NEWS NOTES FROM

WINTERVILLE.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., June 17. Editor of the REFLECTOR and Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, of Greenville, were here yesterday on business. Young Jennings Ragsdale also accompanied them.

Jason Joyner, of Farmville, was here yesterday and went away happier because he carried with him and rode in a brand new Hunsucker buggy.

J. M. Blow, Esq., spent Monday in Greenville.

Quite a number of our young people attended the quarterly meeting at Red Banks church Sunday and report a fine time.

Some of our friends may be tired of seeing and hearing so much about Handy trucks, if so it is because they have not seen and used the trucks themselves. Religion also seems dull and sermons a mere repetition to men who know nothing of it's worth. You can easily refrain from reading about them, but it is not such an easy matter to keep from hearing about them when every farmer you meet who has seen and used them wants to tell you of it the first thing. Here's what they say: "Don't matter whether you have a good or poor crop or whether tobacco sells for a high or low price, they will pay for themselves the first year.—A. G. Cox Mfg. Co.

Who can beat this? J. B. Cooper showed us a radish measuring 14 in. in length, 7 1-2 in circumference and 3 in. in diameter.

Dr. Joseph Dixon was in town yesterday afternoon seeing about some orders he has with Hunsucker, A. G. Cox Mfg. Co's buggy man.

Some tobacco flues have ears and some have not. Those made by A. G. Cox Mfg. Co. have and when a set is all wired together (the wires are passed through the ears) there is no coming apart. The man who has had a barn burn d for lack of this precaution can appreciate its worth.

Mrs. Azor Ellis, from near Ayden, was visiting P. H. Kittrell here Saturday.

Miss Annie Joyner, of Portsmouth, is spending some time with Miss Bertha Dawson and sisters here.

It would be interesting for those who have not done so to visit the factory here and see what kind of turning has to be done to turn out about 50 Handy trucks per day. The flues are made in another building.

At the mission meeting Sunday night interesting papers were read by Misses Annie Stox and Laura Cox. Short discussions followed by A. G. and J. D. Cox.

Watch the REFLECTOR. Winterville is neither dead nor asleep.

WILSON MURDER CASE.

Allen, Morgan, Ward, Rich and Whitley Will be Tried for Murder in First Degree.

Wilson June 16.—At 5 o'clock today court was reopened and the defense presented affidavits signed by 200 citizens of the town of Wilson, declaring that sentiment against the accused was so strong that they could not obtain a fair and impartial trial at this term of court.

Affidavits were presented by the state contrary to the above.

The state pointed out that many signers of the affidavits for the defense were connected with the accused in various ways, such as personal friendship, business association, etc.

The defense stated that some who had signed the state's affidavits had been heard to remark that the only way the accused could get justice would be to hang them.

Judge Shaw took possession of all the affidavits and announced that he would give his decision for or against continuance tomorrow morning.

LATER.

Wilson, N. C. June, 17.—Judge Shaw has decided to try five for murder in the first degree. These are Allen, Morgan, Ward, Whitley and Rich. The other six will be tried for murder in the second degree and the case against them is continued. A special venire of 250 was drawn for Friday morning when the case of the five will be called.

TWENTY-NINE YEARS

And 364 Days is the Long Lane Before James H. Wilcox.

Raleigh, N. C., June 16.—James Wilcox is now number 13,994 on the roll of convicts at the penitentiary. He arrived in Raleigh in the custody of Sheriff Winslow and Deputy White about 5 o'clock this morning. At the prison Wilcox had nothing to say simply moving about quickly at the direction of the officers.

After the proper receipts were passed Sheriff Winslow bade Wilcox good-bye and left. Wilcox was escorted to his cell, where he remained until 6 o'clock, when he was marched out with the other prisoner. His hair was close cropped, moustache shaved off and convict stripes put on, after which he took his place among the prisoners for breakfast.

After breakfast Wilcox went with the other prisoners on the brickyard, where he spent the day at work. At first he sifted sand over newly made brick and later changed to carry wood to the kiln. His demeanor was quiet and submissive.

