A Man Loses His Leg--An Excursion Train Wrecked

LOSES A LEG

W. C. Moye Meets a Terrible Accident.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning Wiley C. Moye, who works at the manufactory of the Building & Lumber Co., and is also one of the stockholders in the company, met with an accident that maims him for life. He was in the act of passing by a planing machine that was in motion, and stepping too near a shaft the left leg of his pants was caught by a set screw. The rapid motion of the shaft drew his leg around it and before the machine could be stopped his leg from the ankle nearly to the knee was horribly mangled, the bones being broken into fragments and the flesh torn to shreds.

Mr. Moye was taken to the office of the factory and medical aid summoned as quickly as possible, an examination showing that amputation would be necessary. The accident was a terrible one and much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Moye. He is an industrious young man and the misfortune comes upon him just as he was in the prime of life.

Tobacco Stems Used in Poultry Houses

A well-known poultry and pigeon raiser of Northampton, Mass., is combating bird lice and other vermin with tobacco stems, with the aid of the birds' intelligence and prudence. He believes he has found a solution of the lice problem, if he can only get his chicks used to the smell of tobacco. The pigeons use the stems for nests, and prefer them to the cleanest hay. They are much coarser than hay, and do not make so soft a nest, but the birds seem to realize that the tobacco odor keeps away the troublesome lice, and sacrifice softness to cleanliness. The stems have been placed in the hens' nests also, and while the old birds nestle down as comfortably as if they were brooding on soft sweet smelling hay, the little chicks are not won so easily. They sidle away, and if it were not for the persistent admonitions of their mothers, would wander far from their tobacco perfumed nests. But it is believed that the chicks will readily become acclimated and give up their plan to join the white ribbons. The bird raiser procures the stems by the bushel from the local cigar shops, and intends to give them a thorough trial.

A Dozen Crushed.

Allentown, Pa., 16.—A mass of limestone, weighing thousands of tons, slid from the side of the quarry of mill A of the Lehigh Portland cement company at Ormrod at noon today just five minutes before time to quit work. Twenty-seven men work in the quarry which is a thousand feet long, 150 feet across and one hundred feet deep. The heavy rains of the past two days had softened the earth and caused the slide of rock. Only nine of the men got away safely, four of whom escaped by running up a mass of rock on the opposite side of the quarry. The remaining eighteen were huddled in a space ten feet square, and twelve of them were killed, six injured. Two of the latter may die.

Woman Can Use Rifle

C. B. Whichard tells us that rats have been causing trouble with his chickens. This morning Mrs. Whichard saw a rat in the yard, and getting a rifle took a shot at him. She brought the rodent down at the first shot and is ready to try the next one that puts in an appearance.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED

Runs Into Open Draw of Bridge.

Early this afternoon THE REFLECTOR received a telegram from Norfolk that the excursion train that left Kinston this morning for Norfolk had been wrecked at Bruce, a little station between Suffolk and Norfolk. The only particulars given in the telegram was that the train ran into an open draw of the bridge and that many of the passengers were killed and injured. Bruce being a small station definite particulars could not be had.

The excursion was for colored people and many from Greenville went on it. When news of the wreck was bulletined there was much excitement among the people here. The excursion was run by W. E. Jolley, a white man here, and three other white persons went along to assist him in managing it.

During the afternoon several telegrams came from colored people in the wreck to their friends or relatives letting them know they were safe, but none of these messages gave any further information than had already been received.

All the afternoon the telegraph office was crowded by persons trying to get information about the wreck, and THE REFLECTOR telephone rang constantly for news. Not much can be given at this writing more than that several were killed and injured, but their names are not yet known.

LATER—It was learned just before going to press that the draw to the bridge was opened for a tug to pass, and the engine and one coach of the train plunged into the river before the engine could apply brakes. Bruce is about 9 miles from Norfolk.

The wreck also caused much excitement in Norfolk, as people there being under the impression that it was a white excursion. Several telegrams were received here asking if certain persons had gone on the excursion.

Suppress the Boycott.

