W! go to School.
John M. Taft, one of THE REFLECTOR boys, has resigned his place in the office and leaves Wednesday for Cincinnati to take a business course in a college there. John has been with us about five years, and was always faithful to his duties. THE REFLECTOR regrets to give him up, but at the same time is glad that he has the ambition to fit himself for the highest usefulness in life. He is a good boy and will win success.

The Meeting.
There was another very interesting service in the Baptist church Monday night, and Rev. Mr. Hulson's sermon was followed by several professions when the invitation was given. It has been a long time since Greenville had a series of meetings so fruitful for the Master as this. The service tonight will begin at 7:45.

AYDEN ITEMS.

AYDEN, N. C. April, 12th, 1904.
J. J. Smith took a trip up the road last week.

Mrs. R. M. Prince and sister, Miss Nora Smith, visited friends in Greenville the other day.

Mrs. W. L. House, of Winterville, spent from Friday to Monday visiting her mother, Mrs. Jerry McLawhorn.

Mrs. J. L. Hobgood, of Winterville has been visiting Mrs. J. E. Smith.

Ed Patrick and Josh Mills, of Greenville, were here Friday night.

The Daughters of Rebekah held their regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall Friday night. They have a very large membership.

J. J. B. Cox and daughter, Miss Sallie, of Grifton, took the train here Saturday morning for Washington.

Misses Ida Edwards, Bertha Dawson, Mary Hodges, Georgia Joyner, Delia Smith and Mrs. W. O. Billbro attended the teachers' meeting in Greenville Saturday.

Dr. Palmer, of Hookerton, boarded the train here Saturday for Greenville.

Miss Ebel Hill, of Kinston, came up Friday to spend the day with Miss Ida Edwards. She left Saturday to visit friends at Ormondsville.

Saturday reminded us of old times. There was a large crowd and our merchants were busy all day. They tell us however this is a common occurrence every Saturday.

We are disappointed. A certain young lady promised to come visiting at our house, and now she says she can't. We always did have bad luck, plague take it.

Brunson Tripp had the misfortune to lose $5, last Friday. Bad.

Messrs. Rose, contractor, and Moore, superintendent, are here building the new brick church for our Disiple friends.

Ed Garris, of Littlefield, was here Friday on business.

Don't forget we want that cotton seed oil mill by the fall. Think, you men who have the "spondulicks," there is not less than 100 per cent in such an enterprise. Besides it will bring about that 2500 population we've been talking about. A whole heap can be accomplished with $125,000.

J. A. L. Templeton on Friday afternoon gave a talk to the students of the F. W. B. S. His subject was "Speeches" and was of a very high order. It was instructive and much appreciated.

R. M. Newton was here last week talking insurance.

Miss Katie Newell, aged 22 years, died at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Luke McLawhorn, near here, of consumption, last Thursday. She was the daughter of Dock Newell and a young lady of many lovable traits of character and bore her sufferings with great fortitude. Her remains were interred in the family burying ground at Wick Worthington's Friday evening.

The farmer, unless he is sick, who is not up with his work can only lay it to laziness, blame cussedness or any other old thing, but certainly the fine weather has done it part.

Mrs. Cullifer, an aged lady, died last Thursday at the home of her son, John Cullifer, on the farm of Lorenzo McLawhorn, near here. She was a native of Halifax county, but had been a resident of this county for quite a number of years. She was buried at Bethany church Friday afternoon.

Daughters of Confederacy..

[Reported for Reflector]

The Thomas J. Jaryis Chapter of Daughters of Confederacy met with Miss Pattie Wooten Saturday, April 9th. The meeting was promptly called to order by the president. After the business was over, Miss Wooten entertained us with a contest of the chief towns of North Carolina, Miss Margaret Blow being the successful contestant, the prize for which was a beautiful copy of Lord Byron's poems.

She then served very dainty refreshments, after which we played games.

Voting Miss Pattie a most delightful hostess, we adjourned to meet with a Miss Julia Harris, May 8, 1904.

Little Heroine's Sad Fate.

