Parted at Altar.

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 22.—Justice G. W. W. Bornemann, of this city, who is second only to Squire Bailes, of Mecklenburg, in number and interest of the marriage vows which he has administered during the past year, had a most unusual experience in the line of his profession last night. He had been sent for to officiate at the marriage of Miss Ella McCasley, nineteen years old, of Masonboro township, and George Norris, who lately removed to Wilmington from Darlington, S. C. The wedding was to take place with more or less elaboration at the home of a friend at Ninth and Bladen streets. The residence was ablaze with light; the bride and groom had donned their costumes and the wedding supper had been prepared in an adjoining room.

The Justice was about to enter the parlor and take his station in front of an improvised altar, when some one tapped him on the shoulder and silently informed him that young Norris had another wife and one child at his home in South Carolina.

Justice Bornemann had respect for the authority from which the information came and forthwith an end was put to the proceedings. A consultation of the magistrate and bride and groom was held, and although the young mandenied the charge and the bride reiterates her utmost confidence in him, it was decided to postpone the ceremony until Sunday night, at which time Norris said he would be present to defend himself against the imputation. The announcement was made to the guests, who departed with invitations to be present at postponed nuptials.

Stole Nearly Two Hundred Thousand.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 23.—The grand jury today returned an indictment against George A. Rose, cashier of the Produce National Bank, which closed its doors yesterday. Rose is charged with having embezzled $189,000 of the bank's funds. A warrant for his arrest was issued. Rose was taken into custody and locked up in the county jail. He will be given a hearing Monday, it is understood. The penalty for embezzlement is from one to seven years. It was announced today that the assignee of the closed bank will credit depositors with twenty per cent on their accounts after February 4th. This action was decided upon after an examination of the bank's books. It is also stated that with careful management the depositors will probably receive eventually a very large proportion of their accounts.

Small Fire.

Some young men walking along the railroad track about 1 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, saw smoke coming out of the factory of the Building & Lumber Co., and a closer investigation showed flames in the office. They gave the alarm, and breaking open the office rushed in through the dense smoke to find the fire. Both the floor and side wall of the office were burning, but owing to the timely discovery the fire was put out with only slight damage to the building.

It is surmised that the fire was started by a box of saw dust used in the office for a cuspidore and trash receptacle, into which some one had dropped a cigar stump or the end of a lighted match. The fire was burning around this box of saw dust.

Speight & Co. paid 15 cents today for cotton. This is the highest market price reached in a long time.

'Give Me My Daisy.'

New York, Jan. 23.—Jules B Neilson, son of Mrs. Frederick Neilson and brother of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, whose marriage to Miss Marguerite Wall on January 6, was announced today, spent the day in the endeavor to gain access to his bride, whose father, Frank T. Wall, a wealthy rope manufacturer, Neilson alleges, is keeping her from her husband against her will. A resort to legal proceedings is threatened by the groom.

The engagement of Mr. Neilson and Miss Wall was announced last October, but the Wall family objected so vigorously, it is said, because Mr. Neilson was a Roman Catholic and Miss Wall a Protestant, that they were married secretly January 6, Mrs. Neilson continuing to reside at her father's house. Mr. Neilson said today that after Mr. Wall heard of the marriage Monday, his uncle, Frederick Gebhard, handed him the following note, in his wife's handwriting and signed with her maiden name:

"I have made up my mind never to see you again or live with you.

(Signed) "Daisy Wall."
 "I find, however," said Neilson, "that after I received the letter my wife told Father Van Rensselaer, my priest, that she would never give me up. Neither she nor I wish to get a divorce. I have not seen her since and believe that her father is detaining her in his house against her will. If Mr. Wall does not come to terms I shall take the matter to court."

Mr. Wall said today that he did not approve of the marriage, and that his daughter was at present living in his house, but further than this all information was refused.

Jules Neilson is well known in New York society. His elder sister was the wife of Arthur Kemp, but secured a divorce from him in Rhode Island last November, marrying the same day Hollis Hunniwell, of Boston.

FARMVILLE ITEMS.

FARMVILLE, N. C., Jan. 23.—Cupid has been very busy round about our burg. Madam rumor says we are to have two or three marriages next week.

County Superintendent Ragsdale was here last week looking after the graded school, (or rather the primary department.)

This being leap year, the chairman of the Old Maids Convention has notified the members and delegates elect to meet in our city early next month. Our hats off!

Our street lights are very poor. Not only are the lamps too few and far between, but frequently the lights grow dim before 7 o'clock. Our city fathers might improve.

