"EFF" Mary had a little lamp
The Vapo-Treslene
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamp was always seen,
For Mary had the whooping cough—
She would cough, cough and cough
And but for Mary's little lamp
She'd cough her head right off,
But every night by Mary's bed
The faithful lamp burned bright,
And Mary's cough and parents too,
Could rest the whole long night

Ideal Clothes are not easily defined, but it's easier to define than to make them. Ideals vary, what satisfies one man doesn't please another. That's what makes ideals an index to character, and also what makes ideal clothes difficult to produce. There are some general principles, however, and good quality is one of them.

The Style of Your Clothes

the pattern, the price you pay disclose your taste and common sense, but the quality is an index of character.

If you pay an all wool price for "mercerized cotton" fabrics that shows that you are easily "flimflamed," but your ideals may be good. If you willingly buy and wear the "mercerized cotton" adulteration, because it looks good, and nobody knows the difference, that's another indication. Maybe you govern your conduct by the same test.

Be an All-Wool Man

when it comes to buying clothing. Your clothes can be as good as they look if you say so. Our label means all wool and best workmanship, it is a small thing to look for, a big thing to find. Let your next suit have

REWARD FOR HEROISM.

Capt. Ola Forbes Receives Beautiful Gold Medal

Capt. Ola Forbes, of the gas boat Altoire, that plies between Greenville and Washington, was made very proud by the receipt of a package that came to him Wednesday evening through the express. It was a handsome case containing a beautiful gold medal, and was presented to him by G. B. Gomprecht, of Baltimore.

The pin from which the medal is suspended bears the name in gothic letters Capt. Ola Forbes. The front of the medal bears the inscription in script letters arranged as follows:

Presented
For his heroic deed in saving my life in Tar River
N. C.
From

G. B. Gomprecht.

On the reverse side of the medal is engraved a launch and the date May 5, 1905. The design and workmanship of the medal is exceedingly beautiful and Capt. Forbes is justly proud of it.

It will be remembered that Capt. Forbes was coming up from Washington on May 5th, and had several traveling men on board his launch, and a mishap on the way gave them a thrilling experience. He bravely rescued Mr. Gomprecht from drowning. A graphic account of the rescue was given in THE REFLECTOR at the time. Mr. Gomprecht was very grateful to Capt. Forbes and felt that no praise was too great for his heroic deed. He sends the medal as a mark of his appreciation.

RARE OLD MONEY.

United States Confederation Bill of 1778.

There are many specimens of rare coins and currency in existence, but we have not seen a more unusual one than has been shown us by E. A. Moye, Sr. It is a $10 bill, printed in black on white paper and is 2 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches in size. It is a United States note and says on its face "This bill entitles the bearer to receive forty Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to a resolution passed by congress at Philadelphia, Sept. 26th, 1778."

This bill of currency is so old that some of the printing on it has become indistinct, as has also the written signature. On the side bearing the certificate printed above is a disc with an altar in center and an eye above shedding rays upon it. In a circle around the altar are 13 stars, the word "Confederation" circling the lower half. On the other side is a picture of plants that resemble tobacco.

Mr. Moye has had this old bill of currency many years and prizes it highly. He also showed us an old 5 cents shin plaster.

Burial of Mrs. Randolph.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy Randolph, who died Wednesday morning, took place this afternoon. The remains were taken from the home to the Baptist church, of which she was a devoted member, where services were held by Rev. A. T. Kink, of Richmond, former pastor, assisted by Rev. H. H. Moore. The body was taken to the old home place in the country and interred. The pall bearers were Messrs. G. F. Evans, J. G. Bowling, D. C. Moore, S. M. Schuitz, J. R. Moye and C. T. Munford.

THE WEATHER

Partly cloudy tonight showers and cooler in extreme western portion. Friday fair cooler in the interior.

DOPE FOR THE FANS.

Curves From the Pitcher's Box.

