AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town.

AYDEN, N. C., Jan. 5th, 1906.

Rev. Mr. Stanfield, pastor of the M. E. church at this place, and family have arrived and will occupy the George Dail house on 2nd street.

John Warren, of Grimesland, stopped over here a short while yesterday on his way home from New Bern.

L. Ludford and family have come from South Carolina.

Miss Hattie Randolph, of Kinston, spent several days with Miss Rosa Bland during the past week and returned to her home Tuesday.

Miss Lizzie McGowan, of Greenville, has been visiting friends in Ayden.

Mrs. B. F. Nunn, of Emporia, after spending some time here with her father, Elder C. C. Bland, is now on a visit to friends in Kinston.

Mr. Flynn and family, of Fortress Monroe, who have been spending the holidays with their parents have returned home.

Walter Harrington left Tuesday for McCall, S. C., to accept a position as salesman.

C. R. Williams of Vanceboro, has bought out Sumrell & Lawhorn. He has moved his family here and will make this his home.

Mrs. E. G. Worthington left yesterday on the train for a visit up the road.

Charles Rives, who has been located here for some time as a sewing machine agent, left Thursday. He seemed to be a very clever gentleman.

Our streets, these lovely double rectified streets, holy of holies, dangerous to neck and limb, yet the pride and glory of Ayden's city clan, another calamity we have to endure.

Charles Johnson, formerly of Grifton, has moved his family here and occupies the Burgess home near the graded school.

In our opinion "Originator's and Imitators" in a recent issue of THE REFLECTOR is a good article. We commend its sentiments to the consideration of our own home people.

In a trial here the other day a party was fined five dollars and costs, in payment of which he tendered a ten dollar bill with instruction to the officer to keep the change as he might need it later.

Bishop J. B. Cheshire says the statement the 53rd Sunday does not come but once in an hundred years is erroneous. He says it occurs every seven years when leap year does not intervene.

Quarterly session of the M. E. church opens here today conducted by the Presiding Elder R. B. John. George Dail and family have moved in the country.

The report of the Ayden dispensary from May 13th, 1905, time of beginning business, to Dec. 31st, shows gross receipts $9,260.12, total disbursements $8,077.93, stock on hand paid for, cash in bank, fixtures, and other items making the net profit $2,667.24.

FORBES-SUTTLE.

Daughter of Cleveland County's Sheriff Married to Prominent Greenville, N. C. Business Man.

Shelby, Jan. 3.—Wedding bells rang merrily here, near the inception of the new year, and this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the First Baptist church, Mr. Charles S. Forbes, of Greenville, N. C., and Miss Leila May Suttle, of this place, were happily married. Rev. M. E. Parish, the pastor, in an impressive manner, performed the ceremony that blended their lives, in the presence of a very large crowd.

The church was beautifully decorated with a weath of potted plants, ferns palms and evergreens and on each side of the chancel was a vine-clad ladder illuminated by candles. The ushers were Messrs. C. C. Blanton, Stough Wray, Jasper Suttle and Julius A. Suttle. The attendants were Dr. Moye, of Greenville, N. C., best man, and Miss Ettie Adyette, an attractive and charming young lady of Elizabeth City.

The music was superbly rendered on the piano by Mrs. Joseph S. Suttle, and on the organ by Mrs. L. T. Holland. The charming bride, a lovely blonde, entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, and was dressed in a beautiful gown of white chiffon cloth over white taffeta and bridal veil. She carried in her hand a shower bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. She is the accomplished daughter of the genial and efficient Sheriff A. B. Suttle, than whom there is no more popular man in Cleveland county. The groom is an enterprising and successful merchant of Greenville, and holds a prominent place in business circles.

Our citizens unite in saying he has made a superb selection in a bride, who has won here all hearts by her genial manners and kind heart that shed sunshine around her pathway.

The gentlemen were dressed in the conventional black, with white vests. The maid of honor, Miss Aydlette, looked most bewitchingly lovely, gowned in white silk dress covered with lace, and bore white carnations.

The out of town guests were: Miss Hattie Miller, of Charlotte; Miss Ettie Aydlette, of Elizabeth City; Dr. Moye, of Greenville and Mr. Herman Dowd, of Charlotte.

The bridal presents of cut glass and silver were many and costly, and bore proof of the high esteem in which Mrs. Forbes is held. The happy couple left this afternoon on the Seaboard train for their future home in Greenville, N. C.—Special to Charlotte Observer.

Mr. Forbes reached Greenville with his bride on Thursday evening's train, and for the present they will make their home with Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Moye on Evans street. The bride is most welcomed to Greenville. She is already well known here, having taught a year in our graded school.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Saturday.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

J. R. Nelson dropped dead while at work in a cotton mill at Sausbury, Wednesday.

Dr. Isaac Emerson, of Baltimore, has made this state university a new year's present of $5,000 to be used as an endowment for the library of electrical and mining engineers.