The ladies invaded the dining-room of the Methodist parsonage one night last week and left substantial evidence of their good will. The parson and his family may suffer while they sojourn in this town, but if they do, it will be from indigestion or gout.

Child Scalded.

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Edwards was painfully scalded, Sunday, by upsetting a vessel of boiling water. The worst injury is about the ankle.

Don't miss seeing Miss Clara Sidney with the Cusack-Sidney Co., Wednesday evening at the opera house. The play promises to be the best of the season. D. 11-25

An Essay on Hens.

A boy who was required to write an essay on hens produced the following: "Hens is curious animals, they don't have no nose nor no teeth nor no ears. They swallow their whistles whole and chew it up in their crops inside of 'em. The outside of hens is generally put into pillars and into feather dusters. The inside of a hen is sometimes filled with marbles and shirt buttons and sich. A hen is very much smaller than a good many other animals, but they'll dig up more tomato plants than anything that ain't a hen. Hens is very useful to lay eggs for plum puddings. Hens have wings and can fly when they get frightened. I cut off a hen's head with a hatchet and it frightened her to death."

Little Essays About Girls.

There is one good result which I firmly believe girls' are going to get out of their collective life, and that is a fuller development of the sense of honor. This is a delicate subject! Every one knows that women are generally better than men. Their standards of purity and temperance and reverence and kindness and self-sacrifice are higher, and they are more in earnest about living up to them. But one thing is lacking—a clearer conception and a stronger sense of that fine flower of fair dealing which is called honor.

Women are inclined (remember, I am speaking collectively, and with full allowance for a multitude of beautiful exceptions) to think somewhat lightly of obligations which rest merely upon a tacit understanding and mutual confidence. They are not trained to a state of things in which a nod of the head amounts to a binding contract, and a gesture of the hand is a promise to pay good money. They have so long enjoyed the privilege of changing their minds that they regard it as a reserved right, only surrendered when they have actually signed a document. Within the limits of the law they will do their best to get out of things that they do not like. It is not easy for them to see why they should not take an advantage when it is for their interest to do so. They have a tendency to regard the states of love and war as perpetual and universal, and to deal with their rivals and their enemies according to the old maxim which says that everything is fair under those conditions—Dr. Henry Van Dyke, in Harper's Bazar.

15 cent cotton gave people something to talk about today.

Superior Court.

The trial of Jesse Haddock, Jr., on the charge of murder, began in court this morning. The special venire of 75 were called and all but 8 were exhausted in selecting the jury. The jury as empanelled to try the case consisted of J. H. Briley, Zeb. V. Whitehurst, T. A. Nichols, J. A. Briley, J. F. Pollard, Jesse L. Smith, L. M. Manning, C. L. Thigpen, G. E. Cherry, John Moseley, Jr., Ollen Warren, Jr. and J. A. Thigpen.

Col. I. A. Sugg appears with Solicitor Moore for the state, and Messrs. Jarvis & Blow and Skinner & Whedbee appear for the defense. The state examined three witnesses before the court took a recess for dinner.

The San Souci club will meet at Mrs. Laughinghouse's residence on Friday evening at 3 o'clock.

The Sad Humanity of a Dog.

"It is such a pity," said Mr. George Fitzsimons, "that a good dog should be spoiled by having human characteristics. Now, I have a pointer, and there's nothing the matter with him except he sometimes acts like people. The other day I brought some food to him in the rear part of my store. He wasn't hungry; he looked at the plate, and yawned and went to sleep again. I went out and got a poor little street dog that is a friend of mine. He was ravenous. When he saw the food he went at it as if starved. In a second the pointer was awake, and sprang at the little dog with his bristles up. He scared the little dog away from the plate and then ate up every crumb on it. Say, wasn't that human?"—Charlotte Observer.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, JANUARY 25, 1904.

This is a good time for Greenville to get interested in an ice factory. Likewise a furniture factory.

If Greenville is to have a building and loan association let those interested keep talking it. THE REFLECTOR cannot start one by itself.

Other towns around us see the advantage of having brick making plants to supply the large demand, but Greenville seems slow to get interested in this matter.

The aldermen at least owe it to the tax payers of the town to furnish street lights equal to the cost expended therefor. Half the money now used judiciously expended would afford as good lights as the town has had for sometime.

It is said that the individual losses of the students by fire at the State Normal College aggregated $17,000. That was a heavy loss for the girls and to many of them it will mean much deprivation. We hope it will be so all can return to the college when it re-opens.