Can't "old Bull" Thompson pitch base ball? Well, maybe Burt didn't play second base Wednesday. See him figure in that double? He scooped 'em up like an old timer Gussie says, he can't catch 'em unless they are hit out of the diamond.

Paul Metrick says, "I tell you what's a fact, when they get a hit by short it's got to be a hit, ain't it?"

"Pap" Harris was in the game from the start.

"Bull" says he did not use much speed Wednesday. What he did use sho' did look good.

"Tige" says, "Der luck vas mit us." Well, I should smile.

Washington was sore this morning, cause - Greenville 5, Suffolk 0. They would have given $500 for it to have been the other way.

How was that catch in the right garden when Suffolk had two men on bases, and one out?

To win a girl in Greenville now, take her to a ball game, and give her a megaphone. Huyler's h.s. lost it's charm.

John Ivey caught like he was use to it. It's a pity about his lip, for Jack usually has a handsome face.

Rowe is all right for tomorrow. The "easterners" say we must win. So guess we must.

Well it does look good for us the way the team showed up Wednesday.

They certainly played winning ball.

Haywood Dail says racing Codine ain't in it with base ball the way we are playing now.

That catch of Turner J., on short was highway robbery of Suffolk. It was hair raising.

THE VERY BEST.

Greenville, N. C., June 22, 1905. Mr. F. M. Hornaday, Insurance Agent, Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir:

When I was approached by you for an engagement to show us the contracts of the Security Life and Annuity Company of Greensboro, N. C. I allowed you a hearing simply through courtesy. However, I soon saw the great advantage of insuring in a home company, and I now have one of your Dividend Addition Policies which is to me, the most desirable contract that I could procure any where.

I have carefully compared your rates with the rates of companies outside the state, and I find that I am receiving the very best protection for a lower rate than I could get elsewhere.

Yours very truly,

CLOSS W. HEARNE.

A PRETTY GAME.

Greenville Gives Suffolk a Shut Out.

It was a good game you missed if you were not at Arthur's park Wednesday. It was one of those unusual one hour and thirty minutes games; resplendent from start to finish with thrilling, hair raising, sensational plays.

Yes, indeed, it was a snappy game, a game that was thoroughly enjoyable. Doubles and lightning singles made it fast, and there was fun enough to amuse the grand stand. The funny man in left field was a rare treat to the ladies and babies. Well, didn't he have bushy hair and couldn't he jump?

It is a pleasure to have a team like Suffolk come to Greenville. They play fast, clean, gentlemanly ball, and can take a defeat gracefully, and in good humor. They are planning for another trip up this way.

Five to nothing was the score. That looks bad for Washington. It is a pity that such a game as shown by the tabulated score below, should have been patronized by no larger crowd. Don't miss tomorrow's game, it will be still better.

Tabulated score:

THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1905.

Trying to keep cool is mighty hot work these days.

The Suffolk ball team laid 9 goose eggs out at Arthur's Ball Park.

If the war could end at once Linevitch could escape without having a sinking spell.

Governor Folk has an all summer job on his hands in attempting to break up betting in Missouri.

We are a little surprised that Greensboro did not make a bid for the Japo Russo Peace Conference.

We are glad to learn that Col. John R. Webster, editor of Webster's Weekly, at Reidsville, is improving.

Is luxury a menace? asks the Savannah News. It may be, but we are perfectly willing to try it the rest of our life.

The old story of the fellow who tells his lady love that he is not worthy of her is never found out by his lady love until after she is married to him.

The Norfolk Virginia-Pilot reports that a snake was seen there Saturday crawling on the street. The only thing strange about this story is that the Pilot don't say whether the snake was accompanied by monkeys and alligators.

We learn that some farmers have decided to take their plows and turn their potato crop up side down. This is mighty tough on our farmer friends. The farmer who planted for a $1,000 crop is just about that much in the hole now.

"Most men like women in plain, simple clothes," quotes the Houston Post. Not altogether most men like to see their wives in handsome clothes, but a great majority can't afford to see their wives in handsome clothes. Therefore, they prefer the simple fabric.

