New Spring Goods

ARRIVING DAILY.

There is one thing that we do not claim in our business to do and that is to sell goods cheaper than they can be bought—neither do we want to create the impression that our store is full of shop worn, out of style goods nor by filling our store with show bills and sign boards will we try to impress false ideas in your mind that we are going out of business, but we do wish it understood that we are receiving daily shipments of the newest things in and kindred materials so desirable with the womer folk of Greenville and Pitt county, and we do hope that you will at least favor us with a visit to see these many new things.

LIGHTS TURNED ON.

Greenville's First Experience Under Electric Lights.

Greenville's dream for years past to depart from her old ways and don the habiliments of the progressive age have at last come to a realization. The days of the old kerosene street lamps belong to the past and the town now rejoices under the brilliancy of electric lights.

Late Monday afternoon the electric lighting plant was given the first test and about 7:30 o'clock at night the lights were turned on. There was no demonstration save that the people on the streets broke out in a shout when the lights flashed and the electric brilliancy illumined the streets. "You don't tell me this is Greenville!" some one exclaimed who could hardly realize the change that had come over the old town.

The lights were run for an hour and the test of the plant seemed satisfactory. The time for using the lights regularly has not yet been set, but it will be in a few days.

The War is Quiet.

Gunshu Pass, March 20.—The last two days have been utterly without incident except for the removal of the censor to Kudzhin Pass. The Russian rear guard is retreating slowly and engaging in occasional skirmishes. It has now reached a position 27 miles north of Tie Pass.

The Japanese are slowly advancing, without pressing the Russians. In the course of the retreat the Russians are destroying bridges, the railway road bed and highways and carrying off stores and demolishing buildings and everything not portable. Reports of a wide turning movement by the Japanese are no longer being received.

FAREWELL SERVICE.

Mr. Jenkins Closes the Meeting Tonight.

Rev. J. T. Jenkins, of Wilson, who the past eight days has been conducting a meeting in the Baptist church, will close the meeting tonight. Services have been held twice each day, and the sermons have been strong and logical. Mr. Jenkins is a speaker of force and earnestness and the people have heard him gladly and with close attention.

Monday night the subject of the sermon was "The doom of the willful sinner." Emphasis was given to the fact that condemnation comes to those who "do not" the will of God, not primarily the commission of a sin but the failure to believe God and do what He says.

This morning the sermon was on "Obedience," the injunction being to do exactly what God commands under any and all circumstances. It was exceedingly helpful to all who heard it.

As the series of meetings will close tonight all Christians should be much engaged in prayer for a great blessing. The service will begin at 7:30.

AYDEN ITEMS.

AYDEN, N. C., March 21, 1905.

Ayden cordially extends an invitation to the teachers to hold their institute here this summer. We feel we can make their visit both pleasant and profitable. Of one fact we will assure them no pains or efforts will be spared to make the occasion to them a most happy one. We have all the facilities so necessary for such an important event. A nice town well situated. Many churches, beautiful double streets, the very best electric lights, industries of various kinds, residences of the most modern style, a school building sufficiently large and a people who will spare no means toward their enjoyment and pleasure.

Yes we extend hearty invitations to the teachers to hold their institute here. We will welcome them with open arms and beating hearts and can assure them if they will come and remain one month the recollection of their visit will be so pleasant they will wish to come again. As for us we know and feel their having been here will prove a blessing and the memory thereof will gladden our hearts and cheer our souls. Yes, noble band of workers we ask and beg you accept our invitation.

Last Saturday W. E. Hooks in company with a friend started to Grifton. When about three miles from here his horse became frightened and ran away, throwing both the gentleman from the buggy and completely tore the vehicle all to pieces. Mr. Hooks was slightly bruised and his friend also received slight injuries. The horse was hurt, but not seriously so. This is the second runaway Mr. Hooks has had in a very short period.

Last Sunday at 5 o'clock p. m. at the home of Mr. John B. Stocks near Winterville, Mr. W. A. Smith and Miss Sarah Stocks were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by J. M. Blow, Esq. There was a very large crowd present. After the ceremony the party went to the home of the groom in Winterville where they partook of a most elegant supper. We extend congratulations.

