THE TOBACCO CROP.

Condition Poor and Price Too Low.

In looking over the government report on tobacco acreage and condition of the crop of 1905, issued July 21st, we find that the bright yellow North Carolina old belt is estimated at 93 per cent of last year's crop and that the condition is 85 per cent. Bright yellow North Carolina new belt is estimated at 106 per cent of acreage which means an increase of 6 per cent over last year, while the condition is 84 per cent. South Carolina is estimated at 105 per cent with the condition 71 per cent.

As to the increase in acreage in the new belt in North Carolina we are inclined to the opinion that the acreage is somewhat larger, that is in this section at least, and by this section we mean the counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Craven, Martin and Greens, five of the largest and best tobacco producing counties in the East, but we do not believe the condition anywhere like 85 per cent of what it was last year. Of course the government report was issued July 21st and was not a full and complete report.

From the best that we can learn from all the markets we do not believe the crop one half as good as it was last year, and if the expression of farmers who are selling their tobacco now is to be taken as an index of their feelings, they take anything but an encouraging view of the future of tobacco in this section.

We regret very much that the crop is not selling better than it is. It seems, however, that it is a very unsatisfactory crop to both the buyer and seller, as neither seem to be satisfied with their bargains. From the standpoint of the farmers it has cost them more to make this crop of tobacco than it did the crop of 1904, and unless there is a very material increase in the price at which it is now selling the majority of the Eastern North Carolina tobacco farmers are going to come out at the little end of the horn.

Every cloud, however, has its silver lining and the farmers are hoping for better prices in tobacco. While most of them are cotton planters as well and this crop is selling at a very satisfactory price, in the end everything will pan out, we hope, better than it now looks. We believe tobacco will sell better in the near future.

Their Child Dead.

It was a sad mission on which J. W. Allen, foreman of THE REFLECTOR, went to Princeton last week in response to a telegram from his wife that their baby was very sick. When he reached Princeton the little one was beyond hope and passed away Sunday. The remains were taken to Smithfield, their former home for interment, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen returned to Greenville Monday evening. This was their only child, their first one having died a few years ago.

Go To The Country.

Fresh country air is wholesome and a sovereign remedy for many of the ills that afflict the weary city dweller. The tendency in this country has been too much to crowd into the great cities and many of the poor of the slums and overtaxed tenements would be greatly benefitted if they could be removed to the farms. The magazines that encourage the love of rural life are doing a great work and not the feature of their mission is the cultivation of the aesthetic quality. They promote a love for the beautiful in nature that will result in the preservation of much of the natural loveliness of the country that has been too ruthlessly dealt with by the unappreciative utilitarian in the past. —Louisburg Times.

A SPUNKY GIRL

She Served the Young Man Exactly Right.

Here is a rainbow bubble floating on the surface of the social swim in this city. A short time since a girl from another part of the state was the guest of a leading Fayetteville family, a girl full of life and chic, but with plenty of hard sense, and well able to take care of herself. One of the "golden youths" invited her to take a buggy ride, and, after they had proceeded on their way a hundred yards or so, he turned to her and said, with unpardonable impudence and freedom: "Miss —, I have heard that you are pretty fast." "Oh, you have eh?" she replied, flashing a look at him. "Hand me the reins, and I'll show you how fast I am." He relinquished the reins, supposing that she would put the horse out at a 2:40 gait, to illustrate her rapidity. On the contrary, she deliberately made a circle, turning the vehicle around, drove back to the gate of her friends' house, jumped out, swept her escort a formal courtesy, and disappeared leaving him to pursue his ride alone. It may be imagined that the discomfited young man took good pains not to circulate this episode, but the story has got out and the general verdict is: "served him right." —Fayetteville Observer.

PERSONAL ITEMS.

Names Found at Depot and Elsewhere Around Town.

R. L. Smith went to Norfolk this morning.

A. M. Moseley went to Kinston Monday evening.

Mrs. Z. T. Vincent and daughter, Miss Elise, went to Scotland Neck this morning.

Hinton Prichard went to Richmond this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Tyson came in Monday evening from Norfolk.

John Pairo, of St. Louis, will be in town a few days buying tobacco.

Miss Nell Skinner went to Tarboro this morning to attend a dance.

Lieut. Bruce Cotten, of the U. S. army, came in Monday evening to visit his parents at Cottontale.