A young man in a New York town dreamed the other night that he had fallen heir to $15,000, and strange to say, the next day his dream came true. This is out of the ordinary. Usually when a person dreams that he has suddenly become heir to a fortune, he only wakes in the morning to find that he has been riding a night mare all night.

Governor Joseph E. Folk, of Missouri, in his address at the commencement at Vanderbilt University said:

"It is one thing to be against wrong; it is quite another thing to fight wrong. One is a non-combatant that never won a cause, the other a soldier in a fight. Good citizens need to become more aggressive. The man that is afraid to show his colors, and stand in the open against evils, is of little benefit to good government. The country needs soldiers of peace as well as soldiers of war. Monroe proclaimed the doctrine of America for Americans. The Missouri doctrine invites that phase and applies it both ways. Americans for America is the slogan that needs to be sounded now."

Handsomest and largest stock of Iron Bedsteads at S. M. Schultz.

It is now reported that several representatives of this country are to go to the "pig tail" state to investigate that boycott of American manufactured goods. It has developed that such a movement is on foot in China. We clip the following from the Danville, Va., Bee, which we think in a measure explains the cause of this threatened boycott. It says:

"We know perfectly well what circumstance has furnished the provocation for the boycott. It is not the mere existence of a law in this country excluding certain classes of the Chinese from our shores, but it is the harsh method of enforcing that law. The law itself is based upon a treaty to which China is a party, but the method of its enforcement has been such as to render it extremely offensive. This being the case, there is reason to doubt whether it was worth while to send men to China to locate the trouble. The trouble is not there, but here. What calls for investigation with a view to its modification is the method of our immigration officials. They should try to remove the cause of the irritation, and the indignations are that the cause is in this country."

Quality vs. Quantity

Hard muscles and strong body do not depend on the quantity of food you eat, but on its perfect digestion and proper assimilation. When you take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure your system gets all the nourishment out of all that food you eat. It digests what you eat regardless of the condition of the stomach and conveys the nutrient properties to the blood and tissues. This builds up and strengthens the entire system, overcomes and cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Belching, Sour Stomach, etc. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for what is sometimes called America's national disease, Dyspepsia, is destined to eventually work a wonderful and lasting benefit to sufferers from this distressing and mind harassing condition. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten.

When Dewey Cried.

The following story of Admiral Dewey is told by one of the sailors who returned on the Raleigh. Just before the battle of Manila, when the order was given to strip for action, the smallest powder boy on the flagship dropped his coat overboard. He asked permission to jump after it, but was refused. He went to the side of the ship, dropped overboard, recovered his coat and was promptly arrested for disobedience. Admiral Dewey spoke kindly to him, who began to weep, and said the coat contained his mother's picture, which he had just kissed, and he could not bear to see it lost. Dewey's eyes filled with tears. He fairly embraced the boy, and ordered him to be released, saying: "Boys who love their mothers enough to risk their lives for her picture cannot be kept in irons on the fleet." Exchange.

Judge Peebles ran out of something to do in Superior Court today and had to adjourn over until tomorrow. This with a printed docket as big as a bed blanket. Of course cases set for tomorrow could not be taken up in advance, and those set for today had either been disposed of in some way. Mighty hard work to get a lawyer to do business in real hot weather.—Greensboro Record.

Cured of Lame After 15 Years of Suffering

"I had been troubled with lame back for fifteen years and I found a complete recovery in the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says John G. Bisher, Gilliam, Ind. This liniment is also without an equal for sprains and bruises. It is for sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville.

Editors and Doctors.

If an editor makes a mistake, says the Factotum, he has to apologize for it, but if the doctor makes one he buries it. If the editor makes one there is a law suit, swearing and the smell of sulphur, but the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and a smell of varnish. The doctor can use a word a yard long without knowing what it means, but if the editor uses it he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit, but if the editor goes to see another man's wife he gets a charge of buckshot. When a doctor gets drunk it's a case of "overcome by heat," and when an editor gets drunk it's a case of too much booze, and if he dies it's a case of delirium tremens. Any old medical college can make a doctor. You can't make an editor. He has to be born.—Ex.

