FLANAGAN-PERKINS.

Popular Couple Married This Afternoon.

Tuesday evening at his home on the corner of Fourth and Washington streets, Mr. J. J. Perkins gave a pre nuptial reception in honor of the approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Helea, to Mr. Roy Chetwyud Flanagan. This reception was an elaborate social event and was attended by a large number of friends who called to express their best wishes to the popular couple soon to pledge their vows at the matrimonial altar.

The residence was beautifully decorated, the hall, parlor and dining room each being especially appropriate to such an occasion.

The display of handsome and valuable bridal presents was exceedingly large.

The marriage took place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Memorial Baptist church. Here the band of artist was again displayed, the decorations, in green and white, being superb. The windows were darkened, and the soft lights about the altar gave a halo to the scene that made it one entrancing beauty.

Mrs. J. B. Cherry presided at the organ and with her usual grace and sweet touch rendered the wedding march as the bridal party entered.

First the ushers, Messrs. W. H. Ragsdale, L. I. Moore, F. M. Wooten and W. H. Long, passed up the opposite aisles and took their places on each side the altar.

The groom with his best man and brother, Mr. E. G. Flanagan, entered through the door near the altar, and crossing the platform met the bride who had passed down the aisle with her sister, Miss Annie Perkins, as maid of honor.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white lace robe over apple green taffeta, a white picture hat and carried bride roses. The maid of honor wore cream silk tissue, hat trimmed with violets and carried a bouquet of white and purple sweet peas.

The beautiful ceremony that united this happy couple was eloquently performed by Rev. A. T. King.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride where she changed her bridal robes to a handsome traveling suit, and the couple left on the evening train for a trip to Washington City and Boston, to be absent about two weeks.

Mr. Flanagan is a young lawyer and present postmaster of Greenville, and a son of the late Mr. John Flanagan. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. J. J. Perkins, former postmaster. No couple in Greenville have begun their married life with more good wishes than these.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 15, 1904.

Next week will tell the confident-of-winning ones where they are at.

"What Japan is fighting for" is the heading of an article in an exchange. We thought it was fighting to whip Russia.

Even a bogus interview some smart newspaper man works off on the public does not make Judge Parker speak out. He adheres to the theory that "silence is golden."

The Charlotte Observer says real estate in that city has advanced 150 percent in value in the last five years. We expect some in Greenville has advanced almost that much in the same time.

Guns in the hands of children are dangerous things and should not be permitted. The killing of a 16-year-old boy by his little 5-year-old brother, in Charlotte adds another chapter to the list of tragedies occurring by boys being allowed to have a gun.

It looks like Mr. Bryan is overstepping the bounds of propriety and decency when he goes to New York to be the chief speaker at a rally in opposition to Judge Parker. But he has said and done so much that almost anything might be expected of him.

Teddy's color scheme is continuing to have effect. The Charlotte postmaster has recommended the appointment of a negro to a position as clerk in the postoffice in that city. This recommendation was made over the heads of several eligible white men who were applicants for the position.

Mrs. Francis, wife of the president of the St. Louis World's Fair, is a level headed woman. She refused to wear décolleté gowns at fair functions, and when it was reported that she wished to set an example to other St. Louis women, she said "It is none of my affair what other women wear, but as for as myself I consider a low neck gown very poor taste on the exposition grounds."

The only place in the world where four States, Territories, or provinces join, is where the boundary lines of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, and Arizona meet. It is the only "four corners" combination of political divisions of the kind on earth, and the United States has marked the place with a stone monument, the names of the four divisions being inscribed on the shaft.

Are We Losing Our Sense of Sin?

A writer in the current Harper's Weekly makes some sane comments on the recent disapproving remarks of two wellknown Presbyterian ministers about the degenerating moral standard of the American people. Our ideals of the home, it was maintained, have been lowered, we suffer from the social scourge of easy divorce; childless firesides are taking the place of family circles. Things that use to be wrong are wrong no longer. But the American people, comments the Harper's Weekly writer, are intelligent, "and they undoubtedly want to be good. If it is true that just now they are less successful than usual realizing their best aspirations, we must believe that it is only a passing condition born of vast changes, and that presently they will get their bearings again and steer a better course."

CROP OUTLOOK AND THE PRICE OF COTTON.

