BETHEL GRADED SCHOOL.

Very Interesting Commencement Exercises.

The graded school at Bethel, under the superintendency of Prof. J. D. Everett with a faculty consisting of Misses Maggie Nelson, Blanch Mayo, Mattie Grimes and Lilla Mann, has just closed a most successful term, the third year of the school. The enrollment for the term reached 200 and the school is doing a grand work for the town and community.

The commencement exercises just held were a marked success and reflected highest credit upon pupils and faculty. Monday night there was a concert at which a delightful program was rendered. Tuesday morning the address was delivered by Dr. Calvin S. Blackwell, of Norfolk. He was introduced by Rev. J. T. Eubanks.

Dr. Blackwell's subject was "Grit, Gumption, Grace." For an hour and a half he uncovered a mine of wisdom and truth, interspersed with gems of wit and humor, that was a rich treasure to the large audience. He gave grit as the iron of life, gumption as the silver and grace as the gold. We never accomplish more than we dream. Our attainments are what we have already dreamed out and planned. We make mistakes of course, but every mistake should be used as a step toward victory. It requires grit, courage, determination to win success. There is no success in gall or chance, but we must have grit. Concentrate effort, be a specialist in some direction, master one thing. Brawn is daily decreasing in value while brain is increasing.

Dr. Blackwell emphasized the value of education (though he said it was nothing without character) and said that every day between the ages of 7 and 17 that a child is kept from school it is being robbed. It was a magnificent address. After the address County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale in a few appropriate words in behalf of the school and community expressed appreciation of Dr. Blackwell's excellent address. He also congratulated the people upon the interest they are taking in the school and urged that every child in the community attend the next session.

In the afternoon there was an interesting debate between the young men of the school, the query being "Should the United States increase her navy?" The decision of the judges was for the affirmative.

A gold medal was awarded to Joe Bowers for making the best record in studies and attendance through the session. The presentation speech was made by Julius Brown. A fountain pen was also awarded to Miss Lurline Thomas for best improvement in penmanship. This was presented by J. C. Catson.

Tuesday night another splendid concert was given by the pupils. A most interesting feature was the presentation of the play "The Deacon." The characters were well taken.

The people of Bethel certainly have cause to feel a pride in their graded school.

QUINERLY GRADED SCHOOL.

Closing Exercises Held Tuesday Night.

We heard a speaker say "the rural schools are the hope of the country." In Pitt county we are measuring up to this hope and the past year has shown remarkable development along educational lines. Not only have the town schools improved, but the rural schools have kept pace with them in the march of progress.

One of the best of the latter is the Quinerly graded school, at Centerville, in the Southern section of the county. The people of that five section come together and put up a splendid building and established a school that can not be surpassed. Misses Eugenia Harris and Rosa Quinerly were secured as teachers and enrollment was large.

The commencement exercises of the first session took place Tuesday night and the large audience was delighted with what they witnessed. There was a delightful program of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and drills that showed thorough training and preparation. Every pupil seemed perfect in the part taken. Little Miss A. Kilpatrick, the baby eloquentist, gave several charming recitations.

The address of the occasion was delivered by Dr. James Dinwiddie, president of Peace Institute, Raleigh. His subject was "Character Building" and he gave his hearers much food for earnest reflection. He said if you get a person to do right because it is right and refuse to do wrong because it is wrong, and stand by this decision though the heavens fall, you have won a soul. He emphasized the importance of building wisely when we go about training or influencing a being for life and eternity. As a small stone near the fountain head will divert the course of a stream, so a single act may change the trend of a life and turn its course upward or downward. We are not controlled by our wills, but our wills do what our characters direct.

At the conclusion of the address County Supt. W. H. Ragsdale spoke with interest and earnestness of the educational progress throughout the county and especially of the excellent work done in this school. He congratulated the people and also thanked them and the trustees for the manner in which they had cooperated with the county board of education.

Dr. Martin at School

This morning Dr. Martin and son, Elbert, attended the opening exercises at the graded school and gave a most interesting and entertaining talk on Cuba.

The teachers as well as the pupils listened carefully throughout and enjoyed to the full the recital of some of the gifted speaker's experiences in the "Pearl of the Antilles," while there in the interest of the U. S. government under the direction of the late President McKinley.

The Dr. was delighted with the excellent department of the scholars and congratulated Prof. Dove again and again upon his excellent management and assistance of such a splendid corps of instructors.

It was with regret that Dr. Martin had to decline an invitation to stay and see the work of the various departments.

He invited the children to attend the revival services as often as possible.

Five season for setting out tobacco plants.

The "Martin Family."

Tuesday night brought out larger crowds to the Christian church to hear the eloquent and earnest preaching of Dr. Martin, and the music so beautifully rendered by his family.

The sermon was based upon the text "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The subject being "The great confession."

Dr. Martin said in part that the greatness of Jesus Christ is and has ever been conceded by the great men of ages down to our present time. That none but a small man, small in mind and narrow in vision, thought Christ an insignificant quantity.

