The New Methodist Church.

The walls of the new Methodist church are up and the roof is nearly completed, so that a good idea of the outward appearance of the building can now be had. The handsome edifice will be an ornament to Greenville and would do credit to a town many times larger than this.

1881 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. William John Cowell request the honor of your presence at their Twenty fifth Anniversary on Saturday, January Thirteenth nineteen hundred and six, from eight thirty to eleven o'clock p. m. Greenville, North Carolina. No cards in town.

TWO ABLE SERMONS.

At The Baptist Church Sunday.

The sermons by the pastor Sunday at the Baptist church both morning and evening were exceedingly fine and appropriate, it being the first Sunday in the year. The subject of the morning discourse was "Personal Influence." This was forcibly treated under the heads of "creative influence," "unconscious influence" and the "greatest source of influence." The night sermon was on the "Dreamer." Large congregations were present at both services and we are sure every body who heard the sermons felt more like living better themselves and doing more for others during the year than they have ever done before.

Charlotte Has Wonderful Showing.

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 6.—The police department has compiled some interesting figures bearing on the records of two years in the city police court. The year just passed was the first in the history of prohibition in Charlotte, and the records of crimes committed are compared with those of the previous year, 1904.

The most interesting comparison and probably the best index in the entire category of crime, is that of "drunks" during the year 1904. The police records show that 915 arrests were made because of drunkenness. During 1905, the first year of prohibition, the record shows a falling off of nearly two-thirds, the exact figures being 317.

In Better Shape.

For the last two or three weeks THE REFLECTOR office has been in bad shape, owing to a short working force, and we were correspondingly hindered in getting out work. More help has been secured now and in a lay or two every thing will be running along smoothly and work can be turned out promptly.

Week of Prayer.

This week will be observed by the Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist church as a week of prayer. They hold three meetings during the week, this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mrs. R. L. Humber's, Wednesday afternoon at Miss Hennie Ragsdale's, Friday afternoon at Mrs. W. T. Burton's. At the Friday meeting the offerings will be taken.

Leop Hardee and Sallie Elks.

GREENVILLE.

Her Progress in Year 1905.

Sunday's Raleigh News and Observer contained letters from the mayors of a large number of towns over the state showing the progress the towns made during the past year. We reproduce the following letter sent from Greenville:

The year 1905 will be remembered with satisfying pride by the people of Greenville, as that year in which their little city attained much material and moral advancement. During this year it has established a thoroughly modern system of water works and electric lights; the capacity of the plant being sufficient to supply the needs of a city much larger than Greenville. Also, the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company, has established in Greenville a thoroughly modern, cable telephone system, connecting with, and giving to its subscribers, free service, with all the towns in Pitt county. Greenville points with pride to these systems as being among the very best in the state.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad has given to the community, a double daily passenger and mail service. The fertile soil of Pitt county has during this year produced large crops of fine quality, the greater part of which has been marketed in Greenville, making larger our already large and popular market for farm products. Of tobacco alone, during the first five months of the season there was sold here nine millions and three hundred thousand pounds, at an average price of eight dollars and eighty cents per hundred pounds.

The above conditions have made for Greenville live and profitable business, making business men, of every class, prosperous.

The graded schools, being in the second year of their existence, have attained an enrollment of over four hundred pupils. The various churches of both, the white and colored races have erected new buildings, gained much strength and have increased their beneficial influences over the lives of the people, helping to raise the morals of the community to that degree which drives out contentiousness, strife and violence, and the good people of Greenville enter into this new year, with profound gratitude to a generous God, for a year just closed, which brought them a generous supply of the needs and comforts of life; freedom from pestilence and disturbances, losses and disappointments; the companionship and council of many of their Godly and wise aged citizens, with whom we enter into this new year rejoicing, hoping that in it our gratitude may never be less; that our tranquility may not be disturbed nor our progress hindered.

FRANK M. WOOTEN, Mayor.
Greenville, N. C., Jan. 4, 1906.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

The barn and stables of Rev. C. W. Howard, near Kinston, were destroyed by fire Friday morning. The loss was about $700, partially insured.

Miss Bettie Bowers, of Forsyth county, was killed Saturday by a falling building. She had gone into an old building and the wind blew it down on her.