Shanghai, Aug. —The Chinese Foreign Board has ordered Chiu Foo, the viceroy of Nanking, to make every effort to suppress the boycott which has now been extended to English goods, imported, it is supposed, by American firm. Chinese merchants have asked the general Chamber of Commerce to assist them to suppress the movement, fearing that serious financial trouble will result.

Sudden Change.

The blow that came along about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, from the North east made a sudden and agreeable change in the weather, the temperature quickly falling several degrees. The roar of the wind made the more timid fear a cyclone was coming, but it was soon over. All welcome the cooler temperature.

MAIL CARRIER ARRESTED.

Charged With Sending Improper Letter Through Mail.

United States Commissioner L. A. Sugg had his first case before him today. The defendant was S. W. Scarborough, a rural free delivery mail carrier, from Kinston, and the charge against him was the sending of an improper letter in the mail. The case against Scarborough was worked up by Inspector Fuch, of the postoffice department, and he was arrested Wednesday night by Deputy Marshall Ward and brought to Greenville this morning for a hearing before Commissioner Sugg. Attorney Emmet Wooten, of Kinston, came along as counsel for Scarborough and asked for a continuance of the case until the 28th, as the defendant had not had time to get his witnesses. The case was continued as requested, the defendant being required to give a justified bond for $250.

CO OPERATION NEEDED.

We want to again refer to the address of President Jeffress to the Tobacco Board of Trade, published in THE REFLECTOR a few days ago, and urge the other business men of the town to follow the example of the tobacco men in working together for the advancement of the town. This paper has time and again urged that Greenville ought to have an active chamber of commerce or board of trade to promote the business interests of the town. There is much that could be accomplished through such a channel. Greenville has as good business men, and as enterprising individuals, as can be found anywhere, but there is a lack of cooperation among them on matters that would inure to the benefit of all. There should be a coming together and frequent conference on matters that pertain to the general business interests of the town, and then when a move is made all should move together. If the merchants, the manufacturers, the professional men, and others, all would come together and cooperate with the tobacco men in pushing Greenville forward as a trade centre, you would see the town prosper as never before. Lets be up and doing for Greenville.

The retiring superintendent of schools in Wake county recommended to the board of education that negro children be given text books with pictures of negro children. He says that the pictures of white children in the text books used by negro children has a tendency to increase the desire among the negroes for social equality.

That Georgia man, who when he was waylaid and attacked by seven negroes, drew his pistol, shot two of them dead in their tracks and mortally wounded three others, was an expert in handling his gun. But the story sounds almost as fakey as the Beaufort shark yarn.

As the inter state commerce commission has suddenly sprung an investigation of the methods of refrigerator lines, possibly the Armour Car Co will not be so loud in saying what it is going to do to get even with the North Carolina berry shippers next season.

If the peace commission accomplishes nothing, the money the hotels get out of it will make them think it was worth while, all the same. The envoys were unlimited in their expenditures and it is all charged up to the cost of the war.

When a law is enforced against all people alike no one has a right to complain, but there are sidewalks in Greenville that have not yet been cleared of weeds. The town would look better if all were cleaned.

Its broke out in a new place and Salisbury is getting some advertising in connection with Blackburn's proposed Republican paper venture. We will believe that paper is coming when we see it.

If the peace negotiations result in a failure President Roosevelt cannot feel in such high feather over his good offices in bringing the envoys together.

Charlotte has had such a scandal over her waterworks system that she is advising other towns to be careful.

School Teachers and Beaux.

Should a public school teacher have a beau?

This is a question to be discussed at a meeting of school boards in Wisconsin.

Should she? The teachers, with one voice, say yes. And the public must give the same answer unless it wants its schools to be teacherless.

Here is the way one prominent Wisconsin teacher puts it:

"Why shouldn't she? She is accustomed to settle other weighty problems for herself—why not this one? If she feels the need of the spice and recreation which bagging game of this kind is supposed to bring, surely the privilege is hers to enter the game of chance and later draw from the matrimonial lottery the prize of the blank. It is hardly worth while for the outside world to trouble herself, for she will settle this thing for herself."

We hope she will. It is her inalienable right. Just because she gives herself to the thankless, underpaid work of teaching the young it is not to be understood that she contracts away her right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

There is no class of people in America that has a bigger kick coming than the school teachers. The man that cares for the hogs and cattle in the country receives more pay than the woman who presides in the little school house on the hill.

