blues over their work, but we hope they will have some sunshine yet.

Interstate Beer Traffic.

Washington, D. C., March 2:— Before the judiciary committee of the house today public hearings were begun on the Hepburn bill which seeks to change the interstate commerce law so that all intoxicating liquors shipped from outside states may be subject to the laws of the state to which they are shipped or through which they may pass. The measure, in effect, is intended to aid local option and prevent any city or county subject to that law from receiving intoxicants of any kind or character in broken or unbroken packages, from outside sections.

Want Powers to Intervene.

Paris, Mar. 2.—Gabriel Honotuax, former minister of foreign affairs, has started an agitation in favor of intervention by the powers to stop the war between Russia and Japan. It is believed the Russians would be glad of such a good excuse to stop a war which thus far has made her the under dog. Germany is thought to be willing to join the intervention movement if it was thought the Czar would approve it. It is recognized, however, that France and Germany alone would be inefficient, as in that case the movement would merely be interpreted as anti British. The interveners, therefore, hope to receive American support in their action and eventually support England through the good offices of the Washington officials.

Russia Shows a Hand.

Constantinople, March 2.—The Turkish government has resolved to forcibly prevent the Russian Black sea fleet from passing through the Dardanelles, and a fight will probably occur should such an attempt be made. The defenses along the straits have been strengthened and mines have been laid. Officers have also been appointed to specially supervise these measures. The reason for Turkey's bold action is learned to be due to strong representations made by other powers against such breach of Russia's treaty obligations. England informs the Sultan that should Russian vessels pass through the straits, the British fleet would do likewise, and would make a demonstration before the windows of Yeldiz Kiosk itself.

Close of the Campaign.

The dispensary campaign that has been carried on in Greenville for the past few weeks came to a fitting close in the opera house Tuesday night. An immense audience was present to hear the speeches of Hons. N. B. Broughton, of Raleigh and R. B. White, of Franklinton. Both gentlemen made excellent speeches. They were eloquent, impressive, and the audience gave expression of appreciation in frequent bursts of applause. It being on the eve of the contest at the ballot box, and the election being practically over by the time this is read, we do not attempt any synopsis of the splendid speeches. Both gentlemen strongly and forcibly urged the men to do their duty at the ballot box and protect the boys from the evils of the open saloon.
Between the speeches Mrs. D. D.
Overton rendered a beautiful and impressive recitation "The drink house over the way."
At the close Miss May Lincoln charmingly sang "Where is my wandering boy tonight?" As a sequel to this Mr. R. F. Betts splendidly sang "Down in a licensed saloon." The songs were well rendered and most impressive.

Looks Like A Strike.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 2.— After a stirring session in which both sides declared that a parting of the way had come, miners and operators finally agreed that the joint scale committee should discuss the scale once more. This they are doing today and will report Thursday morning to the joint committee on conference.
John Mitchell said this morning that a strike is probable.

Dr. Harper's Condition.

is resting quietly.

Smoot Under Investigation.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 2.—
The investigation into the right of Reed Smoot, of Utah, to retain his seat in the United States senate, being an apostle of the Morman church, began this morning before the senate committee on privileges and elections. The committee room is crowded with witnesses who had been summoned from Utah, and with representatives of various women's organizations and others interested in the case.

Former secretary of the treasury John G. Carlisle and former congressman Robert W. Taylor, of Ohio, represented the opposition to the seating of Smoot, and A.
S. Worthington, of this city and Waldemar Van Cotta, of Salt Lake City, represent the defense.
President Joseph F. Smith, the highest official of the Mormon church, was the first witness.

Independence Day In Texas.

Austin, Texas, March 2:—Sixty-eight years ago today, at Washington on the Brazo, the Texas declaration of independence was signed, after Santa Ana had begun the historic siege of the Alamo. In accordance with custom the anniversary was generally observed throughout the state.
Public offices were closed and appropriate exercises in commemoration of the day were held in the public schools and in the colleges and universities.

The day was also the 11th anniversary of the birth of Sam Houston, the hero of Texas' struggle for independence, and there were special services at his grave at Huntsville participated in by the faculty and students of the Sam Houston Normal school.

Revolution Threatened.

Berlin, Mar. 2.—Tegeleche Rundschau reports that Russia is on the verge of a revolution. M.
Deplive, minister of war of Russia, regards the peasants as in a most dangerous condition. Starving rustics, the paper says, maddened by excessive use of vodka or Russian rye whiskey, are plundering estates burning outlying homesteads and murdering land owners in all directions. Owing to this revolutionary danger the government has proclaimed a mild form of martial law in fifty-three out of seventy-one provinces in European Russia.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 2, 1904.

Cotton is doing some more pushing toward the high water mark.

The gambling seems to be all coming from the Russian side, and Japan has nothing to complain of.

Japan admits the fact that those bombardments come high but it seems that she needs Port Arthur in her business just the same.

If this country would abstain from intoxicating drinks for a period of a single generation, a mob would be as impossible as a combination without oxygen.

The Supreme court of the United States has decided that when a man rides on, a free pass that he can get no damages from the railroads if he gets hurt.