A. J. Barfield, a farmer near Mt. Olive, was caught in the shafting of his gin and killed. He was alone when the accident occurred and was dead when found.

N. P. Frederick, of Mecklenburg county, was returning to his home from Charlotte Saturday evening. When about to drive through his gate the buggy run on some plank and turned over, throwing him out and breaking his neck.

Alcohol A Remover.

The following taken from Charity and Children shows the removing qualities of alcohol with great accuracy:

An exchange says that "alcohol will remove stains from summer clothes." The exchange is right. It will also remove the summer clothes, also the spring, autumn and the winter clothes, not only from the one who drinks it, but from the wife and family as well. It will also remove the household furniture, the eastables from the pantry, the smiles from the face of his wife, the laugh from the innocent lips of his children and the happiness out of his home. As a remover of things alcohol has no equal.

Mr. Johnson is at his best in the above. It is the truth pure and simple. There is no greater "remover" in the world than alcohol and if any one doubts this let them look about them at the joys, the sweets of life and of life itself that have been thus removed.—Charlotte News.

This paper stated some days ago, giving figures, that North Carolina now leads every State in the manufacture of tobacco. It also leads in the number of new cotton mills. In 1905 there were 65 new cotton mills started, 44 being started in the last six months, located as follows: In North Carolina, 16; in South Carolina, and Georgia, each 4, and in Texas, 1—total in the South in the second half of the year, 25. No new mill was projected in Virginia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, or Arkansas, while seven new cotton mills were begun in Massachusetts, and two each in Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Rhode Island.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The Boy Died.

The colored boy, Heber Dawson, who was shot by another boy while fooling with a pistol last Wednesday night, was taken to the hospital in Tarboro Friday. He died there and the remains were brought home Saturday.

All Whole.

A Brooklyn physician tells an amusing incident that happened at his summer home in New Hampshire.

His small daughter was asked by her grandmother to bring an egg from the henery. After several minutes the little girl returned with her apron full of eggs. While yet a distance away the grandmother asked:

"Well, did you break any eggs on the way?"

"No, grandma," was the prompt answer, "but the shells came off a few."

Boys' Logic.

Walking through a Nottingham street the other day, I was greatly amused at two little boys who were evidently playing school, as they sat on a doorstep. I heard one of them say, "Now, if you take two from one it leaves one, and if you take the one from two it leaves two."

I laughingly offered the boy a shilling if he could prove that sum.

The boy, nothing abashed, eagerly accepted my offer and led me into the house, where the boy's mother sat nursing twins.

The boy at once said, "Now, sir, if I take mother away from the twins I shall take one from two, and two will remain, and if I take away the twins from mother I shall take two from one and one will be left."

The boy got the shilling.—London Telegraph.

A Telltale Sign.

Here is a bit of wisdom gleaned from the head waiter. According to him the trained observer can tell whether or not a man has been used to servants all his life by the intonation of his voice when calling some one to wait on him. The person who has been used to bossing other people around says "James," or whatever the name of the servant may be, with a falling inflection, while the one who until lately has been accustomed to waiting on himself gives "James" the rising inflection, as if in supplication.

"And that," said the waiter, "is a dead sure sign. A man may cover up most other telltale marks, but he can't get away from 'James' and 'James.'"

This property is just outside the corporate limits, yet those who reside there will have the benefit of the graded school, and be as near to the churches, and depot and postoffice as are the people in many parts of the town, being only three hundred yards from Five Points, nice neighborhood adjacent to the property. Talk it over with me and let me show you these desirable lots. No better time than NOW to buy. Greenville will grow rapidly in the next few years and property will be higher. THE FASTNET LIGHT.

Visitors Have to Be Swung Ashore by Means of a Jib.

The first glimpse of Great Britain that the American tourist gets on his European tour is that of the Fastnet lighthouse.

It stands on a rugged and solitary rock, situated nine miles south of Crookhaven, at the extreme southwest corner of Ireland, and is perhaps more storm beaten than any other around our coast. The rock is eighty feet in height, and the lighthouse towers another seventy feet above, yet in winter gales the Atlantic billows literally bombard the massive structure and have even smashed in a portion of the lantern at the summit of the erection, the seas frequently sweeping over the rock with tremendous force. Some dozen or so years ago the stormy weather then prevailing prevented all communication with the rock for many weeks, so that the store of food was consumed, with the exception of some flour. At last a schooner managed to approach sufficiently near to enable a small quantity of food to be dragged through the sea by the hungry men, and fortunately the next day the sea moderated, and the stores were once more fully replenished.

