The Graded School Closed

The executive committee of the board of the trustees of the graded schools met today, at the superintendent's office, in the graded school building and had with them the superintendent of Public Health. After a careful consideration of the situation growing out of the recent cases of diphtheria the committee reached the conclusion that out of abundant caution that it is better to close the school for the present. It was therefore ordered that the school be closed till the 1st day of February. If conditions then require it, a further suspension will then be ordered of which due notice will be given but if no further action is taken the school will reopen on the 1st day of February.

This action has been taken. I repeat out of abundant caution and for the safety of the children but it was the opinion of the committee and the superintendent of Public Health that very little good can be accomplished by it if the children are allowed to visit and congregate together at other places.

Parents are therefore urged to keep their children at home and all work together to stamp out the dread disease. It is not improper in me to say that the committee feels the same deep interest in the children of the town to protect them against disease that prompted them to labor so earnestly to provide them a handsome school building. It is this spirit that prompts the committee to take this action and to make this communication.

By order of executive committee.
THOS. J. JARVIS,
Chairman.

Mistakes of Women.

One of the mistakes of women is not knowing how to eat. If a man is not to be fed when she is, she thinks a cup of tea and anything handy is good enough. If she needs to save money, she does it at the butcher's cost. If she is busy she will not waste time in eating. If she is unhappy, she goes without food. A man eats if the sheriff is at the door, if his work drives, if the undertaker interrupts; and he is right. A woman will choose ice cream instead of beefsteak, and a man will not.

Another of her mistakes is in not knowing when to rest. If she is tired, she may sit down, but she will darn stockings, crochet shawl, embroider doilies. Doesn't she know that hard work tires? If she is exhausted, she will write letters or figure her accounts. She would laugh at you if you hinted that reading or writing could fail to rest her. All over the country women's hospitals flourish because women do not know how to rest.

Another mistake on the list is their constant worrying. Worry and hurry are their enemies, and yet they hug them to their bosoms. Women cross bridges before they come to them, and even build bridges to cross. They imagine misfortune, and run out to meet it.

Women are not jolly enough. They make too serious business of life, and laugh at its little humors too seldom. Men can stop in the middle of perplexities and have a hearty laugh. It keeps them young. Women cannot, and that is one reason why they fade so early—there are other reasons, but we will pass them now. Worry not only wrinkles the face, but it wrinkles and withers the mind. Have a hearty laugh once in a while; it is a good antiseptic, and will purify the mental atmosphere, drive away evil imaginings, bad temper and other ills.—Buffalo Times.

THE ELECTION CALLED.

Aldermen Ignore Petition of Citizens.

The board of aldermen at a special meeting, Monday night refused to call the dispensary election as petitioned for by the citizens; and the meeting took very much like their action was cut and dried.

At the regular meeting of the board last Thursday night a petition was presented asking that an election be called on the question of a dispensary. Mayor Whedbee was appointed as a committee to investigate the petition and the board adjourned to the special meeting to receive his report and act upon it.

At this special meeting the report of Mayor Whedbee contained these facts: Number of names on registration book 288, number dead or removed 15, leaving the number of registered voters 273. The petition of citizens contained 124 names, number dead or removed since signing 21, leaving 103 registered voters on the petition, the number required by law being one-third or 91, making the petition contain 12 more than the required number of names.

After the report of the mayor had been read E. H. Shelburn presented a petition from 17 of the signers asking that their names be stricken from the petition.

Alderman L. H. Rountree then made a motion that no election be ordered.

At this juncture A. L. Blow addressed the board, advising them that they had no right to change a petition after it had been filed. He was followed by F. C. Harding, who pointed out that as a petition had been filed, a committee had been appointed to investigate and this committee had made its report, the board had no more right to now change the petition than they would have to open a ballot box in the midst of an election and allow votes to be taken out.

