Sans Souci Club.

Reported for Reflector.]

The Sans Souci Club held its regular literary meeting with Miss Lottie Blow on Tuesday afternoon, January the nineteenth, nineteen hundred and four. There were ten members and one visitor present.

Miss Elizabeth Laughinghouse added much to the enjoyment of the occasion by reading an essay on "Prominent Women Who Have Appeared in North Carolina History". It was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

The enthusiasm over the new books made an interesting feature of the afternoon.

Business having been dispensed with dainty refreshments were served, and the members showed their appreciation of the clever hostess by lingering till a late hour.

A Little Girl Roasts Her Sister to Death.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 26.—As the result of momentary negligence on the part of Mrs. Schmidt, Matilda, a sixteen months old baby was placed in an oven by her sister Mary, five years old, and burned to death. Mrs. Schmidt had heated the oven preparatory to baking bread and it was almost red-hot. She left three little girls, including the baby, in the kitchen while she chopped more fuel in the wood shed about fifty feet from the house. When she returned the baby was missing, but her questions to the other children brought no information. After searching the house she smelled a peculiar odor, and rushing to the stove pulled open the oven door and saw her child's body. It appears that the five year old sister, believing that the infant was cold, sought to warm it, and pushing it into the oven, closed the door.

Died in Effort to Save Her.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 26.—Stansbury Jacobs and his twelve-year-old daughter, Lena, were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed the Jacobs' home and three other houses at Stanton, Del. Jacobs lost his life in an effort to rescue his daughter. Jacobs was awakened by the smoke and aroused his wife and children. Escape was cut off by way of the stairs, and the imprisoned family were compelled to jump from a second story window. When they reached a place of safety Jacobs discovered that his daughter Lena was still in the house, he made his way through the flames to the daughter's room, but was burned to death with her in his attempt at rescue.

Illinois has scored the first victory in the way of punishing lynchers. By heroic efforts, and with a masterful determination to vindicate and uphold the law, a party who lynched a negro were arrested, duly indicted, promptly tried and as promptly convicted. When it came to meeting out "punishment to fit the crime" the patriotic judge was fully equal to the occasion. Without remorse of conscience or thought of mercy, but with the heinous crime of murder staring him in the face, he deliberately fined each $50.

The law did its duty at least,—until it stumbled up against the judge. Then there was a fall down, my countrymen.—Raleigh Post.

It sometimes happens that a man who fails at everything else marries well.

Many a man's conscience troubles him only when his neighbor does something wrong.

Col. Isaac A. Sugg the Bull Leader.

We think Col. I. A. Sugg is justly entitled to be known as the bull leader on the cotton market of Greenville. One year ago Col. Sugg publicly declared and urged the farmers to plant cotton, telling them they could average 1 1/2 cents per pound for their crop of 1903. In the fall when cotton was beginning to come to market he urged that they would see 15 cents before February.

On the 3rd day of October last, when July was first quoted at 9 2/2 in New York, Col. Sugg said a purchase of one thousand bales of July cotton at that price would net $20,000. On the 5th day of December, when July was selling for 12.59, he wrote an imaginary telegram indicating his prediction, and posted it in the office of THE REFLECTOR reading as follows:

"Greenville, N. C., Dec. 5, 1904.
"To Messrs. Daniel J. Sully & Co., 41 Wall Street, New York.

"Buy me one thousand bales July cotton.

(Signed) Isaac A. Sugg."

The colonel said there would be $12,50 net profit in such an order before March 31st, 1904. The figures show that the July at 9.22 would have given a net profit at the close of the market Wednesday, Jan. 27th, of $32,700. The July at 12.59 bought on the 5th day of December would have given a net profit of $15,850.

Wednesday Col. Sugg made another prediction on one thousand bales of July when the price was 15.59 and says there will be a profit in this of $10,000 before May 1st.

These are not actual deals, but only imaginary ones based on his belief of what the market will be.

It is well known that many farmers did hold their cotton, under the advice of Col. Sugg, and get 14 and 15 cents for it, and he is now urging those who have not yet sold to continue to hold for higher prices: He is basing his calculations and opinions on the law of supply and demand, and insists that the crop will not exceed 9,750,000 bales, which is greatly inadequate for the supply.

