THE YEAR'S OBITUARY ROLL

Political Affairs, Miscellaneous, Sporting and Personal Items—Loss of Life and Property by Accidents, Shipwrecks, Storms and Conflagrations—A Chronological Review.

Like its immediate predecessor, the year 1905 is notable as a period to date from in the history of the war between Russia and Japan. The year opened with the fall of Port Arthur after a prolonged and stubborn contest in which 150,000 men took part and the casualties totaled 70,000 (estimated). The Russian land forces were signally defeated at Mukden in March, and in May the Russian Baltic fleet was practically annihilated in the strait of Korea by the Japanese fleet under Admiral Togo. On the initiative of President Roosevelt negotiations for a peace conference were begun in June, and sessions were opened in Portsmouth, N. H., in August which ended in the conclusion of a treaty of peace signed by the emperor of Russia and the emperor of Japan Oct. 14. Hostilities in this war continued approximately one year and four months, and the estimated cost of the conflict is over $3,000,000,000. The total battle casualties are placed at over 400,000.

During the year the internal troubles of Russia reached an acute stage and resulted in the granting of civic privileges which in their entirety amount to a social and political revolution and the effacement of the autocracy.

Among the political events of the year were the dissolution of the union under one crown of Sweden and Norway and the establishment of the independent kingdom of Norway with Prince Charles of Denmark on the throne. Venezuela became involved in disputes with the United States and France over concessions to the subjects of those two countries, and the European powers, with the exception of Germany, united in a demonstration to bring Turkey to terms in the matter of Macedonia.

The obituary list of the year includes Joseph Jefferson, Fitz-Hugh Lee, Mary Mapes Dodge, Mary A. Livermore and John Hay, in America, and George MacDonald and Sir Henry Irving, in England.

Four crops made new high records for the year in this country as to value—corn, hay, wheat and rice—although in amount of production the corn crop is the only one of the four that exceeds previous yields. In every crop the general level of production was high and that of prices still higher.

Reviews of Reviews | The Cosmopolitan | Woman's Home Companion

Many other publications are desirable, and you may prefer this or prefer that fiction and art publication, but the Review of Reviews is necessary. Substantial American men and women are going to keep up with the times and they are going to take the shortest cut which is the Review of Reviews.

A leading magazine for 18 years With the recent change of ownership it has been improved. It is far better in every respect, and aims to be the best in the field. Every year or so there's one notable advance in the forward movement among the many magazines. This year it is the Cosmopolitan.

The Woman's Home Companion is for every member of the family. For our bright, earnest, cultured, home loving American woman it is an ideal entertainer and helper in a thousand congenial ways; but the fathers and brothers and sons join in its perusal by the fireside; children eagerly turn to the pages that are written for them.

The American Farmer is the leading Agricultural paper of the country, and pertains to farming, live stock and poultry raising. Every farmer should have it

Posting Him.

On one occasion when Rev. Charles Page Eden was dean of Oriol college grave complaints against the college cook were brought to him by one of the undergraduates. The dean sent for the offender, recapitulated his several delinquencies and threatened him with dismissal.

"La, Mr. Eden," rejoined the cook in a confidential tone, "it's no manner of use attending to what the young men tell you about my dinners. Why, you know, Mr. Eden, they come in just in the same way to me and complain about your lectures!"—London Mail.

Why He Changed Faith.

A southerner was telling of an old colored man in his neighborhood who first joined the Episcopal church, then the Methodist and next the Baptist, where he remained. Questioned as to the reason for his church travels he responded:

"Well, suh, hit's this way: De 'Piscopals is gemman, suh, but I couldn't keep up wid de answerin' back in dey church. De Methodis', dey always holdin' inquiry meetin's, and I don't like too much inquirin' into, but de Baptis', suh, dey jus' dip and are done wid hit."—New York Press.

Tennyson's Gruffness.

There are many stories of Lord Tennyson's peculiar gruffness of manner. On one occasion he was at a garden party and somebody offered him a sandwich. He was laboriously munching this when the hostess rushed up to him with anxious inquiries about his health and entertainment. "Thank you, madam," he said. "I am eating a sandwich. Are your sandwiches usually made of old boots?"

