Robert Wingate In Jail for Attempted Assault.

Tarboro, N. C., July 28.—Excitement was wrought up to a high pitch this afternoon when a rumor became current that Robert Wingate, representing the Rocky Mount Supply Company, had attempted a criminal assault upon Mrs. Joseph Knight, an estimable lady of unquestionable character, in her home in the heart of town about 6 o'clock. Wingate is said to have been at Mrs. Knight's for the third time in an effort to sell her a sewing machine. Mrs. Knight avers that he had been guilty of improper conduct upon previous visits and had been ordered to leave the house. Her statement at the preliminary hearing tonight was to the effect that Wingate put an arm around her waist and a hand over her mouth and attempted to force her to a sofa in the room. Her screams frightened him away. A warrant was immediately issued and served on Wingate. He was given a hearing before Justice Pender tonight and was held for court in default of a thousand dollar bond, which he was unable to give, or probably would have preferred not to give had it been fifty cents, and was committed to jail.

Citizens gathered in the streets and at the preliminary hearing in large numbers, and to see groups of men congregating in the streets one might predict the possibility of a lynching, but the people of Edgecombe are not the kind to act so irrationally under a heat of passion, and there is no anticipation of violence.

Wingate is a nice looking fellow of genteel appearance. He has been in Tarboro only a few days. He made no statement of defense at the hearing tonight, probably because he had not consulted counsel and knew he would not be released upon Mrs. Knight's testimony.

Timely Advice.

Perhaps your wife needs a new dress. Perhaps your house needs a new coat. Town & Country paint is the best paint to use for your house and if your home needs it badly there is no question but what decay will cause you to need a new house, unless you use Harrison's paint.

Use Harrison's Roof paint and it will save you a new roof. Baker & Hart, Agents.

LITTLE-GALLOWAY.

A wedding, beautiful in its simplicity and quiet elegance occurred at Salem Methodist church, near Grimesland, on Wednesday afternoon, July the 26th, at 3 o'clock when Miss Mamie Galloway, of Grimesland, became the bride of Mr. Robert Little, of Winterville.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Bessie Patrick, of Greenville, the bridal party entered the church made beautiful with ferns and a profusion of cut flowers and filled with relatives, friends and acquaintances to witness the ceremony.

First came the attendants in the following order: Miss Mimie Cox with J. H. Fry; Miss Lizzina Moore with John Nichols; Miss Kate Chapman with William Patrick; Miss Mollye Bryan with W. C. Vincent; Miss Mary Boyd with John Warren; Miss Palmetto Taylor with J. C. Galloway; Miss Mary Langley with O. A. Clark; Miss Ella Langley with John Galloway; Miss Helen Galloway with Forest House; Miss Sadie Little with C. J. Jackson. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Lucy Galloway, sister of the bride with the best man, Levi Holiday, followed by the bride and groom who were met beneath a beautiful arch of white and green by Rev. D. E. Stanfield who performed the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly attired in a dainty gown of white silk with hat to match, carrying a beautiful bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore mile green silk mull and the bride's maids wore pure white.

After congratulations, the party drove to Winterville where the happy couple left on the afternoon train for Morehead City, where they will spend sometime. There was a handsome array of bridal gifts, china and silverware. The bride's going away gown was of blue silk with hat to match. A host of friends bespeak for them a happy and prosperous future.

The Security Life and Annuity Company

Mutual. Legal Reserve.

A Home Company conducted on a safe, economical basis in the interest of its policy holders. Why we can save you money.

The oldest companies have been on a 4 per cent. reserve basis for many years. Several of them have recently changed from a 4 per cent. basis to a 3 per cent. or 3 1/2 per cent. basis, on account of a decrease in interest rates. Probably 80 per cent. of all the outstanding business is now on a 4 per cent. reserve, only the new business being on a 3 per cent. or 3 1/2 per cent. reserve. Following are the rates of a few companies on the old and new basis:

Twenty-Payment Life. Age 35.

COMPANY	OLD RATE	NEW RATE	NEW RATE
New York Life	4 per ct.	3 1/2 per ct.	3 per ct.
Equitable	$35 00		$38 34
Penn Mutual	35 00		37 84
Prudential	34 21		37 25
Mutual Benefit	34 01		36 95
Aetna	38 97		36 22
Mutual Life	31 97	$36 96
North Western	35 00	36 87
Security Life & Annuity	34 91		37 80
	32 60

The variation in rates of companies on the same reserve basis is due to difference in the amount added for expenses. Every policy is registered and the full legal reserve deposited with the Insurance Commissioner.

The New Secretary of State

Mr. Hay's great qualities as Secretary of State were in the main developed after several years of experience in a position which he held longer than any of his predecessors during the nearly one hundred and twenty years of the existence of this government. It is no disparagement, therefore, to Mr. Hay to remark that Mr. Root brings to the post of Secretary of State more complete qualifications than those possessed by any other man at the moment of first taking up the duties of that particular portfolio. Mr. Hay had rounded out his great career, and his work was done. He was only sixty seven, but for a good while he had felt himself the victim of declining years. Mr. Root at sixty is as young looking a man as the new pictures of him would indicate. His mind is as fresh and elastic as that of a man half his age, while it has the added advantage that comes from experience and maturity.