Except in very calm weather the Fastnet is surrounded by a fringe of foam, and the only means of landing is by the aid of a "jib" fifty-eight feet in length, so placed on the rock that in moderate weather its end reaches outside the surf. When a visitor wishes to land (an unusual occurrence) he is rowed in a small boat as near as the waves permit, and the light keepers throw out a small buoy attached to a rope, which is secured by the man in the boat. The jib is then swung out, and the visitor, placing one foot in the loop and catching a tight hold of the rope, is hoisted about forty feet vertically, and then the jib, being pivoted at its foot, swings him horizontally about 100 feet on to a safe landing.—London Telegraph.

The Bill Was Paid.

McRad and his wife were going over their business ledger one evening, contemplating the overdue accounts which its pages revealed and reluctantly acknowledging that many of them would have to be written off as bad.

"What'll ye dae about this ane?" said McRad mournfully. "Here's twa pund aucht shillin's for a coat and vest been owin' by Elder Doolittle since Martinmas last. I'm fearin' we'll no get the money."

"Weel, I'm no sae sure," replied his wife. "Leave me to try onyhoo." Accordingly the next Sabbath morning when the collection was taken up Mrs. McRad dropped the elder's "little bill," neatly folded up, into the plate, and before the week was over the amount was paid.

"Kirsty, woman," said McRad joyfully, "marriage may be a lottery, but I'm thinkin' I've drawn a prize."—Pearson's Weekly.

No Remedy to Fit the Case.

"I will never forget my first experience in hospital work," said a hospital surgeon. "There was a green nurse in the detention ward, and we had a very violent case in there—a man in the worst stage of delirium tremens. I was awakened in the middle of the night by the head nurse, who requested me to come at once to the patient. When I got there I found him raving and very violent, with the new nurse scared out of her wits. I said:

"Why did you let him go so far? I left you some medicine to give him as soon as he got delirious."

"Yes, doctor," she replied, "but you told me to give that to him if he saw any more snakes, and the time he was seeing blue dogs with pink tails."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Named Them.

A story comes from Milton, N. H., of an old clergyman named Goodwin. He was a tall, broad shouldered man and was said to have the largest hands of any man for miles around. One noon a young man named Allen was taking dinner at the elder's home. It was the elder's custom to ask a blessing at the table, and Allen had evidently not been used to this sort of thing, for instead of waiting he began to eat. The elder raised his hand with a restraining gesture and said:

"Pause, young man."

"Paws!" was the reply. "I should think they was paws."

This hazing business at colleges is getting some heavy jolts.

The wrong person gets killed in the "didn't know it was loaded" cases.

Blackburn expressed himself emphatically if not elegantly in his response to the inquiry if he was going to give up the fight.

The Charlotte News was good before, but now it is a thing of beauty since installing a modern new press one of the best made.

If the president does not want to give the offices in the South to Republicans, he can find some good material to fill them among the Democrats.

The dragging of a woman out of the White House was a shameful spectacle, and worse still for the man who ordered her ejection to be lying about it.

Bob Fitzsimmons has been knocking out the other fellows in his day, but it may have come his turn to get knocked out in the divorce proceedings brought against him by his wife.

For a dry town Greensboro was showing up pretty well with fifty gallons of the stuff to pour in the sewer. No doubt a plenty of folks there wish they had been the sewer for the time being.

When Greenville catches on to the idea of establishing factories as a means of giving employment to laborers, you will see the town move forward at a rapid pace. Nothing helps business like a large weekly pay roll to laborers.

They do unusual things in New Jersey. A man attempted an assault upon a woman in her home. She shot her assailant and killed him. In the trial that followed she was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged. She ought to have been discharged and commended for defending her honor.

Possibly the express companies will learn some of these days that it is not wise to entrust $25,000 packages to the care of $45 messengers. The best men are not going to accept positions of such great responsibility at so small a salary. If the express companies were not making enough to pay more there might be some excuse for trying to run the business on a cheap scale.