The Bulgarian Peasant.

In a Bulgarian peasant's cottage the floors are of mud. The kitchen, fronting the street, is also the living room. Behind there is a sleeping room, with a bedstead in it for the head of the house, while the sons and daughters sleep upon mats stretched on the floor. The furniture consists of wooden tables, benches and chests. The crockery and household utensils of every sort seem of the commonest and coarsest kind. I should doubt if there is a single house in the whole village in which any English laborer or artisan earning good wages would not deem it a hardship to be obliged to live. At the same time there was no single dwelling which, given the habits and customs of the country, could be fairly described as unfit for human habitation.—"The Peasant State," Dicey.

Willing to Abolish It.

James Merry, a well known Scottish ironmaster and owner of race horses, once decided to run for parliament. He stood as candidate for Glasgow. He posed as an extreme radical and was prepared to abolish everything in sight as a short way to reform. At one of his meetings where the heckling of candidates was the feature, as in all Scottish elections, he was asked, after he had disposed summarily of the crown, the house of lords and most of the British constitution, whether he would abolish the Decalogue. "Certainly," cried the valiant Merry. Then, turning to his nearest neighbor on the platform, he asked in an audible whisper, "Jock, what in thunder's the Decalogue?"

A City Built In a Cherry Seed.

At the time of the French Crystal palace exposition a Nuremberg toymaker exhibited a cherry stone within the cavity of which he had built a perfect plan of the city of Sevastopol—streets, railway approaches, bridges, etc. A powerful microscope was used in exhibiting this wonderful miniature city, and it is estimated that not less than 500,000 people took a peep at the results of the toymaker's toil. Each of these 500,000 sightseers deposited a franc piece in the hands of the ingenious workman, the total of the cash thus taken in netting him a snug little fortune.

The Uses of Fire Escapes.

One of the settlement workers asked an east side lad what fire escapes were intended for.

"To sleep on," promptly replied the lad.

"Anything else?"

"Sure. Dey's good to ripen tomatoes on, to dry clothes, to drop cats off, to shoot beans down at de guys passin' on de street, to swear at de cop from and"

But the settlement worker had fled with uplifted hands.—New York Globe.

A Perpetual Christmastide.

The solution of the social question would be found, in a perpetual Christmastide, provided our generous thoughtfulness were not confined merely to our own kith and kin. Let us be assured that when the world reaches up to the highest and holiest conception of relationship it will discover that there is but one family and that the human brotherhood cannot be divided into classes antagonistic to each other. The reign of the golden rule will be the true Christian millennium.

MONDAY JAN 1st, 1906.

Watch Greenville grow this year.

The swear offs have wanted one bad today

Turning over a new leaf was a popular industry today.

The year 1905 was a good one, but let us make 1906 better.

If your new year resolutions are in tact so far try and keep them so

THE REFLECTOR'S new year resolution is to do its level best this year.

The Greensboro aldermen have settled their differences and made up

Don't let it end in talking, but do something to push Greenville along this year.

Perhaps as many calenders were hung today as there were stockings similarly executed a week ago.

If you do not believe good farming land is considered worth something in this day and time go out and try to buy a farm.

With seats going at a little above $90,000 we have no idea of trying to become a member of the New York stock exchange.

The government has approved the plans submitted by the contractor for a light house at Hatteras. The light house is to be built afloat, then towed to the required position and sunk. If it proves a success the government is to pay the nice sum of $750,000.

THE MASONIC TEMPLE OPERA HOUSE.

Attractions for Three Nights this Week.

The patrons of the Opera House have a treat in store for them for three nights in the appearance of that sterling attraction The Winter Stock Co., headed by the favorites of the South, Miss Dorothy Wallace and Jos. J. Winter. This company is well and most favorably known through the entire South and their performances are highly meritorious. The company comprises twelve artists, all clever in their respective lines and with the vaudiville contingent form probably the strongest stock company that has ever appeared in Greenville. Ladies and children will be especially interested in the performances of America's greatest child artist, Little Baby Hope. This little miss will surely sing and dance her way into the hearts of her auditors. The play to be presented tonight will be the high class seasonal comedy drama, A Man of Honor, which has been highly spoken of by our exchanges in North Carolina. Popular prices will prevail for this engagement.