The bait at the end of that factory line hasn't even so far had a nibble. How about it gentlemen? Mrs. J. R. Harvey and Miss Bessie Harvey, of Grifton, were the guest of Mrs. J. P. Barwick last Sabbath.

Miss Clyde Harrison, of Cary, has been visiting Mrs. F. G. Bahnam.

Misses Velma Allen and Effie Corry, of Greenville, have been visiting Mrs. Barnes Sumrell.

TUESDAY, MAR. 21, 1905.

Along this time of year human energy gets a test.

When Dr. Olsen chloroforms himself and the Rev. J. Frank Cordova and Cassie Chadwick enter upon their new duties at hard labor in the penitentiary, the country can draw a long needed breath.

The present schedule of the Atlantic Coast Line to Greenville is, in our mind, on the order of the "slow train through Arkansas." On that road it is a common occurrence for hunters to tie their dogs to the rear end of the car—and they keep up.

The president has a great deal of power, but he isn't in it compared with the great oil magnate, John D. Rockefeller. He fixes the price of oil you burn in your lamp, also the gas that is consumed and when you go up against electricity you will find him and the trusts with that brilliant "stuff" fondly embraced. This a power in the land.

GOV. A. J. MONTAGUE.

English Press Correspondent's Opinion of Virginia's Young Governor.

[By J. M. Hines, Correspondent St. Louis Daily World and Industrial Press Syndicate.]

Last year the governors of every state and territory, with their military and civic staffs, their wives, their kinsmen and their kinswomen, all went to see the exposition at St. Louis. The military staff of these governors made a dashing display of gold lace, tinsel trimmings, brass buttons, large plumes in their hats as an ornament to the head gear of the high militia official. Others came and went as though they were the practical followers of Wagner's "Simple Life," to perform a pleasant duty to their state and country. Among the Wagner class was the accomplished and intelligent young governor of Virginia.

It was the day the exposition officials had set apart for Virginia's celebration to be known as Virginia day. Everything that could be done to make it enjoyable and memorable for future history was carried out to the smallest detail. Monticello, a replica of the great statesman, Jefferson's, Virginia home, was the center of attraction for the thousands of people who were on the grounds enjoying what was to be seen at the greatest exposition ever conceived by human mind and executed to perfection by industrious man.

It was as perfect a September day as possible to be. As it began to wear away towards the hour for the ceremonies, people representing almost every nationality on earth began to move towards the terrace row of state buildings in which Monticello was located. In the palace of exhibits placards were up reading "This is Virginia day." On every side Virginia was heard, "Let's go to the state building of old Virginia, see the house and hear the speaking."

By the time the ceremonies commenced all available space in the house, on the lawn and part of the streets was a packed mass of humanity. Hundreds of them were descendants of Virginians who had moved westward as pioneers and located in the Louisiana Purchase. I was accompanied by two prominent English press correspondents representing daily illustrated papers in England. One of them I had met before during the New Orleans cotton centennial. They expressed a great desire to attend the ceremonies at Monticello. They wanted to see the building and especially to hear Governor Montague's address.

One of my friends said he was more familiar with Virginia's history than any other state, and therefore felt more than ordinary interest in the ceremonies.

Being acquainted with the officials I managed to secure a standing room in the building for my friends. When the governor rose to deliver his address the wild, enthusiastic cheering of the people astonished my English friends so much that one of them whispered to me and asked if I thought there was any danger of a riot. I assured him it was nothing but a true, heartfelt American welcome such as is always extended a popular speaker. With that explanation he became quiet and took interest in everything going on. It seemed that everything was auspicious, although the room was packed with people and very warm. While we stood some distance from the speaker, we heard distinctly his utterances and saw every gesture. The governor was in keeping with everything else connected with the affair. He was at his best in voice, looks and speech. His easy, graceful, pleasant and magnetic manner of using the English language with such rhetoric eloquence and dignity, charmed my English friends so much that at the conclusion of the address they remarked that of all the entertainments they had attended during the fair, Virginia day was the most interesting and agreeable. They pronounced the governor's address an encyclopedia of useful and practical facts of American history.

