New Spring Goods ARRIVING DAILY.

There is one thing that we do not claim in our business to do and that is to sell goods cheaper than they can be bought—neither do we want to create the impression that our store is full of shop worn, out of style goods nor by filling our store with show bills and sign boards will we try to impress false ideas in your mind that we are going out of business, but we do wish it understood that we are receiving daily shipments of the newest things in

RIBBONS, SILKS, EMBROIDERIES, LACES

and kindred materials so desirable with the womer folk of Greenville and Pitt county, and we do hope that you will at least favor us with a visit to see these many new things:

Pulley & Bowen, THE HOME OF WOMEN'S FASHIONS.

COTTON MILL FOR GREENVILLE.

We Need it, But Will We Get it?
As we go to press many of the business men of Greenville are assembling in the court house to consider the following proposition offered by S. S. Patch, of Richmond, Va:
"To whom it may concern in the interest of a cotton mill in Greenville I have this offer to make;"
"We will subscribe to build a cotton mill in your city, the machinery for an 8000 spindle mill, with 256 looms, and all machinery attached thereto as a capital stock of $45,000, providing you will subscribe the sum of $50,000 to move machinery here, build necessary buildings and put in power plant and operate same."
"In consideration of the above offer, we are willing to submit our machinery to the inspection of any expert mill operators, as to the actual value of same. Being duly authorized by owners of said property to consider or accept any proposition in the disposition of same."
This proposition is signed by Mr. Patch, and we are advised that the machinery is now ready for transportation to this point.
We cannot say what action will be taken on this matter by the business men of our town, but one thing that we can and do say is that we need a cotton mill.

Program for Teachers Meeting, Saturday, April 8th, 1905.

- 10, a. m.—Devotional exercises, Prof. G. E. Lineberry.
- 10:10—Reading of minutes and roll call.
- 10:20—Miscellaneous Business.
- 10:30—A 15 minute's talk by president, Prof. T. H. King.
- 10:45—The Teacher and the Home, Prof. J. D. Everett.
- 11—Paper, The Lesson Plan, Miss Neal.

- 12:45—Deciding by vote where institute shall be held.

No more important meeting has been held during this entire school year, and we would urge every teacher in the county to be present. Don't stay at home and then say you wish the Institute had been held elsewhere. Come and vote your preference.

LETTER TO J. R. MOORE.

Greenville, N. C.
Dear Sir: Saved $30; might have been $90.

Mr. C. L. Frost, builder, Portland, Me, built three houses in Deering, a suburb of Portland, exactly alike. Painted two lead-and-oil for $155 each, for paint and labor.

The third house, he painted Devoc at a cost of $125. (To be continued).

The rest of the story ought to be told a half-dozen years hence. It will be; two houses rusty; one in good condition.

He didn't believe in Devoc. Our agents got him into it. Ask him now—enclose a stamp.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & Co.
P. S. H. L. Carr sells our Paint.

Sent to Jail.

In the mayor's court this morning Eliza Walker and Sallie Ferguson, two women of shady complexion, were arraigned for being riotous and disorderly. After hearing the case Mayor Wooten decided that Liza and Sal should each be awarded ten days board at the expense of the county.

Next on docket came Wilbert Bannard and Henry Brown, both of the opposite sex to Liza and Sal, but of the same complexion. They had agreed to disagree, and were relieved of $1 each and cost for fighting.

STATE NEWS.

Edenton Holds First District Meeting.

Before the State Association of County Superintendents of Schools meets in Raleigh this year, there will be held in every District Association, which comprises several counties, district meetings, for the purpose of interchanging ideas, relating experiences, and giving new views of school work.

The first association meeting of this kind will be held at Edenton, in the Northern District, in April. Superintendent Joyner himself will attend this and all similar meetings. Yesterday he mailed letters to every superintendent in this district which contains twenty counties, as follows:

Chowan, Pasquotank, Bertie, Perquimans, Currituck, Camden, Gates, Hertford, Northampton, Halifax, Dare, Tyrrell, Washington, Martin, Edgecombe, Nash, Pitt, Beaufort, Hyde and Pamlico.