DEATH OF MRS. J. C. TYSON.

A Mother Taken in the Prime Life.

This new year dawned with a cloud of sorrow hanging heavily over many hearts in Greenville. On today there was laid to rest the remains of one greatly beloved, and a happy home has been deprived of a loving wife and devoted mother.

The announcement came like a shock Sunday morning that Mrs. Lizzie Tyson, wife of Mr. J. C. Tyson, was dead. She passed away at her home on Fifth street at 7 o'clock a. m. Loved as she was by every one, it was so hard to realize that death had claimed her when she seemed just in the prime of life. But God's ways are beyond human understanding and His will can only be bowed to in humble submission. Through our tears, hard as it may be, we can look up with the assurance that He doeth all things well.

Mrs. Tyson was 37 years of age in September. She was a daughter of Mr. J. J. Perkins and sister of Mrs. E. A. Tyson, Mrs. R. C. Flanagan, Miss Annie Perkins, Dr. J. W. and W. W. Perkins. She was married to Mr. Tyson in February, 1889, and through these seventeen years was a devoted wife and mother. While all the loved ones and hosts of friends are deeply grieved at her death, the blow falls heaviest on the heart broken husband and three little children, one of these being an infant only a few hours old when its mother was taken and who can never realize the blessings of a mother's love. Words cannot express the sympathy that is felt in such bereavement.

The remains were interred at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Cherry Hill cemetery, the funeral service being conducted by Rev. W. E. Cox.

The pall bearers were. W. G. Ward, W. H. Ragsdale, A. E. Tucker, C. S. Carr, Frank Wilson, Oia Forbes, G. J. Woodward, J. A. Long.

Special Train of Stock.

An idea of the immense business in the sale of horses and mules by R. L. Smith & Co. can be had from the fact that a special train bringing nothing but horses and mules arrived for them this morning. Mr. Smith was recently out west and bought six car loads, about 160 head. It is the largest shipment of stock that has come to this section.

Hope Fire Company meets tonight, every member requested to be present at 7:30 o'clock.

R. Hyman, Chief.

Capt. Malachia Roberson is at the wharf with a boat load of fine oysters, 30 cents per quart, $1 per gallon. Send down your orders. 112t d.

The store of C. L. Wilkinson & Co. will go under new management in a few weeks, and a special stock reduction sale has been inaugurated for ten days.

I have just received from Baltimore a beautiful line of high grade silverware suitable for bridal presents. It can be seen at my home. Mrs. J. B. Cherry. 13td

Having much other matter to give today THE REFLECTOR defers mentioning the new year changes among the business houses until tomorrow.

Notice.

Misses Meta Dew and Nannie Braxton returned last night. They have been off enjoying the holidays and are back ready to take charge of their work at the girl's dormitory.

The first new student to arrive was Mr. Peele, of Greene county, who came in Saturday, but they will soon be in by the car load, both new and old.

Arden Tucker one of Pitt's most substantial citizens, has moved here. He is a brother of our esteemed townsman, Benj. Tucker.

L. L. Kittrell, who has served the oil mill so faithfully as superintendent, finds that his other duties are such that he can't serve longer and J. B. Little has been elected to take his place. Mr. Little expects to move his family next week and take charge of the mill at once. He is one of the best as well as most prominent men in the county, having been a state representative for the past two terms. We are glad to have him with us.

Our merchants had a big trade on Christmas goods, but the trade didn't stop when that was over.

The farmers are now laying in store the more substantial of life and merchants are still busy.

B. F. Manning & Co., have been taking "inventory" and are ready for new year's work.

A. G. Cox has bought Robert Griffin's farm about three miles east of here. This is one of the best farms in the county.

To Our Friends and Customer.

We extend to you our many thanks for your liberal patronage during the old year 1905 and we wish you one and all a Happy and Prosperous New Year and assure you that as the new year dawns upon us we shall spare no effort to bring before you the strongest lines of Furniture and House Furnishing Goods the market affords.