Washington, N. C., April 10.—News of an accident has just reached this city which happened at Wharton's station on the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, about five miles from here, yesterday afternoon. The Greenleaf-Johnson Company's log train, in backing in at Wharton station ran over two children, killing one instantly and injuring the other seriously, so much so that the physician, Dr. Joshua Tayloe, thinks he will not live. The child killed was a girl 11 years old and the injured tot was a 2-year-old boy. Just before the log train arrived in Whartons the two children of Jesse Beacham went down to the track to play, and while the train was backing in the station the 2-year-old little boy fell on the track, and his sister, realizing his great peril, made an attempt to rescue him and in so doing she slipped and fell on the track. The car wheels crushed her to death, her skull smashed to a jelly and different pieces of her body so mangled she was almost unrecognizable. The boy had his arm and head badly mashed.

Painting the Capitol.

No piece of exterior painting during the past decade has attracted more favorable attention than that which is soon to be completed on the National Capitol. Some fifteen hundred gallons of paint will be applied by a force of eighteen men working about two months. The job is fraught with dangers and difficulties owing to the very irregular contour of the architecture. It is said that one or two of the popular magazines are to print feature articles, showing how the work was done. If such is the case no master-painter should fail to study the methods employed. The paint used is of the ready-mixed order, and was specially prepared by Messrs. Harrison Bros. & Co., Inc. It is said that the firm was aided in securing this valuable contract by the fine reputation enjoyed by their "Town & Country" brand of ready-mixed paints. That the Capitol looks much better than it has in many years is a matter of comment in Washington. It is said that one of the best known architects in the country was so impressed by the improved appearance of the Capitol that he sent congratulations to the Messrs. Harrison on the excellent quality of the paint—From the Paint, Oil and Drug Reporter, July, 1903.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 12, 1904.

Hearst stock is going down about as fast as Parker stock is going up.

Durham is sending greetings to Concord. The latter town also has a smallpox scare and the whole population is being vaccinated.

The Atlanta Journal wants the weather man to take it back and warm it over. Just wait a little and you will want some ice and a straw in it.

It appears that Senator F. M. Simmons will be reelected chairman of the state executive committee. A better selection could hardly be made.

As scarce as vegetables have been and with cabbages selling at 6 cents a pound and rutabagas 2 1/2 cents a pound it looks like farmers close to market would see the profit in putting in more truck crops.

When the two Raleigh morning dailies have nothing else to write about they fall on each other and thus waste much space. What each thinks of the other is of little concern to the reading public.

That was a novel idea of some folks up in a New York town, in giving all the guests at a party a spring chicken as a souvenirs. Wish that fashion would spread down this way and party invitations come often.

Col. W. A. Turk, general traffic manager of the Southern railway, died suddenly in Washington City Saturday evening. The remains were brought to Raleigh for interment. Col. Turk's home was in North Carolina, and this state and the Southern railway lose a useful man in his death. He was a thorough railroad man and his advance in the service was rapid.

With not a house now for rent in Greenville, how do you think the situation will be next fall when more people will be moving here? There ought to be more houses, especially such as are suitable for small families and will rent at a reasonable price. If the town had a good building and loan association there would be more people owning their homes and fewer wanting to rent.

JURY REFORM NEEDED.

Mr. J. J. Laughinghouse wrote a strong letter to the Raleigh News and Observer in which he called attention to some reforms needed in our jury system. He says "One of the greatest obstacles to the proper execution of justice in capital cases is the unfairness of allowing the defendant twenty-three peremptory challenges while the state or prosecution only has four." Further on he said:

"Give each side the same number of peremptory challenges (four in number) and you will see notable changes for the better in the verdicts of juries, justice would also be promoted if the unanimous verdict was not required to convict. One juror for any notion of his own can prevent a verdict with the result that nothing is accomplished except heavy expenses to be paid by the taxpayers of the county. It is not right that justice should be thwarted or defeated because twelve men should choose not to be of the same mind. As matters are now the defendant has to get only one to disagree. The prosecution has to get all twelve to agree. This writer believes it would be a wise step to change the law so that two-thirds of a jury may convict, though there are many people think ten jurors out of twelve ought to be the required number to make a verdict."

