firms; it has paid 4 per cent. on the debenture stock; 2 1/2 per cent. on the preferred, and 6 per cent. on the preferred ordinary. The capital stock has been increased from £15,000,000 to £20,250,000, or from $75,000,000 to $101,150,000, and the earnings were $5,520,000. The prospectus issued at the time of the organization of the company estimated the first year's earnings to be $5,310,000.—Winston-Salem Sentinel.

What's in a Name?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. C. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered, some years ago, how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Jno. L. Wooten.

PERSONAL NOTES

Brief Mention of People Met With in the Social World

H. B. Phillips went to Suffolk today.

The showers came on schedule this time.

W. T. Lipscomb returned Thursday evening from Raleigh.

Miss Augusta Oden, of Washington, is visiting Mrs. J. G. Latham.

F. T. Carr, of Greene county, was in town today.

W. L. Brown spent today in Tarboro.

Car choice timothy hay just arrived, at Johnston Bros.

T. E. Hooker went to Washington today on the steamer Myers.

One of the children of Rev. W. H. Laughinghouse is sick with pneumonia.

The old well on Five Points and the one near Munford's store have been filled up.

Representative J. B. Little and Mrs. Little came up this afternoon from Pactolus.

Rain in western, fair in eastern portions tonight. Saturday rain and not so warm.

Mrs. Hattie Thigpen, of Conetoe, who was here on business, returned home this morning.

Fred Phillips, of Suffolk, who has been visiting here and at Shelmerdine, returned home today.

Mrs. F. C. Harding and child and Miss Sarah Harding left Thursday evening for Centerville.

Mrs. W. E. Patrick and children left Thursday evening for Ayden to visit relatives.

Mrs. Hartman, wife of Rev. F. G. Hartman, the new pastor of the Presbyterian church, arrived Thursday evening and they will make their home here.

J. R. Moye returned Thursday evening from the northern markets, where he had been buying goods for J. B. Cherry & Co.

Timber is now vulcanized in England by forcing a boiling solution of sugar into its pores.

Masonic Temple.

The committee appointed by Greenville Masonic Lodge to perfect the place for erecting a Masonic temple here, is now actively at work and it is expected that the building will be commenced in a few weeks. The temple will be situated on the Delaney lot on Third street, just in the rear of the court house. It will be a handsome three-story, the first floor containing offices, the second floor a modern opera house, the third floor lodge and reception rooms. Such a building will be an ornament to Greenville and a credit to the Masonic fraternity.

Tableau.

Roosevelt is making an extended trip in the interest of bruin. Bryan is serving as a juror. Cleveland is planning to hunt votes (?) in the West, Hill is loading cannon to destroy Bryan, Teller is nursing a case of old age and Parker is smiling benignly on the scene.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Bar Meeting.

Six lawyers gathered on the post office corner Thursday afternoon, looked like an open air bar meeting was being held. The reporter approached to find out what was up, and found them trying to settle a point of law among themselves. It was a law full assembly.

Unusual Enough to Evoke Comment.

Secretary Root appears to have acted and written very gracefully in the matter of the roster of federal and confederate army officers. Governor Aycock speaks of his letter as one of the most courteous ever sent out from the north on the subject.

Street Improvements.

The extension of Fifth street to the branch east of town has been completed to connect with the new road through the Harrington property. It is now a nice street. Work is being done on other streets around town and they are in better condition than for sometime.

Hon. J. M. Blow, mayor of Winterville, came up this morning. He was accompanied by little Miss Letha Fair, who spent the day with friends here.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 20, 1903.

This is what the Atlanta Journal says about Richard Mansfield, the actor who was nearly swallowed whole by Charlotte.

"We are not paid our $80 a week to write the dramatic criticism; but we don't mind throwing in the suggestion that Dick Mansfield goes about the death of Brutus entirely too much like he had hunted out a nice soft spot on a rock after a hard day's work and was prying open the lid of his dinner bucket with a cold chisel."

The following from the Charlotte News makes it all plain:

For the first time, probably in history, beauty has been legally recognized. A Boston court has set aside the verdict of a jury against the Old Colony railroad because it believed the jury against the Old Colony railroad jury was unduly influenced by the beauty of the fair plaintiff.

