ROME, JULY 20---POPE LEO XIII DIED AT 5:15 P.M. TODAY. HIS APPROACHING DISSOLUTION WAS ANNOUNCED BY THE PHYSICIANS AND THE VATICAN WAS IMMEDIATELY SURROUNDED BY ITALIAN TROOPS. ROME IS A CITY OF DEEPEST MOURNING.

WRECKED BY DYNAMITE.

Norfolk & Western Express Train Blown Sky High.

Roanoke, Va., July 18.—A powder magazine on the Norfolk and Western railway near Pearlesburg, stored with explosives used by contractors in double tracking the railroad, was blown up today, just as passenger train No 1, west-bound, was passing. Two men were killed, a dozen passengers were hurt and most of the coaches of the train were wrecked.

The explosion, it is believed, was caused by the concussion of the train. The men killed were John Noel, of Elliston Va., and James Phillips of Balier, Va. They were employees of the contractors, L. Vaughan & Co., who were doing the double tracking.

The magazine was stored with dynamite as well as powder. The train crew and many of the passengers were stunned by the explosion.

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

Minnesota's Black Chickens are Returning.

Montevideo, Minnesota, July 18.—Helen Olson, aged 25, a pretty daughter of Tom Olson, was assaulted early this morning by a man supposed to be a negro, and although alive at noon she will die.

Early today Miss Olson and a girl friend stopping with her, were awakened by a man, who demanded their valuables. He then dragged Miss Olson downstairs, where he struck her on the forehead with an axe or hatchet. The girl friend had been ordered to remain in bed and not move, but on hearing a noise down stairs she stepped out of a window to the roof. The intruder fired a shot at her as he fled. Her screams aroused the neighborhood and a search was at once begun for the murderer. There is great excitement and fears are expressed that the man will be lynched.

True, Illinois and Delaware have grabbed off a certain kind of fame here of late. However that should not have tempted the people of Baker county, Georgia, to lynch 'em in bunches.—Atlanta Journal.

Some musical composers are like men without credit. They can't get any one to take their notes.

Munford Goes North.

C. T. Munford and family left this morning for Norfolk and Virginia Beach. From the latter place Mr. Munford goes to the Northern markets to purchase fall goods. Well, you all know what that means—a huge chunk of Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia transported directly to the big store. What Greenville will not know about styles when Munford comes back will not be worth knowing. He is going to startle the natives and prepare for the largest retail business ever done in one season in Greenville.

C. T. Munford's big store carries a 4-column ad in THE REFLECTOR all the year round—the largest yearly ad in any paper in the state.

Boy at Buzzard's Bay.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 18.—A son was born to ex-President Cleveland and Mrs. Grover Cleveland at their summer home here today. The attendants say that all conditions affecting both mother and child are satisfactory.

Gamblers Shot and Killed.

Little Rock, Ark., July 18.—J. D. Conant, known as king of Little Rock gamblers, was shot and instantly killed this morning by Joe Sarlvo. The shooting took place in Joe Sarlvo's saloon, where a few hours before Jack Clifford was fatally shot by Kilpatrick, another gambler. The bullet went clear through Conant's body, struck the wall beyond and bounded back. The body lay as it had fallen nearly two hours until the coroner arrived. Conant conducted several gambling establishments in Little Rock up to a few weeks ago, when gambling was suppressed by the efforts of the anti gambling league.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 20, 1903.

GRIFTON.

Grifton, already a good business town, is taking on new life and moving forward in the march of progress. The town has the distinction of being located in two counties and in two congressional districts. This is due to the fact that what is called there a creek (really it is a small river) runs through the town and part of it is located on either side. The stream is the dividing line between Pitt and Lenoir counties, and both counties unite in maintaining a bridge over it. Near where this bridge crosses have for years been the principal business houses, most or nearly all of them being located on the Pitt county side.