It is wholly a mistake to assume that Mr. Root's appointment has had any intentional political bearing, or that it necessarily puts him in the line of nomination for the presidency in 1908. Presidential nominations somehow take care of themselves, and do not come from any man's giving them thought. Meanwhile, with Mr. Root at the head of the State Department, Mr. Roosevelt has at hand the man who has all along, out of office as well as in it, been his closest adviser in public matters for a good many years past, and the people of the United States have secured the services in public affairs of great moment of a man whose patriotism and devotion to the public good are as great as are his talents and his discretion. Mr. Root will naturally take an especial interest in the high diplomatic business going forward at Portsmouth, in view of his past management of the American part of the Chinese expedition at the time of the Boxer troubles, his part in the history of Philippine affairs, and his interest in still other phases of the far Eastern situation and Pacific Ocean affairs.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

Where a Hundred and Fifteen in the Shade Isn't Hot

Chas. Frederick Holder writes in The Country Calendar for August: "It has been my fortune to visit some of the hottest places in America at the hottest period of the year; and the reader may be incredulous when I say that I have been vastly more uncomfortable in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore or Washington in summer than I have at Yuma or in the heart of the Mohave, California or Apache deserts, or any of the great pseudo summer deserts that reach away in a general line from Yuma to San Antonio, Texas.

"I recall entering a restaurant at Indio, on the edge of the Mohave, when the heat called to mind proximity to a furnace. I suggested to a citizen that it was hot 'No,' he replied, 'yesterday was hot; it was 120° in the shade; today it is only 115°; yet I have been more uncomfortable in Boston with the thermometer at 90°. In Boston the heat was humid; here it is dry. At Indio, or on the desert, the heat was absolutely dry and at night the chances were that a blanket might be required, nature giving one an opportunity to recuperate, which is not always the case in the great cities."

An Eye Doc's Vengeance.

At a town called Basin, in Wyoming, a few days ago, an itinerant eye doctor appeared and opened up for business. To attract attention, he had a snake charmer and several boxes of rattlesnakes. What he did not have was State license, so he was arrested and jailed for a week.

When he got out, he opened the doors of his snake cages and turned 25 big rattlers loose on the town; then he jumped on a horse and escaped. What puts an edge on his vengeance is the fact that this particular Basin is a dry one. The doc certainly got the best of the people there, no one of whom, the story goes, now leaves his home without a stick and preparations either to run or fight.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Forsyth grand jury in its report recommends that prisoners in their cells "be not allowed cards or fun in any shape or form." The grand jury evidently intends to make prison life a serious proposition, so that prisoners will have to seek solace in the thought of the times they used to have.—Winston Journal.

A man's habits and character count in every position in life. Sam Jones never said a truer thing than when he said: "A legislator that can't pass a saloon can't pass good temperance laws." A legislator usually does in the law making body what he does as an individual.—News & Observer.

Japan, it is stated, will demand an indemnity on one billion dollars from Russia—an amount sufficient to cover the expenses of Japan's part of the war to date. A billion dollars is a good deal, being one thousand million. The United States, however, had several Congresses which appropriated that much or more. The first time such an aggregate was reached the late Thomas B. Reed, Speaker of the House, was asked about it and replied that "this is a billion-dollar country." It therefore seems that if she really desires peace, Russia must become a billion dollar country.—Charlotte Observer.

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

THE FIRST GOLF BALLS.

They Were Made of Bull's Hide Stuffed With Feathers.

The first golf balls were made of leather of untanned bull's hide, two round pieces forming the ends and a piece for the middle. These pieces were softened, shaped and firmly sewed together, a small hole being left through which the feathers might afterward be inserted.

Before stuffing the leather sphere was turned outside in—an operation not without its difficulties—so that the seams would be on the inside.

The skin was then placed in a cup shaped stand, the worker having the feathers in an apron before him, and the stuffing was done with a steel rod.

This was very hard work, as may be imagined. The aperture was then closed, the seam sewed up, and the only seam showing was this tiny one.

But the life of each ball was short. The seams soon opened, and the feathers protruded. On a wet day the water would be seen driven off in a shower every time the ball was struck.

And the moisture added to its weight, so that a ball that started as a twenty-eight would soon weigh a pound. If the match was an important one a new ball must be put down at each hole.

With these disadvantages one can see that a new kind of ball was much needed and made many converts to the game.

Although the gutta percha ball used on the links is seemingly perfect, the inventor is busy trying to make one even better. The ball made of this material has been in use since 1818.

A golfer of that period experimented with a piece of india rubber and succeeded in fashioning it into shape. But when it was put into use it was found that it was not a success.

It would leave the club all right, but after going a short distance it would duck down, so its use was abandoned.

The caddies amused themselves with the discarded invention until it was pretty well nicked up. To the surprise of everybody the ball, with the addition of the cuts, could sail through the air much better than the old one.

The next mold was nicked to give the gutta percha sphere the same lines, and this, with one improvement after another, is the ball in use today.—New York Journal.

Singular and Double Bishops.

It is not generally known, says a biographer of "Nineteenth Century Ecclesiastical Celebrities," that at one time there was a remarkable similarity between the family names of the bishops of Exeter and Worcester, so much so, in fact, that one looked like the plural of the other, the one being spelled Philpott and the other Philipotts.

This remarkable coincidence afforded the bishop of Exeter an opportunity of perpetrating a joke at his brother Worcester's expense. Referring to him on one occasion, the bishop of Exeter spoke of him as: "My singular brother of Worcester."

"Ah!" retorted the bishop, who was well known for his manly straightforwardness. "There is nothing double about me."

Origin of Words.

The origin of words is often curious. Take "quiz," for instance. This came from a wager laid by a Londoner that he could coin a word that would be on the lips of every one on the following day. He then went forth and wrote "Quiz" on the walls, fences and billboards of the city. The next day every one was inquiring what it meant, and the word thus got its meaning. The word "tip" originated in the old coffee houses of London. At the door was a brass box with a slit in it. Engraved upon it usually were the letters "T. I. P.," an abbreviation for the words "To insure promptness." Customers as they departed dropped coins in the box for the waiters.