The Wilmington Messenger learns that it is quite likely that the North Carolina Press Association will hold its annual meeting at Wrightsville this season. That is a good place to go and the members can enjoy themselves there.

The Elizabeth City Carolinian has flopped to Theodore's side, and all its colored subscribers will now come back and take the paper. By this arrangement the Carolinian gets less glory but more money.

Why does Pritchard need so much help in getting a job? For a man of his pushability, who has been as close to Theodore as he has, he seems singularly backward in landing his'n.

In the case of the two school girls who ran away from school at Danville, Va., and went to Greensboro, an old fashioned spanking seems to be the proper thing.

Congressman Mowey says Theodore is president of the black belt, not of the United States of North America and New Jersey.

Marion Butler says he is getting further from the poor house every day. Doubtless he is taking everything movable with him.

Indianola, Miss., has not been included in the itinerary of the president's latest hunting voyage.

What do those Waterbury people mean by organizing a vigilance committee and arming themselves with the intention of taking the law into their own hands? We thought the New Englanders left such things to the barbarous inhabitants of the southern states. Have they found out that sometimes the rights of the people and the law of self-preservation rise above the written laws of state and nation? That revolution becomes the salvation of society?—Wilmington Messenger.

Sheriff Page says tonight that so far not a subpoena for a witness has been issued in the Haywood murder case. This looks like a continuance. Of course there will be witnesses before the grand jury next Monday, as the case cannot be continued until a true bill is found. An attorney for the defence declined tonight to say whether there would or would not be a motion for continuance. Extreme reticence is shown by the defence.—Raleigh Cor. Wilmington Messenger.

On Friday morning last the residence of Mr. L. M. Tuten, on Durham's Creek was consumed by fire and their two months old baby was burnt in it. Mr. Tuten was away at the time and Mrs. Tuten had started to a nearby relative's. When some distance away she turned and saw the house was on fire but was not in time to save the baby. The fire caught from a defective flue.—Washington Progress.

Some time ago a wise fellow discovered that it is unhealthy for two people to occupy the same bed, then another found out that it was unsafe to ride on a car with other people; later the physicians decided that to kiss was to tempt death in all manner of diseases, and now a French scientist says that there is danger in the hand-shake. It will soon be unhealthy to be buried in the same graveyard with other people.—Durham Sun.

He Compliments Pitt.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction, Prof. J. Y. Joyner, returned yesterday from Greensboro where he had gone after his visit to Pitt county.

In speaking of the educational meetings he had attended there at Winterville and at Greenville Mr. Joyner paid a warm tribute to the teachers of Pitt county. He said that their meetings had come to be intellectual centres and that in County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale the county of Pitt had one of the best superintendents in the state.—Raleigh News and Observer.

A Horse-Whipping?

Sensational reports of a horse-whipping administered by several of the firemen of Wilmington, just after their response to the false alarm from Ninth and Chestnut streets, at 11 o'clock Tuesday night, were rife in the city yesterday. The police are believed to be making a quiet investigation of the affair, but nothing could be learned from that source yesterday.

The victim is said to have been James Judge, white, although he has lodged no complaint against his assailants. Suspicion has rested upon young Judge for some time, and when the laddies were returning from the run Tuesday night, they are said to have found the man on Sixth near Chestnut street, which is only three blocks from where the alarm was sent in. A severe whipping is said to have been given the young man, and residents in the neighborhood were alarmed by shouts of "Murder!" "Police!" and other cries of distress. A telephone message was sent to the police station and officers went to investigate, but by the time they reached the scene the disorder had ceased and the streets were clear.—Wilmington Star.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store.

The Peary Arctic Club has hopes to dispatch another polar expedition in the spring.

The Stomach is the Man.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach. A weak stomach cannot digest enough food to feed the tissues and revive the tired and run down limbs and organs of the body. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cleanses, purifies, sweetens and strengthens the glands and membranes of the stomach, and cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Jno. L. Wooten.

Peat has about half of the heating power of coal, and double that of wood.

Danger of Colds and Grip.

The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. It will cure a cold or an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store.

The lowest priced vehicle at the New York automobile show was $500, the highest $1,800.

A Remarkable Case.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Jno. L. Wooten.

The secret of making carbon paper and typewriter ribbons is known to scarcely two dozen people.

Colds are Dangerous.