The power of the Christ permeates all art, science, civilization, and education, and dominates the statesmanship of the world today.

In a eloquent peroration the young men were especially urged to start life right and to start now. Tonight the subject will be "The one great certainty of life." Services at 8 o'clock and every afternoon at 3:30.

Our Spring Suits are splendid specimens of modern tailoring.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1905.

Russia's internal troubles continue to be as bad as the war. The way they are shooting down their own folks now will be left as targets of the Japs if it keeps on.

When life insurance companies can afford to pay their presidents $100,000 a year, for doing nothing, it leads the belief that something should be done to make insurance cheaper. People want and should have insurance, but when they have to pay more than is just for it they are being robbed of that much.

A 16-year old mountain girl has proved herself a heroine. There had been a heavy slide at Mud Cut, on the Southern railway, which blocked the track and the girl flagged down an approaching train in time to avoid a wreck. A little thing apparently, yet the act of a heroine that saved life and property.

THE CONTENTNEA CREEK COUNTRY

Beautiful Farms and Hospitable Homes.

[By J. M. HINES, Correspondent of the St. Louis Daily World and Industrial Press Syndicate.

Level Lawn Farm, Pitt Co., N. C., May 1, 1905.

This portion of Pitt county known as the Contentnea section was settled in the early part of the 18th century by people from tidewater Virginia. Among that colony of pioneers were the Mays, Bynums, Joyner, Tysons, Langs and Jeffersons. They located along the banks of Contentnea creek on both sides for many miles. They bought land from the Lord English proprietors in large tracts at one-half penny per acre. They found the country heavily timbered with the very finest kinds of virgin forest, hickory, pine, maple, ash, sycamore, gum, poplar and different kinds of oak. The streams were alive with many varieties of food fish, water fowls and small fur bearing animals. The forest was stocked with large and small wild animals and game from which they obtained their meat.

They cultivated enough land to raise Indian corn, beans and garden truck. Their wants were but few and were easily supplied. They lived a life of ease and plenty such as it was. They had their pastime and pleasures and amusements suited to their tastes and conditions with the same degree of enjoyment as their descendants do today.

As their population increased there was a demand for more progressive farming and manufacturing. They needed mechanics, such as black smiths wheel rights, harness and saddle makers, carpenters, furniture makers to supply the increasing demand of the new settlers in the little colony of Virginians. Consequently more land had to be cultivated on which to raise corn for food and cotton for clothing.

From that date to the present time the same progressive spirit has existed among the descendants of the first settlers of the Contentnea country. They married, multiplied and populated this section with a strong, hardy, industrious and patriotic class of people. When the American revolution first fired the patriotic hearts of these people, they laid aside every tie of home and banded themselves together to fight for liberty. The "old men, the young men and the boys of Contentnea" were ready and willing to respond to any call in behalf of American independence.

Benjamin May, one of the most prominent of the colony was selected as chairman of the committee of safety. They had confidence in his loyalty to liberty and to his people and were willing to follow wherever he might direct or lead. He was honored with the colonial military rank of major, which followed him through a long and useful life.

A certain writer of the last century said that to write of the early history of Pitt county and not mention the names of Major Ben May of Contentnea, and Dr. Robert Williams, of Falkland, the article would be incomplete and would not reflect much credit to the author. This end of old Pitt can always produce the man or men for any emergency either as pioneers of the unexplored forest or soldiers on the battlefield, the orator on the rostrum, the minister of diplomacy or the farmer to till the soil.

This is strictly an agricultural section of country and is considered by all strangers who visit here to be one of the most beautiful farming sections in Eastern North Carolina. The farmers of Little Contentnea creek have long since been and are at present regarded as among the most progressive of any class of farmers in the adjoining counties. They reach out and grasp new ideas, as to the best methods of cultivating and improving their lands. They improve their live stock by importing the best breeds. They raise almost everything they consume on their farms in the way of food for man and beast. They have always kept up the very best private schools to educate their children. Four years of devastating war at its close left most of them without anything but land. They had to start anew. But they have been equal to the emergency, and have overcome what looked like an impossibility. Prosperity has been their reward for hard labor to many who returned to their homes broken in health, and ruined in purse, with nothing to start life with again but brave hearts and willing hands.

Among those brave Confederates, who returned from the cruel war, after serving his country with distinction, to his once happy and prosperous home was Dr. J. N. Bynum. He did not halt and wait for something to turn up. He went forth to turn something up, that he might feed his devoted wife and children. He went to work on his farm with his usual energy and continued to press forward until his energy was rewarded with affluence. He lives on his beautiful and well cultivated farm, "Level Lawn." He has fine live stock of registered breeds, his fowl yard is stocked with many varieties of the finest fowls. In his orchards and vineyards are to be found many kinds of the most delicious plums, pears, peaches, apples and grapes. In addition to looking after all of the minute details of his farm he enjoys a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Bynum is the oldest practicing physician in Pitt county. The people of this section (Contentnea) have always been noted for their true and liberal hospitality, strangers always find a welcome within their doors.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates on experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Cholera, Colera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale at Wooten's Drug Store.