"I was much surprised," said one of them, "to see such a youthful person the governor of old Virginia. I had fancied him to be an aged gentleman, at least seventy, and ripe in statecraft and diplomacy. I was correct except as to his age. It is the way age has been spent whether useful or not in after years. I also observe you push your young men forward to share the responsibilities at a much earlier age than we do in England. From what I have seen and read since I have been in America I think your plan is best. I have made your political situation a study and shall return home a convert and advocate of the young American's political idea of push the young man to the front."

"I have noticed the great success that many of your young men have made in political life. You have two splendid object lessons of this success before your daily gaze in the persons of President Roosevelt and Governor Montague. From reading their own writings and what others have written about them I have become an admirer of both. Since I have seen and heard them speak with such logical and eloquent force, I am more pronounced in my admiration. I venture the assertion that if Governor Montague lives and continues to grow in favor, he may be your president. From the initials of his name, I suppose it stands for Andrew Jackson Montague, a name that is familiar in military and diplomatic circles in England."

There are a large number of people in the United States who fully agree with this English correspondent as to the future of this brilliant young Virginian. "Montague's endless chain" is the heading of a paragraph going the rounds of the papers. The author says Montague has been district attorney, attorney general and governor. He was elected to each before completing his term in the other. A friendly brother adds, he will be United States senator-elect before his term as governor expires unless all the signs of the political zodiac fail. Six years in the United States senate will give him abundant experience in equipping him for doing a transfer business from the senate to the white house by the route of the electoral vote count. How would this read: Andrew Jackson Montague, president of the United States.

The Matter of Immigration.

The legislature recently adjourned did not make provision for the establishment of a bureau of immigration, but it is hoped, nevertheless, that something may be done through the Department of Agriculture toward inducing a desirable class of immigrants to settle in North Carolina. Governor Glenn is deeply interested in the subject, and it is not to be doubted that he will have the active co operation of the department of government just referred to. These two influences working together heartily, may supply in large part the lack of an immigration bureau and a commissioner in charge of it. The subject is one which appeals to all men. We have here great tracts of unoccupied land, some of it very fertile and adapted to almost any of the staple crops. Trucking is in its infancy in North Carolina, and money to be made, is being made out of it. We do not discuss lumbering, for too much of that is now being done. But the opportunities for general farming, for trucking, fishing, mining and other forms of activity are superior, and would be embraced if only the people of other parts of the country and the foreigners who reach our shores are informed of them.

A Dinner Invitation.

After a hearty meal a dose of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will prevent an attack of indigestion. Kodol is a thorough digestant and a guaranteed cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, Gas on the Stomach, Sour Rising, Bad Breath and all stomach troubles. N. Watkins, Lebus, Ky., says: "I can testify to the efficacy of Kodol in the cure of Stomach Trouble. I was afflicted with Stomach Trouble for fifteen years and have taken six bottles of your Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which entirely cured me. The six bottles were worth $1,000 to me." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will digest any quantity of all the wholesome food you want to eat while your stomach takes rest—recuperates and grows strong. This wonderful preparation is justly entitled to all of its many remarkable cures. Sold by J. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

To see that they are informed is a duty which the servants of the people owe them, and in turn the people owe their servants the duty of cordial co operation. There is nothing that the State needs more than an influx of thrifty, law-abiding people who will come with the purpose of making this their homes, and we look for results from the efforts to be made to this end during Governor Glenn's administration.—Charlotte Observer.