Miss Fannie Priddy, of Norfolk, who has been visiting Miss Nina James, returned home this morning.

Miss Katherine Hines, of Wilson, who has been visiting Miss Hennie Ragsdale, returned home this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Allen returned Monday evening from Princeton. We all sympathize with them in their bereavement over the death of their child.

Rev. J. A. Hornaday and daughter, Miss Dora, went to Bethel today to attend at a Sunday school picnic at which Mr. Hornaday delivered an address.

Fought the Officer.

Deputy Sheriff Dudley had a lively tussle with a negro, John Abe Scott, whom he went out to arrest Monday afternoon. The negro showed fight and they were both down rolling in the dirt for a time, but the officer came out on top. The negro was tied and brought to jail. A man is a fool to fight when an officer draws a warrant on him.

AYDEN ITEMS.

AYDEN, N. C., Aug. 29, 1905.

Last Friday evening the old town was alive from center to circumference. A colored school celebrated in grand style. With a brass band in front about fifty colored children with their teachers in full regalia paraded our principal streets. In the afternoon they had an address, then the band serenaded the town. The hobby horses added to the din and the unusual number of trains passing, with a very large crowd here from the surrounding country to participate in the festivities gave us a gala old day indeed. We are proud to say, however, there was not a disturbance nor a break to mar the pleasantness of the occasion. This speaks well for our colored friends and they at least need no Booker T. to teach them good manners.

Sunday afternoon an old shed down near South Ayden collapsed and in its descent made a loud noise, attracting many people to the scene fearing lest some boys who were playing near by might have been under it, but fortunately no one was hurt and Ayden is relieved of another gruesome sight so forcibly a reminder of the days of Otter town.

J. W. Quinerly and J. W. Moore have returned from the north.

Miss Venie Crawford, of Winterville, is here on a visit to friends.

The first two new bales of cotton were brought to this market yesterday and were sold at 10 1/2 cents, brought by J. W. Quinerly & Bro.

It begins to feel and look like fall. The weather has been cooler and right many more people are coming to town, especially Saturdays. Things are beginning to hum and everything has a brighter look.

The merry-go-round and the picture men have folded their tents and silently moved away. The former carrying many a dollar that could have well been spent right here at home and we think to a much better advantage. We live to learn and learn to regret, sometimes!

Wanted—To rent a good upright piano by Mrs. Stancil Hooges, Ayden, N. C.

William Worthington went to Greenville yesterday.

Eli and Mrs. Craft from the country spent the day in town yesterday.

W. E. Hooks has moved around on Main street in his new office in the brick block and has a very neat office. Mr. Hooks has been associated with us in our office for quite awhile and we were reluctant to part with him. We found him a pleasant companion, easy to get along with and a high toned gentleman in every respect. We heartily wish him unlimited success.

G. A. Kittrell, A. D. Johnston and W. J. Hemby, all of Winterville, were in Ayden Monday.

The coons seem to be on a rampage. Friday night one assaulted a white man along the country road. Saturday night another killed one over in the edge of Greene county and Sunday a couple of the brethren had a shooting frolic over in Winterville. Truly it seems the brother in black has got his ways on him.

J. W. Sparks, of Winterville, was here Friday.

W. Hooks and family, who have been absent some three weeks at Fremont have come home.

J. J. Hines came home from Baltimore Friday evening.

Mr. McCullen, of Norfolk, has been spending several days with friends in and around Ayden.

Mrs. F. G. Buhmann came up on the train Saturday morning from a visit down the road.

Mrs. Oel Manning has been visiting relatives in Ayden.

TUESDAY, AUG. 29, 1905.

The aldermen of Wilmington run up against the "blue laws" and then sat down.

Those peace envoys are having too big a time to be in much of a hurry about it.

Now it is in order for New Bern to stand and take her share of the lambasting from the Northern end of the pike.

If the sun wants to rise in partial eclipse, Thursday morning, that's his business. We shall not rise to interfere with it.

The Russians seem to put up a stronger fight in the peace conference than they did on the battle field. Put the Japs may succeed in landing them.

The Charlotte Observer raises its voice in favor of "unkivered" pie. The fellows waiting to reach the pie counter would be glad to get any kind.