Is it fair? Do you blame them for getting out of the work when the opportunity comes their way?

And now it is proposed to deprive them of their beaux.

Do you agree with the narrow-minded school directors who would put an end to the innocent pleasure which teachers derive from their beaux, or do you join in protesting against the contemplated action as an invasion of private rights and personal liberty?

There is an old song which fits this case well: "Is it Anybody's Business if a Lady Has a Beau?"

The answer is "NO."—Atlanta Journal.

A New Sort of a Bank.

"We are going to have a meeting of the stockholders in our bank next Friday afternoon," said J. N. Bigham, of Jackson township, yesterday, "and I want you to put in the paper that every stockholder is wanted on the ground at that time."

"Didn't know that we had a bank? Why, we've got the best dividend earner in the country. It's our school house. A good many of us have been investing some little surplus in the stock and we think we have a mighty fine thing. We have the school going on now, and we think it is declaring dividends every day in the good that it is giving our boys and girls. Every man in the district who will send his children can receive a part of the dividends and is a stockholder. And we want all the stockholders to meet on Friday and discuss ways and means of helping the bank's efficiency a little. We want to paint the nice banking house that we have built and do some other things that are needed." Monroe Journal.

DRAGGING
down pains are a symptom of the most serious trouble which can attack a woman, viz: falling of the womb. With this, generally, come irregular, painful, scanty or profuse periods, wasteful, weakening drains, dreadful backache, headache, nervousness, dizziness, irritability, tired feeling, inability to walk, loss of appetite, color and beauty. The cure is

WINE OF CARDUI
THE FEMALE REGULATOR,
that marvelous, curative extract, or natural wine, of herbs, which exerts such a wonderful, strengthening influence on all female organs. Cardui relieves pain, regulates the menses, stops drains and stimulates the womb muscles to pull the womb up into place.
It is a sure and permanent cure for all female complaints.

WRITE US A LETTER
Put aside all timidity and write us freely and frankly, in strictest confidence, telling us all your symptoms and troubles. We will send free advice (in plain, sealed and send free advice and medicine. Address: Ladies' Advisory Dept., The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"I SUFFERED AWFUL PAIN
In my womb and ovaries," writes Mrs. Naomi Baker, of Webster Groves, Mo. "also in my right and left sides, and my menses were very painful and irregular. Since taking Cardui, I feel like a new woman, and do not suffer as I did. It is the best medicine I ever had in my house."

A VILLAGE RECTORY.
The Way He Ruled the Church of Which He Was Sexton.
Some half a century or so ago William Towne was sexton of a church in the old town of Charlton, Mass. He had a just appreciation of the dignity of his position, and so powerful was his personality that the people generally took him as seriously as he took himself.
His rule was more rigid than that of the minister, and the boy or girl who so much as changed countenance in church time felt all the force of his indignation later. From his position in the right hand rear corner, under the last window on that side, he could see everything that happened, and even the elders of the congregation sat under penalty of reprimand or ejection.
In those days, the Springfield Republican says, "Comical Brown" used to visit Charlton every year and give a concert. One year the town hall had been burned, and he had to give his entertainment in the church of which Towne was sexton.
The church was crowded, and the humorist tried to be funny, but in vain. He sang his songs and made his jokes. Nobody smiled. Nobody laughed. He could not understand it at all, for he did not see William Towne at his post in the rear, with his elbow resting on the window sill and his eyes looking sternly around.
After the entertainment the sexton said to the humorist: "You must come again. You tickled 'em all into kinks."
"Come again?" said Brown, in astonishment. "I guess not! Once will do for me. I didn't see anybody smile or laugh or even applaud."
"Applaud! Laugh!" said Towne. "I'd like to see 'em! I'd throw 'em outdoors. I've been sexton of this church nigh on to thirty years, and they've never done it yet!"