State Sunday School Convention Meets.

The twenty-first annual session of the state Sunday school convention will be called to order in the First Presbyterian church in Raleigh this evening at 7:45 o'clock by Hon. B. R. Lacy, who will preside.

Mr. D. J. Young is chairman of the committee on entertainment, and visitors will be met at the station today.

During the session there will be a meeting of representatives from the young men's Baraca classes over the state. There are many classes in North Carolina, every city in the state having at least one.

Durham and the Southern Hold Consultation.

Col. A. B. Andrews, vice-president of the Southern Railway, was in Durham yesterday in consultation with the mayor and board of aldermen regarding a settlement of the differences between the city of Durham and the Southern Railway.

In the afternoon the statement was made by both sides that there was no statement to give out to the public, indicating that no agreement as yet has been reached.

License Renewed.

In the office of Insurance Commissioner J. R. Young, of Raleigh, licenses were issued for 6,657 insurance agents to do business in North Carolina during the ensuing year, beginning April 1st. Many of these were renewals of annual licenses which the insurance laws of this state requires must be taken out before an agent is allowed to do business in the state.

The University Accepts Carnegie's Gift.

At a meeting of the trustees of the State University on April 1st, the gift tendered by Andrew Carnegie of $50,000 for a library was accepted. The conditions under which this amount is given is that a like sum shall be otherwise raised.

It was directed that a careful canvass be made at once to raise this sum.

No Summer School at U. N. C.

On last Saturday the executive committee of the board of trustees, in a meeting in the executive office of Governor Glenn, decided that there will be no summer school for teachers at the University of North Carolina this summer.

This does not effect the summer school of law, which will be held as usual.

Large Collection.

The A. M. E. Zion church had a grand rally on Sunday last, for the purpose of raising money to liquidate the indebtedness of the church. Rev. A. R. Roberts is the new pastor succeeding Dr. C. O. H. Thomas. Amount collected at this rally was $304.20.

AYDEN ITEMS.

AYDEN, N. C., April 4, 1905.

There may be a decrease in the acreage of cotton, but the output of fertilizers from our observations is certainly a heart breaker.

On the merits of his "ad" in THE REFLECTOR, W. E. Hooks issued four insurance policies in two days last week. A. P. Murray tells us his "ad" has already paid him. Then tell us advertising don't pay. Bah!

C. A. Fair went to Winterville yesterday.

Miss Edie Tripp spent Sunday with Miss Dora Manning in Winterville.

Peter McLawhorn, of Nebern, has been visiting friends here.

Zeb Bynum and Miss Amanda Lewis, of Farmville, were the guests of Miss Anne Joyner at R. W. Smith's last Sabbath.

Raymond Turnage is off on a trip to Charlotte and W. E. Hooks is rusticated in Fremont.

Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Flake and Miss Fleming, of Greenville, left here for their homes yesterday.

The public school taught by Miss Julia Bready near town closed last Friday and Miss Julia has come home to spend the vacation.

What Ayden wants is the institute here this summer. If genuine old fashion hospitality, ample accommodations, amusements of various kinds, every aim and purpose of an appreciative people to please and gratify their guests and any and all things necessary toward the formation and cementing of friendships that will last a life time will be an inducement, then Ayden will have the benefit of entertaining the teachers of Pitt county during the month set apart for their institute. Our people are thoroughly around, truly in earnest and sincerely mean to have them here if by a fair presentation of facts and an earnest desire on our part will convince and persuade them that we mean just what we say, and are anxious to prove to their in no uncertain way every means will be used and every effort made to make it the most successful and pleasant institute ever held in the county of Pitt. We commend the advantages that will be held out to the teachers and believe, knowing them as we do, that they will consider us and consider us favorably too.

Rev. Mr. King and W. J. Munford went to Shermerside Sunday where Mr. King conducted religious services.

Miss Gladys Warren, who has been visiting her grandfather, W. L. Tucker, returned to Falkland Friday.

Elder S. B. Stephens and wife have moved to Greenville.

Miss Nancy Lawrence left Friday for a visit to Greenville.

