In Memoriam.

Died, in the town of Farmville, Oct. 8th, 1903, Jacob Benjamin, the infant son of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Joyner, of this place. Little Bennie was a beautiful and most intelligent child, and although but 11 months old he had entwined himself around the hearts of all who knew and loved him, for he had a sweet and gentle disposition, and made glad the hearts of his loving parents.

It is, indeed, sad to give up our dear loved ones; it is natural for the heart to suffer, at the thought that death separates us from each other, but there is a sweet assurance that our dear children, whom Christ calls to His bosom, and says of them "for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven," we know they are free from all pain and sorrow, have passed beyond the material existence and are dwelling in the light of a glorified immortality.

Though the hearts of father and mother feel their sad loss, they can look up through their tears and thank their Heavenly Father that though their dear little angel cannot come back, if they prove faithful they will meet their little boy again. The entrance of little Bennie into Heaven is one more link in the chain of love to bind their hearts to the hearts above until they meet and touch again in the beautiful Sometime where the sad farewell will never be given or parting tears are shed. May this sad affliction wean the hearts of the parents from the changing things of earth, to the joys and happiness of that better life which awaits all who truly love the blessed Savior who gave His precious life for all. We laid the little body to rest to await the summons of the glad resurrection morn, to come forth to inherit eternal life.

"Lay the sod lightly over his breast, Calm be his slumbers, peaceful his rest; Beautiful, lovely, he was but given A fair bud to earth to blossom in Heaven."

Woman's True Work.

"America for the training of men, but for the education of women England excels," is the opinion which Alfred Moseley, the English industrial explorer, expressed to a Sun reporter one day last week. "The best proof that I believe in American schools and colleges is that I have brought both of my sons to the United States to be educated.

"Will I send my daughters to school here? By no means. My oldest daughter has completed her schooling. The other two are studying at home. They are under their mother's care, and shall remain there.

"I deplore the conditions which have brought about the necessity of working women. In a few isolated cases it is, of course, necessary. But in the United States, for instance, women rival the men in the work which God intended man to do.

"It is for men to labor and provide—for women to make homes and keep them. The woman's natural kingdom is her home. She is more powerful there than fighting shoulder to shoulder with man.

"Englishwomen are the makers of homes—and in that lies the strength of the nation. I believe that women who strain their minds, who exert all their efforts to mental accomplishments, absorb the matter which should in the second generation produce great minds.

"Experience has told the old world that women of great accomplishments are not the ideal wives, not the ideal mothers. In the lower spheres, how does it benefit the world if the wife can paint red geraniums and cannot cook her husband's dinner; or if she can paint orchids and cannot direct her servants—granting that she has a retinue of them—how to prepare her meals, to keep clean and well managed that place which her family should find their greatest comfort and protection in calling home!

"The normal woman expects some day to be a wife and a mother. How will it add to her honors and powers to have written a brilliant essay on some deep and intricate subject?"—New York Sun.

FARMVILLE CORRESPONDENCE.

FARMVILLE, N. C., Oct. 20, 1903.

The contemplative mind carefully looks into every subject and problem which may present themselves for consideration, and after due meditation formulates opinions based upon fact or imagination, and sends the conclusions arrived at as fundamental truths—upon which often men and minds build the great structure of thought and reason and launch these truths upon the broad sea of human intelligence for man's benefit and blessing.

We are lead to make this preface or introduction to our letter today from reading a small but interesting book, the title of which is "The Passing Clouds," the author being a gentleman of most excellent character, and possesses a mind well stored with useful information, and has done much to the upbuilding of the community in which he lives, both in moral and Christian living, and is well worthy of the good name he bears.

The author is too modest to place his name before the public, hence he leaves the reader to find out, if he can, who the author is. In reading this book we see much in it of an interesting nature. The book is made up of separate chapters, each having a different subject from the others, some numerous yet instructive, while other chapters are occupied in discussing some of the most important subjects which engage the serious thought of the public mind. The two last chapters are the most interesting. One gives very forceful advice as to the proper way people should act in the sick room. The writer depicts vividly the ill timed prudence or rather imprudence, of well meaning, yet ignorant friends, who enter the room of the sick, and thinking they must say something to express their sympathy, begin to ask questions of the sick one as to his or her condition, and, continuing to talk on interminably, do a vast amount of harm, oftentimes requiring the presence of the attending physician to relieve the suffering one, forced into a state of nervousness and extreme restlessness caused by these would be friends. The lesson to all who may read this chapter, is, "keep quiet and do not talk in the presence of sick people."