Owing to the congested condition of the frame buildings for stores in the quarter for business, making insurance rates ruinous and almost prohibitory, and room near the creek not being sufficient for much improvement, the business part of the town is taking a move out to high ground. Already eight nice brick stores are nearing completion in the new business section; others will be started as soon as the occupants can get in these. The change is a decided improvement for the town.

We recently spent part of an afternoon and night in Grifton, and a hurried investigation disclosed that the town has two large lumber and shingle mills, a factory and general repair shop, one livery stable, one drug store, one resident physician, one millinery establishment, a dozen or more general merchandise stores, a good hotel that would be a credit to a town several times as large, a transportation company that operates a line of steamers between Grifton and New Bern, two churches (Methodist and Christian) and one lodge (Masons.)

Among the business houses are such well-known and substantial firms as J. R. Harvey & Co., L. A. Cobb & Co., Patrick & Tucker, E. Lang, J. Z. Brooks, J. D. Gaskins, Coward & Spivey, A. L. Jackson & Co., Grifton Drug Co., and others. Keen & Kittrell have one of the lumber mills and the other is operated by the Nottingham & Wrenn Co. L. O. Cox, who once lived in Greenville, is proprietor of the factory and machine shop.

Grifton has a splendid farming country backing it on both sides of the river, and draws a large trade from both Pitt and Lenoir counties, and even reaches to portions of Greene and Craven counties.

Grifton is also going to avail itself of the opportunity of doing some effective advertising by joining the other live towns in the county in taking a department in the semi-weekly REFLECTOR, to let the world know of its advantages and business opportunities.

A man can learn what kind of woman he ought not to marry by marrying her, but it is generally too late to profit by his knowledge.

JUSTICE AND COURTESY.

The Charlotte Observer in speaking of friction between the people and the railroads, says:

"The tribulations of the railroad are indeed manifold, and when the things they have to contend with are considered it is surprising that they are able to continue its operation. It has come to the point in some sections that a railroad is considered legitimate prey for all manner of suits and complaints and it is often the case that they fail to get common justice at the hands of juries. There is, however, another side to the matter. Representatives of railroads, especially where there is no competition, often assume an arrogant manner in dealing with the public. This causes a feeling of resentment against the company and in turn against all railroads. It is a matter of minor importance, but the giving of information regarding delayed trains—or rather the failure to give it correctly—largely augments the feeling that the roads are not treating the public fairly."

This is well said. Greenville has suffered and been irritated because of the obstinacy and want of accommodation on the part of the Atlantic Coast Line train dispatcher stationed at Tarboro, not letting the people down town here know when trains are expected. It is a pleasure to know that the recent dispatcher has been removed and another put in his place, and it is now hoped something can be learned about the arrival of trains here and that a better feeling will exist between the people and the railroads.

And if the railroad will hurry up that additional train service on this road it will further merit the good will of the people.

This is the cheering order given by the Gaffney, S. C., Ledger to one of its correspondents:

"That's the proper stuff. State the facts as they exist. It may end in a cowardly assassination like that of the late N. G. Gonzales, but you will have the consolation of knowing that you have done your duty."

The question arises, is it permitted a dead man to "have the consolation of knowing he has done his duty?"

There are as many things in the world for women to fool as there are men, and as many ways to do it as there are women.

As an antidote for conceit it is better to have loved and lost than never to have been kicked at all.

Tomorrow is the graveyard of today's ambitions.

Always a Chance.

There is never a day but that something can be sold to somebody. There is never a bargain but that someone, some place, would be especially pleased if they only knew of its existence. The province of advertising is to carry the bargain into the presence of the very person who wants it and to make the thing sell by finding the one who wants to buy.—Advertising World.

It takes a clever woman to make the story of her aches and pains interesting.

A man is often said to be feeling his oats when in reality he is feeling his rye.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea.