People Who Vanish.
Among the periodic waves which strike our great centers there is none so strange as that of mysterious disappearances. Such a wave selects its victims from all classes, ages. Men, women and children are impartially its prey. Sometimes the absentees return in a dazed condition unable to tell of their whereabouts. Others present a mystery darker still, for they never return and are no more heard of. Foul play, a crazed fever for wandering, premeditated flight, are called to account as causes, but some of these mysteries have neither apparent cause nor end. It is a queer and weird feature of our modern life that these mysterious disappearances can so easily take place and their subjects be neither traced nor recovered in spite of our crowded civilization. But perhaps it is because of it.

The Soft Answer.
"Madam," said the tramp as a middle aged woman came to the door in answer to his knock, "would you give a poor man a bite to eat?"
"Why," she replied, "you are certainly able to earn a living. You do not look very old."
"Looks are often very deceitful, lady," answered the hungry hobo. "Why, I'm old enough to be your grandfather."
And a moment later he had his feet under the kitchen table, and nothing she had in the pantry was too good for him.

Improbability's Limit.
"My boy," said the publisher as the author approached with a bundle of manuscript, "don't take up my time unless you have something new and wildly improbable. Improbability is what the public wants."
"And I've got it," declared the author triumphantly. "My hero earns a million dollars writing poetry."
Speechless from joy, the happy publisher fell upon his neck and wept silent but none the less real tears.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Where General Butler Drew the Line.
On one occasion when in congress General Benjamin F. Butler rose in his place and intimated that the member who occupied the floor was transgressing the limits of debate.
"Why, general," said the member reproachfully, "you divided your time with me."
"I know I did," rejoined Butler grimly, "but I didn't divide eternity with you!"—Boston Herald

Exasperating Punctuality.
There are people who conscientiously believe themselves to be the soul of punctuality because they are always five minutes before the proper time. They are ready in the drawing room a quarter of an hour before it is time to go into the dining room for luncheon. It is the overpunctual, the "antepunctual," host who is attacked by brain fever and who sends his guests to wait twenty minutes or more stamping up and down a country station platform so as to prevent them from missing the train. To be always five minutes ahead of the clock is surely one of the most exasperating forms of so called punctuality imaginable.—London Spectator.

DANCING HORSES.

They Brought Disaster to Their Owners in Time of War.

There is an ancient Roman lamp
among the treasures of the Louvre, in Paris, and on this lamp is a picture of a horse that is being taught to stand on its hind legs. The Roman horse trainer is using a formidable looking whip. The dancing horse figures in that medley of antique learning, the "Deipnosophists, or Banquet of the Learned," of Athenaeus. Athenaeus tells that the Sybarites "had carried their luxury to such a pitch that they had taught even their horses to dance at their feasts to the music of the flute."
But disaster came to this effeminate horse training, for the Crotonians, being at war with the Sybarites and knowing the air to which the Sybarite horses were accustomed to dance, played the same melody on the battlefield, "and as soon as the horses heard them playing on the flute they not only began to dance, but ran over to the army of the Crotonians, carrying their riders with them."

Dancing cavalry horses appear again in greater detail in the "Annals of Charon of Lamprus," likewise quoted by Athenaeus. Charon says that the general of the army of a people named Bisatae lived as a boy in slavery among the Cardians.
There he learned that the Cardian horses were taught to dance at feasts to the music of the flute, standing on their hind feet and dancing with their fore feet in time to the airs which they had been taught. So when war broke out the general of the Bisatae secured a Cardian female flute player, who instructed his own musicians.

When the flute players of the general of the Bisatae were sufficiently trained in the music of the Cardians he gave battle, ordering them to play the airs which they had learned and which the horses of the Cardians knew. "And when the horses heard the flute they stood up on their hind feet and took to dancing.
But the main strength of the Cardians was in their cavalry, and so they were conquered."—Chicago News.

The Constable's Excuse.

A story in which an Irish member of parliament tells of his rough treatment at the hands of the police while addressing his constituents in Galway recalls to the London Chronicle an anecdote illustrative of the attitude of the royal Irish constabulary toward the Nationalist members. During a disturbance at an eviction a constable brought his baton heavily down on the head of a young man who happened to be the reporter of the Irish Times. "Don't you know I am a member of the press?" inquired the reporter. "I beg your pardon," said the constable. "I thought you were a member of parliament."