Bob Bridgers, a tenant on the farm of Mr. Robert Farham in St. Matthews township, eleven miles from here, came to Raleigh yesterday on business and on returning to his home late in the afternoon found his wife, Mary Bridgers, and her two children dead. Their bodies were out in a cotton patch near the house, the crushed skulls of each in the head with some heavy instrument, probably an axe.—Raleigh Post, 27th.

There was a head-on collision early yesterday morning between north and south bound freight trains on the Seaboard Air Line at Manson, a station just north of Henderson. Engineer Will Harris was badly scalded and had his left leg severely bruised. Both engines were badly damaged and four freight cars completely wrecked, besides at least four others being derailed and considerably damaged.—Raleigh Post, 23rd.

The reply of Senator Reed Smoot to the charges which would oust him from his seat, is in many respects a remarkable document. It is a formal paper, and contains 5,100 words. It is sworn to before a notary public. In it Smoot denies that he is or ever was a polygamist; that he was never married more than once, that he is not bound by any oath or secret or obligation, traversing his duties as a citizen of the United States or taking precedence of its laws and constitution. He holds himself bound to obey those laws, including the statute forbidding polygamy. Such wholesale denial was after all the only method of defense left open to the Mormon Senator. What is most remarkable is, not that Smoot should have denied the charges against himself, but he should have gone further and denied absolutely that polygamy exists at all in the Mormon congregation, except under the sincere protest of the church authorities. Respondent further alleges that since the manifesto of President Wiiford Woodruff was issued in 1890, neither a belief in nor a practice of polygamy has either been taught or recognized. We cannot get away from the idea that this sweeping and extreme declaration casts its umbra of suspicion over that part of Smoot's reply relating to himself.—Atlanta Journal.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C. Jan. 23. 1904.

The administration is in a heap of trouble about a terrible Panama scandal reported from Paris, and involving Bunau-Varilla, the garrulous minister from Panama. It is to the effect that this man swindled the French Panama canal company by means of false reports of excavations made by which he received some half a million dollars in a corrupt "rake off." The president is greatly worried and the Panama has been called to hurried consultations.

The bill in Congress to admit New Mexico and Arizona as one state causes considerable adverse comment in Congress. Attention is called to the fact that it would take a railroad train as long to go through that state from east to west as to go from St. Louis to Boston. There are only about a quarter as many people in Arizona as there are in the city of Washington.

If not a scandal, the condition of the Red Cross Society comes perilously near it. For more than a generation Miss Clara Barton and her official associates have been disbursing its funds without making any proper account to the public that furnished the money. Your correspondent warned Miss Barton ten years ago that the trouble would grow out of this negligence, but she and the doctor—her secretary—preferred to wait for it. Now Congress is overhauling the whole outfit.

"Pious" originally meant affectionate. Aeneas was called pious because he buried his father and Antigone was called pious because she buried her brother. Congressmen seem to have a similar ambition. They buried one of their number last week with the usual extravagance; a committee of twelve or fifteen, a chartered Pullman to Illinois, and back, a load of grief-stricken junketers, and all they can eat and all they can drink at the expense of the government. These funerals cost from $5,000 to $25,000 each and sometimes degenerate into a mild form of spree. Often indeed the official mourners drink altogether too much and there have been instances when they were disabled from performing their duty. Both parties are equally guilty of this abominable offense and it is high time it was performed in the interest of ordinary decency.

The body of James Smithson, philanthropist, arrives here today from Genoa, Italy, where it was buried three-quarters of a century ago. He was an infidel and scientist, vice-president of the British Royal Academy, and he gave half a million dollars to the United States to build the Smithsonian institution.

Congratulations

Mr. John H. Colton, Editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, and R. L. Davis & Bros., Farmville.

CURED OPPILES AFTER 40 YEARS

Mr. C. Haney, of Geneva, O., had the piles for 40 years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. A GOOD NAME.

From personal experience I testify that DeWitt's Little Early Risers are unequalled as a liver pill. They are rightly named because they give strength and energy and do their work with ease.—W. T. Easton, Boerne, Tex. Thousands of people are using these tiny little pills in preference to all others, because they are so pleasant and effectual. They cure biliousness, torpid liver jaundice, sick headache, constipation, etc. They do not purge and weaken, but cleanse and strengthen. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does for the stomach that which it is unable to do for itself, even when but slightly disordered or over-loaded. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure supplies the natural juices of digestion and does the work of the stomach, relaxing the nervous tension, while the inflamed muscles of that organ are allowed to rest and heal. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and enables the stomach and digestive organs to transform all food into rich, red blood. Sold by John L. Wooten.

THE MYSTERIOUS PATIENT

(Original.)