Handle With Care

If you send a package marked "Handle With Care" by freight, the railway employes will take every opportunity to tumble it around and dump it on the depot platform as though it were a bale of hay. We once saw a railroad employe so sick he could scarcely hold up his head; but when his wandering eye happened to fall on a package marked "Handle With Care," he arose with an inspiring effort and threw the blamed thing the length of the depot platform, danced upon it, then shrieked and died.—Alma (Kan.) Star.

Sour Stomach

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by Wooten's Drug Store, Greenville.

The threatened Chinese boycott of American manufactured goods grows more serious. The action of the department of commerce and labor in appointing special agents to go to the Orient and make a careful investigation of the foreign trade relations of this country will meet with general commendation. It is very important that something of the kind should be done, and the time for action is the present.—Charlotte News.

The Children's Favorite.

...is the children's favorite. This is because it contains no opium, is free from harmful tastes, good and easy to take. Sold by John L. Wooten's Drug Store.

A Washington special to the New York Commercial says that "the indications are that the Treasury deficit for the current fiscal year will not exceed $25,000,000." This, it seems, is shortage sufficient, but when one remembers the open-handedness of the Republican administration, despite the talk of economy that is forever and eternally heard, Uncle Sam is coming out "tol'able" well.—Charlotte Observer.

Greensboro never fails to come in for its share of sensational cases. The case against N. Glean Williams has been continued for a hearing in this city in October.—Greensboro Telegram.

HEALTHFUL & REFRESHING. CURES INDIGESTION.

WEAK HEARTS

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured. MRS. LORING NICHOLS, Penn Yan, N. Y.

I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me. D. KAUBLE, Nevada, O.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates on experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some soured meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Cholera, Colera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." His Wife

"Duty!" he repeated fretfully, shrinking strangely from her touch. "How you harp on that word because your silly conscience drove you to marry me!"

"Paul!" "Oh, I have attained the highest wisdom," he continued bitterly. "I know myself—a gaunt, hollow chested, bloodless wretch, looking fifty at thirty-five, chained to his chair by an injured hip."

"I wish you would not say such things. You know?" "A charming husband for a beautiful woman. But if I bought you as I bought that Titian over the mantelpiece I have at least treated you with the same respect shown the picture. Not even a kiss have I claimed from those red lips of yours."

She knelt beside him, looking wistfully into his eyes, which were still handsome, though dimmed by years of pain.

"Paul, I can't leave you in this bitter humor." "No," said Vandermore mockingly; "not even for an ill sister? I had a twin brother once—a wild fellow. How would he have managed you, I wonder?"

"A brother, Paul? A twin? I thought you were an only son. Has he been dead long?"

"I don't know," returned the cripple sullenly. "Sometimes I think he is not dead at all. Enough of this fooling. I said you must go to your sister. Give me my drops and go. The carriage has been waiting an hour."

Six months later Elizabeth stood alone in her luxurious suit of rooms rereading the letter which had brought her home. The half year she had spent with her sister, Paul having suddenly determined on going abroad. He had sent her his commands very briefly a week after she reached her sister's side, not even giving her his foreign address, merely informing her that his valet, Hilaire, went with him.

"As I told you," ran the letter, "I am not yet ready to return. But I have asked you to precede me, that you might receive my twin brother, the fellow of whom I spoke at our last parting. He has turned up, greatly to my surprise, and will be with you tomorrow. Treat him kindly for my sake."

Next evening when she heard the newcomer's step in the hall she came out, calmly gracious, to meet him. His resemblance to Paul she found less marked than she had anticipated. This man was broad of shoulder, deep of chest, with a well-poised head and frank, happy eyes. Then she perceived that in features, height and general coloring the similarity was exceedingly striking. He might well have been taken for Paul, though the voice was fuller than her husband's and far more resonant.

