

TOBACCO SALES FOR AUGUST.

Over Three Times as Large as the Same Month last Year.

C. W. Harvey, secretary of the tobacco board of trade, has furnished us the figures showing that the sales on the Greenville market for the month of August were 1,645,439 pounds, at an average price of $6.57 per hundred pounds.

As compared with last year a gain of over three hundred per cent in pounds is shown, the sales in August, 1904, being 465,232 pounds at an average price of $6.92 per 100 pounds. It will be noticed that the average price this year is a little lower than last, but this is due to the fact that the crop this year is very common in quality. Prices on all grades are higher this year than last, but so much common brings down the average.

Tokio Newspapers Denounce the Portsmouth Agreement.

Tokio, Sept. 1.—The Yorozu, an independent radical organ, attacks the Portsmouth settlement, commencing its article, "Arise brethren." Then recalling the attempt to assassinate Count Okuma, it says: "The public will never remain quiet when the national interests are menaced." The Yorozu affirms that the nation will be humiliated unless the public take strong action. It asks why the victor is conciliatory and the vanquished arrogant. It declares that the speedy intervention of the people alone will prevent national disgrace following brilliant victories by land and sea. It continues "If such intevention does not come our brethren killed on the field will have died an inglorious death."

The minor papers generally express anger and denounce the peace as humiliating.

The Jiji says: "The agreement arrived at without a rupture can mean only great concessions by our envoys. Peace on such terms can never satisfy the nation."

The Mainichi says: "We are disappointed. The fruits of our victories have been lost by weak diplomacy. Japan, victorious in the field, has been defeated in the council chamber."

Name Your Farms.

That is a good suggestion the Progressive Farmer makes, that farmers name their farms and use printed stationery like other business people. There are a few farmers in Pitt county who do this, and if every one with a farm large enough would do so it would be found advantageous.

The Way Girls Talk.

Rev. P. R. Law, the lumber bridge editor of The Lumberton Robesonian, cannot understand the way some of the present day girls carry on conversation. What he has in mind is the meeting of four girls who all begin talking at the same time and keep it up continuously. "The auditor," he says, "can hear but a few words. Perhaps the girls hear and it is sense throughout. To us it is a jumble of sounds and no more. Each one appears really ecstatic. The enjoyment is obvious. By unwritten law no discourtesy whatever is perpetrated. Each breaks in upon the narratives of the other at will. To get a hearing the voice is at times raised highly. Really, it looks like each has something to say and gets excited for fear some other will say it first. There arises in all an instantaneous impulse to talk and talk they must or explode." Mr. Law wonders if this universal practice was exploded by our schools for girls, these colloquial matches would not be more sensible as well as less noisy? Hardly. Nor would we like to be the school teacher who would undertake to break up the habit. But, seriously, Mr. Law is not the only one who has observed this practice. It is something that man may comment on, but not interfere with—Charlotte Evening Chronicle.

Don't be afraid there will be a dearth since the war is over. Something else will come along to attract attention.

The spirit of taking hold with the other fellow and doing something together to push things along will help any town. Greenville needs that kind of a spirit.

About as might have been expected, when the farmers are about to have cotton ready for market the price gets to dropping. If it goes below ten cents we do not believe many of them are going to sell.

There are some people who are never satisfied unless they can engage in "pulling down." It is not their nature or desire to "build up" or see others prosper, and it is this class of folks that are drawbacks to communities, counties and states. The opposite classes should give the "pullers down" a wide berth.—Lourinburg Times.

Don't things change? When you old fellows were boys the girls used to wear great long armed gloves and a woman would almost blush if you saw her arm. Now they run around the streets with sleeves rolled back above the elbows. The practice costs less—besides it is healthier and certainly more sensible.—Greensboro Record.

THE ALUMNEA ASSOCIATION OF GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE TO ALL FORMER STUDENTS

GREETINGS:

At our annual meeting held in the college chapel last June, we, as an association, pledged ourselves to raise one thousand dollars ($1,000) to be used for the completion of the front of the new building.

The ladies of West Market Street church came promptly to our assistance, offering to give to this fund the proceeds of their annual Chrysanthemum show. In connection with the "show" we wish to have a fancy work bazaar, in which we ask the cooperation of every former student of Greensboro Female College. We hope that a pleasing display of embroidery, drawn-work, lace pyrographic, painting and dainty hand made articles of every description will not only add to the attractions of the occasion but very materially increase our receipts.

Will you not help to make the bazaar a financial success by donating a piece of hand-work, and also by requesting your friends who are interested in the college to do the same? All exhibits should be sent not later than the first of November, to Mrs. Lucy H. Robertson, Greensboro Female College.

It is our purpose to reach every G. F. C. girl in the state and you can assist us very much by mailing copies of this letter to your college acquaintances and also to your county newspaper for publication. Additional copies will be furnished on request.

Mrs. LUCY A. CUNNINGHAM, Pres.
Miss NANNIE LEE SMITH, Sec.