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Advertising is the weeder that uproots the rank and foreign growths that attempt to choke it.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

is always dangerous—do not submit to the surgeon's knife until you have tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It will cure when everything else fails—it has done this in thousand's of cases. Here is one of them: I suffered from bleeding and protruding piles for twenty years. Was treated by different specialists and used many remedies, but obtained no relief until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Two boxes of this salve cured me eighteen months ago and I have not had a touch of the piles since.—H. A. Tisdale, Sumner, S. C. For Blind Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles no remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Salve by Wooten's Drug Store.

Happiness consists not in having much, but in being content with little.

JUST ABOUT BEDTIME

take a Little Early Riser—it will cure constipation, biliousness and liver troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are different from other pills. They do not gripe and break down the mucous membranes of the stomach, liver and bowels, but cure by gently arousing the secretions and giving strength to these organs. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

Gratitude is a feeling in which we may freely indulge without any fear of excess.

Valuable Time Saved.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, Farmville Pharmacy, Farmville.

Idleness is the dead sea which swallows all virtues, the self made sepulchre of a living man.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food taken into it that fails to digest it decays and inflames the mucus membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucus, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. E. Rhea, Coppell, Tex. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

It is strange but nevertheless true that the best servants for a hotel are the inn-experienced.

THE FOUNDATION OF HEALTH.

Nourishment is the foundation of health—life—strength. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the one great medicine that enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest, assimilate and transform all foods into the kind of blood that nourishes the nerves and feeds the tissues. Kodol lays the foundation for health. Nature does the rest. Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and all disorders of the stomach and digestive organs are cured by the use of Kodol. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store.

The Serpent That Talked Like a Man

In John Ashton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" there is a quotation from "a little Latine booke printed at Viena in the yeare 1551" which tells a most wonderful story. Ashton quotes as follows: "There was found in a moor or rycke of corn almost as many snakes, adders and other serpentes as there was sheafes, so as no one sheaf could be removed but there presently appeared a heape of ougly and fierce serpentes. The countrie men determined to set fire upon the barne and so attempted to do, but in vaine, for the straw would take no fire, although they laboured with all their witts and policye to burn them up."

"At last there appeared unto them at the top of the heap a huge great serpente, which lifted up his head and spake with a man's voyce to the countrie men, saying, 'Cease to prosecute your devise, for you shall not be able to accomplish our burning, for wee were not bredde by nature, neither came we here of our own accord, but were sent by God to take vengeance on the sinnes of men.'"

Ashton leaves us in the dark as to what the "countrie" men did, but it is natural to suppose that they surrendered at once.

Pictures in Stone.

Shakespeare could "find tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything," but he fails to mention the possibility of finding a picture drawn by nature in a stone. In several of the ancient as well as modern scientific journals we read of lines and markings in certain stone formations, particularly agates, which bear striking resemblances to the outlines of men, animals, landscapes, etc.

One of these curiosities now preserved in the museum of the Vatican is a perfect likeness of a crowned king. Many of these representations are so lifelike that they have been mistaken for medallion portraits. We read accounts of several of these wonders in Albertus. One plainly shows a man in the attitude of running, another is a perfect figure of the good St. Jerome, but the most remarkable of all is an agate containing a representation of Apollo surrounded by the nine muses.

A Persian Story.

There is a story in Persian literature of a certain poet who came before a great man and praised him very ornately. The rich man was very pleased and said: "Ready money I have not; nevertheless there is in my granaries very much corn. If you come tomorrow I will give you some." The poet went to his own house and on the morrow presented himself to his patron. The rich man asked him, "Why have you come?" He said: "Yesterday you promised to give me corn. For this reason am I come." The rich man said: "A most wonderful fool thou art. What you said to me gave me pleasure. What I have said to you equally pleased you. Why, then, should I give you corn?" The poet was covered with shame and departed.

The Last of the Ruffs.