Notwithstanding this a motion to strike off the 17 names was carried—Aldermen L. H. Rountree, S. T. White, R. O. Jeffress, D. W. Hardee and H. A. White voting for the motion and Alderman Charles Cobb voting against it. Alderman Edgar Buck was present but did not vote.

A motion to not call the election was then carried.

The citizens are not going to stop at this but will have another petition before the next meeting of the board.

Charlotte Union Depot

The petition of the citizens of Charlotte for a union passenger depot will be heard before the North Carolina Corporation Commission Tuesday, January 19th.

The Change That Sometimes Comes.

A young man and a young woman lean over the front gate. They are lovers. It is moonlight. He is loath to leave, as the parting is the last. He is about to go away. She is reluctant to let him depart. They swing on the gate. "I'll never forget you," he says. "and if death should claim me my last thought will be of you."

"I'll be true to you," she sobs. "I'll never see anybody else or love them as long as I live."

They part. Six years later he returns. His sweetheart of former years has married. They meet at a party. She has changed greatly. Between the dances the recognition takes place.

"Let me see," she muses, with her fan beating a tattoo on her pretty hand, "was it you or your brother who was my old sweetheart?"

"Really I don't know," he says. "Probably my father."—Ex.

HIGH HATS IN CHURCH.

EDITOR REFLECTOR.

The style of ladies wearing high, broad-brimmed hats is very pretty. In fact, almost anything a woman wears is pretty and becoming, and we love to see them look pretty. But when a fellow is very much interested in a religious discourse, as is the case just now in all our churches in Greenville, much of the enjoyment is destroyed to be compelled to sit behind half a dozen high hats and see them wiggling and twisting from one point of the compass to another like a weather vane in a cyclone.

It seems to be the craze to wear the highest hats to church, where they create the greatest annoyance and are oblivious to everything but the service that is going on. But inasmuch as they can willingly and gladly remove them in theatres, etc., it does seem the dear creatures might do likewise when they know they are destroying much of the spiritual good of those who are refused a sight of the preacher, however much they may appreciate the discourse or however much they may be in need of spiritual matter.

It would be a very graceful, splendid act upon the part of the pretty women to forego this much for the common good and remove their high hats in church. Of course this does not apply to any but pretty women, for reasons unnecessary to state. Who will take the initiative and start first?

Prof. G. Stanley Hall of Clark University, Boston, not only proposed a tax upon bachelors, but declared that coeducation was a bar to matrimony.

Why the Gentleman Stopped.

A citizen of this county explained the other day why he didn't take a newspaper. He said he used to take one, but there were so many accounts in it of people being killed by lightning, which so alarmed his children that he couldn't get them to stay at work in the field when a thunderstorm threatened. For this reason he cut out newspapers and as the children can no longer read about deaths from lightning it is presumed they work better in the presence of a thunderstorm.—Statesville Landmark.

The theatre inspection fever has struck Raleigh. The Academy of Music in that city has been condemned as a death trap and ordered closed until proper fire escapes are provided.

Information comes from Washington that the appointment of Mrs. Russell as postmaster at Wilmington will certainly be held up when it reaches the Senate. And it ought to stay held up.

A howl is raised around Washington because the cabinet has ordered that government employes work a half hour longer each day. Most of them do little enough work not to make any kick over the extra time ordered.

We thought ex Governor Russell was worth enough not to have to run around and borrow a hundred dollars from women whenever he wanted to take a little jaunt to Washington.

The directors of the Seaboard Air Line at a recent meeting approved the plan to issue $5,000,000 of three year collateral trust bonds. The bonds are to bear interest at 5 per cent. Of the total issue of $5,000,000, $2,500,000 are to be for general corporate purposes, the balance to take up and provide for $2,500,000 notes recently issued. Half of the new bonds will be used for further construction of the Birmingham extension, current obligations and improvements generally.