Superintendent Mann said that he would follow the usual custom of having the prisoner assigned to light work until he become hardened for heavier labor.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 17, 1903.

The Manhattan, Kansas, Republic of June 11 contains several good photographs of flood scenes in Manhattan and along the Kansas river. Manhattan is one of the finest cities in Kansas. It is the educational centre of the state, and is populated by people who never know when they are beaten. The ring of unconquerable determination in the following from the Republic is inspiring:

"The activities of nature caused a halt in the business of Manhattan last week but in the face of the calamity all are at work on every side. The cleaning up process has been the order of the day. Merchants are all ready for business. In the country the farmer is arranging to plant another crop. The warm rains and sunshine will come again and brighten up the places of devastation with growing crops. Some were at first discouraged and wondered if it was worth while. It certainly is. Such disasters soon pass from the human thought. Let us push on, extending to the more unfortunate the practical sympathy of mankind."

The president of the United States is responsible for the stink arising from the postoffice department. When he selected Payne he knew that he was putting into high office a man whose only recommendation or achievement was his success in manipulating state political machines for the purpose of securing delegates for whoever employed him—the White House bureau of explanations and apologies to the contrary notwithstanding.

Will some member post the following dispatch in a conspicuous place in the Greenville cotton exchange?

George Morgan, a prominent merchant, of Fayetteville, Tenn., committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the heart. It is thought the deed was the result of depression caused by heavy losses in futures.

The fact that an accused murderer was allowed to go through two trials with a gun on his person is a highly discreditable reflection upon his keepers. In fact, the brand of common sense displayed by some officers who have had Wilcox in charge is distinctly below standard.

King Peter Karageorgevitch managed to land his'n without making any speeches from the rear end of a car, but our Strenuous Example is likely to be chasing oysters around Oyster Bay when the geese are eating the green grass off the grave of Peter.

Mecklenburg county wants to be made a separate judicial district, on account of the congestion of the court docket. This is not an enviable record, but if Mecklenburg really needs a judge all to itself it ought to have one.

The order of the army is that "no uniforms will be permitted in saloons." Now if the government will offer an amendment reading "no saloons will be permitted, in the country," we'll have a real issue.

The Wilmington Messenger says the two-thirds majority rule will bar Cleveland's way to the nomination. From this distance it appears that the Old Man will put up the bars himself.

Charlotte comes in for more notoriety over a lawsuit between two citizens for the possession of a hen. What Charlotte fails to get is barely worth having.

As the recent floods, fires and cyclones have not been attributed to Cleveland's second administration, they were probably due to nature.

The business office of the Durham Herald was robbed of about $35 Sunday night. Another blow to North Carolina's exhibit at St. Louis.

What is the matter with our old friend the fake mushroom fungus? It appears that he has not registered at the undertaker's this season.

There was no uncertain sound to Judge Shaw's charge to the grand jury. It did not deal in beautiful similes and meaningless platitudes. ## The End of A Quarrel

(Original.)

Burglars were in possession of the town—not in open possession, for they were never seen; they hid somewhere all day, doing their housebreaking at night. This was comparatively simple, for the police force consisted of five men, who were expected to watch 5,000 houses, or a thousand houses to each man. On Sunday evening when the Burnes family were at church and the servant "out" burglars entered the house and got away with much plunder. On Monday night, or, rather, morning, they cut a hole with a jig saw in the kitchen door of the Lawrence's, turned the key, walked in, took everything on the ground floor and departed without awakening the inmates. And so they proceeded, nearly every night entering some house and carrying off valuables. Why they continued operations in one locality for so long a time no one could tell unless it was on account of lack of protection.

Young Mrs. Bartlett had a tiff with her husband in the morning at the breakfast table. Her servant the day before had left her in the lurch, there was an unusually large washing and no one to do it. She had requested Mr. Bartlett to go out and hunt up a woman to come in and launder. Mr. Bartlett had replied that by so doing he might possibly lose an important business deal and a thousand dollars that would go with it. Then Mrs. Bartlett had told him that if he refused the washing would have to go over, and this would disarrange the household for the whole week and perhaps longer, whereupon Mr. Bartlett told her that he would rather the washing stand over a month than that he should lose his deal. This was the way it started, and it ended by Mr. Bartlett putting on his hat and going out, shutting the door on the middle of a sentence his wife was firing at him.