"It's good of you, Elizabeth," said the stranger joyously, "to welcome the prodigal. I may call you Elizabeth, may I not? I'm Beverly Vandermore, you know."

His warm, strong fingers drew her quickly to him, and he pressed on her lips an eager kiss. It was only the joy of a returned wanderer, she told herself, not seeing the passionate look of admiration which Beverly fastened on her lithe, rounded figure as she preceded him to the library. And indeed Elizabeth's beauty was of the Juno type, commanding instant attention.

She soon found there was no chance to be formal with Beverly. He brought his dogs into the house and romped all over the library with them, drawing Elizabeth into the game, teasing her and jesting with her.

Daily they rode together, and Elizabeth, putting both past and future resolutely behind her, entered with all the delight of a perfect horsewoman into the joys of the exhilarating motion.

Beverly's mount seemed often half horse, half tiger, frequently starting capriciously at a leaf and writhing angrily on the bit.

Once as Elizabeth watched her escort's cool mastery over his terrified and angered horse a voice whispered in her ear:

"Here is a man—the other is a fretful shadow." Beverly, who had now quieted the black, glanced at her as though reading her thoughts.

"Are you thinking I'm not much like Paul?" She started, flushed and answered quietly:

"You are very much alike, but there are—differences." "Should hope so! If I were his exact counterpart I'd—bury myself."

"You are staying in his house,"

"I love these—I love but thee— With a love that shall not die."

The wind of the desert brushed her cheek. As she listened a new, overwhelming, passionate joy of mere living seized her. She was inexplicably free, she and Beverly—

Till the stars are old And the sun grows cold And the leaves of the judgment book unfold!

said Elizabeth significantly; "you are riding his horse, and you happen to be talking to his wife."

"You pretty shrew! Don't snub me. If I had been damaged as he was, I'd have been!"

"Just as generous and noble, or let us hope so."

He turned in his saddle and stared at her—a long, deliberate stare, his face coloring slightly.

"Fancy old Paul's horror if he saw me risking your precious neck on a horse!" he laughed. "He could not lift a kitten."

"You are cruel," said Elizabeth hotly. "Can't you possibly enjoy your own strength without saying such things?"

"One says what one thinks about one's relations. That's a family privilege!"

"As you please! But you shall not sneer at my husband."

"No? I say, Elizabeth, don't be angry. I do care for old Paul—more perhaps than you think. Be good, and I'll sing to you when we get home. What! Paul didn't tell you I sing? Nasty of him, I call it."

And, indeed, Elizabeth herself wondered her husband had not referred to it as, an hour later, Beverly's magnetic, compelling tones brought before her the desert chief speeding to his rendezvous—

I love thee—I love but thee— With a love that shall not die.

The word "judgment" shocked her back to herself. The vision faded. In its place Beverly rose from the piano and came swiftly toward her, his eyes aflame.

Elizabeth stood still. She must face this man coolly, indifferently. He must not guess that she, the upright Elizabeth, longed to crawl across the room to him and lay her head on his shoulder.

"Please go away, Beverly," she said bravely, locking her hands together because they wanted so much to rise to the throbs in her throat. "You are not enjoying yourself here."

"Let us forget his existence for a week at least." "Forget?"

"Don't you understand, you lovely simpleton?" He slid from the table and caught her hands in his.

She wrenched them loose, staring at him with wide, horrified gaze.

"Don't look at me like that, Elizabeth. You love me. Why deny it? I'm rich, Elizabeth. Leave this stupid place with me. Let him scold his parrot and his valet alone."

"Oh, you shouldn't have said it; you shouldn't have said it!" she cried in a harsh, strained voice. "That was all I had—my self respect."

He was so close now that his breath warmed her cheek, his exultant personality radiated power. She grew faint with dread of him, that abysmal dread which only those who love have power to create in us.