Ex-Sheriff W. B. Lane, of Craven county, died Wednesday morning.

The Raleigh dispensary cleared $63,850 the past year.

FIRE AT STOKES.

Distillery and Warehouse Burned.

About midnight Thursday night the whiskey distillery and warehouse belonging to S. C. Page, at Stokes, in this county, was destroyed by fire. It is not known how the fire occurred but is supposed to be the work of incendiaries. There was no insurance and the amount of the loss could not be learned.

Greenville's New Superintendent.

Mr. H. C. Smith, who has been the faithful principal of the Reidsville Graded Schools, has been called to Greenville, N. C., to take charge of the graded schools there, succeeding Supt. W. B. Dove, who will take up another line of work in Tennessee. We hear that the members of the school board have agreed to release Mr. Smith as soon as a suitable successor may be obtained. The Review, of course, exceedingly regrets to see Mr. Smith depart from Reidsville, but it would be too selfish a motive to attempt him from stepping high on the ladder of success. His school work here has been of a very high order, and Greenville is to be congratulated upon securing his services.—Reidsville Review.

$25,000 Robbery.

Salisbury, Jan. 3.—Three route agents of the Southern Express Company spent last night in Salisbury with Superintendent O. M. Sadler. They are endeavoring to trace a $25,000 robbery of the company's safe on No. 38 Sunday night. When the safe was opened in New York that amount was missing. The agents gave out nothing for publication.

The local express agent was interviewed by your correspondent this afternoon in regard to this and says he has heard nothing of it. But the story comes from the transfer man, who says he left the safe on 38 unlocked and it seems to be authentic.

Quarterly Conference.

The first quarterly conference for Greenville Station, M. E., church, South, for the current year will be held at the Methodist church tonight (Jan. 5,) beginning at 7 o'clock. Every member should be present at this conference.

On the Invention of Whisky.

The name of the man who first staggered humanity by the invention of whisky is lost in the mists of the middle ages, and all the ingenuity of counsel now employed in trying to find out what whisky is has failed to disclose his identity. The fiery potion was known in England in the eleventh century, but in Scotland not till the fourteenth. But Scotland made up for lost time. She gave the bright liquid its alluring name, the "water of life," and made its production a cottage industry of noble proportions. When the execrable exciseman descended upon the village she carried the still to the lonely hills. We in these days are inclined to forget that Glenlivet, the home of the smuggler, would never have achieved its bacchanalian fame but for absurd Georgian licensing laws directed against the individual still and not against the magnitude of its output.—London Chronicle.

Source of His Heroism.

In the Boer war a British private made a gallant rescue. He dashed across an open space swept by bullets and, lifting a wounded comrade in his arms, carried him to shelter. The colonel who witnessed the deed praised the soldier and told him he would be recommended for a Victoria cross. Later on the soldier was relating the incident to his comrades: "He said something about the Victoria cross. I didn't think anything about the Victoria cross. What I know is that I wasn't going to leave Robinson lying out there with all the company's tobacco in his haversack."

Knife and Fork.

It was in 1870. A French gardener was very much annoyed at having a Prussian soldier quartered upon him. The latter noticed it and at dinner time laid his saber beside him on the table with a look full of meaning. The host said never a word, but went out of the room and shortly afterward returned with a huge hayfork, which he placed next to the saber. The soldier got red in the face, but the other remarked unabashed:

"I thought that with so big a knife you wanted a fork to match."

THE HORSESHOE.

Its Use as a Charm Against Bad Luck and Evil Spirits.

In Morocco iron is considered a great protection against demons, who are the lineal representatives, after all, of the hostile spirits; hence it is usual to place a knife or dagger under a sick man's pillow, his illness being, of course, attributed to demoniacal possession. In India the mourner who performs the necessary but somewhat dangerous duty of putting fire into the dead man's mouth carries a key or a knife in his hand to keep off the evil spirits. In short, a bit of iron is a very useful thing to have about you at any time if you desire to escape the unfavorable attention of the ghosts, the trolls, the fairies and the demons generally. This is good reason for buying a pocketknife. It is also a reason for nailing up a horseshoe. "But why a horseshoe in particular," you ask, "more than any other odd piece of iron?" Well, primarily the good luck depends more upon the iron as iron than on the special shape or function of the horseshoe as a horseshoe.