Mrs. Margin has returned to her home near House.

Mrs. J. T. Harris, of Macesfield, who has been here visiting her parents has returned to her home.

Miss Lena Dawson is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. F. G. Buhmann.

We were very much pleased last Saturday to see Richard Wingate in town and learn he has almost entirely recovered from his recent severe attack of pneumonia. At one time his case was considered very critical.

Mrs. M. D. Higgs, who returned from Baltimore last Saturday, is sick at her home on the corner of Pitt and Third streets.

On account of sickness Editor D. J. Whichard has not been at his office today.

Wonder if the president will hang around Tuskegee any on that Southern trip.

No joking, since that banquet in Greensboro the press has had much to say about a mighty little thing.

After years of observation we are led to believe that the man who uses the columns of the daily, weekly, or monthly paper to advertise his business is the man whose business increases, and who succeeds financially. The exceptions to this rule are few, while thousands of examples stand out as proof to its validity.

The earnestness with which the people of our town are working to get the Teachers Institute to come to Greenville during the coming summer is very gratifying. When our people go at a thing they generally succeed, and the manner in which they have gone about procuring the Teachers Institute foretells success. No other town in the county can offer to the teachers as great inducements as Greenville offers, and the hospitality manifested by our people is unsurpassed. We hope and believe that on next Saturday the teachers of this county will decide upon Greenville as the place for holding the Institute.

Paste Jewels.

One song is worth a score of sermons.

They who hunt trouble rarely come home with an empty bag.

There's nothing like the liniment of another love for a broken heart.

"A stony stare" never yet laid a snare for a man with "rocks."

When the course of true love begins to run smooth, it's an ominous sign.

A woman never appreciates the absolute simplicity of man until she accidentally discovers that, like life, he is all vanity.

It's easy enough to win the applause of the populace if you have the wherewithal to hire the right press agent.

It's a wise woman who keeps her husband convinced that she is a wingless angel.

It's a sad state of affairs when the fire of genius has to warm up "pot boilers."

Clothes don't make the man, but they often influence others in sizing him up.

A man rarely thinks seriously on the subject of religion until the day the doctor is sent for in a hurry.

A coquette keeps one eye on the coming man, even while she caresses the one she has caught.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

It is a matter of supreme satisfaction that the judgment of the State of South Dakota against North Carolina has been discharged in full. We owed the money and it were better that it be paid. To have had sold from the steps of the capitol at Washington stock in the North Carolina Railroad to the amount of this debt, would have been a humiliation which all of our citizens should be glad to see averted.—Charlotte Observer.

Won a Name of Fame.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, have been made famous by their certain yet harmless and gentle action upon the bowels and liver. They have no equal for billiousness, constipation, etc. They do not weaken the stomach, gripe, or make you feel sick. Once used always preferred. They strengthen. Sold by J. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Housework as Recreation.

How many women look upon housework as a recreation and pleasure? In the May Delineator Dr. W. R. C. Latson upholds this contention, with some reason on the principle "Whatever is done as if it were hardship becomes such; whatever is done artistically, on the other hand, is a delight," adding "When housework is regarded as a means of training instead of as a tiresome routine, then each trivial act becomes full of interest and is done easily, quickly and in truth artistically. "I have seen women," he continues, "strong, handsome, active and intelligent, who during a few years of housework have become bent and rigid, sallow and wrinkled, ugly and hopeless, prematurely old. On the other hand, I know of cases where through the proper use of housework as an exercise and a recreation as a method of training mind and body, there has occurred a most remarkable increase in health, strength, weight, ease and grace of movement." The pictures accompanying the article illustrate the proper methods of performing household duties and are suggestive in a high degree.

Forget About Your Stomach.

If your digestion is bad the vital organs of your body are not fed and nourished as they should be. They grow weak and invite disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, cures indigestion and all stomach troubles. You forget you have a stomach from the very day you begin taking it. This is because it gets a rest—recuperates and gradually grows so strong and healthy that it troubles you no more. E. L. Babcock, Amherst, Minn., says: "I have taken a great many remedies for indigestion but have found nothing equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." Kodol digests what you eat, cures indigestion. Dyspepsia, sour stomach, belching, heartburn and all stomach troubles. Its preparation is the result of many years of research. Sold by J. L. Wooten.