How often you hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. It always cures and is pleasant to take. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

The Madison, Ga., Advertiser notes that "many a man sits in the amen corner and sings 'Jesus paid it all' as though that fact relieved him of his past due grocery account or the last year's subscription to the local paper."

CHANGE OF PROGRAMME

(Copyright, 1902, by McClure's Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Deacon Abner Perkins of the village of Grafton had been a widower for two years, he married Sarah Ann Bridges, a spinster of thirty-six. Sarah Ann had been a friend of the deceased wife for several years, and when Mrs. Perkins was told that her days were numbered she called the deacon to her bedside and said:

"Abner, you will mourn for me, but you will get married again in a couple of years. You'll need somebody to wash and mend and bake and keep things going. Sarah Ann Bridges is good tempered, a good housekeeper and a hard worker, and I'd rather you would marry her than any one I know."

The deacon jotted down the initials of Miss Bridges' name on his memory, and in due time called upon her and made her his wife. He was glad, Sarah was glad, and no one had any criticisms to make. A hundred different people said they knew Sarah like a book, and that the deacon couldn't have done better. He thought so, too, for three or four weeks, and then he began to doubt. One morning the new wife suggested new window curtains for the parlor, but the deacon turned to his store-book and proved to her that the old curtains hadn't been up but seven years, and that they ought to do for seven years more. It was the first time he had crossed her, and Sarah flushed up, rolled her eyes and then fell down in a fit. A doctor and three or four women worked over her for two hours and finally brought her back from the grave, and the parlor windows had new curtains the next day. That was where Deacon Perkins made his mistake, but he did not realize it until later on. Sarah's sudden illness was supposed to be due to a weak heart, but it is no great trick to fool a doctor once or twice.

Ten days had passed, and the new wife was cleaning house, when a sewing machine man came along. He hadn't told half his story when Sarah decided that she must have a machine. The deacon's first wife always had done her sewing by hand, and the husband himself had regarded a sewing machine as an invention of Satan. He promptly put his foot down on the contemplated purchase, and Sarah as promptly fell in a heap again. It was a long three hours before she was about the house again, and upon the advice of the doctor the deacon bought the sewing machine.

A month later, when Sarah wanted new shoes and was put off, she fell over for the third time. On this occasion, however, the doctor's suspicions were aroused, and so were those of some of the women who had helped to draw her back from the grave. It was decided to be a case of sulks and nothing more dangerous. The doctor stated his belief to the deacon, and the deacon agreed with him, but that didn't mean that Sarah Ann would go out of business.

The next fit she had lasted twenty-four hours before the doctor was called and the next thirty-six, and then Deacon Perkins realized that he had a problem to deal with. It was evident that Sarah would lie right where she fell for a week unless something was done. He went to the minister. Ministers are not supposed to be posted on stocks and bonds and brickyards, but most of them have had experience with wives. He made a suggestion.

Two weeks later that suggestion was put into practice. Sarah Ann wanted a bell on the front door, but the deacon promptly replied that all callers could make themselves heard by pounding on the door with a club. Sarah fell down in one of her usual fits, and the deacon cried out that she was dead at last and rushed for certain neighbors. They came, together with the doctor. The latter pronounced the woman dead, and the women began preparing the body for its last resting place.

There were three of them, and they had a good deal to say. They congratulated the deacon with all their hearts on regaining his freedom, and they married him again to the Widow Lee. The doctor advised that the cheapest kind of a coffin should be purchased. As the deacon bent over her he said he shouldn't have much of a funeral procession and wouldn't shed any more tears than he could possibly help.

Sarah Ann slipped off the bed and made for the broom sitting on end in a corner of the room. The deacon jumped for the door, but received a couple of whacks before he could get out. In the yard he was run twice around the henhouse and into the kitchen before being brought to bay.

"Sarah Ann, you are a dead woman!" he exclaimed as he grabbed for the broomstick.

"No; I ain't either!" she replied as she fought him off.

"Go back and behave yourself and don't disappoint me again. There hasn't been a funeral in town for over a year, and if you come to life this way no woman will lend you a cup of sugar or a flatiron."

But Sarah insisted that she was alive.

"But I want you to understand," said the deacon, anxious to test the remedy, "that I shan't git no new cane seat chairs for the parlor, as you wanted me to."