Mr. Laughinghouse's position is a sound one and it is evident that a great many people are of his way of thinking. The legislature would do the state a good service by amending the jury system so that justice could be done.

The recent suit by the state of North Dakota against the state of North Carolina is about to lead to other suits of a similar character. A man in New York who owns a lot of repudiated illegally issued bonds of South Carolina, has offered to give $10,000 worth of them to the District of Columbia if the latter will bring suit for the payment of the bonds. It will require a special act of congress for the District of Columbia to accept the bonds.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT RALEIGH.

The prospectus of the summer school shows a faculty of forty four members including officers and an additional lecture list of forty speakers. The lecturers include the leading educators of the state, the governor, state superintendent, Chief Justice Clark and other prominent professional men. The teachers will also have an opportunity to hear Hon. John Temple Graves, of Atlanta, on the "Twentieth Century Woman." Mr. Graves is recognized as the South's most eloquent platform speaker. Polk Miller, of Richmond, with his banjo on "Old Times Down South" and Dr. Currell, of Washington & Lee, on "Dante's Divine Comedy."

The faculty is composed of specialists educated at the leading Universities of this country and abroad.

The course of study is practical and comprehensive. The Raleigh school offers opportunities to teachers never equalled in the state and at such low rates that all can afford to attend.

A copy of prospectus will be sent to any one upon request. It is handsomely illustrated and is well worth reading. 412 1/2 D & SW.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

When you buy a cough medicine for small children you want one in which you can place implicit confidence. You want one that not only relieves but cures. You want one that is pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these conditions. There is nothing so good for the coughs and colds incident to childhood. It is also a certain preventive and cure for croup, and there is no danger whatever from whooping cough when it is given. It has been used in many epidemics of that disease with perfect success. Take Thought for Your Spring Footwear

And remember, while doing so, that it is but the beginning of a long season, and that the shoes you buy now should be bought with a long look ahead. Look as far as you like, if Munford shoes are your starting point. Comfort and style, to begin with, both important factors, and, in addition, the satisfactory lasting qualities that are emphasized by continued wear. Whether you pay $1.90 or $5, you don't get any variation in sturdy durability, its mainly the material used.

HIS GRUDGE?

(Original.)

"Tre heard, suh, that there has been a fight in this place, and one of the contestants took an unfair advantage of the other."

"Yer referin' to the set-to in the Empire saloon last night. Yas; the Texas man shot 'tother feller when he was lookin' down on the floor for a half dollar he'd dropped. They'd had some words about the cards, but none of us 'bout here expects a man to shoot when 'tother feller isn't expectin' nothin'."

"Do you know the Texas man's name, suh?"

"No, sir; he hain't been here long. Why are you concerned about him?"

"I've been lookin' fo' a man, suh, and when I heard that this Texas man had done a mean, murderous trick I wondered if he weren't the man I'm lookin' for. Has he been arrested?"

"Well, no. There ain't nobody here as likes to tackle him."

By this time a number of citizens had gathered round the man who was looking for some one. He was a white headed old man, but very erect and with plenty of vigor, at least in his eye. He was well dressed and had the air of a gentleman.

"There he is now," said one of the bystanders as a man emerged from a saloon and walked across the street.

The stranger started, the blood rushing into his face, then rushing back again. His hand shook. Indeed he trembled all over. Then he mastered himself and said coolly:

"Gentlemen, that's the man I'm lookin' fo'. I request yo' permission to change the co'se of the law somewhat. I would like to fight the 'accused.'"

There was a look of surprise on the faces of those standing by.

"Oh, he'd eat you up," said one of them. "He's young and spry and mean enough to rob a dead nigger. You're too good stuff to buck against a man like that."

"I know I'm not young, suh. How could I be when I served under General Lee in Virginia? Trust me, suh, I've just enough grit left in me to tackle that man—not another man; that particular man."

The stranger turned and walked toward the object of his search. The crowd went with him. The Texas man saw them coming and gave them a defiant glance. Suddenly he recognized the stranger and paled.