Yours Truly,

NOVELTY IN ROMEO'S.

It Pleas'd the Audience Much Better Than It Did Wallack.

James William Wallack, the elder, says the writer of "America's Famous Actors," once played in a romantic drama, in which, after taking an impassioned leave of the heroine, he leaped on a horse which stood just in the wings and dashed across the stage. Wallack objected to this nightly gallop, and it was arranged that one of the supers, who closely resembled the actor, should make the ride. The super carried off his part well, but was not satisfied and one night complained to a young member of the company.

"This is too easy," he said. "A man with a wooden leg could do it with his eyes shut. I used to be in a circus. Couldn't I stand up on this here horse and do a few tricks?"

"Certainly!" exclaimed the other. "That would be all right. Go ahead!"

"You think the old party would not object?" said the super doubtfully.

"Object!" returned the player. "Why, he'd be tickled to death! Do it!"

The following evening when the critical point was reached Wallack was gratified to see his counterpart standing ready beside the horse.

"Love, good night—good night!" cried the hero, preparing to drop over the edge of the balcony.

"Stay!" cried the heroine, clinging around his neck. "You ride perhaps to death!"

"Nay, sweet, say not so. I ride to honor! With thoughts of thee in my heart no harm can come. Good night—good night!"

He tore himself free from her frantic embrace and dropped out of sight of the audience. "Go!" he hissed to the super.

As the horse leaped forward on to the stage the fellow gave a mighty vault and alighted standing on its bare back. He threw up one foot gracefully and danced easily on the other and just before it was too late leaped into the air, turned a somersault, landed on the horse's back and bounded lightly to the stage.

It is recorded that the audience applauded tumultuously, but the remarks of Wallack are not mentioned.

Not Sectional.

After an evening performance at a theater in Richmond, Va., says the Boston Transcript, one of the waiting street cars was quickly filled by well dressed people of the so called better class. There were a number of men who continued to occupy seats, although several ladies were standing in the aisle.

At last an old lady was pushed forward by the jam. A boyish looking fellow promptly sprang up and tendered her his seat.

The old lady's pale face, saddened by sorrows which could be guessed from the little gold and blue and red enamel Confederate flag pinned on her breast, brightened as she accepted it.

"It is easy to see what part of the country you come from," she said graciously, immediately crediting the action to the south.

The young fellow's face glowed as he took off his hat.

"Permit me to thank you," he said bashfully, but fervently, "in the name of Vermont."

CHRISTMAS CARDS.

W. A. Dobson, R. A. It is Claimed, Was Their Originator.

Until now most people who took an interest in the matter would have credited either the late Sir Henry Cole or J. C. Horsley, R. A., with the production of the first Christmas card, and they would have put the date down as 1846. But a new claimant is now put forward, the late W. A. Dobson, R. A., and his claim is supported with circumstantial detail.

The birth of the Christmas card is put back two years, to 1844. Mr. Dobson was a lonely young man, who one day conceived the idea of acknowledging the kindness of a friend by sending him a picture illustrative of the festive season—a cheerful family group surrounded by the familiar Christmas accessories.

The distant friend was delighted, showed it to other friends, and Mr. Dobson was encouraged the following year to secure the aid of the local lithographer. Then came imitators one after another until ten years later the business man stepped in to make money out of what was originally a work of love. But the ambitious Christmas cards of today are a long remove from the primitive Father Christmases and Robin Redbreasts of sixty years ago.—London Chronicle

WHAT IS AN EPIGRAM?

Primarily an Inscription, It is Now of Vastly Greater Dignity.