Col. Sugg has traveled several times through the South and knows much of the conditions among the farmers, and he insists that low priced cotton is a thing of the past. Had his suggestions been taken a year ago the farmers would have been greatly better off than now with tobacco as it is.

Superior Court.

The following cases have been disposed of since last report. Joe Haddock, removing crops, not guilty.

Turner Thorne, larceny, guilty, sentenced to jail for three years.

John Evans, assault with deadly weapon, guilty, sentenced two months with leave to hire out.

Sam Bryant, appeal from mayor's court, not guilty.

Tap Starkey, John Loose, W. W. Perkins, J. M. Reuss, Tom Duke, F. D. Foxhall, R. Hyman, James Anderson, Oscar Hooker, Ed Matthews, Simon Moye and Wiley Moye gambling, plead guilty, fined $10 each and costs and required to give bond in sum of $100 to appear at January term, 1905, and show they have not gambled.

W. H. Mercer, selling liquor unlawfully, pleads guilty in ten cases, judgment suspended upon payment of costs on condition that he quit the business. The fine of $250 in a former case was stricken out.

Spot cotton went to 16 1/2 in New York today.

Mrs Laughinghouse Entertains

[Reported for Reflector.]

On Tuesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock the End of the Century Book Club held a most enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. Chas. Laughinghouse.

Mrs. Laughinghouse charmingly received her guests, assisted by Miss Winnie Skinner, Miss Gottlieb, of Baltimore, Miss Lizzie Laughinghouse and Mrs. Hayward Dail. The club was called to order by the president, Mrs. R. R. Cotten. The program not being able to be carried out Miss Gottlieb kindly gave a talk as her experience as a club woman.

After regular business was over elegant refreshments were served and the club adjourned to meet February the ninth, with Mrs. James L. Little.

Capt. Harper, of the Coast Line, is yet with us. He is a fine fellow and a high stepper.

Some farmers are busy preparing tobacco beds, while others are figuring to see how much 14 cent cotton they want to make.

Burney Roach.

On Wednesday, Jan. 27th. at half past five o'clock, Mr. John H. Burney and Miss Clara Roach were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Roach, of Coxville. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of Mr. Walter Mewborn, and the groom followed with his best man Mr. Clarence Mewborn. Rev. W. E. Cox, of Greenville, officiated.

Immediately after the marriage an elegant reception was held at the home of the groom. A large number of friends was present at both marriage and reception. The bride and groom are popular young people, and their many friends wish them a long, useful and happy life.

Strict Ordinance Regulating Smoking in Yadkinville.

For the benefit of our country friends we would say that this town has seen fit to pass an ordinance prohibiting smoking of cigar, cheroot, pipe, cigarette or any smoking material in any store inside the corporation. So when you come to town and want to smoke, you will have to stand on the street corners or hang on the court house fence.—Yadkinville Biffler.

"Write it a bum show," is what those said who attended the Cusack Sidney performance in the opera house Wednesday night.

Played a Joke on a Hawk.

Hawks, writes the author of "Travels in a Treetop," have an usual amount of curiosity. They are trapped, he says, almost as often through their curiosity as through their fear. Sometimes in winter, when there is little to attract their attention, an unbaited
trap, is of a new shape or variety,
is quite as likely to land a victim
as if it held a most appetizing
mouse.

Once a trick was played upon a plendid black hawk that had been mousing over the fields for half the winter. It often perched upon a straw stack, instead of in the center of the field. Early one morning a plump meadow mouse, with an inflated bladder attached to it by a string, was placed on top of the stack. The bladder and cord were connected by the straw. The hawk apparently was a little suspicious when he first noticed the mouse.

He was not used to seeing a mouse remain perfectly still in that way, especially when he began to circle about with his great black wings down close to the stack.

Presently he alighted in a wary way on one end of the stack; then he walked nearer, eyed the mouse sharply, and pecked at it. At last he seized it in his talons and made off for the hickory. Halfway there, however, he noticed the bladder attached and gave the mouse a violent jerk to free it from the bladder appendage. This only served to make the bladder
bob up and down more furiously and with a scream of terror the hawk dropped the mouse and all and fled to the woods. It was sometime before he was again seen in the neighborhood of the straw
stack.