Can't the monied men of Greenville see the need of more dwelling houses? It is almost impossible for a man to rent a house in Greenville at any price. How do we expect to enlarge the population of our little city and make it more thriving and prosperous when there is not enough houses in the place for the people already here? Very often you will see two or three families bunched up in one house, and then besides rents are entirely too high, that alone is calculated to keep some people from moving here. Let some one that has some money go to work and build some new houses.

How can prohibition hurt a town when the money spent for whiskey will be spent for something else or saved?—Durham Herald.

Our State exchanges should begin now, and keep the statement standing at the top of the column with other pure reading matter, teaching the people that under the laws of this state no voter liable to a poll tax who fails to pay his poll tax for 1903 prior to, or on, the first day of May of this year, will be allowed to vote next November.

This is the law—and a good one it is—but let every such voter be fully reminded of his duty in time to comply with it.—Raleigh Post.

An Alabama paper tells of a traveling man who received a letter from his wife informing him that she was going into the nearest town the next day to have "her kimona cut out." The man did not know what she meant and hurried home by the next train, under the impression that it was some sort of a dangerous surgical operation. The papers declare that "cutting out a kimona" is a bloodless operation, and involves no risk of life.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11, 1904

Time was when graybeards and bald heads ruled the United States Senate. They are still there, but the sceptre of influence has largely passed to the very youngest members. The wisdom which often comes of years and experience is always potent, and for thirty years the men whose word was law in the Senate were mostly graduates of the Federal and Confederate armies during the civil war. They wore scars and crutches. But the men who draw great audiences to the galleries when it is announced that they will speak are now men who were very young babies in arms during that period.

Columbia has applied to the French government and courts for an injunction to prevent the transfer to the United States of the canal properties and franchises now owned by French citizens under concession from the Colombian government. It made an obvious sensation around the capitol.

The French ambassador to this country has tendered to our government, from the ladies of France, a replica of the bust of Washington which was formerly destroyed by fire in the capitol. It was by the famous David.

The Senate has begun a discussion of the resolution for a congressional investigation of postoffice frauds. Republicans oppose it on the ground that the postoffice department can find out and punish its own frauds; democrats warmly advocate it on the ground that a committee wholly republican cannot be trusted to expose republican frauds, that congressional investigations are popular and thorough, and that such an investigation would show what remedial legislation is required to prevent the recurrence of such plundering.

U. S. Senator Dietrich (republican) of Nebraska, on trial in Omaha for bribery in a postoffice appointment, makes defense that he had not taken the oath as Senator at the time. Ex-Congressman E. H. Driggs, of New York, was convicted by a jury on Friday of accepting $12,500 to procure a contract between the automatic cash register company and the postoffice department whereby a large number of machines not needed were bought. The defense was that he didn't mean to. Judge Thomas said he would "make the sentence as light as possible."

Congratulations

Mr. John H. Cullom, Editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and R. L. Davis & Bros., Farmville.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even when but slightly disordered or over-loaded. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and enables the stomach and digestive organs to transform all food into rich, red blood. Sold by John L. Wooten.

A man talks to amuse others and a woman talks to amuse herself.

A GOOD NAME.

From personal experience I testify that DeWitt's Little Early Risers are unequalled as a liver pill. They are rightly named because they give strength and energy, and do their work with ease.—W. T. Easton, Boerne, Tex. Thousands of people are using these tiny little pills in preference to all others, because they are so pleasant and effectual. They cure biliousness, torpid liver jaundice, sick headache, constipation, etc. They do not purge and weaken, but cleanse and strengthen. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

Fortunate is the man whose friends are all good and his enemies all bad.

URED OFFILES AFTER 40 YEARS.

Mr. C. Haney, of Gepeva, O., had the piles for 40 years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Invaluable for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, laceration, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, and all other skin diseases. Look for the name De Witt on the package—all others are cheap, worthless counterfeits. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

The man who wants the earth is the very one the earth can get along without.

Found a Cure For Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion, and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. I am 51 years of age and have suffered great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want now.—George W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville and R. L. The Indiana Massacre of 1711.