"Russia's last word," is the heading in one of the Sunday papers to the proceedings of the peace conference. We did not know Russia is dead, even if she is licked.

We have always wondered why people would go away from home and make a spectacle by getting drunk. Atlanta is just now wondering that same thing about her mayor.

The Chinese boycott against American products has taken a deeper cut. It started in on our cotton goods, but has now struck flour. Pacific coast mills say their trade with Chinese ports has been paralyzed.

The secretary sends out a very handsome premium list of the state fair to be held in Raleigh Oct. 16-21. The list of premiums offered exhibitors is very liberal. Having President Roosevelt for a drawing card gives promise to a very large attendance at the approaching fair.

A South African has come all the way to this country to search for diamonds in Kentucky and the two Carolinas. He says they are here, and we hope he will find them, yet every land owner should not get crazed with the idea that there are diamond mines hid around his place.

Dave Whichard, of the Greenville REFLECTOR, always looks on the bright side of things. He laments that the watermelon wagon will soon disappear, but finds comfort in the fact that it will be followed by those bearing sweet potatoes and pumpkins. And then there is the luscious scuppernong and the famous James grape that Brother Whichard might have taken count of. These will be coming into market later on.—Goldboro Argus.

Yes, the scuppernong is already in evidence, and our appetite is whetted in anticipation of the early arrival of the luscious James. When these have passed away Jack frost will have the persimmon mellow enough for "possum beer," to be followed by Thanksgiving day and Christmas. Always something to be thankful for if we will only look out for them.

If, as the Richmond judge says calling a man a liar is equivalent to the first blow, Mr. Fife has hit a big bunch of North Carolinians.

It is said that Bishop C. B. Galloway, president of Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., has cancelled his engagement there and gone to New Orleans as a volunteer in the yellow fever scourge to help relieve the suffering. True Christian character marks the man in such a step as that.

Sunday Trains and Sunday Letters.

The Argus is entirely right in lifting its voice against mail delivery on Sunday in Lumberton. It is too demoralizing to be thought of. If it is done in that town it will be because the church members did it. What a thought! Either ignorance of the teachings of the scriptures or a most deplorable worldliness in the church must explain it. At Red Springs there is mail delivery, but the good people there are going to make an effort to put an end to it and they are going to succeed. Running trains where the gathering of people at stations where trains are is very corrupting. It is a shame that so high handed a practice does not awaken protest and persistent effort to arrest it. The two pillars on which the state and the church rest absolutely is the sacredness of the marriage and the Sabbath. The state prospers as the Sabbath is properly observed. It declines in proportion to the laxity of its observance. The church it is concluded could not live in the world but for the Christian Sabbath. He who loves the church and the state will contend earnestly for the Christian Sabbath.—P. R. Law in The Robesonian.

What Are We Coming To?

We are living in an age that is rapidly getting away from the good old homely ways of our childhood. It is very probable that coming generations will never know the sweets of the "good old times" when life was not such a rush and hurly-burly.

A suburb in New York is now trying to suppress the crowing of roosters and the barking of dogs in the town between the hours of ten at night and six in the morning.

The Charlotte News contends that "the people up there are drifting away from nature as fast as they can. What would this world be without the bark of a dog or if cocks couldn't crow? The next thing we hear they'll be attempting to stop babies from crying."

Well, some of them do, and it is a horrible state of affairs.—Durham Sun.

It is gravely announced that the foot-falls of a fly can now be registered by scientific instruments. It would be more like business to put in that time cutting off the bills of mosquitoes.—Raleigh Post.

Quite likely newspapers frequently overstep legal bounds in publishing what is really news. Some do it thoughtlessly, others do it for meanness, for spite, but in this part of the country this class is small. The London libel law is said by some to be discriminating, in that it lets a newspaper out where an individual cannot get out. Maybe it does. All this reminds us that things in this world are not put on an absolutely equitable and fair basis. For instance, were a newspaper to make such charges against a man's character as are frequently made by an attorney in court, it would be mulcted in short order. We know, of course, that sometimes the attorney is justified by the evidence in making such charges, but some times—in fact very often—he is not justified, yet it is done before a jury and a court room full of people. There seems to be no law to reach cases of this kind, though occasionally we hear of a man lambasting a lawyer on the streets for such abuse, in which case, should court still be in session at the time, the lambaster is yanked up for contempt. And so it is that things are not equal by any means.—Greensboro Record.