A Destructive Fire

To draw the fire out of a burn, or heal a cut without leaving a scar, use DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A specific for piles. Get the genuine. J. L. Tucker, editor of the Harmonizer, Centre Ala., writes: "I have used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve in my family for Piles, cuts and burns. It is the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it on hand." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

By the Tonic Route

The pills that acts as a tonic, and not as a drastic purge, are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They cure Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, etc. Early Risers are small, easy to take and easy to act—a safe pill. Mack Hamilton, hotel clerk at Valley City, N. D., says: "Two bottles cured me of chronic constipation." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

Wood Brothers,
New Sale Conductors,
New York, N. Y.,

Gentlemen:—

While have received considerable financial relief from our over stocked stores and maturing obligation through the sales you have conducted for us since February 1st, we are still in an unpleasant and over stocked position relative to disposing of the merchandise and shall be pleased to employ you to map out a further course for us by which we may be able to dispose of the remaining lots of choice merchandise and enable us to get the quickest relief at the earliest possible moment before receiving Spring Shipments which we have agreed to take. Please give this your best efforts and let us hear from you at once.

Yours very truly,

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 7, 1905.

Mr. C. T. Munford,
Greenville, N. C.,

Dear Mr. Munford:—

Your communication of the 4th is before us at present. Low prices and holding back the cotton crop from market has place hundreds of Solid Southern Merchants in just your position. The only course we can advise, is to throw your entire stock on the market at prices so low you can dispose of the stock quickly and take the sacrifice best you can. Holding together thousands of dollars of idle merchandise means final ruin to any merchant. Advertise diligently give your costumers the best of values. Thereby protecting both you and your costumers' interest. With best wishes for your success. We remain,

Respectfully yours,

WOOD BROTHERS.

HID GOLD IN HIS HAIR.

Trick of a Workman That Turned Him Many a Dishonest Penny.

"Did you ever give thought to the rarity of dishonesty among jewelry artisans? Did you ever realize the infrequency of reports of thefts by them?" queried an aged manufacturing jeweler.

"It really seems that the habitual care for his filings, clippings and the like is the experienced artisan's only consciousness of value; otherwise the gold to him is but a commodity to be modeled into a thing of beauty, not an object for his covetousness or greed.

"The older the artisan the more firmly fixed in this habit. As a rule, it is only the younger aspirants, and but few of these, who succumb to temptation. Once started on a downward course, however, their own self consciousness is most frequently their own accuser to shopmate or foreman.

"Many years ago in a Newark shop where mostly solid filed work was made a seasoned workman observed a quaint habit in a journeyman but recently 'out of his time,' who was seated at an adjoining bench. The latter had very dark hair, wore it long and (it was in days of bear's grease and hair oils) kept it well oiled. He had a habit of pushing his fingers up through his long hair as if to keep it from falling over his eyes. It was further noticed that prior to each such action he dabbed his fingers in the bench pan, wherein had fallen the filings from his work. The habit was not indulged in when away from his seat.

"The foreman, on one occasion when at his back, examining a piece of his work, noticed the sparkle of gold in his hair. Mentioning it casually to an older bench fellow when the latter came to the foreman for stock, the quaint habit was detailed by the older man and set the foreman thinking. He called at the boarding house where the young artisan resided and, being acquainted with the proprietor, learned that the young man upon coming to midday dinner and to his evening meal invariably sought his room first.

"By reason of his freshly bathed face and hands and his well groomed, oily hair when he appeared at the table he was accounted a dandy, but one peculiarity was that of his instructions to the maid who made up his room that she must not dispose of his wash water, as he would attend to that himself.

"It was discovered that he thoroughly washed his hair before each meal, dried it and oiled it and that with each such operation he deposited in his washbowl from one to two pennyweights of eighteen carat gold filings, which had from five to twelve hours in which to settle before his wash water was decanted therefrom. It was a clear steal of three pennyweights or at least $2.50 for each of his working days.

"It is needless to say that after this discovery his silent partnership, with a part of the profits, forthwith ceased.

"Another one of the rare cases was that of a youth whose bench talk about his previous evening's amusements indicated an expenditure beyond his productive capacity as a journeyman. His visits during shop hours to the retiring room were so methodical as to arouse curiosity. It was found that with a pair of pocket scales he balanced against a paper cornucopia of gold filings, an equal weight of brass filings, which he deposited in another paper cornucopia. After his return to his seat he scattered the brass filings in his bench pan. These, being mixed with the larger volume of gold filings in his pan, were finally passed to the foreman as all gold filings, so that his weights tallied with what would be expected from him. But the cornucopia of gold filings was filched by him from his neighbors.