The last chapter is well worthy the reading of every intelligent man, for it treats of a problem which has confronted the people of the South for many years, and the problem is not solved yet. The subject so ably discussed in this last chapter is "The Southern Negro." The writer very lucidly depicts the characteristics of the negro in all their phases. He draws a sharp contrast between the "before the war slave"—and the negro of the present day, and shows most conclusively, that the negro uneducated and as a slave was happier, more honorable, polite and genteel than the negro free and educated. These thoughts are written in a very impressive manner—and all who may read this chapter can look, as upon a panorama and behold the present degraded and debauched condition of the negro educated intellectually and his morals on a par with a beast. The book is well worth the reading. We commend it to all who may wish to learn some very useful information.

We are glad to see our young men developing their minds and giving their impressions on the issues of the day.

Evening of Rare Pleasure.

Greenville people were more than delighted with the entertainment in the opera house Tuesday night, by Miss Georgia Ray MacMillian. She is a most charming elocutionist, and every number given was excellent. It is hard to tell in which role she is best, as all her selections, whether comic, tragic or pathetic, were rendered as by a master of the art. It was Miss MacMillian's second visit to Greenville and those who heard her first were glad of the opportunity to hear her again. The songs by Mr. Preston Cotten and Miss Sallie Cotten between the numbers were enjoyable features of the entertainment. Both were splendid and were kind in responding to encores. The local hits by Mr. Cotten in one of his songs went straight to the mark and received much applause.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 21, 1903.

The last annual session of the Universalist Conference of North Carolina, held at Magnolia, adopted resolutions favoring the abolishment of the death sentence, and also against liquor traffic in the state. The resolutions read as follows:

Whereas, we believe the dictum of some of the ablest writers on criminal jurisdiction, that it is the certainty rather than the severity of punishment for crime committed that has the greatest deterrent influence upon the criminally disposed element of society, and

Whereas, we further believe that the severity of the death penalty by legal infliction, fosters the disposition on the part of jurors to refuse to render a verdict of guilty when such verdict is to be followed by the infliction of said penalty: therefore

Resolved, that we urge upon the legislators of our state the abolition of the death penalty, and the substitution thereof of a more rational punishment in harmony with the dictates of man's higher nature.

Whereas, the legislature of this state has enacted some desirable and stringent legislation for the restriction of the liquor traffic; therefore be it

Resolved, That we the Universalist Conference urge upon our denomination to participate both individually and denominationally in all earnest and well directed efforts for the suppression of the traffic in our state.

The failure of two big trust companies in Baltimore Monday, with liabilities up in the millions, was a heavy jolt to financial circles. When watered stocks begin to leak there is danger of somebody being left out in the wet, and it seems the trust companies is question had been placing too much in that kind of securities.

The writer has been informed that since the people of Indian Trail began their school building, every available farm in reach of the school has been sold or rented to outsiders who will move in. One man told the writer that he would be compelled to leave because the farm he had been renting had been sold to a man from another county who was coming to it, and he couldn't rent another. Verily a good school puts life into the dry bones of a community.—Morning Post.

The editor of the Charlotte News recently stood by John P. Morgan in his church in New York and listened to him sing one of the gospel hymns with as much vigor as an old time Methodist, but for all that John P. is an expert at swallowing every thing in sight and all that saved our brother of the News was the fact that John didn't need him in his business.—Charlity and Childrea.

Another great victory for our navy! The woman who refused to give up her home within the recent addition to the naval academy grounds at Annapolis has been starved out by a company of marines who were stationed about her house with orders to let no supplies enter.—Atlanta Journal.

There is nothing novel in the Asheville Citizen starting a department for the negro, but the idea of absorbing a negro paper is a new one on us.—Durham Herald.

The man who will shoot another down upon slight provocation is not going to let his conscience worry him, provided he can save his neck.—Durham Herald.

Everybody's Magazine November, 1903.