You have got just two months in which to pay your poll tax. If you do not pay them by the first of May you cannot vote in the presidential election next fall, if you are worth a million.

THE REFLECTOR believes that it has never done its readers and the community a greater service than in giving most of its space for some days past to articles discussing and advocating the dispensary. This was done through the honest conviction that open saloons are a great evil and a menace to manhood, and the belief that a dispensary was the best available plan of curtailing and checking this evil. To give the space to the articles mentioned it was necessary for the time being to leave much news matter out of the paper, hence many local and personal items that otherwise would have appeared in the news columns were omitted. This is deemed sufficient explanation to any who may have looked for items that did not appear.

The postoffice hoodlers will now give a certificate that those Groff fastener will fastens if put on the wrists by Judge Pritchard. The law abiding people of the District of Columbia, are warm in praise of Judge Pritchard for meting out justice without fear or favor. That is the crying need of American courts of justice today. The man who holds the scales of justice equally and does not let influential people escape is the most useful judge. Good for Judge Pritchard! —News and Observer.

Disgrace to the State.

That public execution at Whiteville last week was a reproach to the State. More than two thousand people, men, women, children and babes in arms—jostled each other in crowds to see the condemned man launched into eternity, and many had traveled in wagons all night to see the show! God pity us, if this is the test of our civilization! After all, are we any more civilized than our ancestors who roamed the forests in a naked condition?

The legislature ought to forbid public executions and thus prevent by law so low an exhibition of morbid curiosity.—News and Observer.

Senator Overman thinks Judge Simonton will decide with the state in the A. and N. C. R. R. receivership matter. He will do so unless he overrules himself.—News and Observer.

The sudden acquisition of wealth and the equally as sudden loss of riches through the heavy dabbling in cotton futures have given people in this section of the country an opportunity to make interesting observations of strenuous humanity. The gaining of large money, with its accompaniment of independence, is bound to have its effect on the character of any man. Usually it is hurtful is apt to make one selfish, and not so considerate of other people. His circle of acquaintances, increases, but his heart gets colder and he knows fewer friends. He loses naturalness, and narrow traits that he had hitherto concealed crop out in jarring boldness. He has been put to a great test, and he has become a loser at the point where he should have gained most. He becomes a snob within his limitations and is secretly laughed at. This does not apply to all men who make much money suddenly, nor does it apply to those who acquire it by slow, laborious methods, but most men do turn fools when money comes unexpectedly. Yet losing money has a far worse effect, of course. Poverty in any guise is bad enough, but the poverty that has come through gambling is of the agonizing sort that wrecks a man's peace, ages him and makes him a poor citizen. In a word, one looks in vain for the smallest element of good that has come to this part of the world through speculation. In rare instances it has enabled a man to be bettered financially, but day after day it shows oftenest and excited lot of humanity that has to pay a heavy penalty whether it gains or loses. No man ever enjoyed his poker money or considered it good money, and no man was ever really benefitted by bigger gambling or bigger winning. There seems to be no use to say to arrest the malady. It is increasing all the time and is adding fresh misery to many households. One cannot walk in any direction in this town without finding men who are badly injured in one way and another by speculation, and the feverish spirits grows more feverish. What is the end going to be?—Idle Comment in Charlotte Observer.

GENERAL NEWS.

The factory of the New York cotton mills at Utica, N. Y., was burned on the 29th. The loss is $125,000.

Plans for raising a fund to erect a memorial for the victims of the Iroquois fire have been submitted to the Iroquois Memorial association. R. T. Crane says: "Many men favor building an emergency hospital in the business district. The sole object of this association is the erection of a memorial. The members are not seeking revenge, but are opposed to the reopening of the Iroquois as a place of amusement."

The Elsmere Hotel, in Washington, D. C., was damaged to the extent of $10,000 by fire. The entire roof of the front portion of the double building was burdened and three rooms on the fourth floor were gutted. The hotel was deluged with water, which dripped in the basement, destroying valuable furniture on every floor, and the place was rendered uninhabitable for a large number of guests including several members of congress.

A DETECTIVE CASE

(Original.)

"The Appleby family," said the detective, "at the time the jewels were stolen consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Appleby, their son, twenty-two, and their daughter, twenty years old. There was also visiting the son Mark Brainerd, of the same age. They were all sitting in the library after dinner except Brainerd, who had gone to his room for something. Suddenly the maid entered all in a flutter and said that her mistress' room window was open and a ladder standing against it. Mrs. Appleby immediately ran to her room, opened a drawer where she kept her jewels and found they were gone. She returned in a few minutes to the library (followed soon after by Brainerd) and reported her loss. Brainerd at once started outside, followed by the others, including the maid and James Cronan, a manservant. All rushed to the foot of the ladder, then started in different directions toward the fence. Cronan suddenly went sprawling on his face, and it was discovered that he had tripped on a wire. This indicated that the thieves had prepared to get away with the booty by retarding pursuit.

"As soon as I had learned these facts I made the usual examinations. The ladder had been kept in a wood shed back of the house. The wire was from a rusty coil that had long lain in the cellar. These circumstances assured me that the robbery had been committed from within. I was questioning young Appleby about the ladder and the wire, his friend Brainerd standing by at the time.

