JURY SAYS FOUL PLAY.

Four Men Committed to Jail.

As a result of an autopsy held on the body of Thos. H. Nall and a final taking of the testimony before the jury which for several days has been investigating the case, J. O. King, L. R. High, Jack Peele and W. F. Durham, attendants at the state hospital for the insane, are in Wake county jail, charged with having beaten to death a patient under their charge who was attempting to make his escape.

The arrest of the four men was made about seven o'clock at the hospital by Deputy Sheriffs Walters and Stell. The men made no resistance and the officers state seemed surprised that a warrant should have been issued against them. They would not talk of the case in any aspect but quietly accompanied the officers to Raleigh and later summoned S. G. Ryan, Esq., to confer with them as to their defense.

The verdict and warrant of the jury operates as a commitment without bail and the only course open to the defendants before they answer to the charge at the September term of court is to petition in habeas corpus proceedings. It is yet too early to state what course they may be expected to take.

The body which had been previously exhumed near Pittsboro had been brought to Raleigh and the formal post-mortem conducted here yesterday.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Two For the Price of One.

September term of Superior court will begin on third Monday and will bring large crowds to town. We hope it will also bring a large number of our friends from the country to THE REFLECTOR office to get subscription receipts. To every one who pays for a year in advance we give a year's free subscription to the American Farmer, making two papers for the price of one.

Japs Rioting.

Tokio, Sept. 6.—Rioting broke out here Tuesday night in connection with the dissatisfaction over the results of the peace settlement. There were several clashes with the police and it is estimated that two were killed and 500 wounded. The rioting ceased at midnight. Police stations were the only property destroyed.

Ran On Sidewalk.

C. V. York's horse ran away on Evans street just after noon. After freeing himself from the wagon the horse ran right up the sidewalk. No damage was done.

STATE NEWS.

Mrs. Bettie Blount, aged 75 years, near Elizabeth City, committed suicide by taking rough on rats.

The petition for a saloon against dispensary election in Raleigh lacked 34 of the sufficient number of names and the aldermen refused to call the election.

W. A. Barbee, of Durham, committed suicide in a room of the Yarrowhouse at Raleigh. He got a slave, put on clean clothes, bought a pistol, gave the hotel clerk a roll of money went to a room for which he had paid in advance and shot himself. He left a note asking that his body be sent to Durham.

F. M. Hodges, who has been confined with a severe carbuncle on his neck, is getting out though he still has a bad neck.

Chew the best—Kite tobacco.

LETTER TO SHERIFF HARRINGTON.

Greenville, N. C.
Dear Sir: The whitest white paint is Devco. The whitest white boats on the sound and the whitest white ships on the sea are painted Devco.

Mrs. J. C. Clark's is the whitest white house in Laurens, S. C. Lawyer Simpson, of Spartansburg, S. C., happened to see it and wanted to know what paint it was painted with, it was Devco, of course.

A white house ought to be white, not grey. If you want yours grey, you can have it without false paint and short measure. The true paint is Devco, the full measure paint is Devco.

Go by the name; it is white and full measure

Yours truly,

ORMONDSVILLE ITEMS.

ORMONDSVILLE, Sept 6, 1905

Y. T. Ormond and family of Kinston are visiting friends and relatives in this section.

Miss Mary Tapp, of Kinston, is visiting Miss Margaret Ormond. Paul Frizzell and Guy C. Taylor left yesterday to re-enter Trinity College.

Quite a number of our people are attending court at Snow Hill this week.

Prof. Jas. H. Bunch opened his school here last Monday morning with thirty pupils. Mr. Bunch is an earnest, pious, religious and thoroughly accomplished young man. His influence in this section has already made itself manifest. We have no reason to believe but that this will be one of the most successful terms of school that has ever been held here.

The series of meetings at St. Delight closed last Saturday night and on Sunday at 9:30 o'clock Rev. R. I. Corbett, the pastor, baptized 42 in the creek at Ridge Springs. The meeting seemed to be a success in every particular; was enjoyed by all and much good seemed to be accomplished.

We were in Snow Hill yesterday when John Moore, from near Lizzie, was seriously cut in the back by a negro. We did not learn the negro's name. His only reason for the assault was that Moore in passing him accidentally stepped on his toes. The sheriff arrested the negro in a few minutes as he was near the scene.

Miss Elizabeth Carver, from near Raleigh, arrived last Saturday and began her work as assistant teacher in school Monday morning. Miss Carver is well known in this section as this makes her third year she has taught in this school. Her work in the past has given general satisfaction and we are glad to see her connected with the school again.