The government cotton crop report issued on the 5th instant, estimates the number of bales for the coming season—that is to say, 1904-1905—at nearly 12,000,000, while the largest yield hitherto received was only 11,176,000. As a direct result of this publication prices, of course, fell off but The New York World, viewing the matter from a general aspect, that of the sum total of exports, is rather pleased, than otherwise. It says: "At ten cents a pound, 12,000,000 bales would be worth $600,000,000, a magnificent contribution of the southern soil to the national prosperity. The United States raise two thirds of the world's cotton and export approximately three-fifths of its product. The cotton exports for the last ten months ending April 30 were valued at $352,042,222. If the estimates are realized next year's exports, even at ten cents or somewhat below, may turn a still greater volume of foreign balances to our credit. Although December options dropped to 9.77 on Saturday morning on account of the unusually favorable report, the low prices of six years ago need not be feared even if the 12,000,000 bale estimates are actualized. The world's surplus of raw cotton has been pretty well cleaned up in spite of the excessive prices exacted by the corner operators. The demand is likely to be brisk when the American crop is marketed, if present expectations are realized the value of next year's exports of cotton may easily break all previous records in foreign commerce."

Commenting on the above, The Augusta Chronicle says:

This may all be very true, but what the southern farmer is most concerned in is the price of the raw material. Increased production carries with it increased expenditure, and hence, an 11,000,000 crop sold at a fair price means much more to the south than 12,000,000 bales sold for as much less as to make the two sums identical."

Of course, viewing the matter the narrow standpoint of profit on each bale, it is desirable that prices go as high as possible, and yet there is much to be said in favor of a large crop at a fair price as against a short crop at an abnormal figure. If the coming crop turns out only 11,000,000 bales, for instance, and the value is the same in the aggregate as though it had been 12,000,000, there is really a loss to the consumer of 1,000,000 bales and no adequate return to the farmer, for he will have to work just about as hard to produce the fewer number as the larger, the weather, boll weevil, ect., being taken into consideration. There is something exceedingly comfortable in the contemplation that the Southern farmer may bend every energy to raise all the cotton he can confidence that he will get a fair price for it. This is much better for him than that he curtail his production in order to secure an unusually high price per pound. It seems to us that 10-cent cotton means prosperity for the South, and if that price can be maintained without regard to the amount raised, all will be well. In the meantime it is up to the Southern people to manufacture every bale of cotton they can. The raw staple we export the more prosperous we will be.—Charlotte Observer.

There are only 90 cases against the Southern Railway at the present term of the Superior Court. It might be a good idea to have a regular Southern Railway term.—Greensboro Record.

BENSONIZER LUNG CURE

NO MORE EXILE FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

A Cure at Last Obtained, After a Searching Investigation, by St. Louis Inventors.

A few months ago the attention of a few scientific and philanthropic gentlemen of St. Louis was directed to an entirely new method of combating that most dreadful of all diseases, tuberculosis, commonly called consumption. Out of 115 test cases, 77 were completely cured and 28 have shown such improvement that their ultimate recovery is but a question of a few weeks.

So astonishing have been the results and absolute cures in cases pronounced incurable by all old methods that a company has been formed and is now prepared to furnish at a normal cost, this cure to all sufferers of the "White Plague." One of its chief features is that patients can remain at home, surrounded by friends and relatives, and in a great many instances, especially the incipient or early stages of the disease, pursue their daily vocations and still become completely cured.

Patients receiving the same treatment here in St. Louis have completely recovered as rapidly as those in Colorado, New Mexico and Texas. The wonderful results in question have been accomplished by the Bensonizer, and the company which controls this marvelous medical device have located their main office at 417 North Seventh street, St. Louis. They have also located a factory on Easton avenue and a laboratory has been built at Hillside, Mo. The cure will be known as the Bensonizer Lung Cure, and Mr. C. F. Benson, the discoverer of the fluid inhalants which are used, will personally have charge of the affairs of the company. Mr. Benson will personally meet all who call at the office of the company on Seventh street, and will answer all communications from sufferers who are unable to make a personal call.—From the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

He Wasn't Hurt.

Pat was working on the railroad, and was staying at the town hotel with a number of his fellow laborers. Pat's room was on the third floor, up two flights of stairs. One night a severe fire broke out in the hotel. Pat was awakened from his deep slumbers, and immediately realized his danger. He dressed hurriedly, and in his excitement he put on his trousers front side behind. He rushed to the window, and jumped to the ground. He was at once surrounded by his friends, who thought him seriously hurt. "Air ye hurt, Pat? Air ye hurt?" was heard on all sides.

Pat got up, shook himself, and then noticing the appearance of his trousers, said "O! don't believe O!m hurt, but O!m fatally twisted."—Selected.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; anti-septic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and life injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment, Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, R. L. Davis & Bros. Farmville.

Puck's Definition of Eternity.

"Eternity!"
The voice of the preacher sank to a horrified whisper.