A mission is liable to swamp a magazine. So much zeal is developed that the real function of the publication, which is to entertain, is forgotten. Into this excess Everybody's Magazine, which has recently undertaken a crusade against the idolatry-of-riches habit in America, is obviously not to be led. The November contents-table makes a most inviting showing, presenting as it does stories and sketches by such amusing writers as Alfred Henry Lewis, O. Henry and Eugene Wood. There is no intrusion of a policy at all, and the reader is likely to find himself in the midst of Francis Bellamy's article about "Successful Men Who Are Not Rich" without dreaming that there is a serious moral to it. Mr. Bellamy avers that the nation is losing its ideals and that today success only means wealth. The millionaire is the modern hero. The newest creed is, he says: "Brains may be more important than money, but nowadays the best way to convince the world that you have brains, is to make money." The smart set of New York is frank in its exclusion of people who are not rich and has no place for statesmen, authors or scientists unless they have money. On the other hand, he instances important men in this country whose position is a splendid protest against the prevailing craze. Their careers, as stated here, are certainly inspiring. The article will set people thinking about certain significant tendencies in modern life.

Alfred Hodder, who collaborated with Josiah Flynt in his series of studies of "Graft in American Cities," describes in "Reform that Reforms" what has been accomplished for decency in New York by an honest administration. There is also an authoritative summing-up of the career of John Alexander Dowie by a man with the analytic capacity for the task—I. K. Friedman, the distinguished Chicago novelist.

A PERFECT PAINLESS PILL is that one that will cleanse the system, set the liver to action, remove the bile, clear the complexion, cure headache and leave a good taste in the mouth. The famous little pills for doing such work pleasantly and effectually are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Bob Moore of Lafayette, Ind., says: "All other pills I have used gripe and sicken, while DeWitt's Little Early Risers are simply perfect." Sold by John L. Wooten.

A CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA. I had Dyspepsia in its worst form and felt miserable most all the time. Did not enjoy eating until after I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure which has completely cured me.—Mrs. W. W. Saylor, Hilliard, Pa. No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, sour risings, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles are quickly cured by the use of Kodol. Kodol represents the natural juices of digestion combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. It cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach. Sold by John L. Wooten.

THE SALVE THAT HEALS without leaving a scar is DeWitt's. The name Witch Hazel is applied to many salves but DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only Witch Hazel Salve made that contains the pure unadulterated witch hazel. If any other Witch Hazel Salve is offered you it is a counterfeit. E. C. DeWitt invented Witch Hazel Salve and DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best salve in the world for cuts, burns, bruises, tetter, or blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles. Sold by John L. Wooten.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. Motherhood

MOTHERHOOD is the reward nature bestows upon healthy womanhood. Women whose vitality has been sapped by disease cannot safely give birth to children. In pregnancy and in childbirth weakness of the mother is revealed in the pain and agony she suffers.

This great medicine drives out every vestige of inflammation and weakness, and gives tone and strength to the delicate organs which mature the child. The pains of pregnancy are banished by Wine of Cardui, and miscarriages, which blast so many fond mother's hopes, are prevented. Flooding, which so often occurs after childbirth, is corrected when Wine of Cardui is used during pregnancy.

Wine of Cardui babies are healthy babies, because, during the months of pregnancy, the mother is able to give them necessary vitality and strength.

With these facts presented to American women no expectant mother should be satisfied without the re-inforcement that Wine of Cardui will give her. Every mother should be able to treat herself in her home with this valuable medicine.

Wine of Cardui can be secured from any druggist at $1.00 a bottle.

Polycarp, N. C., Jan. 11, 1902.

I am the mother of seven children and while in pregnancy with the first six suffered untold misery until they were born. One month before the seventh was born I began to take a bottle of Wine of Cardui, which gave me relief after taking three doses. I used the remainder of the bottle until the birth of the child, and was stout in three days after the birth than I was in a month after the birth of either of the first six. I am 29 years old.

Spider Fancies.

An elderly lady who lives in her own house at Buttes Chaumont, Paris, has discovered that spiders are peculiarly appreciative of music. She has made great pets of them, and her house is full of spiders of all kinds, on whom she spends her time and fortune.

Her proteges are lodged in a large, airy room, where she has provided every necessary support for their different webs. Her great favorites are immense black spiders, which, with their hairy legs and great bodies, look very repulsive to others.