Charlie Beaman, of Snow Hill, was down a short while Monday.

Miss Nora Hardee is on the sick list.

Miss Annie Hardee returned Monday, after a long visit to friends near Rose Hill.

Mrs. C. H. Langston spent Monday in Winterville.

E. E. Dail left this morning for Vanceboro.

Selling Crop Rapidly.

The way farmers are rushing tobacco to market causes the prediction that it will not take long for the entire crop to be sold. Estimates based on the crop are that about 9,000,000 pounds will be marketed in Greenville this season. In August, the first month of the season, some over 1,600,000 pounds were sold here, and so far this month the sales are much larger than last month, indicating that the figures will go well above 2,000,000 pounds for September.

The service in the Methodist church tonight begins at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

The peace treaty between Japan and Russia has been signed and it is now all over.

Governor Glenn says he can't make a holiday, but the people will take one when the president comes to Raleigh.

Public Printer Palmer discharging two of the foremen in the government printing office because they testified against him, did not stop the ball. President Roosevelt has ousted him.

Wilmington negroes, judging from their recent conduct, are paving the way for a number of their race to be compelled to leave the city again. That city seems to be infested with a bad set of them.

It is easy to hear business men and others say Greenville needs this or that to be done to increase the business of the town, but no one has yet moved toward the organization of a board of trade to help secure the things needed.

One of the things argued in favor of Greenville putting in water works was that it would reduce fire insurance rates. A good system of water works has been in operation several months, but insurance rates continue just as high as before. Another point a board of trade might consider, if Greenville had one.

A South Carolina negro college president, who was heretofore noted for his common sense and good manners, has succumbed to Booker Washington's example and gone to riding about with his family in Pullman cars, much to the indignation of white passengers in the same cars. As that negro is at the head of a state institution whose board of trustees is composed of white men, the end of his presidential career can be readily foreseen. He had better been content to stay in his sphere and not try to ape Booker.

"How can a young man get into the door of society?" asks a fashion writer. It he's got the dough the door won't bar his way.—Wilmington Star.

Recent revelations show that there is graft even in coffins. A man may be compelled to give up all along the line of earthy activities, but when he at last gives up the ghost he should be let out gracefully.—New York Evening Telegram.

The fact is plain that the Filipinos have about as much contempt for our ways and methods as we have for theirs. The simple fact is, our work in the Philippines is an effort to supplant Orientalism with Americanism and the Filipinos are not built in a way to make it a success. We would like to make the Philippines what America is, but the Filipinos are simply unwilling for us to do so.—Wilmington Star.

During the past year the sum of $26,035,377 was paid to Federal pensioners residing in the South. Six hundred and fifty thousand dollars were distributed in North Carolina. Kentucky got the biggest slice of all—$4,036,000. South Carolina has fewer Federal pensioners than any other Southern State, her pay roll footing up only $256,000.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Gambling Never Pays.

A communication in a recent issue of The State contained the following paragraph:

"Young man, put your cigarette on the card table and turn your back on both as you would from the devil, for there are large quantities of hell in both."

Truer words were never written and there is a sermon in every line. The passion for gambling is as pernicious—nay, more so—than the passion for drink. The young man infected with the gambling spirit soon learns to become dishonest—if he does not actually steal. He becomes dishonest in the small things of life. He steals the time to gamble which ought to be devoted to perfecting his own welfare. He becomes neglectful in his duties to his employer. He becomes slothful in his work, indifferent to obligations and finally winds up as a moral wreck.

The young men of today are looked upon, logically, as the rulers of tomorrow. Can they fit themselves for these higher duties by allowing themselves to become the slaves of the baser passions? They must keep their lives clean if they would grow into useful and upright citizenship. They must work for honest ends and honest aims and not fritter their time away in pursuits of unholy desires.

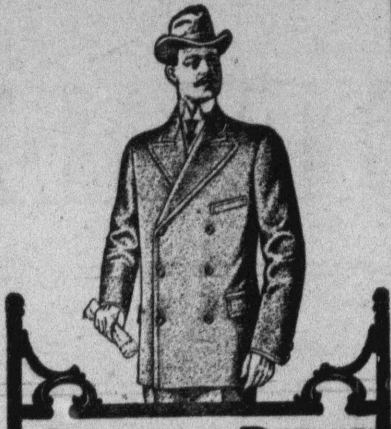

Truly, the writer above quoted says: "You lose three things when you gamble: First, your time; second, your money; third, your honor; and if you stick to it your character is bound to go, and then all is gone.—Rock Hill Record.

Swift Spenders.