Quit criticising the governor. He is making a good one.

This is without doubt the greatest crop year in the history of the United States. We have heard something like that before, it seems to us. Do you realize what it means to break the crop record in this country—the greatest crop country on the globe? The year of our Lord 1905 is indeed a joyful one for United States farmers all over the land. The harvest is now in full swing. The weather has been good in most sections, and as a result the farmer smiles in spite of the hard work, because he is thinking of the grand results. It is a great satisfaction to see the year's work about to close with such a glorious finish. Those city men who say they do not envy the farmer will have occasion to change their opinion. They will at least have to respect the farmer's cast. He has more of it this year than ever before.—Durham Sun.

Which has the most sense and is most industrious, the bee or the ant? The query was asked by one professor of another. The professor to whom the query was addressed promptly took the ground that the ant was the greater worker and exercised more sense in working than the bee. The bee man controverted this and said the bee leads in sense and industry. They are still arguing.—Charlotte Chronicle.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR. $50.00 REWARD

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Whereas, official information has been received at this department that William Williams murdered Lawrence Hopkins, of Pitt county, and whereas, it appears that the said William Williams has fled the State, or so conceals himself that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him. Now, therefore, I, R. B. Glenn, Governor of the State of North Carolina, by virtue of authority in me vested by law, do issue this my Proclamation, offering a reward of Fifty Dollars for the apprehension and delivery of the said William Williams to the sheriff of Pitt county at the Court-house in Greenville and I do enjoin all officers of the State and all good citizens to assist in bringing said criminal to justice. Done at our City of Raleigh, the 14th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five and in the one hundred and 29th year of our American Independence. By the Governor: R. B. GLENN. Jas. D. Glenn, Private Secretary.

DESCRIPTION

William Williams is a dark mulatto negro, weighing about 160 or 170 pounds slightly stooped shouldered, with some defect in his eyes, which gives him the appearance of being cross eyed; between 30 or 35 years of age.

LAND OF THE GUILLEMOTS.

A Picturesque Spot in England on the North Sea.

Immense and lonely, like the battlemented walls of a forgotten city of giants, Flamborough's white cliffs towered high and sleepy and indifferently above the restless sea which lapped their bases and broke in creamy foam on the submerged rock fragments at their feet. Strangely like are those cliffs to the work of man—towers and bastions and barbicans, great flanking walls of solid white masonry, 500 courses high; here and there narrow Gothic arches, flying buttresses and all the intricate stonework of an old cathedral. Who laid those beds of huge stone with the regular mortarlike interspaces?

"It was deposited as a sea bottom," says my geological companion as we scramble along the grassy top with a perpetual quiver of fright at the tremendous depths beneath. But if so how comes it that those thin horizontal layers of darker color are so regularly spaced? Did the sea hold a sort of centenary carnival and deposit gravel instead of chalk for a few months at the end of every hundred years?

These lonely rocks are not really lonely. They are the cities of the guillemot, and every ledge and nook and recess in their steep battlements is crowded with those quaint, clumsy birds. Down on the green water below guillemots are sprinkled thickly, as though by a pepper box, squawking and disputing and chattering with a terrible din. On the ledges they stand in their white breasted thousands, surveying the great flat sea like the Arab in his snowy burmose looking out over the desert, and on little patches of grass are their green and tawny eggs, bigger than a hen's, and pointed at one end like a peg top, so that they shall not roll off.

And now we have a thrilling sight, for one of the egg gatherers is going to descend. Tall, brown, bearded, with big helmet to save his head from loosened stones, he is led down at the end of a rope and walks backward down the rough perpendicular cliff. At each step he bounces himself away from the rock, sometimes ten yards or so, and yet he always manages to swing back on the other foot. As he descends showers of birds fall off the cliff, for the guillemot turns a backward somersault into the air when he wants to fly. It is a fearful sight to see that man swinging lower and lower till he gets no bigger than a bird, swinging to a ledge, picking up a few eggs and putting them into the satchel on his back and always managing to approach those jagged rocks feet foremost. At last he jerks the rope and begins to walk upward, bringing enough eggs to fill a large market basket, and after this desperate adventure one egg in five goes to the landowner for rent.—London News.

Self Restraint.

Three wise old men were sitting in a coffee house talking about humans and the world. Wise words passed between the marble tables like flies upon a window pane. After they had discussed nearly everything that had happened since the creation of this world one of them asked, "Masters of wisdom, which do you consider the greatest achievement of mankind?" "Their greatest achievement will only come when men have learned to fly," one of the sages said. "I don't believe that," said the second. "The greatest achievement is indolence." "I believe you are both mistaken," said the third. "The greatest achievement of which I know is that the barber who daily holds thirty to forty heads in his hands does not think one moment of cutting somebody's head off." —From the German.

The Helpless Heiress.