For half a minute Sarah seemed on the point of returning to her fits, but then she braced up against the feeling, and, seizing the rolling pin, she dashed it through the nearest window and exclaimed:

"No; I won't die any more! I'll keep right on living and smash out a winner every time I git mad!"

"Lord, Lord!" whispered the deacon to himself. "And I thought I had a good thing of it!"

CYRUS DERICKSON.

Poker Friends.

"No, I am not popular any more with the gang," moaned a business man who used to entertain largely at poker. "I haven't touched a card in seven years. The friends I made at the poker table were near and dear to me. When I lived on the seventh floor of a tenement, they flocked to see me nightly, climbing the stairs without a murmur. When I moved to the Bronx, they followed me. When I settled in Jamaica, the ride to my house did not seem too long for them, nor did they mind the journey home at 3 or 4 in the morning. When I realized that I was supporting them with my losses, I tore up the cards and cracked the chips with a hammer. When, lo, behold, every mother's son of them knew me no more! I lived so far away that it was impossible to find time to come to visit me. I am sure that if I had opened a poker game in the darkest cell in the bottom of the bottomless pit they would have come to play with me. To regain their friendship it is only necessary to announce a reopening of the game."—New York Press.

The Etiquette of Cues.

In China the men take as much pride in their hair as women, and the "pig-tail" is a thing of no little moment. In making the cue the whole head is shaved except a circular patch upon the crown. The hair from this is braided, and strands of silk are added, which end in a tassel reaching to the heels. In full mourning the black strands are replaced by white ones and in second mourning by light blue or green.

It is an unpardonable breach of etiquette for an inferior to enter the presence of a superior with his cue wound round his neck or head, as it is frequently disposed of during work, and the greatest insult one man can offer another is to pull his cue. It seems very odd to see sailors and soldiers on ship or in barracks combing each other's long tresses or coolies at the street corners performing the same friendly office. Custom forbids a man to wear a beard and mustache until he becomes a grandfather.

He Got Up.

There is a keen knowledge of human nature in the following bit of fun from the Lewiston Journal, but no more than might be expected from a down east tavern keeper who has had a long experience with autumnal sportsmen, of whom many are called, but few get up: A mighty hunter from Boston "put up" at a quaint little Maine hostelry and left word in the office that he wished to be called at half past 4 in the morning. Sharp at that time the next morning came a thundering rap at his door.

"All right! I'll be down in a minute!" called a muffled voice from under the quilts.

"You get up here now and sign this receipt!" commanded Uncle Cy.

"Receipt? What receipt?" demanded a very wideawake voice, and the bed squeaked loudly.

"Waal," grunted Uncle Cy, "I don't calkulate to have ye humping down to the office at 8 o'clock declaring that ye ain't been called."

A Humorous Mixture.

In a Scotch church an old minister who was very deaf was also very anxious to introduce some new hymnbooks into the church and asked his precursor to give out the notice immediately after the sermon. The precursor, having a notice of his own, gave out that members of the congregation wishing to have their children baptized were to send their names into the vestry. The old minister, thinking that it was the notice about the hymnbooks, stood up and said, "And I wish to say, for the benefit of those who have not any, that they may be had in the vestry any afternoon, between the hours of 3 and 4—ordinary little ones at a shilling each, and special little ones, with red backs, at one and three."

Effort and Its Effect.

It pays to think. It is like putting money out at interest. Dollars make dollars, and thoughts make other thoughts. We are so accustomed to having this old world reward us for things we do in dollars that we forget there is such a reward as brains—mental growth. Happy the one who sees all these things in their proper light, who recognizes in every failure a lesson learned, in every effort a reward, be it only a little speck of mental energy.

The Self Effacing Act.

Myer—In olden time it is said that it was possible for a man to render himself invisible.

Gyer—Pshaw! That's not at all remarkable. Men in this country are doing it every day.

Myer—You don't tell me! How do they manage it?

Gyer—By marrying famous women.—Chicago News.

Significant.

In a well known thoroughfare in London outside of a noted restaurant there might be seen the following notice:

"This is the best restaurant in London! Our fish cannot be approached!"—London King.

Today.

Today is a king in disguise. Today always looks mean to the thoughtless, in the face of a uniform experience that all good and great and happy actions are made up precisely of these blank todays.