A CLEVER STRATEGY.

How General Putnam Caused a French Vessel to Be Captured.

General Putnam, a brave officer in the war between the French and English in Canada, is the hero of an interesting little story. General Amherst marched across the country to Canada. Coming to one of the lakes over which he intended to pass with his troops, he found a French vessel armed with twelve guns upon the lake. This greatly distressed the general, as his small boats were no match for this vessel in the situation in which it was placed. While he was thinking what had best be done Putnam addressed him.

"General," said he, "that ship must be taken."

"Yes," said Amherst. "I would give the world were she taken."

"I'll take her," said Putnam.

Amherst smiled and asked how.

"Give me some wedges, a beetle (a large wooden mallet) and a few men, and I'll take her," answered Putnam.

General Amherst was puzzled as to how this was to be accomplished, but he granted Putnam's request and gave him the wedges, beetle and his choice of men. When night came Putnam stole quietly under the vessel's stern, with his wedges and hammer and five men. In an instant the wedges were driven behind the rudder in the cavity between rudder and ship. This was done without attracting the enemy's attention, and then Putnam quietly came back to shore. In the morning the sails were seen fluttering about, and after awhile the vessel was blown ashore and the enemy captured.

Having lost control of the rudder by General Putnam's act the course of the vessel could not be regulated.

Irish Courtesy.

An Irishman has oftentimes such particular regard for the feelings of a stranger that rather than contradict him he will appear to acquiesce in many things that he could not be expected to believe. I said he will appear to acquiesce. A tourist who was sailing upon Loch Erne once wished to test the alleged character of Irishmen for politeness. Now, there was a regular squall on, and at a moment when the old boatman was engrossed and had all his energies bent to keep the little craft before the wind the inquisitive one, leaning over to the old boatman, shouted in his ear, "Very little wind today!" "Very little indeed," was the reply, "but what there is of it is mighty strong."—Leslie's Magazine.

The Malay Fishers.

Crew of Malay fishing vessels in the Indian ocean are thus described by a traveler: "Some of the Malays have not bad features, but others again are awful looking villains. Every one has his creese, or a sort of chopper, at his side, and with bright red lips and black teeth, caused by chewing the betel nut, looks anything but inviting or fascinating. The crew live principally on rice and the fish they catch. They carry a lot of coconuts and coconut oil, and apparently for a luxury a sort of sweetmeat made of a coarse treacle and rice mixed together and firmly pressed into bamboos."

Equal to the Emergency.

An old admiral well known for his power of exaggeration was describing a voyage at supper one night. "While cruising in the Pacific," he said, "we passed an island which was positively red with lobsters." "But," said one of the guests, smiling incredulously, "lobsters are not red until boiled." "Of course not," replied the undaunted admiral, "but this was a volcanic island with boiling springs."

Power of the Breath.

The following experiment demonstrates the elementary power of the human breath: Take a large bag of good, heavy paper, lay it on the table and cover the closed end of it with several books—a big dictionary and a family Bible, for instance—then blow into the bag, filling or inflating it with air, and you will soon see that it will overthrow the books—i. e., remove a small mountain.

Why She Laughed.

"Wise men hesitate, only fools are certain," he observed in the course of a conversation with his tender spouse. "I don't know about that," she said testily. "Well, I am certain of it," he exclaimed. And for a long time he was puzzled why she burst out laughing at him. And then he felt wild with himself.

It Came Off.

Isabel was playing in a wagon, and while she was climbing in and out over the wheel the front of her dainty white apron became smeared with axle grease. When her mother discovered the soiled apron she said: "Oh, Isabel! I told you not to go near that wagon. Now your pretty apron is spoiled, for that grease will never come off. Axle grease never comes off anything." "Why, yes it does, mamma," corrected Isabel. "It came off of the wagon, didn't it?"

EASY DIVORCES.

In Ancient Rome the Marriage Tie Was Loosely Knotted.

Not only was the "bachelor evil" well recognized in ancient Rome in the days of the early Caesars in much the same way that it is today, but many other phases of the marriage question were not unlike the problems that are up for solution in this present year of grace. The matter of divorce was one. People had an idea even then that it was not good for the state, but no effective means to check it was ever discovered. "We are assured by Seneca," says the historian, Inge, "that there were women in Rome who counted their ages not by their years, but by the husbands they had had. Juvenal tells of one woman who married eight husbands in five years. Divorce was granted on the slightest pretext. Many separated merely from love of change, disdaining to give any reason, like Emilius Paulinus, who told his friends that he knew best where his shoes pinched him."