In 1762 the rage for ruffs, such as are seen on many monumental effigies, began to decline. A writer in the London Chronicle of that year says of gentlemen's dress, "Their cuffs entirely cover their wrists, and only the edges of their ruffies are to be seen." It is said that a distaste for ruffs was first created so far back as 1613, when a woman named Turner wore them on her trial for the murder by poison of Sir Thomas Overbury. The French revolution of 1789 much influenced British fashion, and the picturesque cocked hat and ruffles then gave way generally to round hats and small cuffs.

The period of their final disuse cannot be easily determined, as men of old fashioned or eccentric habits have worn ruffled shirt fronts within quite recent memory similar to those which, according to Planche's "History of British Costume," originated in the seventeenth century.

Lincoln's Fees.

As a rule, Abraham Lincoln's fees were less than those of other lawyers of his circuit. Justice Davis once remonstrated with him and insisted that he was doing a grave injustice to his associates at the bar by charging so little for his services. From 1850 to 1800 his income varied from $2,000 to $3,000, and even when he was recognized as one of the ablest lawyers of the state his fee book frequently shows charges of $3, $5 and $1 for advice, although he never went into court for less than $10. During that period he was at the height of his power and popularity, and lawyers of less standing and talent charged several times those amounts. But avarice was the least of his faults.—"The True Abraham Lincoln."

Foolish Fear of the Opal.

Many people to this day have a superstitious dread of wearing opals, because they really believe ill luck is attached to this beautiful stone. Three centuries ago the opal was an exceedingly fashionable gem, and the Italian goldsmiths particularly favored its use for their most exquisite settings.

The opal was at the height of its popularity when the plague broke out in Venice. Some especially observant individual discovered that when a plague stricken sufferer was at the point of death the opal, if he wore one, would grow brighter, and after his death it would grow dull. The reason for this appears to have been that the burning fever warmed the stone and that after death the damp and chill of the body dulled it. But many deduced from this a belief that it was the opal that had brought death and misfortune, and with the spread of this superstition the opal declined in popular favor.

Many persons would on no account whatever even accept one as a gift, much less wear what they foolishly deem the unlucky opal.—New York Press.

Courage of Wild Dogs.

The whole tribe of wild dogs, which in closely allied forms are to be found in the wildest jungles and woods of Asia, from the Himalayas to Ceylon and from China to the Taurus—unless the "golden wolves" of the Roman empire are now extinct in the forests of Asia Minor—show an individual and corporate courage which entitles them to a high place among the most daring of wild creatures. The "red dogs," to give them their most characteristic name, are neither large in size nor do they assemble in large packs. Those which have been from time to time measured and described seem to average some three feet in length from the nose to the root of the tail. The pack seldom numbers more than nine or ten, yet there is sufficient evidence that they are willing and able to destroy any creature that inhabits the jungle, except the adult elephant and perhaps the rhinoceros, creatures whose great size and leathery hide make them almost invulnerable to such enemies as dogs.—London Spectator.

A Custom of the Balkans.

He or she who enters a house for the first time is supposed in the Balkan countries to bring it good or bad luck for the whole twelvemonth. This belief gives rise to a curious observance. The visitor before crossing the threshold picks up a stone (token of strength) or a green twig (emblem of health and fruitfulness) and lays it on the hearth. He also brings with him some grains of salt, which he casts into the flames, and then, squatting by the fireside, wishes his hosts "a prosperous year, a plentiful crop and many blessings." Then as the grains of salt burst and crackle in the fire he utters the following quaint formula: "As I am sitting even so may sit the hen and warm the eggs. As this salt splits even so may split the eggs of the clucking hen and the chickens come forth."

Why Men Eat Too Much.

Eating is the greatest of all our standard amusements. A great number of people obviously eat a great deal more than they need, and it is entirely credible that a large proportion of the moderate eaters might thrive as well and look as handsome and work as hard and live as long on a very much restricted diet. But would the joy of life continue unimpaired for them? The native born might raise plenty of children if they could subsist for 11 cents a day, but would they think life was worth living on 11 cents worth of food a day? No, they wouldn't. That is one thing that all them.—Harper's.