A High Testimonial.

Lady (engaging a maid)—Was your last mistress satisfied with you?

Maid—Well, mum, she said she was very pleased when I left.

Women's hearts are like yale locks—no two alike, and but one man carries the key to fit.

MRS. O. L. JOYNER.

Mr. Henry Hardee Hurt.

Mr. Henry Hardee, who lives a few miles from town, brought a load of produce to town Thursday and took a barrel of flour out with him. On his way home one wheel of the cart run in a bad place in the road, throwing him out and the barrel of flour on top of him. Mr. Hardee was painfully hurt.

Setzer-White.

Cards are out for the marriage of Rev. A. W. Setzer and Mrs. Mary L. White, at the Tabernacle Baptist church, Raleigh, April 7th.

Rev. Mr. Setzer is a former pastor of the Baptist church in Greenville and now pastor in Morehead City. He is well remembered here and has the best wishes of many friends.

Welcome the Institute.

All assertions to the contrary, we claim Winterville as the banner town of the county. That the teachers of Pitt county selected our little town as the proper place for the county institute in July next, proves conclusively that this wise and intelligent body readily recognizes and does not fail to take advantage of a good thing when they see it. Like all sensible people the teachers of Pitt are to be congratulated upon their selection, and in behalf of our fellow-citizens I thank them for this renewal of friendship as well as the high honor they have done us.

We beg to assure them no effort will be left undone that their stay among us shall be profitable as well as made an occasion of pleasure and enjoyment that will be to each a remembrance in after life as an oasis in memory's desert.

We feel honored, and I bespeak the sentiment and heart throbbing feeling of all my friends in promising their stay among us shall lack in no particular on our part to make the occasion most pleasant. JOE M. BLOW.

The many friends of John Blount will be pleased to learn that he has entirely recovered from his attack of rheumatism. Chamberlain's Pain Balm cured him after the best doctors in the town (Mon, Ind.) had failed to give relief. The prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Birds That Make Queer Noises.

The bellbird, or campanero, which is found in South America and also in Africa, can be heard at a distance of three miles. Its note is like the tolling of a distant church bell and is uttered during the heat of the day, when every other bird has ceased to sing and nature is hushed and silent. How the bellbird utters this deep, loud note is not known, though it is supposed that a fleshy protuberance on its head, which when inflated with air stands up like a horn, is in some way the cause of it.

The hornbill, a bird which is widely distributed in India, the Malay archipelago and Africa, has also a very loud note. Its call has been described as between the shriek of a locomotive and the bray of a donkey and can be heard a distance of about a couple of miles. The barking bird also utters a very loud note; indeed, it is impossible to distinguish it from the bark of a dog. Its English name, says Darwin, is well given, for I defy any one at first to feel certain that a small dog is not yelping somewhere in the forest. The toucan has also the same peculiarity.

The Welsh Language.

The quite erroneous idea that Welsh is a language of consonants probably arises from the number of w's it contains, according to a Welshman in the London News. "W" in Welsh is generally—and always between two consonants—a pure vowel, sounded like "oo" in English. Thus "cwm" is pronounced "koom," rhyming with "boom." What is really one of the most remarkable features about the Welsh language is the number of vowels which can come together. In English three vowels in succession are not often met with. In Welsh it is not uncommon to find four or five—e. g., in "llywlawdwr" (governor). Here each of the five vowels "ywlaw" is pronounced separately in rapid succession. Here are four lines, consisting entirely of vowels, made by Goronwy Owen in the eighteenth century:

O'i wiv wy a weua,
Ieua o ia, aie y?
A i o au weua a we
A i au i wau ei we wyw?

The Rocking of Lake Erie.

The 250 mile trough of Lake Erie lies approximately in the direction of the west to southwest winds which prevail in that part of the country. Thus the lake offers an excellent opportunity for studying the effects of the wind upon a large body of inclosed water, and very interesting these effects sometimes prove. Rhythmic gusts produce a rocking motion and great blows from the west or southwest sweep the liquid body of the lake eastward and sometimes cause a rise of eight feet or more at Buffalo in the course of a few hours. As soon as the maximum force of the gale has passed the water swings back. Continued rockings are observed on days when the strength of the wind fluctuates.—Youth's Companion.