"Rich wives were not much sought after by wise men. Their complete emancipation made them difficult to manage. Accordingly, since both rich and poor wives were objectionable, the large majority of men never married at all. In most cases a Roman bridegroom knew practically nothing of his wife's character until after marriage. Marriage for the Roman woman meant a transition from rigid seclusion to almost unbounded liberty.

"She appeared, as a matter of course, at her husband's table, whether he had company or not. She could go where she liked, either to the temples of Isis and Serapis or to the circus and amphitheater. She had her own troops of slaves, over whom she ruled without interference."

Byron a Tragic Figure.

"The more I think of Byron," says John Davidson in the London Outlook, "the more clear it becomes to me that he is, first, second and third, a tragic figure. He was the child of a loveless marriage, that constant source of huge armies of discordant natures. His upbringing was tragic, his marriage was tragic, his loves were tragic, his death, which at first I thought only tragic force, is actual tragedy. Byron and Napoleon, contemporaries, were the analogues and compliments of each other. Byron is the passive tragedy of the imaginative temperament as poet, using expression, Napoleon is the active tragedy of the imaginative temperament as warrior and world compeller, employing deeds. Byron inevitably ends in an abortive attempt at action in Greece. Napoleon, as inevitably, in an abortive attempt at expression (the dictated memoirs) in St. Helena."

An Elaborate Speech.

"If there is anybody under the canister of heaven that I hold in utter execration," says Mrs. Partington, "it is a tale bearer and slanderer, going about like a vile boa constructor, circulating his camouflage amongst the honest folks. I always know one by his phismahogany. It seems as if Belzabob had stamped him with his private signal, and everything he looks at appears to turn yaller." And having uttered this somewhat elaborate speech she was seized with a violent fit of coughing and called for some "demulcent drops."

He Had His Answer.

"I wish I dared to ask you something, Miss Helen," said Percy, with trembling voice. "Why don't you dare to ask it?" the maiden said demurely. "Because I can see 'No' in your eyes."

"In both of them?" "Y-yes." "Well, don't you—don't you know two negatives are equivalent to an—how dare you, sir! Take your arm from around my waist instantly!" But he didn't.

A Rather Broad Hint.

An Australian customs officer tells this story: "For some time we had in the customs gig a great stewart Javanese named Mingo, who also acted as office boy. He had at one time been a soldier and fought in Acheen. Mingo lived at my quarters. One evening we had a dance, which I suppose disturbed Master Mingo, for, getting tired of the frivolity, he suddenly appeared on the veranda with a lighted lantern and a clock. He coolly walked around and deliberately held the lantern and clock in the face of each guest in turn. The timepiece indicated 2:30. Our friends, who fully appreciated Mingo's gentle hint, immediately departed."

A Programme.

"Mistuh Jackson done tole me he gwinter hab a carriage foh de pahty dis evenin'," said Miss Maimi Brown. "Dat's what he is," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkly, "but I didn't know he knowed 'bout it." "Why wouldn't Mistuh Jackson know 'bout it?" "Cause I done made de 'rangements myse'f. Dat carriage is gwinter be a ambulance, an' he's gwinter ride on'y jes' one way."—Washington Star.

The "Proper" Circle.

Waynesville society was started Monday morning, says the Courier to learn that a number of young men, some of them members of the best families, were up before the mayor for gambling, and gambling Sunday night. at that. More than likely, adds the Courier during the time of this outrageous conduct by the boys their parents were at church worshipping, unconscious of the heinous offences of their boys. It is to be hoped that their parents heard a good wholesome, moving sermon from text, "Be ye doers of the word and not hearers only," and that they assisted the mayor in doing a plenty for the young gamblers who have been moving "in the best circles" of Waynesville society. There is probably one very respectable circle of society in which these boys have never moved as much as they should—a circle about six feet in diameter, with a good stout hickory actively manipulated from the center, while the boy swung around the circle at a lively gait, constantly receiving inducements to make it livelier.—Gastonia Gazette