"This would be shrewd one's 'horn of plenty' also was effectually crushed out of existence.

"After all, these two instances being exceptional is why I mention them," and the aged jeweler concluded, with a twinkle of his eye, "I have faith in my men, likewise in the adage that 'it does no harm to watch an honest man, and a thief should be ever watched.'"—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

THE INSURANCE AGENT.

One of the Very Clever Schemes He Uses in His Business.

The modern insurance agent has a sort of painless method of extracting a policy. Here is one that works where a good many others fail.

Jones is an insurance agent, and he meets Brown, who abhors solicitors of all kinds. Says Jones: "You are not looking well these days, Brown."

"That so? I didn't know it. What's the matter with me?"

"Well, you seem to be off color and under weight. I don't believe you could pass an examination for insurance."

Brown sniffs in contempt.

"I don't think you appreciate how strict insurance examinations are," says Jones mysteriously. "It is a good deal harder to get a $10,000 policy than to pass the physical examination for West Point."

"I can do it," says Brown, although not confidently. Jones has touched him in a tender spot, for he used to be a champion athlete.

"Go up to the office and see," says Jones. "You needn't take out any insurance. I just have a little curiosity to see whether you can pass."

Brown has a little curiosity on the subject, too, and he goes to the examination with a little anxiety. The company physician taps him all over, weighs him and pronounces him a "fine specimen of physical manhood."

And Brown is so pleased at his little triumph that he takes out a policy with Jones. — New York Press.

Why We Grow Old.

We grow old because we do not know enough to keep young, just as we become sick and diseased because we do not know enough to keep well. The time will come when a man will no more harbor thoughts that will make him sick or weak than he would think of putting his hands into fire. No man can be sick if he always has right thoughts and takes ordinary care of his body. If he will think only youthful thoughts he can maintain his youth far beyond the usual period.

If you would "be young when old," adopt the suicidal motto, "I record none but hours of sunshine." Never mind the dark or shadowed hours. Forget the unpleasant, unhappy days. Remember only the days of rich experience; let the others drop into oblivion. There is longevity in cheerfulness. — Success.

Whip It Out of Him.

In the schools of a town measures were recently taken to test the children's eyesight. As the doctor finished each school he gave the principal a list of the pupils whose eyes needed attention and requested him to notify the children's parents to that effect.

One night soon after the opening of the fall term a little boy came home and gave his father the following note, duly signed by the principal:

Dear Sir—It becomes my duty to inform you that your son shows decided indications of astigmatism, and his case is one that should be attended to without delay.

The next day the father sent the following answer:

Dear Sir—Whip it out of him. Yours truly,

—Baltimore Herald.

A Simple Remedy For Acquiring Hard Muscles and a Sound Body.

A number 12 bore gun when loaded with three drams of powder will send a load of shot further and shoot harder than if double this amount of powder is used.

If too much powder is used, all of it will not explode until it leaves the muzzle of the gun.

That portion which does not explode at the proper time, interferes with the direction, and checks the velocity of force of the shot.

Hard muscles and a strong body do not depend on the quantity of food, but on its perfect digestion and proper assimilation.

If the nutrient properties of all of the food that may be eaten are appropriated by the blood and tissues, the muscles of the body will grow harder and stronger, whether you eat much or little.

You may be well, but not strong. What you want is strength,—physical force.

You do not have to be sick to need Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.

Thousands of men and millions of women have need for just what Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will do for them.

A little Kodol after meals, will enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate every atom of all of the wholesome food that may be eaten.

It will do more.

It will enable the stomach to extract from the food all its nutrient properties, and contribute the same to the blood.

It will enable the blood to circulate freely and deposit a full quota of this tissue-building and strength-giving material into every nook, corner, muscle and fibre of your whole being.

The result is perfect strength.

And perfect health. Disease cannot lay hold on the man or woman whose physical condition is thus fortified. Recommended by J. L. Wooten, druggist.