CONCLUDED FROM YESTERDAY. but all were agreed that Lawson was worthy of punishment, since with compass and chain he had laid off their lands and sold them. At length, however, Lawson, as well as de Graffenried was acquitted, and it was decided furthermore that the prisoners should be allowed the next day to return home. But when the next day came, two "foreign kings" arrived in Hancock Town and after expressing dissatisfaction at the turn matters had taken demanded a second trial. Unfortunately at this trial, Lawson got into a dispute with one of the Indians, whereupon the Indians as a body, became very angry, and after a short council decreed death not only to Lawson but to de Graffenried as well.

Early the next morning the prisoners were led to the execution ground, where the warriors were already assembled. Their hands and feet were bound, their clothes stripped from them, their heads made bare. In the centre of the circle of warriors, they were placed in front of them, near the fire a grizzled old priest carried on his incantations. A little further on an executioner stood motionless as death, with a great knife in one hand, and axe in the other. On the other side of the fire a mob of men, women and children danced a heathenish dance, while two musicians sang to the beat of a drum.

When the dance was over four officers fired guns. Immediately with blood curdling yells the dancers fled into the woods. In a short while they returned, their faces painted in black and red and white, their hair flying, their bodies greased and sprinkled with tiny bits of cotton. Taking their old places within the circle they fell to dancing again nor did they cease their dance till evening came on. Then according to their customs they built great fires all over the region, till it seemed as if the whole forest was on fire.

The weary prisoners expected every moment to be their last. But the long hours of day dragged by, night came on. The warriors met for a final consultation. De Graffenried realized that now was his last chance for life. Putting on as brave face as he could, he made one last plea. In simple terms he proved his innocence and showed how his death would be avenged by the great Queen of England who herself had sent the white people to this land. The ore Indian in the council who understood english interpreted de Graffenried's speech. The warriors were greatly disturbed. They did not know what to do. Finally they decided to do nothing until they had consulted with one, Tom Blunt, a warrior in high repute among them.

About day break the messengers returned from Tom Blunt, with the message that the man with the compass and chains must be put to death, the other one released.

DeGraffenried was immediately unbound and led away to one of the Indian cabins. Lawson was left to perish on the fatal ground. We can imagine the horrible scene which followed, the helpless prisoner, bound hand and foot, his naked body lashed to a tree and stuck full of fine splinters of torchwood, the fiendish mob of Indians dancing and howling about him, perchance torturing him in every imaginable way, whilst the flames, kindled about him, leap higher and higher, till at last the lifeless body, charred and blackened, falls in ashes to the ground.

On the day after this horrible execution, word was brought to de Graffenried, who was still held a prisoner, that a plan was on foot to murder all the whites of eastern Carolina. A promise was made that no harm should come to his colonists provided they were all within the town of New Bern on the day appointed for the massacre. DeGraffenried tried to persuade someone to take a message to his people. But in vain. Therefore the colonists were wholly unprepared for the terrible massacre which followed.

There had been neither declaration of war, nor signs of discontent, when on that fated 22nd, of September, strong, well-armed savages went from cabin to cabin, plundering, burning, scalping, and by the space of two hours, they had killed one hundred and thirty persons. These persons were butchered in the most barbarous manner and their dead bodies treated with every indignity. Their houses were plundered and then burned, and their fields of growing crops utterly destroyed. Women were laid on the floor and stakes driven through their bodies, children were snatched from their parents and carried into captivity, the living were pursued so hotly they could not bury their dead but had to leave them a prey to wolves and vultures. For three days and nights the slaughter continued. At length overcome by fatigue, the warriors desisted from their bloody work. Then it was de Graffenried beheld the sad spectacle of the savages' return bringing with them booty and captives by the score.

Never since the beginnings of the Province had there been such a time of distress. Indeed the general assembly declared that henceforth the 22nd of September should be solemnized as a day of fasting and prayer, as a dark day in the annals of Carolina.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one, or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Centre, N. Y.