Andrew Carnegie says he never said he wanted to die poor, though he expects to keep on distributing his money around as he pleases, probably on the ground that he wants to keep the lawyers from getting much of it after he passes over.—Greensboro Record.

A Tried and True Friend.

One Minute Cough Cure contains not an atom of any harmful drug, and it has been curing Coughs, Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough so long that it has proven itself to be a tried and true friend to the many who use it. Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., says: "Coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. After trying a number of remedies to no avail, One Minute Cough Cure entirely cured me." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

The Right Name is DeWitt.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cools, soothes and heals cuts, burns, boils, bruises, piles and all skin diseases. K. E. Zickefoose, Adolph W. Va., says: "My little daughter had white swelling so bad that piece after piece of bone worked out of her leg. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured her." It is the most wonderful healing salve in the world. Beware of counterfeits. Sold by J. L. Wooten's drug store.

A LOVER OF ROSES.

Stories of Dean Hole, With Whom the Flowers Were a Passion.

Dean Hole, the famous English clergyman, grew roses in profusion all his life and wrote a book about them, which has been translated into many languages. The dean was quick to notice roses wherever he saw them. Often he would stop at a cottage and chat with the owner as to his methods of treating his roses if they were especially good. He was thoroughly convinced of the moral influence of flower growing upon character. "A man who loves his garden is more likely to love his children," he would say. He was anxious that workmen should take a deeper interest in their gardens. In the opening sentences of his famous book he says, "He who would have beautiful roses in his garden must have beautiful roses in his heart."

When a friend with whom Dean Hole was riding one day told him that the rose he had recommended had turned out badly he said: "Robert, I never in my life recommended a person of your profound ignorance to have anything to do with roses. You asked me to give you a list of the best, and I did so reluctantly, knowing that you had neither the taste nor the energy to do them justice. As to the outlay, the animal on which you have recklessly placed yourself and whose hocks are a disgrace to this park cost you, I know, 80 guineas, and for a tithe of that sum, without further supervision or effort, you expect a beautiful rose garden."

Dean Hole was once puzzled by a great lady asking him what he thought of her nose, as she understood he was such an authority on noses. The dean would cap this story by relating how a learned professor was sent down to dinner with a lady who had been told by the hostess that he was a great authority on Buddha. The lady mistook it for butter and plied her companion with questions as to butter and dairy produce, on which he knew nothing.—Chicago News.

Something Wrong.

"Fellow citizens," said the orator at an English political meeting passionately as he brought his fist down with a bang on the table, "what, I ask, are the ministers bringing our country to? And echo answers, 'What?'"

"Excuse me, sir," interposed a man in the audience, rising to his feet. "Did I understand your question to be, 'What are the ministers bringing our country to?'"

"Yes, sir."

"And you say, 'Echo answers, 'What?'"

"Yes, sir."

"Then there's something mighty wrong with the acoustics of this building," said the man in the audience as he sat down.—London Tit-Bits.

'Twas Too Much.

The time for the singing of a great song which had made two men famous had at length arrived. The singer, a dainty creature in simple white, appeared. Her voice, clear as a flute and supple as the lash of a whip, filled every corner of the big theater with lovely melody. The applause which followed her last sweet note was thunderous. The sunburned man in the audience turned to his wife.

"Did you ever in all your life hear anything so beautiful?" he asked. "It was almost divine, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I s'pose so," she replied indifferently. "But, Jack, look at that horrid chorus girl with a hat on just like mine!"—New York Times.

No Romance.

"I saw a woman get off the car backward yesterday."

"Fell on her head, I suppose?"

"No; I caught her in my arms."

"Good looking?"

"Yes."

"Quite a little romance, eh?"

"No."

"It wasn't?"

"No, you idiot; the woman was my wife."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not Always Conceit.

Dribbler—In my opinion, a man who writes an illegible hand does it because he thinks people are willing to puzzle over it. In other words, he is a mass of conceit.