"I've found yo' at last, Jim," said the old man, "but I've had a long hunt." Then, turning to the crowd, he added: "This man and I desiah yo' permission to settle a private matte'. Will any gentleman present make the arrangements?"

A representative man was urged forward and at once began to provide for a meeting. The principals were to step back into the "clearing," off the street, stand thirty paces apart and at a signal advance, firing till their revolvers were emptied. The crowd submitted under protest, for they did not doubt that the Texas man would commit another murder. However, some of the onlookers observed that he was growing nervous under the veteran's glittering eye, which was never for a moment withdrawn from him.

Slowly as at a burial, for no one doubted that one at least of the enemies would die, the party passed between two houses and proceeded over crackling twigs through a wood to the clearing. The Texas man and the stranger walked a little in advance, the former peering straight before him, as if to escape the fixed glance of the veteran, who kept his head turned toward his enemy, never for a moment relaxing his gaze. Once only did the murderer turn to meet that relentless glance, and then he shuddered as if the very marrow in his bones had been frozen. One of the followers who held the advance and saw the expression of the old man's eyes dropped back and whispered to another: "That ain't no live man. He's come back from the dead to avenge some wrong."

In the center of the cleared space the party stopped, the manager of the affair examined the principals to make sure they had no concealed weapons, relieving the Texas man of a revolver and a knife, and then placed them in position, handing each a revolver. The master of ceremonies stood with a pistol in his hand waiting for the crowd to get back out of the way. Now that the Texas man was face to face with his opponent he seemed to have passed under a spell. He was cowering under the other's merciless glance, vainly endeavoring to turn his own aside. Then the veteran, as if to give the man a chance to recover his equanimity, turned to the manager.

"We ar' waitin' fo' yo', suh."

The manager with deliberation raised his weapon to give the signal, the veteran still looking at him, then just before the signal turned again to his enemy. The Texas man had apparently recovered from the spell and when the signal shot rang out raised his weapon with the rapidity of lightning and sent a bullet tearing his opponent's coat at the side of the left breast and passing between the breast and the arm. Before he could fire again the veteran had emptied a chamber of his revolver. The Texas man stretched himself upward on his toes (there was a red hole in the very center of his forehead) and fell. His enemy stepped over to where he lay and looked down at him. The fallen man shuddered and was dead.

"Stranger," said the manager. "we're much obliged, and now that the affair is over would you mind tellin' us of the grudge you bore him?"

"I could not do it, suh. I should have to couple with his the name of"—The veteran's voice broke tremulously. "Gentlemen, good mornin'."

And he strode away. BARTON L. INGRAHAM.

Robbed The Grave

A startling incident, is narrated by John Olive of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Wooten's Drug Store.

Good for Children

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. Whiskey and Beer Habit

PERMANENTLY CURED BY

"ORRINE,"

A SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS SPECIFIC

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and stupefies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membrane. "ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. No sanitarium treatment necessary; "ORRINE" can be taken at your own home without publicity. Can be given secretly if desired.

CURE GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Mrs. E. Wycliff, New York City, writes: "ORRINE" cured my husband, who was a steady drunkard for many years. He now has no desire for stimulants, his health is good and he is fully restored to manhood. He used only five boxes of "ORRINE."

Mrs. W. L. D., Helena, Mont., writes: "I have waited one year before writing you of the permanent cure of my son. He took sanitarium treatment, as well as other advertised cures, but they all failed until we gave him 'ORRINE.' He is now fully restored to health and has no desire for drink."

Mr. A. E. L., Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I was born with a love of whiskey and drank it for thirty-two years. It finally brought me to the gutter, homeless and friendless. I was powerless to resist the craving and would steal and lie to get whiskey. Four boxes of 'ORRINE' cured me of all desire and I now hate the smell of liquor."

Price $1 per box. Mailed in plain, sealed wrapper by Orrine Company, 817 1/2 St., Washington, D. C. Interesting book—Treatise on Drunkenness, (sealed) free on request. Sold and recommended by