An epigram in its primary signification was nothing more nor less than an inscription. It was "something written" to mark a spot or an event. It was the form of words attached to an altar or a monument or an image to show whose image or monument or altar it was. If you consecrated a secular elm to Pan you pinned an epigram on the bark to announce that fact. If you presented to a friend an amethyst cup engraved with a figure of Bacchus you embodied in an epigram your sentiments. It is a mistake to suppose that these pieces were in their first inception satirical, but the Romans made them so, and as time went on the trick of writing them in Latin as well as in Greek involved an attention to concentrated effect. The epigrammatist tried to fill his little glass as full as possible, and there were bubbles of malice round the brim. Gradually the idea grew that an epigram ought to finish with a snap; that the very end of the last line ought to contain the essence of the lampoon. This type of the form was amusingly defined by Dr. Edward Walsh, a poet of the latter half of the eighteenth century:

An epigram should be—if right—Short, simple, pointed, keen and bright, A lively little thing; A wasp, with taper body, bound By lines, not many, neat and round—All ending in a sting.

The poetical shape was always preserved, since without it an epigram would scarcely have been anything at all. A French wit, La Monnoye, said that an epigram in prose is a cavalryman dismounted. But a large proportion of the Elizabethan and Jacobean epigrams were beggars on horseback who if they had been turned off their rhyme would have been beggars and nothing else. The idea was that a joke or a statement of fact, whether grave or gay, had but to be rhymed to become a piece of literature worthy to be printed and preserved in the archives of a poet's writings.—Edmund Gosse in Harper's Magazine.

A Triumph of Elementary Education.

The following little incident happened in a London suburb: A bootmaker's apprentice, a lad of about fourteen, delivered a pair of boots at a tradesman's house. The tradesman's wife, accustomed to orderly business ways, asked the lad after handing him the money for the boots to receipt the bill. At this request the lad showed the greatest confusion, so that the woman to reassure him said, "Just receipt it as a matter of business." Whereupon he wrote laboriously something on the paper. In the evening when the tradesman examined the papers on the spike he came upon a bootmaker's bill, at the foot of which was written in large letters in a school-boy hand, "As a matter of business." It was the youthful apprentice's literal interpretation of the demand for a receipt as a matter of business.—London Mail.

Jewels on the Sick List.

Precious stones are subject to serious changes. The discoloration which attacks them when they have been exposed to the air for a long time is spoken of as a malady. The influence of light makes itself felt plainly on topazes and garnets. The garnet turns much paler in a short time, while the topaz assumes a darker shade and even loses the brilliancy possessed by it when freshly cut. The most sensitive stone in this respect is the opal. It suffers always by excess of heat. Owing to its chemical composition, it is sensitive to all changes of temperature. Pearls also deteriorate very easily. Indeed the only way to keep them in good "health" is to wear them next to the skin night and day. Society women usually do so.

Tempered With Mercy.

An English gentleman went to a village in the north of Scotland for a week's fishing on the lochs in the district. He was very unfortunate, having caught nothing in the first five days of his stay. Of course his hotel bill, a boatman's hire as well as sundry odd amounts made the fishing rather expensive. On the last day, however, he killed a nice salmon, and in the course of conversation with the boatman he said, "Donald, do you know that fish has cost me £10?" "Aweel, sir," replied Donald, who took life very easily, "all things be mixed wi' mercy. It's a blessing ye didna catch ony mair."

A Coffin as a Present.

It is doubtful whether nowadays a present of one's own coffin would not be considered premature if not unfriendly. Lord Nelson, however, felt differently, for when his old friend, Ben Hallowell, captain of the Swiftsure, sent him a coffin made out of the mainmast of the ship L'Orient after the battle of the Nile he appreciated the gift so much that he had it set up in his cabin just behind the chair on which he always sat. "I send it," Hallowell had written, "that when you are tired of this life you may be buried in one of your own trophies." It was in this coffin that Nelson's body lay when it was brought by water to Whitehall on the occasion of his public funeral.

His Apology.

Brown—Did you say, sir, that I could lie as fast as a horse can trot?

Fogg—No, sir; I simply said that few horses could trot as fast as you can lie.

Brown—Oh, I accept your apology.

Paraguay Tea.

Mate or Paraguay tea is made from the leaves of the Brazilian holly and takes the place of tea in nearly the whole of South America, where it has been employed by Indians from time immemorial and by their conquerors and settlers since the seventeenth century. The tree if left alone will acquire a height of fifteen or twenty feet, but the plants from which the mate is collected are moderate-sized shrubs, with numerous stems from one root.