Scribbler—Not always. Sometimes a man writes illegibly not because he is conceited, but because he is modest.

Modest! What about?"

"About his spelling."

Persian Hangings.

The Persians very seldom hang a man for crime. If he kills another he is fined $15 and allowed to go. If he kills ten or twelve and the people finally decide that he ought to be put out of the way he is hanged. But he is not hanged as they hang men in this country. He is hanged by the feet, and a heavy weight is tied to his head. Then he is allowed to die.

Gentlemen:-

While have received considerable financial relief from our over stocked stores and maturing obligation through the sales you have conducted for us since February 1st, we are still in an unpleasant and over stocked position relative to disposing of the merchandise and shall be pleased to employ you to map out a further course for us by which we may be able to dispose of the remaining lots of choice merchandise and enable us to get the quickest relief at the earliest possible moment before receiving Spring Shipments which we have agreed to take. Please give this your best efforts and let us hear from you at once.

Yours very truly,

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 7, 1905.

Mr. C. T. Munford,
Greenville, N. C.,

Dear Mr. Munford:-

Your communication of the 4th is before us at present. Low prices and holding back the cotton crop from market has place hundreds of Solid Southern Merchants in just your position. The only course we can advise, is to throw your entire stock on the market at prices so low you can dispose of the stock quickly and take the sacrifice best you can. Holding together thousands of dollars of idle merchandise means final ruin to any merchant. Advertise diligently give your costumers the best of values. Thereby protecting both you and your costumers' interest. With best wishes for your success. We remain,

Respectfully yours,

WOOD BROTHERS.

Sing Me to Sleep

By AGNES G. HERBERTSON

"I have come to fetch Margot home," he said quietly.

There was a silence. "Do you hear, Margot?" said Jane Greet.

The old woman did not reply. But for the moving needle she might have been carved from stone.

The old woman looked from the girl to her son, from one dark face to the other. They were curiously alike, those two faces, both showing the impress of a strong and stubborn will. They were curiously unlike, too, the varying fires in the girl's eyes leaping out to meet a sober practicality and steadfastness in those of the man.

"Margot, are you ready?" said David.

He waited again, and again the needle went in and out, his only reply.

After a pause, "She says she is not going back to you," said Jane Greet unwillingly.

"She has said that to me, too," said David Greet—"that is to say, she has written it. She wrote it in a hard, cruel letter, which she left for me to read when I came in."

In spite of himself his voice shook. He paused for a moment to steady it. "I shall not believe that letter, Margot. It is unworthy of you. I shall not believe that you mean to do anything so cruel and wicked!"

The words came out with a jerk. "Margot, I am waiting to take you home."

She would not answer. With a quick stride he crossed the room. "You shall speak to me!" he cried. "I am not a dog that I do not deserve a word—though you are not a woman, but a stone, or you would not sit there and refuse to utter it! Speak! Are you or are you not coming home?"

Without raising her eyes, "I am not coming," said Margot Greet.

David turned away, breathing heavily. "There's the weakness of strength and the weakness of weakness," he said. "You can give in to a woman because you're stronger than her, and that's the way I went about it with Margot. But she thought it was the other kind of way, the weak way, and she's had to learn different. There are times when a man must show himself a man if he's to remain one."

He strode away, and Jane Greet brushed the tears from her eyes. "Well, she's with me—his mother—anyway. Folks can't talk to any great length," she thought, with a sigh. Then she went back to the stubborn girl who was her son's wife.

Margot was sitting where she had left her, still sewing. "What are you going to do?" asked Jane. A harshness had crept into her tone.

"I have already told you. I shall find something to do, and I am not going back," said the younger woman.

"If you are not going back you shall find nothing to do. You must stay here with me," said Jane Greet. "I canna have the whole of Keston talkin' about my son's wife."

And so things went on. Margot worked for her mother-in-law only, and her passivity ate into her very soul. But she would not go back to the man to whom she had not yet been wedded a year.

There came a day when Jane Greet met her with an odd look on her withered face.

She had not mentioned the name of the girl's husband since that dark night, deeming it better so. But today she spoke.