I had just tumbled into bed after a hard day's work among my patients when there was a sharp ring at the telephone. I kept the instrument within reach of my pillow and seized the receiver.

"Doctor, my nurse is killing me. If you don't—"
There was a click, and after that silence. I had been shut off. I rang and called "Hello!" and "Central!" at last getting a reply from "Central," of whom I asked with whom I had been in communication; but the girl at the office couldn't tell me.

I was too much decomposed to lie in bed with the thought of one of my patients being murdered by a nurse whom I had recommended (I recommend all the nurses employed in my cases), so I got up, lighted the gas and waited, hoping for another call. The voice was more like that of a woman than a man, but what woman I could not tell. I have a large practice and so many patients that it would be considerable of an effort to go over the list with a view to studying probabilities. I gradually subsided to the opinion that there had been some mistake in the call and endeavored to dismiss the matter from my mind. After an hour's waiting I turned in again and finally fell asleep.

I awoke before daylight and lay thinking over the matter of my strange telephone message. At that hour, when one is rested after a night's sleep and all is yet quiet, the brain is clearer than at any other time. I reviewed all my patients, but not one of them was likely to have cause to be dissatisfied with her nurse. Patients sometimes turn against their nurses for some reason, usually because the nurse chooses to become domineering. I was forced to the opinion that this was one of those cases and resolved in my round of visits that day to keep my eyes open with this in view.

I breakfasted and started earlier than usual, proposing to spend additional time in discovering who had called me. Nevertheless, though I was extremely watchful, I failed to detect the slightest discord between any of my patients and the nurse in charge.

During the night the telephone bell rang. I put the receiver to my ear, and a voice was saying, "Doctor, doctor, doctor!" pitifully. "Well," I said, whereupon the voice continued, "My nurse is killing me!" There was a click and no more words, nor did I succeed in getting the voice again.

I made up my mind the next day to interview every woman patient of mine without her nurse being present. Wherever I called I sent the nurse out of the room and asked the patient if she was satisfied with her attendant. All of them answered in the affirmative except one or two, who, though they were not especially pleased with their attendants, were not disposed to change them. None of them intimated that her nurse was ill treating or killing her. I went home feeling very much discouraged with my investigation. The next day, of twelve nurses I had asked to leave the room while I interviewed the patient they attended, seven asked to be relieved of their duties. As every doctor needs good nurses, I was very much troubled. I asked them all to remain at their posts till I could explain my action, and I then went to a detective office, related the circumstance and asked if they had a man who would ferret out the case. One of their number was assigned the duty, and I dismissed the matter from my mind.

I was not called up again by the mysterious patient, but I learned afterward that the detective left instructions with the central office whenever I was called to call him first. If the call was not unusual I was then called. Two days after my visit to the detective office I received a note that if the next night I should go to a house occupied by a gentleman whose family physician I had once been I would receive an explanation of my singular calls. Before going to bed I went to the house in question, where I met the detective. He took me upstairs to a bedroom and there left me, and I heard him carry something into a room adjoining. This done, he came in through a door which he left open, putting a finger on his lips to insure silence.

We sat for a time without speaking. I heard nothing in the other room except a grating as of something against metal. Suddenly there was a click. It was the raising of a telephone receiver, and a cracked voice said, "I want Dr. Scarborough." Since I am the doctor referred to I was somewhat astonished. The call for Dr. Scarborough was repeated (it occurred to me that "Central" was asking for the number) till at last I heard a ring and then: "Doctor, doctor, my nurse is killing me! If you don't take her away I shall die!" This in part was repeated several times. Then there was a click. The detective went into the adjoining room and called on me to follow.

There, hopping about, was a huge parrot, the only occupant of the room. "This parrot," said the detective, "occupied the adjoining room to this one when a patient of yours was here delirious and convinced that her nurse was trying to kill her. The bird repeatedly heard you rung up on the telephone and listened for weeks to the patient calling on you to save her from her nurse. It was not much trouble for me to locate this phone and, once located, make the discovery. The parrot is placed here every night, let out of her cage and permitted to roam about the room. She has only to take up the receiver to get "Central" and invariably hangs it up again, shutting off the circuit."

After that the parrot was kept away from the telephone.

How the Boy Got the Liquor.

A twelve-year old boy was found on the street in Kinston a few days ago in a very drunken condition and it was a puzzle to the officers where the boy got the liquor. It was found on investigation that the dispensary managers, after drawing liquor from the barrels into bottles and replacing the bungs put the barrels outside the door. The boy would pick out the stopper and tipping over the barrel would drain it into a tin pail thereby securing enough from all the barrels to get a royal jag.—New Bern Journal.