As soon as the husband had departed the wife went out herself, luckily found a laundress, brought her home and in a few minutes the serenity of the household was only broken by the rub, rub, rub in the laundry. Mrs. Bartlett's irritation cooled down as the water in the range boiler grew hot, and she began to regret her harsh words. Mr. Bartlett went to his office, had an unlucky business day and when evening came, supposing his wife would be in the same humor he had left her, instead of going home to continue the quarrel went to his club, dined and spent the evening there.

When the dinner hour arrived and Mr. Bartlett did not return Mrs. Bartlett began to tremble for fear she had gone too far. She dined alone—that is, she went through the motions of dining, for she was in no mood to eat. When she paid off the laundress and found herself absolutely alone in the house her heart went down like the mercury on the eve of a cyclone. Two terrors vied with each other for the honor of absorbing her attention—one that she had driven her husband away from her, the other that the burglars who were infesting the town might make her a visit. Locks and keys were a great deal for her, and she locked and bolted every door in the house, including the front door, besides noting carefully that the catch was properly set on every window. The evening was spent, first, in abusing her husband for not coming home; second, fearing that he never would come home, and, third, expecting every minute to be burglarized. About 11 o'clock she went upstairs, and, putting on a wrapper, lay down on the bed.

Suddenly she started up. Had she heard a sound below or had she dreamed it? While she was wondering there was a step in the rear of the house. Going to a back window she peeped through the blinds, which she had purposely slanted, but though she could hear some one below she could see nothing. Noiselessly opening the shutter, she put out her head and looked down upon a man trying the window catch on the floor below.

Sometimes the most timid unexpectedly display the greatest bravery when put to a trial. Mrs. Bartlett realized that something must be done to drive the man off. She feared that if she cried out she would not be heard and it would incite the burglar to kill her. There was neither gun nor pistol in the house, and if there were she would not dare touch either. Like a flash it came to her that the water in the boiler was very hot, having been kept so all day for laundry purposes. Seizing a pitcher she rushed to the bath room, filled it with steaming water, returned to the window and poured it down on the head of the burglar.

There was a yell and the man, wringing his hands, stepped back and looked up at the window.

"Fiend," he cried, "how can you be so devilish as to pour scalding water on your husband?"

There was a shriek at the window, and Mrs. Bartlett, frantic, rushed downstairs and threw open a back door. There was a passionate protest from the husband, while the wife begged him to come into the house. Mr. Bartlett had been protected from the hot water excepting his hands, which looked like boiling lobsters. The water was not bottled, but was hot enough to blister them. His wife wrapped them in cotton saturated with sweet oil, and a neighbor, looking in through the window, saw Mr. Bartlett approach his wife to embrace her and thought the couple were entering upon a sparring match with boxing gloves. He was wrong. The sparring match was ended, and the couple, disgusted with the fruits of it, have taken every precaution against its repetition.

YOUNG WIFEHOOD

BOSTON, MASS., 152 Shawmut Ave., Oct. 25, 1902.

After I had been married about four months I felt my health generally decline. I seemed to lose the light step and dragged wearily along instead. My appetite failed me and I lost health and strength. I was nervous and had shooting pains through my limbs and stomach while bearing down pains and constant headaches added to my misery. The menstrual flow became more and more profuse and I was unfit to attend to my daily duties. My husband called in three different physicians and I took enough medicine to kill or cure a dozen women, but it all had no effect on me whatever, until I took Wine of Cardui. In a few days I felt a change for the better, my general health improved and at the next time of my periods my flow was more natural and I was in less pain. Gradually I recovered my health and strength and am now in perfect health. I take an occasional dose of Wine of Cardui which keeps me well.

I am happy to give you this endorsement.

Beth Ricker

President, Back Bay Woman's Club.