When she is inclined to show off their capabilities for music, she surrounds herself with a circle of water to keep off their too delicate attentions and plays slowly, softly and in a minor key on the harp. From all corners of the room the spiders run toward her, listening with evident pleasure, but should she strike up a noisy, gay, inharmonious strain they scamper back to their holes as though disgusted.

A curious fact in connection with this story is that the lady bears the birthmark of a spider.

Mistletoe.

The mistletoe comes chiefly from Brittany. Some 700 tons of the charming white berried plant are exported from French ports yearly. This mistletoe is to the Breton what the pig is to the Irishman—it pays the rent. The peasants of Normandy and Brittany cultivate the parasite on their apple trees—contrary to popular belief, it rarely grows on oaks—and it forms their most profitable crop. A few years ago the French department of agriculture decreed the destruction of all mistletoe, on the ground that it injured the apple trees. The peasants, however, denied the impeachment, and, as the order is not enforced, they grow and export more "guy" than ever for the Christmas enlightenment of English and American homes.

School Customs in China.

Many strange school customs prevail in China. The girls in that country seldom go to school unless they are the children of very rich people. School work begins before daylight, and after studying their lessons aloud for two hours the pupils recite them. They then go home to breakfast, after which they return and study again till dinner time. In the afternoon they go again to school to prepare lessons for the following day. By this time it is night. This goes on every day of the week, for there is no such thing as the Sunday holiday.

Billion and Trillion.

There are two systems of numeration in use at the present day, commonly called the English and the French systems. In the former the billion is a million of millions, a trillion a million of billions and each denomination is a million times the one preceding. In the latter (which is the system used in the United States) the billion is a thousand millions, and each denomination is a thousand times the preceding.

Why He Was Single.

"Why don't you marry?" asked one Frenchman of another.
"Because I must do it on certain conditions."
"What conditions?"
"Well, you know, the lady must be beautiful, rich and a fool. If she isn't rich and beautiful, I won't take her, and if she isn't a fool she won't take me!"

She Could Spell Too.

While waiting in the reception room for their hostess some visitors were entertained by that lady's four-year-old daughter. One of the callers remarked to the other:
"She is not very p-r-e-t-t-y."
"No," instantly replied the child; "I am not very p-r-e-t-t-y, but I am very s-m-a-r-t!"—New York Times.

It is truly surprising what erroneous ideas are entertained by the general public concerning the true meaning of many terms in general use. A striking example of this is the word "terne" as applied to tin plate. Usually it is understood that this word is derived from the French one, meaning "dull." This is totally incorrect. Terne plate is a sheet or plate of iron and steel covered with an alloy of tin and lead in the proportion of two-thirds lead and one-third tin. It is this union of the three metals—iron, lead and tin—that gave rise to the word terne plate, terne being an equivalent to the English terne, meaning "threefold." The origin of the erroneous definition of this term was the fact that because of the large percentage of lead used in coating terne plates it is duller in hue than the ordinary tin plate, which is frequently designated "bright plate" in contradistinction to the former.

The Fire God's Wrath.

A curious story comes to us from the suburbs. A resident in the near neighborhood of London has a museum in his house in which the principal curiosity is a fire god which has been worshipped for many centuries in an Indian temple. Once when the owner of the house took a party of people to look at the museum he proposed in fun that they should all kotow to the image. This they all laughingly consented to do, all except two ladies, who declared it was wicked. The fire god was revenged within two months. One of the ladies had her house burned to the ground the week after, and the other one on a later date fell backward into the fire and sustained some terrible burns. We give the tale without comment.—London Chronicle.

Cause of Lockjaw,

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exist plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by Wooten's drug store, Greenville, R. L. Davis & Bros. Farmville.

To All Whom It May Concern:
This is to certify that in July, 1902, I had a fistula in anus which had given me trouble for ten years past and I had consulted several physicians and had followed their prescriptions to the letter and continued to grow worse until I could not walk, and for eight months I could only walk on crutches, and in this condition I was advised to call on Dr. Moore, colored, which I did, and under his treatment I at once began to grow better and in one week the trouble was removed and I was perfectly well, feeling like a 16-year old boy, and the trouble has never returned.