But there are also many reasons why the superstition should happen to fix itself more particularly upon horseshoes. We must remember that in Europe at least it is the cattle, the horses and the domestic beasts in general that are specially liable to the hostile attacks of "the little people." Therefore the elves and trolls are most likely to be dreaded on farms or in the country, where horses and cattle most do congregate. Now, if you want to nail up a bit of iron as a protection against the fiery darts of the evil ones on your stables or cow houses, which is the place where one oftenest sees them, nothing is more likely to come handy to your purpose than a cast horseshoe. Besides it has obvious congruity for the place and object, and it can readily be picked up in the road almost anywhere. Furthermore, it is provided beforehand with convenient holes, by means of which you can readily hang it up, either over your own house door or over your sheds and stables. These various advantages of cheapness, ease and readiness for fixing would have given the horseshoe a fair start in life, it is believed, as a charm against fairies, trolls and evil spirits generally, even without any other and more special advantages.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Cheerful Colored Parson.

The visitor in the south was offering his sympathies to the old colored parson.

"It's a shame, uncle," said the visitor, "that the congregation should drop buttons in the plate when you were collecting your salary."

"Dat doan mattah, sah," replied the old man, with a luminous smile. "Ah kin use dem on dat old paih ob trousers de kernal gib me."

"Well, they dropped nails in the plate also."

"Just what I need, sah. Yo' see, Ah'm guine to build a cohn house, en Ah'll need de nails to drive in de shingles."

"But the lead nickels. What are you going to do with them, throw them away?"

"No, sah. Ah'm guine to make sinkers foh mah fishin' lines. Glory halleluyah!"—Chicago News.

A Silence Club.

Some time ago a curious club was formed in London. It was called the Silence club. Its membership was limited to ten, all of whom were season ticket holders on a London suburban railway, and the subscription was sixpence weekly. It was established simply and solely to enable the members to read the paper on the way to town, the only occasion during the day on which the club met. The revenue derived from subscriptions was handed to the guard every Saturday morning, and in consideration of this he made a point of reserving a carriage for the members.

A Reminder.

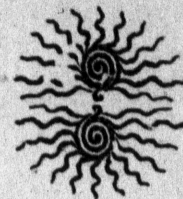

Cheaply—Hello, old man! You seem to be in a brown study.

Popely—Oh, hello! Yes, I am. You see, my wife asked me to stop at the market for something and I can't think what it was.

Cheaply—Here, have a cigar. Maybe that'll help you to think.

Popely—Thanks. Oh, yes, I remember now. It was cabbage she wanted.—Philadelphia Press.

Keep right straight after it, gentlemen, until that building and loan association is a certainly.

Those fellows up west think all the offices belong to them, but the biggest trouble is that there are too many of them for the offices.

Wonder if McCall's pocket book can stand the strain of paying up all that was misappropriated. The other fellows who shared the spoils ought to be turning in some conscience money too.

The fact that the board of directors of the state prison have a surplus of $200,000 from the operation of the state farms, in addition to 3,000 barrels of corn and enough forage for the teams this year, shows what good management will do.

In going around to square up accounts with our advertising patrons for the past year, many of them remarked that the past year gave them the best trade they ever had. We like to hear such expressions, for when the merchants are prospering it can be marked down that other people are also, for the people must have the money before it can come to the merchants. Greenville merchants are enterprising and they deserve success. Another good indication of the prosperous times is the small number of business changes that took place this new year.

Public Should Have Facts.

The traveling public does not expect impossibilities of railroads. They make allowances for reasonable delays even though they cause the missing of an important connection. Accidents will occur on the best regulated railroads, and when they can not be averted the public puts up with the consequent inconvenience without criticism. Indeed, the public is always ready to be just in its treatment of the railroads.

But there is one right to which the public is entitled and which ought to be granted by every railroad without requiring any man to make formal complaint, and that is to be given the real facts. If a train is behind time, the exact time or as near as may be, should be made public, so that there shall be no such annoyance and trouble as was adverted to in these columns yesterday. If a train is two hours behind time, put it that way on the bulletin board so that all parties may govern themselves accordingly. There is no reason why, when a train is four hours behind, the people should be kept at the depot all that time momentarily expecting the train, when, if given the facts, they might go about their business and return to the depot at the real time of arrival. To subject scores of people to that loss of time is to do them a wrong that does the railroad no good what ever.

Mr. Railroad Manager: Give the public the facts just as they are and much will be forgiven.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The weather was so inclement on the day for meeting in December that no meeting was held. The program that was to have been had that day is for this meeting. Beginning from this time the work of the future meetings of the associations will be based largely upon "McMurry's General Method of the Recitation." The books will be on hand at this meeting so that the teachers may supply themselves with them. We begin this year under the most favorable conditions of any year in our school history. I shall be very glad to see every teacher in the county present at this first meeting in 1906. Most of you are enjoying your work during this session. This association is doing much to make conditions better for you. Will you stand socially for it and its work? Your presence is the only thing necessary for a splendid meeting. Shall we have it?