Why don't you try for the same health Mrs. Ricker has? It is easy to secure if you take Wine of Cardui according to directions. Wine of Cardui strengthens weak and worn-out women of any age and assists the mother and housewife to bear her exacting duties. Wine of Cardui makes women fit for all the duties of womanhood.

It will relieve the pains of irregularity, cures falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, ovarian troubles, and has been known to remove what physicians considered dangerous tumors. Women who use Wine of Cardui do not suffer at the monthly periods. They do not suffer hysterical attacks, because Wine of Cardui gives them strong nerves freed from the irritation of female suffering.

A $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui purchased from your druggist will keep you free from pain.

His Last Hope Realized,

[From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.]

In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his claim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seemed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to die. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a last hope. A big dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the dose was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottle worked a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel grateful. The season for bowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville; Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Have you visited the art studio of R. T. Evans, on Dickinson avenue, lately? If not you ought to go there, just to look if for nothing else. He makes all sizes of photographs, in any style and is having a large patronage. He is getting to the front in the photographers' profession.

AYDEN ITEMS.

AYDEN, N. C., June 17, 1903.

Dr. L. C. Skinner spent Sunday in Greenville on a visit to his brother who recently arrived from New York.

M. M. Sauls returned Monday evening from Wilson where he went Saturday to see his father and mother.

W. E. Hooks leaves Monday for Fremont working life insurance. Mr. Hooks is a young man of sterling qualities and well worthy of success in any business he enters.

Miss Ida M. Edwards, daughter of J. J. Edwards, who recently moved to Ayden from Hookerton, came in on Monday morning's train from a visit elsewhere. Miss Edwards graduated at the Normal and Industrial college a few weeks ago.

Miss Freddie J. Tucker returned Monday morning from a visit to her father, J. L. Tucker, near Grifton.

My attention has been called today to the extremely neglected condition of the cemetery. I am told that only one lot, that of Mr. J. L. Ross, is properly cared for. I am sure that it is only necessary to mention it in order that those who own lots may think a moment and then the sacred resting place of those who are "not dead but sleepeth" will not only be carefully preserved but planted in grass and flowers as becomes a Christian people. "A land without monuments is a land without memories."

Immediately following the writing of the preceding item, I learn that a committee has been appointed to look into the cemetery's condition and take such step as may be proper to interest our citizens in the work of caring for and beautifying the temporary sleeping place of those "gone on before."

Mrs. Orissa Burroughs arrived Tuesday evening to visit her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Berry.

Misses Nancy Coward and Olivia Berry returned Tuesday evening from a visit to Scotland Neck.

THE REFLECTOR has made one convert by its leading editorial in Tuesday's semi-weekly on the organization of a "Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to animals." He wants a life membership. Provided, however. He interviewed me and had proved to my satisfaction that man is an animal, too often so. He wants to know if a beautiful young woman who gives a man the "marble heart" is guilty of a violation of law. Not knowing which side of the case I am to hear this question is respectfully referred to the Greenville lawyers.

Mrs. J. C. Gardner left this morning for Darlington, S. C., on a visit to Mrs. A. T. Hill, formerly Miss Nita May, of Maple Cypress.

Miss Helen Cox is spending this week at Mr. R. A. Darden's in Greene county, visiting her little friends, Misses Josie and Mamie Darden.

Ayden is ever resourceful. Ed. Lyons traded a pony today for a razor-back hog. Bring any old thing you have to Ayden and you can sell it. We're after business. No man shall go away unsatisfied.

The regular meeting of the town commissioners tonight. Business of importance is to be considered. We'll report in full later.

Some of the people are applauding, some are complaining at the assessment of their property for taxation. J. J. Stokes, J. D. Cox and H. Cannon are the assessors and June is the month. They were here today. Here is the view we should take. If the valuation is fair, just, honest and unprejudiced and applied to every individual, rich or poor, then they are doing their duty as sworn. All any fair minded man can ask is an honest assessment for no honest man wants to evade or shirk a public duty. So far I see no just cause for complaint. Now make every interest, whether private or corporate, pay its full share and the people will not complain. As it now is the burden is on the small property owner and this is not right. "Where much is given much is expected."