"Isn't my check good in this bank?"
"It isn't good, ma'am, until you sign it."
"Oh, bother! Didn't you notice I inclosed my calling card with it?"
"Yes, ma'am, but it is not the same thing."
"Such a nuisance! Then I suppose I can't get my money?"
"You can get it by signing the check."
"How can I? My secretary, who does all my signing, is away on a vacation!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Nothing Personal.

A company of men were playing cards. One of them had but one eye and a quite suspicious number of trumps. His luck was really phenomenal. At last one of the losers could stand it no longer. "I don't wish to make personal remarks," he said, "or mention any gentleman by name, but I suspect the play of one of the company, and if I find my suspicions justified I will shoot his other eye out."

Often the Case.

The young man who played by ear had just finished several numbers at the piano.
"I notice you play without music," said a musician.
"Oh," responded the youth, with evident pride, "I don't know one note from another."
"I thought so," commented the musician, and the silence was extremely pianissimo.

OUT OF SIBERIA.

The Story of How Three Russian Exiles Were Rescued.

Dr. Carl Joubert, author of "Russia as It Really Is," tells this plain little story of how he rescued three men—Dr. Alexander Begdanovitch and two others—from exile in Siberia. It was necessary to bribe the sergeant of the "rota," or prisoners' convoy. Dr. Joubert says: "We sat down side by side at the edge of the forest. 'Tell me, sergeant,' I said, 'if I were to place a fifty ruble (a ruble is 51 1/2 cents) note on your eye could you see?' 'No, doctor, I should not be able to see with that eye, but I could see out of the other.' 'Oh, you could! Well, then, 50 rubles on your other eye would make you totally blind?' 'Yes, doctor, I should be blind for life. There are so many colors in a 100 ruble note that it is impossible to see through it, I am told.' 'Now, let us come to an understanding. I place a fifty ruble note on each of your eyes and you are then blind. Now, supposing that I should place another upon your mouth. Would you lose your power of speech?' 'A man cannot speak with his mouth full of paper, gospodin. You are a doctor who knows well the medicine to prescribe for every disease.'"

"Very good," I said. "Now, when you are blind and speechless what are you going to do?" "You may leave that to me, doctor. All I want to know is which are the birds and how many are to be turned into the woods? You shall have as many as you wish, but you must remember that we have only a little more than 600 of them, and therefore, gospodin, you will not ask for 700 birds." "Good heavens, no! I only want four or five at the outside," I exclaimed, astounded by the potency of the medicine I had prescribed. "Only five!" said the sergeant. "Then you can take off 50 rubles."

But the doctor wouldn't take back any of his medicine and eventually added another fifty. So the sergeant got 200 rubles and soon after left the service and started a pothouse in Moscow on the proceeds. Dr. Joubert, after a rather hard time of it, finally got his fugitives safely across the whole of Siberia and Russia and beyond the German frontier.

Kipling and Frank Stockton.

Rudyard Kipling and Frank Stockton, author of "The Lady or the Tiger?" were chatting on one occasion about India when the latter said, "By the way, Kipling, I'm thinking of going over to India some day myself." "Do so, my dear fellow," replied Mr. Kipling, with a suspicious warmth of cordiality. "Come as soon as ever you can! And, by the way, do you know what we will do with you when we get you out there, away from your friends and family? Well, the first thing will be to lure you out into the jungle and have you seized and bound by our trusty wallahs. Then we'll lay you on your back and have one of the very biggest elephants stand over you and poise his ample forehead directly over your head. Then I'll say in my most insinuating tones, 'Come, now, Stockton, which was it—the lady or the tiger?' What would you do then?" "Oh, well, that's easy enough. I should tell you a lie."

A Lucky Dog.

An astronomer does not hail the discovery of a new star with any more enthusiasm than the average physician displays over a new or rare disease. It was in this spirit that Sir Frederick Treves received the account of ailments which a distinguished patient gave him. "Let me congratulate you," he is reported as saying. "You have, you lucky dog, a disease which was thought to be extinct!"

An Anecdote of Kitchener.

One who served with Lord Kitchener in Egypt tells the following anecdote of him in the Liverpool Daily Post: "During the progress of some construction work in upper Egypt the young subaltern in charge had the misfortune to lose some native workmen through the accidental explosion of some cases of dynamite. He telegraphed to Lord Kitchener, then sirdar, 'Regret to report killing of ten laborers by dynamite accident.' In a few hours came this laconic dispatch: 'Do you need any more dynamite?'"

Settled.

When a Scotchman answers a question he settles the matter in dispute once for all.
On a certain occasion the question was asked:
"Why was Mary, queen of Scots, born at Linlithgow?"
Sandy Kerr promptly answered:
"Because her mither was staying there." And there actually seemed to be nothing more to be said on the subject.

Juvenile Logic.

A little boy of four years of age on noticing for the first time a lock of gray hair on his father's head asked, "Papa, why are some of your hairs gray?"
"Thinking to drive home a moral lesson, the father answered, 'Papa has a new gray hair every time his little boy is naughty.'"
The child seemed lost in thought, but after a pause said bravely, "Then grandpa must have had awfully naughty boys."