J. M. Richards, a West Virginia coal mine owner, wearing a $95,000 diamond pin and with a roll of $51,000 pin money, has been cutting a dash in Philadelphia. One of his favorite amusements was to go into various stores and ask change for a $10,000 bill. Now it happened that a Baltimore sport named Henry Spratt Janes, who was in Philadelphia, became tired of Richards' airs and laid a scheme to make him feel small. It was midnight, and Mr. Janes took a notion that he must have a surf bath, but found that he could get no train to Atlantic City. Cutting out the details of his lordly negotiations for an engine and Pullman, he got them by paying $450, then had a run to the coast, a plunge in the surf and was back at his hotel before the card games of the other clubmen were broken up. The coal miner felt so badly outdone that he left town. This may be considered by some as a case of fools and their money, but the redeeming feature of it is that they have plenty of it and the faster they can put it into circulation the better. We would not object to the pair spending, say, about one month in Charlotte. The town could afford to pay their hotel bills.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The capital represented by new enterprises projected in this state last week aggregates nearly $1,000,000. And this is not an exceptional record either. Four especially encouraging things about the industrial life of this state now are found in the fact that a large number of enterprises with moderate capital as well as large concerns are being organized; that there is a growing tendency toward further diversification of industries; that many banks are being organized in small towns; that a number of new railroad lines are being projected. These things are furnishing a basis for ever greater prosperity in the near future than the state has ever known in the past.—Winston Sentinel.

THE BARBER'S SIGNAL.

A Little Light Conversation That Contains a Hidden Meaning.

It is hardly probable that the barbers' union has any set rules governing the acceptance of tips by its members, but it is a certainty that in some shops the tonsorial artists have a code of signals for mutual welfare. This was illustrated in one of the best patronized shops in that section of Broadway known as "The Great White Light District" a few years ago.

A customer of an inquiring turn of mind, who was undergoing the whole tonsorial process, from hair cut to shampoo, was greatly puzzled at the conversation exchanged between the barbers. The monotony of the phrases seemed to indicate that there was some hidden meaning behind them.

"Seen Jim today?" one barber would ask.

"No. How's he looking?"

"Oh, pretty fair."

Sometimes the answer would vary. Jim was looking "pretty fair" or "out of sight" or "mighty badly." "Yes, it's a sort of signal that we exchange," admitted the man at the first chair. "You see, there are regular customers who generally wait for their own particular barber to shave them. Sometimes they are in a hurry and take the first man that happens to be idle. That man does not know whether to throw in a few extra frills or whether he would be wasting his time—a tip, you know—so he asks the man who is in the habit of shaving the customer, 'How's Jim?' The answer guides him in his treatment of the man under the razor. 'Pretty fair' means a small tip. 'Out of sight' means 'put in all the extras you can.' 'Mighty badly' signifies that the customer never tips, so don't waste any time on him." — New York Press.

Yet He Had to Serve.

A Kansas City young man had an unusual but excellent reason for complaining when he was impelled for jury duty. He was waiting in the hall outside the courtroom and worrying over the problem of how he was to be excused. He looked so dejected that finally another juror asked him what was wrong. "Why, I'm summoned here on the jury," was the reply, "and I don't see how I can possibly serve." "Why can't you serve?" asked the other. "Because," said the worried young man, "I've got an engagement to take a young lady riding this afternoon, and if I don't keep it she'll never look at me again. Darn it!" But the young man was kept on the jury panel.

A Fair Proposal.

A story is related of a man who, on a visit to Scotland, went to the kirk on the "Sawbath." Feeling very drowsy, he succumbed entirely after the first sentence or so of the sermon. An elderly man, who had been watching with rising wrath the obviously "irrelegious" attitude of the stranger, bent forward, shook him and whispered in his ear: "Gie the mon a chance. Wait till he gets along a bit, and then if he's no' worth listening to gang to sleep, but d'na gang before he gets commenced."

Ancient Surgical Instruments.

Over forty different kinds of surgical instruments were found in the house of a surgeon at Pompeii. Some resembled the instruments now in use, while others are so completely different from anything of the kind now employed that their use is entirely conjectural. All were inclosed in brass or boxwood cases, and some even retained the exquisite polish that they had when buried.

Mysterious Jones.

Who is the Man with the Cigar? His Name is Jones. Is he a Good Man? Yes, but he has one Bad Fault. What is the Fault? He Beefs about the Beauty of the Town He Came From. He says it is a Little Town, but the People are Honest and do not try to Skin You. When they Take You by the Hand, they Shake it Heartily, and you Know they Mean it. Is he Going Back there to Live? Oh, no! He may Go Back on a Short Visit, but you could not Keep Him There with a Gatling Gun. Why does he Talk One Way and Act Another? You may Search Us, Child.—Detroit Tribune.