Chairs in the Dark Ages.

The chairs of the dark ages, modeled partly on those of the Romans, were in keeping with the comfortless dwellings in which the people of the north of Europe then passed their lives. The Saxon kings of England are represented as seated on thrones in the form of a box, the ends slightly raised, the bottom advanced to form a sort of foot-stool. There is always a cushion to add a degree of comfort, and sometimes a back in the form of a cross-piece or remotely resembling the backs of modern chairs.

Courage Begets Courage.

One brave step makes the next one easier. True, the road seems more piled up with obstacles as one goes along; but, then, one is made stronger and more capable with every step, so that relatively we have an easy road always before us. At least if not exactly easy it becomes more interesting—one feels less inclined to grumble.—Cosmopolitan.

Turned Out.

"Our colleges turn out some pretty good men nowadays," remarked the elderly gentleman. "Yes," replied his son gloomily, "our college turned out the man who was sure to have won the hundred yard dash for us next year just because he didn't pass any of his examinations."—Syracuse Herald.

"Upon! a good fellow, but his conversations abilities are remarkably limited. He has a few stock phrases, and that's all." "Well, what else can you expect? He's a stockbroker."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Valuable Special Knowledge.

The unique botanical knowledge of Sir George Birdwood, one of the most erudite men in the India service, once enabled him to perform almost unconsciously a neat bit of detective work.

He was in Bombay when he was asked to investigate the case of a young nobleman who in applying to the governor for an appointment represented that he was just out from England and that his letters of introduction had been lost on the voyage.

A few days after Dr. Birdwood, as he then was, had undertaken the investigation he met the young nobleman at dinner at the governor's house. The table decorations of orchids suggested a conversational opening, and Dr. Birdwood's praise drew from the young nobleman standing opposite:

"You should see the Amherstia nobilis in its native woods, sir."

It was a fatal remark.

"You come from Rangoon, then?" instantly exclaimed Dr. Birdwood.

The pale face, the silence that could be felt, the request of the young man that he might leave the table, all prepared the governor and the company for the subsequent discovery that he had absconded from Rangoon with some public funds.

How Roses Came to Be Red.

More than with any other flower does the color of the rose have special significance. Red is love, white is spleen, yellow speaks jealousy, says N. Hudson Moore in the Dellneator. One of the legends connected with the rose tells that it became white through being bathed with the tears of mourners who sought the sweetest flower to lay in the hands of their dead. A prettier conceit declares that all roses were white until one day young Cupid, dancing among them, upset in his merriment a glass of wine, which dyed the roses upon which it fell red, its own color. Another legend tells the story of a holy little maid of Bethlehem who was doomed to death. When the stakes were heaped around her the fire would not burn, but the brands which had been flaming turned to red roses and those which had not caught to white. From this time forth roses, red and white, were martyrs' flowers. The Turks say that red roses sprang from the blood of Mohammed.

Largest Hanging Bell.

What is perhaps the largest hanging bell in the world is to be seen in Mandalay. This is the Mingun bell, on the right bank of the Irawadi, almost opposite the city of Mandalay. This immense bell measures as follows: Height to crown, 12 feet; diameter at the lip, 16 feet 3 inches; thickness of metal, from 6 to 12 inches. It weighs about eighty tons and is suspended on three massive round beams of teak placed horizontally the one over the other, their ends resting on two pillars of enormous size, composed of masonry and large upright teak posts. This bell was cast at the end of the eighteenth century under the superintendence of the reigning king.

A Lake of Many Wonders.

Lake Chad, in Africa, is 185 miles long and 80 miles wide, or somewhat larger in area than Lake Erie, yet it is only twenty-five feet deep in its deepest part and only five feet in its eastern side.

It has eighty islands, some barren, others only pasture land and some covered with forests and millet plantations and having a total population of about 50,000.

Storms arise with surprising quickness on the lake, and the shallowness of the water forces up big waves at short notice, while treacherous gusts and puffs of wind about the islands make navigation dangerous.