Then from its spoiled city of peace her better self rose blindly. She could not ask him to leave her. She had for the moment lost all power of speech, but she caught a carved ivory fan from the mantelpiece and struck him heavily, cruelly, across the face a blow that made him stagger back from her.

Then she found speech. "You're a coward! He's no match for you. That's the reason that I will never wrong him. He trusted me—and you!" she added, with exceeding bitterness.

Beverly, wiping blood from his face, received the blow very strangely. His eyes shone as those of lovers do who have been granted a kiss. His action was stranger. He tore the covering from his right shoulder, exhibiting a peculiar long red scar.

"Don't you know that, Elizabeth? And here's the hole where Hilaire spilled that acid on me."

"You—you"—stammered Elizabeth. "Oh, you are mad!"

"Not mad, you great hearted, beautiful woman! Oh, Elizabeth, don't you understand? Why, Elizabeth, you are awfully stupid, dearest! I had no brother. I spoke of myself, of the man I used to be. And a friend, a common servant, fairly dragged me into salvation. I'll never be able to repay him. I'm Paul Beverly Vandermore. Don't stare like that; you frighten me. Listen, look!"

He dropped into an armchair, letting his chest cave inward and his shoulders slouch with feigned weakness, while he said in impatient, querulous tones:

"Give me my drops and go! The carriage has been waiting this hour."

The transformation was perfect. Elizabeth, half swooning, threw herself into her husband's eager arms. —Clinton Dangerfield in Town Topics.

The telephone company is surveying in town preparatory to replacing their wires with cables; something a great deal more city like, and safer by far.

The result of the practice Wednesday evening before the game is that Capt. J. I. Smith is suffering with a sore lip. He was hit in the mouth by a pitched ball which inflicted a very painful wound.

B. F. Patrick has hauled new brick for repairing the sidewalk in front of his store, and is waiting for the "cool of the evening" to begin the work. Other parts of main street are waiting for similar improvement.

Village Pleasures.

As the days glide past we become more and more content to live in a small country town. Of course, city life is a great institution, but there are those things offered by the country town that compensate for the loss of the city attractions. If we decide to bail another bath on our chicken coop, we can do so without fearing a call from the carpenters' union; if we want to carry home a piece of kindling, we can do so without being boycotted by teamsters; are only two of the things enjoyed by the man who is willing to forego the pleasures offered by city life. —Kalena (Kan.) Republican.

Ladies Charged 25 Cents Tomorrow.

Owing to the extra expense the ball team has gone to, they find it necessary to charge the ladies admission to the ball grounds tomorrow. This charge will apply to this game only. Grand stand seats same price, 15 cents.

Potato Market.

The prices on potatoes today were quoted as follows: Pittsburg, Pa.—$1.25 to $1.50.

Mrs. Dora Carr, of Castoria, was here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Lucy Randolph.

J. D. Savage, of Chicago, is visiting his sister, Mrs. C. T. Mumford.

Queen Quality

It Sets the Style.

What do we mean when we say that the styles of most of the shoes for women originate with the "Queen Quality" Shoe?

Simply this. The "Queen Quality" is, and always has been a leader. It gets up its own original patterns at great expense, and has established a reputation for the style and beauty of its creations.

OTHER MAKERS ARE CONTENT TO AWAIT THEIR APPEARANCE, and then copy them as closely as possible.

But "Queen Quality" "sets the style"—don't forget that!

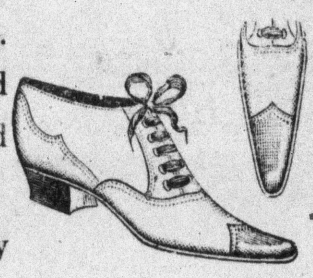

And one other point—"Queen Quality" offers twice as many styles for your consideration as any other shoe.

You cannot suggest a need which is not fitted with a "Queen Quality" shoe specially designed for it.

Does not this realize the ideal of a strictly custom shoe? And such a shoe for $3.00. Think of it! Oxfords $2.50.

Tans in all shape are here.