"He is going away—my son and your man," she said fiercely. "Mayhap the cruise will take him far and keep him long. Mayhap it will take him so far and keep him so long that he will never return. And tomorrow he goes." She went away, trying to hide her tears. But the lad's wife spoke never a word.

Jane never knew that that night Margot went to look at her old home. For a few short moments she stood in the darkness looking at the windows of the little house which had seen her greatest happiness and her passionate rebellion.

There was no light in it, and she thought David was out till she heard him begin to sing. That was an old trick of his—to sing in the dark. And on the old harmonium he could pick out just the few notes he needed.

How well she knew the song! He sang it with a little break in his voice, and she knew who had put that break there:

Love, I am so lonely, years are so long,
I want you only, you and your song;
Dark in life's shore, love, night is so deep;
Leave me no more, love, sing me to sleep.

For a moment after the deep voice had died away she stood there, one hand pressed close upon her breast, shaken with the conflict between pride and passionate regret.

But pride won, and she moved at last only to go back to his mother's house.

He was gone long, and Margot grew pale and thin, but she uttered never a word.

"Girl, you have no heart—you are as cold as a stone!" old Jane burst out passionately one day—that day when news came that David

Greet would never return to the little fishing village, but lie instead in the lonely sea! Still David's wife would not speak, but at night she stood by her window and looked up at the clear stars with a white face.

"I think I must have a heart, for I can feel it break," she said when there was none to hear her.

But the rumor was a lie, and he came back.

"He has done well and has come back right, Margot," said the old woman. She looked at her daughter-in-law with uncompromising eyes. "He could give you fine clothes now and the best looking house in Keston."

Then for the first time was Margot's calm broken, and she was moved to speech. "I will never go back to him!" she cried fiercely. She threw down her work and left the room.

How was Jane to know that in that moment her heart was stolen from her, and she felt in its place but a lump of heavy gold that tore her breast? Wherever she went she felt it there, and it hurt sorely.

When she passed David in the street her fingers shook, but that weight in her bosom pressed, and she remembered his gold and passed on. Oh, it was ill to be without a heart and have only a lump of gold that must always stand between herself and the man she loved!

"He is rich now," said Margot, and she was careful that she did not meet him again. She spent much time in planning that her ways might not touch his.

In the evening she sewed still, and she was sewing when Jane Greet came to her with the news which she thought so ill.

"Oh, you were a wise woman, Margot," she said, "to keep away from such a fool. No one but a fool would lose all his money in going security for such a man as John Stanton is. David is a rich man no more. Every penny that he brought back with him is frittered away and all else that he had besides. Be thankful, Margot Greet, that you are not my son's wife in anything but name!"

She went away, a red eyed and furious old woman, but Margot sat on like one stunned.

Then she arose and put away her sewing. She did not set it on the little table, as she always did, but rolled it up and, with a curiously impatient gesture, set it away in old Jane's drawer.

"That's finished with," said she. Yet the sewing was not nearly done. Afterward she put on her hat, and the shawl which she usually put over her head when she ran out she crossed upon her arm. She cast one look around the little room and toward the staircase where Jane had disappeared. Then she opened the door and went into the street.

That was curiously quiet, and there was a fog. It was but one short year since Margot Greet had quarreled with her husband and gone away.

She found her way through the streets and around the corners just as surely as he had done, but she was not unconscious of the way she wound. The consciousness of that shook her through and through and would have shaken her still more had she but had a heart left with which to feel.

David's pane made a little disk of light, which greeted her kindly, yet it hurt, for it reminded her of the yellow gold in her breast.

But he was singing, this time in the light, and she paused to hear:

Sing me to sleep and let me rest;
In all the world I loved you best.
Nothing is faithful, nothing true,
In heaven or earth but God and you.

It was not true, that song of David's. She had not been true to him or faithful, but she would be now. Tears came into her eyes, and as they ran down her cheeks something broke in her breast and melted away.

David's light smiled kindly at her as she opened the door and stepped into it, leaving the fog and gloom.

"David," she said simply, "I have come."—Black and White.