Forestalling Fate.

In some parts of England the tapping of a bird round the house is looked upon by the superstitious as a warning.

A doctor was recently summoned in hot haste to a little Warwickshire farmhouse not many miles from Birmingham.

He found an old man in bed, but in perfect health, and asked why he had been sent for.

"Why, sir," replied the daughter-in-law, "there coom a little robin about the door. We knowed it was a 'call,' and we thought it must be granfer; so we put 'im in bed and sent for you."

The Family.

Railway officials differ in the degrees of liberality with which they define the word "family" when used on a pass. An American copied the instructions of the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean railway bearing upon the subject as a lesson in liberality. On that road a pass for one and family is good for father, mother, children, grandfather, grandmother, mother-in-law, father-in-law, brother, sister, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece and servants attached to the family.

Only Room For One.

Lady—How could you be so foolish as to put anything on that newly painted table?

Maid—But I saw Mr. Jones say several articles there.

Lady—What of that? If my husband makes a jackass of himself he has a right to, but you haven't, you stupid creature.

Discretion.

Miss Bizzy—I am glad to hear that you are married, O'Brien, and hope that you and Bridget don't have many differences of opinion.

FARMVILLE CORRESPONDENCE.

FARMVILLE, N. C., July 20.

Of the immediate surroundings of Farmville as an agricultural section, and the mode of farming, shall be our theme in this letter.

Naturally this is a fertile soil. All kinds of vegetation grows luxuriantly and pay the farmer a handsome return for his labor. In passing through different parts of Pitt county (and other adjacent counties) we notice the very rapid growth of corn, cotton and tobacco, and the very early maturity of the same.

We account for this from the fact that there is a superabundance of moisture, and a very high temperature, though the temperature remains at a certain small latitude of degree, hence the very rapid growth of the crops. In noticing the soil, and carefully examining the lower strata of subsoil, we discover that this country from here to the ocean, is underlaid with marl, or shells deposited by the sea, and have undergone a chemical process, by which this marl becomes a most valuable fertilizer, answering the purpose of rock lime, which nature has so bounteously supplied in our western counties.

If the farmers of this country would apply this marl to their crops they would find little use for the many thousands of tons of commercial fertilizers used and which will benefit but one crop, while lime, applied either as marl, or burned rock lime, is beneficial to crops for two or three years. The writer of this has had considerable experience in the application of different kinds of fertilizers and from a careful study we are forced to conclude that nature supplies all the ingredients for a good renovator of the soil at our very doors, if we would but use them with proper judgment. The leaves of the forest, the inexhaustible store of marl, the swamp muck, all of which are accessible, if placed in compost heaps, layer following layer, there would be a mine of wealth on every farm, not costing the farmer a cent of money, only the labor necessary to collect these materials. The time employed in these labors would not be lost, for we notice very often men loitering away their time when they should be at some profitable employment. As to the mode of farming, we notice that the land is ploughed very shallow, in the preparation for crops, while it should be ploughed very deep, at least 12 inches, but not throw the clay subsoil to the top, but tear up the clay soil by following the turn plow with a subsoil plow and the following furrow will be covered by the turn plow at the next round.

The benefits accruing from this manner of cultivation will make a deep seed bed for your plants. It will also allow the lower strata of loosened subsoil to take in all the surplus rainfall, and hold the moisture below, from which the roots of the plant can reach down and draw not only the moisture it may need, but feed on the fertilizing powers of the lower soil, which the plant can never reach unless the plow point is driven deep enough to enable the plant to grow down very deep and feed on nature's food that lies hidden and unappplied.

"A shallow ploughing will not pay!" Deep ploughing also prevents the land from becoming soggy—that is, holding the surplus water which may fall, and unfit it for the plow. We shall write in our next of the need of diversified crops, believing that the farmer can and should make everything he needs and sell more than he consumes.

Very truly,
T. H. BAIN.