PROGRAM.

Farmers' Institute

A farmers institute will be held in the court house, at Greenville, Saturday, January 6th, 1906 The morning session will open at 10:00 o'clock sharp, and afternoon session at 1:30.

The subjects for discussion are: "Soil improvement," by W. J. McLendon, Anson county; "The Improvement of Tobacco by Seed Selection," by W. W. Corby, U. S. Department of Agriculture; "Hog raising," by Dr. Tait Butler; "Cotton Culture," by W. J. McLendon.

The above program is given to indicate the nature of the Institute but it may be changed or added to, as those present desire. A question box will also be open, into which all are invited to put such questions as they desire discussed. A large number of intelligent questions means an interesting Institute, and special attention will be given to this feature.

The Farmers' Institutes are held for the benefit of farmers, and none but strictly farming questions will be discussed. It is, therefore, especially desired that a large attendance of farmers be secured, and to this end you are urged to be present and to induce your neighbors to do the same.

FOG AT SEA.

One of the Great Perils the Mariner Has to Fight.

Every device that human ingenuity could suggest has been tried to make the peril of fog at sea less, but so far with very little avail. The chief reason is that fog deprives the sailor of his two most necessary senses—sight and hearing. You see a light glimmering through a fog. It may be fifty yards or a quarter of a mile away, according to the conditions, and hitting or missing it is merely a matter of chance.

So, too, in a fog you may hear fog horns braying and sirens screaming all about you, but you haven't a notion where they come from or how far they are off until you hit something or something hits you. Of the horrors that must happen on a crowded liner sinking in a dense fog the less said the better.

For many years there has been an interesting controversy among seamen which is worth mentioning briefly. Is it safer to go full speed ahead or dead slow through a fog?

On the one hand it is argued: Given a fog area fifty miles across, go through it at twenty knots, and you reduce the possible collision time to two hours and a half. At ten knots you are five hours in it and double your chances of hitting or being hit, while at five knots you would have ten hours' fog and four times the risk of collision.

This is perfectly sound as far as it goes, though it must be confessed there is a certain amount of selfishness in the argument. A liner rushing through a fog at twenty knots an hour may be a danger to other craft, but she is practically safe herself unless she hit an iceberg or some very big ship.—Pearson's.

Royalty Was Sure.

"Americans find it hard to realize how wide a gulf lies between royalty—those born to the purple—and even the nobility abroad," remarked the wife of a former ambassador to England. "And it was not until we were installed in London during the life of Queen Victoria that the difference was made plain to me. It was during a semipublic function at which both Queen Victoria and the Empress Eugenie were present that the illuminative incident occurred. Being quite near her majesty and the ex-empress of the French, I noticed that on sitting down Queen Victoria did not trouble herself to glance around to make sure of her chair being in the right place. On the other hand, it was noticeable that the Empress Eugenie involuntarily glanced over her shoulder. The difference? One simply took it as a matter of course that her chair was in the right place, and the other took the precaution common to ordinary mortals on sitting down."

A Legal Critic.

An old negro of Evergreen, Ala., who had been foreman of an estate in slavery days and who had continued in that capacity after being freed, had never been in a court. He decided he would like to hear a case tried. He made known his desire to his employer and asked him to name a day when an interesting case was on. The date was named, and Uncle Tom spent the entire day in the courthouse and gave the closest attention to every detail of the case. The trial finished, as he came from the courtroom he was asked, "Well, Uncle Tom, what do you think of it?" Uncle Tom took off his hat and scratched his head a little, then said, "Well, boss, if bof dem lawyers tell de truf dey is bof de biggest liars dat eber lived."

A True Ghost Story.

Here is a true story: The wife of a gentleman living in New Mexico lay dying in Philadelphia, but the fact was not known by the family at home. During the night a ghost—that is as good a name for it as any other—appeared at the bedside of the favorite servant and nurse, woke her up and whispered, "Teresa, be good to my children!" The nurse was frightened and woke the household. She told her story, but the husband laughed at her, declaring that his wife was well and that Teresa had had a nightmare. Then in the morning at about 8 o'clock a telegram came announcing the fact that the wife had unexpectedly died the night before. Queer world we are living in, isn't it?

A Fair Exchange.

A man who had purchased some currant buns at a bakery was distressed on starting to eat one to find that it contained a fly. Returning to the bakery, he made an indignant complaint, demanding another bun in place of the inhabited one.

Saltcellars.

Saltcellars first came into use in mediaeval times. There was only one on the table, and it held from two to three quarts. The salt was placed about the middle of the table's length. At the upper end sat the lord of the castle or palace and his intimates, and the saltcellar marked the dividing line between the associates of the nobleman and his dependents, so that to "sit below the salt" meant social inferiority.