"An eternity of torment?" he repeated. "Do you bethink you that eternity is? I tell you it as long as it would seem to you if you are going to the theatre and were waiting for your wife to get ready, and she had eight or nine heads instead of one!"

Here several men rose, haggard, and tottered forward to the anxious seat.—Puck.

Thrown From A Wagon.

Mr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment. For sale by Wooten's Drug store Greenville, R. L. Davis & Bros. Farmville.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets Better than a Doctor's Prescription.

Mr. J. W. Turner, of Truhart, Va., says that Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets have done him more good than anything he could get from the doctor. It any physician in this country was able to compound a medicine that would produce such gratifying results in cases of stomach troubles, biliousness or constipation, his whole time would be used in preparing this one medicine. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville; R. L. Davis & Bro. Farmville.

Less Oratory and More Business.

Old members of the House of Commons are usually of opinion that the debates compared with twenty or thirty years ago, are now more business-like and less oratorical than they were. Some welcome the change, and rejoicing in the greater efficiency of the house as a governing assembly, praise the conversational style of speaking now so much in vogue as less stilted than the old. Others, regretting the loss of the picturesque, distressed that the house should be less attractive as a show, condemn the new manner as more slipshod. There is agreement that the average member takes less trouble with the form and phrasing of his speeches.—London Spectator.

No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville, R. L. Davis & Bros. Farmville.

THE COLLEGE BOY.

Commencements are again over and the days of undivided rest have come to the many students all over our State. Invigorated by the prospect of a summer's outing in the mountains or on the sand banks, his heart beats with new life and the beauties of nature were never before so attractive and enticing. Their young spirits are glad, and from their minds they have put away the cares of the past nine months, have sealed up the door of the disagreeable recollections, have forgotten for the time duties unfulfilled and dues unpaid, and are out for the pleasures of youth and the joys of freedom. It is natural that such is the case, and that the practical side of life is yet divinely discerned, yet they are not too young to reflect for a moment, and to ask themselves if all is well done. Have all our accounts been balanced, and are we really free to enjoy our prospective rest? Young man, think for a moment of the "men behind the guns," the merchant who stood behind his little counter from 7 in the morning until 12 at night and waited on you and credited you with your fruits, your cigarettes, your pads and pencils. Ask yourself is it right for you to leave these accounts unpaid and allow them to drag along as best they can through the dull summer months, watching every mail for an overdue remittance? In a college in North Carolina there is today a man ruined by his "friends"—the boys. His dust covered ledgers are filled with unbalanced accounts under the names of prominent men all over the state. For fifteen years he has served their wants; and such has been his reward.

He is agent man, every inch a gentleman, and too much of a gentleman to do business with such a class. He is only one out of many and he is today the best friend a student ever had. Remember again, young men, the men and women who provided you with food for the past nine months, who barely eared a livelihood in this business, and whom some of you to-day joked to poverty by withholding from them the money sent by your fathers to settle your board bills, and invested it in a trip to some ball game, or in a social society fee, or what not. This is a matter that should be investigated by the authorities of our colleges and universities, and an order should be issued to the boarding houses instructing them to report any such irregularities. There is hardly an alumnus in the university of our State who did not know John Watson, or has liberally heard of him, but few know that his liberality to "the boys" sent him to his grave a poor man, even though in his day there was a fair profit in taking student boarders. There is a passing appreciation for these "heavy lifters" and that is all.

It is to be hoped that the fathers and mothers of our dear boys will bear in their hearts the reflections herein set forth, and will have a care for those who have been friendly toward their absent sons.—Charlotte Observer.

PACTOLUS ITEMS.

PACTOLUS, N. C. June, 15, 1904.

It has been cool again.

Woods is full of fire this week.

Cold waves at this season of the year are not healthy for cotton.

C. E. Bradley went to Greenville today.

Business fairly good Saturday.

B. W. Mosely, of Greenville, and W. R. Whitchard, of Whitchard, were here yesterday buying potatoes. The farmers went back home home smiling over the fancy prices they got.

Johnie Braxton, son of E. L. Braxton, fell from a bicycle Monday and was badly hurt.

Most any direction you may look now, you can see a load of potatoes coming in town.

Farmers are talking turkey and goose now. Turkeys worm his tobacco, and the goose chops his cotton. That's better than paying coons 50 cents to $1 a day.

Don't know whether our town is large enough to have two separate town governments or not, but any way there are two sets of ordinances posted up. In the previous town election the south ward failed to make the proper returns to the board, hence the old board is holding on. The two commissioners who were voted for in south ward have set up a town government within themselves. The charter provides for four commissioners, two from each ward. If two out of the four have the power to transact and govern the other two, lets have but two and set the charter aside.