Strictly Genuine.

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison, Kan., Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Pacific between Wichita and Klowa, lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in the office today, we asked him about it. He says terrific pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Just as surely as the sun shines your stomach can be brought back to its originally pure condition and life sweetened by this lasting and truly the greatest digestant known. Sold by Jno L. Wooten.

Bilious Bill was getting bloated, and his tongue was much coated. Patent "tonics" wouldn't cure him. Companies would not insure him. All his friends were badly frightened, but their spirits soon were lightened.

For Bill said—and they believed him, EARLY RISER pill relieved him. The famous little pills "Early Risers" cure Constipation, Sick Headache, Biliousness, etc., by their tonic effect on the liver. They never gripe or sicken but impart early rising energy. Good for children or adults. Sold by Jno L. Wooten.

Sour Stomach

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville.

Hot Weather Piles

Persons afflicted with Piles should be careful at this season of the year. Hot weather and bad drinking water contribute to the conditions which make Piles more painful and dangerous. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve stops the pain, draws out the soreness and cures. Get the genuine, bearing the name of E. C. DeWitt & Co. For sale by Jno L. Wooten.

ROUTED THE WILDCAT.

Both Man and Beast Were Scared by the Encounter.

"The wildcat is a vicious animal, but you can bluff him if you go about it in the right way," said a man who has had some experience in the wilder section of the country, "and I say this because of an experience I had some years ago in Arkansas. I was a stranger in that section of the country and in fact had never had experience of any sort in the wild regions of the country. I had gone into Arkansas from another state right after the war for the purpose of looking after a real estate venture in that section of the state of which Jonesboro is now the thriving and prosperous center. At that time railroads were scarce in Arkansas, as in many other states, and there were long stretches of country not to be reached at all except by traveling through the densest kind of wilderness. This was precisely what I had to do when I went into that section to look after the real estate venture to which I have referred, and it was on this occasion that I had my first experience with a wildcat. I was jogging along through the swamp when suddenly from a tangled and matted canebrake I heard a shriek which almost lifted me out of my saddle, and even the sober sided, poky horse I was riding was jostled out of his lazy mood and showed a disposition to shy a little bit. I did not know why I did it, but for some reason I put forth a shrill shriek that simply made the wilderness shake. The cane began to pop in the direction from which the wildcat's cry had come. The animal was making for tall timber. I had evidently convinced him that he was just about face to face with the king of the forest. At any rate, he scooted. I guess I must have been frightened when I shrieked an answer to the piercing cry of the cat, though I did not realize it, or it may have been lingering traces of the primitive man something a trifle more savage and more animal-like than we know in our refined environment. Evidently the wildcat was badly frightened by the defiance and loudness of my shrill answer, and it taught me that a bluff might be a good thing in times of danger of attack from wild animals, just as it is a good thing sometimes when we are dealing with our own kind." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Main Thing.

"A village client of mine had been trying through me for seven years to collect a claim against the government," said the lawyer, "and at last the claim was allowed, and I received a check for $8,000.

"As the man was poor, I knew that this would be a great windfall for him, and it was with considerable exultation that I put the check in my pocket and started for the house. The man himself was away somewhere, but as his wife answered my knock I showed her the check and called out:

"At last, Mrs. Davis, at last!" "What is it?" she asked. "The claim has been allowed, and here is a check for $8,000!" "Yes, I see," she answered, "but please don't talk quite so loud or you will wake the baby up!" —Chicago News.

The First Coffee.

In the year 1285 a dervish named Hadji Omar, a native of the town of Mocha—hence the familiar name—was lost in an Arabian desert and was dying of hunger when he discovered some small, round berries, but, trying to eat them, found them, to his disgust, impossibly bitter. Then he tried roasting them and finally steeped a few thus roasted in water. Naturally this was coffee, and, though of the worst description, so agreeable did Hadji Omar find it that as soon as he could make his way back to his native town he introduced the wise men of the city to this new drink. So well pleased were they with it that the dervish was made a saint.

The Usual Form.

This story is told by a Georgia congressman. One day an old negro asked his mistress, a woman of unusual education and refinement, to write a letter for him. "Write it to my gal."

"What shall I write?" asked his mistress good naturedly. "Waal, I dunno, but jest say, 'Notwithstanding.'" A few lines were written, working in the desired word.

"What next?" "Waal, missis, jest tell her to 'seuse bad spellin' and writin'!"

Relieved From One Job.

The new spirit had just arrived in inferno. "No," grinned an imp, "we never let the fire go out." "Thank goodness!" replied the shade. "Then I won't have to take the stovepipe down!" Gnashing his teeth, Satan perceived he could not do his worst. —New York Tribune.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me.