Sweet Solitude.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I do wish you would keep away from the race track."
There was no reply.
"I heard some men talking about a lot of long shots that landed, and if I had known, Charley, dear, that there was rifle practice going on in the neighborhood I should never have let you go near the place."—Washington Star.

Not What She Meant.

One of the German women who accompanied George I. to England was hissed and hooted at by the crowd as she was being driven along the mall to St. James' palace. Putting her head out of the coach, she called out in broken English: "Good people, why you abuse us? We come for all your goods." "Yes," answered a man in the crowd, "and for our chattels too."

BATTLE OF NAVARINO.

Some Exciting Incidents of this Fierce Naval Engagement.

In the year 1827 the British admiral, Omanney, took part in the battle of Navarino, in which the English, French and Russian ships entered the harbor of Navarino, in Greece, and annihilated the Turkish and Egyptian vessels, which were unable to leave their moorings. The battle lasted four hours. Admiral Omanney tells this of Sir Edward Codrington, the admiral in command: "His escapes from death were marvelous. So that he might command a good view of the battle he stood on the poop of the Asia, the most exposed part of the ship. He was talking with the master when a shot came and killed the latter at his side. A shot killed an officer of marines who was on the quarter deck just below the poop. The admiral felt the poop only once to go forward to talk to the boatswain, and while talking to him the boatswain also was killed at his side. "A bullet went through his hat, in which it made two holes, and another bullet went through his loose coat sleeve. Another bullet smashed his gold watch. When on the poop he stooped his head under a rolled awning, and while bent like that a shot passed through the awning's folds. At another time he had just turned from a spot on the poop when the place where he had been standing was covered with wreckage from aloft, which would have crushed and buried him. And yet throughout the battle, when men were being slain and wounded everywhere around him, Codrington escaped uninjured."

Other incidents of the same battle: "An Irishman seized a musket, and, with a roar of 'Make way, there!' he swept a road through the Turks by swinging his weapon from side to side with crushing force. One of my fellow midshipmen, named Hicks, was among the boarders, many of whom had forgotten to take their pistols. Hicks shouted to the first lieutenant, 'Give them cold shot, sir!' And the boarders did, for they picked up the cold shot which was lying about ready for the guns and hurled it down upon the Turks."

He Won His Freedom by His Plucky Fight For Light.

This is the story of a rat that showed a courage and strength of mind in the presence of great danger. The man who tells the tale had gone down to the river one evening to fish and heard the rat fall into a well near by, in which the surface of the water was about five feet down. "The rat could not climb up the sides and was reduced to sitting on a bent bit of pipe. He was fairly trapped. As the colony of rats of which he was a member had committed many recent atrocities, among other things murdering young ducks and chickens at the farm as well as stealing eggs and slaughtering infant rabbits, it was deemed that the rat ought to be killed. I swept him off the pipe in the net, but he ran up the handle as quick as lightning, and as I had no fancy for completing the ladder with my hand and arm I shook him back into the well. I then rather reluctantly decided to drown him, though it was a cold blooded proceeding, and I did not much like it. "So the lamp was 'shone' on to the water, from which the rat had now emerged. He was again sitting on his pipe. You can see far deeper down into the water with a light at night than you can in the sunlight in the daytime, and when I caught the rat in the net and pushed the latter down below water, with the open part of the net against the flat side of the well, I saw the rat swim around in the net looking for a hole. All this took some time, and it could get no breath. But this did not disturb it. It then appeared with its feet upward, and I thought it was dead. But a person with me said, 'No, he is biting through the net.' This was the case. The rat was holding on with all four feet and biting through the net, made of dressed fishing line, on the top side. "I shook the net and pushed it down lower. Again the rat began its efforts and bit through several strands till it got its head and shoulders out. All this time it was under water. Such courage and coolness must have caused admiration even in a rat catcher, and I promptly pulled up the net and determined to give the rat his life. It was not quite exhausted even then, but sat on the grass in the light of the lamp, half in the net and half out, with its head up and its eyes open. I shook it free from the meshes, when it sat up and had a good look at us and then sneaked off into some cover by the bank."

The Credulity of Women.

There are notable exceptions to the rule, if this is really the rule, but the statistics of the St. Louis postoffice are an astonishing confirmation of the ease with which thousands of women all over the country can be induced to mail hard earned money, running up finally to a total of millions, for "safe keeping" by men of whom they know nothing except through the appeal of the incredible made by circular.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