"Your theory is," said Brainerd, "that some one in the house, knowing all about the ladder and the wire, simply put up the one and laid the other to make us think that the robbery was committed by outsiders?"

"I have no theory as yet," I replied, "not caring to give any information."

"All I have to say," he continued, "is that any one inside who was fool enough to take wire from the cellar for that purpose can't be an expert in the business. Was the cellar accessible from without?" he asked of young Appleby.

"Oh, yes. The bunkhead was wide open, and the wire lay on a tool table beside it."

"That alters the case," said Brainerd.

"Of course I investigated Mr. Brainerd. Young Appleby had known him for several years, and he had been coming to the house occasionally during that time. Nevertheless his having been separated from the rest of the family when the robbery was committed looked suspicious, and his remarks about the ladder and the wire, especially the latter, pointed to a purpose that purpose being, first, to divert suspicion from himself; second, to bring out the fact that the wire had been noticed and picked up by the thieves.

"One thing I learned, not by direct question, but by observation. The friendship between young Appleby and Brainerd, which had been the occasion of Brainerd first coming to the house, was no longer the prime reason. He was paying attention to Miss Appleby, and his attentions were not agreeable to any of her family, including her brother. The parents and brother were throwing out hints derogatory to Brainerd, and this was making Miss Appleby very unhappy. This might be indirectly an interference with my work and might ruin my chances for success.

"The very morning after the robbery was committed I had found the clew to the thief—that is, I was thoroughly satisfied in my own mind, but I could prove nothing. I asked Mr. Appleby senior if I might take up my quarters in the house, and he assented. For several days I watched and waited, while wider grew the division in the family, father, mother and son being arrayed against the daughter and her lover. What I was after was the property, and the thief who had stolen it was too sharp to give me any clew as to what had been done with it. When a detective is sure he is right, but can't prove his case, he may often do so by a sudden and vehement accusation. This I resolved upon. I asked Mr. Appleby to assemble the household, every person living under the roof, in the library.

"When all were present I noted the expressions on their faces. My sympathies went out to Miss Appleby. 'I could understand how, though she had implicit confidence in Brainerd, there was a dread lest she might be deceived. At any rate, since she and all the rest were expecting a disclosure, the suspense was intense.

"James Cronan," I said, "you made one bad blunder. After laying the wire you should have noticed more carefully where you had placed it. You fell two yards before you reached the line on which it was stretched and fully a yard to the left of its end."

"I had my eye fixed steadily on him as I spoke and saw him turn pale.

"You have the jewels, and it shall be optional with you to return them or serve a term in state prison. Which do you choose?"

"The man was not a very formidable one to break down, as his management of the case had indicated. He begged for mercy and offered to return the property. I asked young Appleby to go with him to get it, and he brought it from a hiding place between two joists where the roof rested on the wall.

"But the point of interest to me was not in Cronan, at least only so far as he vindicated Brainerd and relieved Miss Appleby of her suspense and her unpleasant position. In the enthusiasm of the moment she came up to me and, throwing her arms around my neck, gave me a hearty smack.

"When the wedding came off I was one of the honored guests."

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symptoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. RELIEF IN ONE MINUTE.

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough and at the same time cleats the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of Coughs, Colds and croup. One Minute Cough Cure is pleasant to take, harmless and good alike for young and old. Sold by J. L. Wooten.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This Remedy liquefies the tough mucus and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces a free expectoration, and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows. This remedy will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment and it leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. It counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, R. L. Davis & Bro. Farmville.

Better Than Gold

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by Wooten's Drug Store.

Railroads Recognize Electric Line.

Cleveland, O., March 2.—For the first time in history, the railroads have recognized an electric line, making a traffic alliance which marks a wide departure in railroad business. The Western New York excursion committee, at its meeting just concluded at Carbridge Springs, elected to membership the Chautauqua Traction company. The action is sensational, since it contravenes a decision made by every traffic association in the United States. There has been a tacit understanding among the steam railroad traffic associations that in no instance should there be any affiliation between the steam roads and the traction companies. There has always been a certain animosity between the two sets of railroads, which has continued to grow as the electric lines encroached upon the business of the elder railroads. These things being understood, the action of the railroads in the western New York excursion committee in accepting into full membership a traction company is all the more remarkable.

Dorothy Dodd SHOES.

The "Dorothy Dodd" Shoe has that something in beauty and style that means individuality.

It possesses "style" in the highest degree; it gives distinction to the foot. In the diversity of kinds there are styles for every person from the exquisite evening slipper to the sturdy winter street boot; they all have a light, airy gracefulness peculiarly their own, which is sure to appeal to a woman's eye. "DOROTHY DODD" Shoes Fit, They Fit Perfectly.

Shoes should always fit closely under and about the instep so as to make it impossible for the foot to slip forward and crowd the toes, while the ball and toes should have plenty of room thus giving free play to the foot.

This is exactly what "Dorothy Dodd" shoes do. Our new Spring Styles in oxfords and sandals will be here very shortly.