England's Christmas Wretchedness.

Christmas is a full flood in England; but not for the vast and ragged army of the unemployed! Not for the ghastly processions,—12,000 men and boys in line,—under flags with inscriptions like the snarl of a beast at bay. "Curse your charity!" "Give us a chance!" "We don't want charity; we want justice!" "Give us work, not aims!" It is a hideous specter, this problem of England's unemployed,—the Phantom of the Feast,—able-bodied men willing and anxious to work driven desperate with want, literally fainting in the streets from hunger, in the center of the richest capital in the richest empire of the world. It meets you everywhere,—Anxious Frigate, Want, Rags, Hunger, flaunting their shame in your face, unashamed because they are desperate. You notice a ragged man running abreast your cab, one, two, three, four miles, perhaps half the length of the city. To beg? No—on the chance of getting twopenny by keeping your skirts from touching the wheel when you step from the cab. Or you hear singing outside your window. Organ-grinders? No; but able-bodied workmen in fluttering tatters, an old newspaper across the chest in place of shirt, boots that soak up the filth of the street like a sponge, able-bodied workmen under the draggled flag—"Unemployed"—singing some ballad of "Merrie England" on the chance of pennies from the windows.

Or your cab is caught in a jam at Charing Cross. What is the excitement that draws the crowd? "No excitement," your London friends assure you—"it's only a procession of the unemployed; and we're getting used to them." Or you pick up the daily paper. Ten columns to politics; one column interview with some great man on the ways to alleviate distress; notice of a commission to investigate the poor laws,—a work, by the way, which will take years; report of the Queen's Fund for the Unemployed,—which, except for two small amounts, has not, at the time of writing, been distributed; and tucked away in obscure type such items as the death of a man on the Embankment from starvation, or the suicide of a woman because she could not bear the cry of her children for food.—From "England's Problem of the Unemployed," by Agnes C. Lauf, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for January.

Adjournment.

The weather was so inclement on the day for meeting in December that no meeting was held. The program that was to have been had that day is for this meeting. Beginning from this time the work of the future meetings of the associations will be based largely upon "McMurry's General Method of the Recitation." The books will be on hand at this meeting so that the teachers may supply themselves with them. We begin this year under the most favorable conditions of any year in our school history. I shall be very glad to see every teacher in the county present at this first meeting in 1906. Most of you are enjoying your work during this session. This association is doing much to make conditions better for you. Will you stand socially for it and its work? Your presence is the only thing necessary for a splendid meeting. Shall we have it?

EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Instance In Which Forgetfulness Gave a Man Promotion.

One of the most distinguished navigators in the United States navy some years ago was engaged in his younger days as navigator on one of the old fashioned sailing ships of the navy, and as it was his first billet he was very desirous of making a good impression. For the first few days he took his reckonings with the greatest care, but when the ship had been out several days he forgot to wind his chronometer, which kept Washington time. It was impossible to make any calculations on the ship's position. He did not dare tell the commander of his mishap, and so he continued to take the latitude of the sun every day in the most serious manner and reported the ship's position by dead reckoning, a very uncertain operation.

Early one morning, when he thought they must be near Barbados, their first destination, he called a young sailor to him and said, "My man, I want you to go to the mast-head and look out for land, and when you sight it do not call out 'Land, ho!' in the usual manner, but come down quietly and tell me about it." The sailor ran aloft, and when at about seven bells, or half past 11 o'clock, he saw a thin blue streak to the southward he ran down from aloft and reported it to the navigator. "Go aloft and report land in the usual manner at eight bells," said the navigator. Hardly had the sailor reached his perch when the captain came on deck and, walking to the navigator, said:

"About what time shall we sight Barbados, sir?"

"At precisely eight bells, sir," was the answer.

"What," cried the captain, "do you pretend to be able to figure to the minute the time we will sight land? Why, I never saw a navigator who could figure within two hours, and I have seen some good ones."

At that moment the bell struck eight times, and the cry of "Land, ho!" rang out from the masthead. The captain took the navigator's hand and said, "You, sir, are the finest navigator afloat, and I shall report your splendid work to the department." The captain kept his word. He wrote to the navy department about the excellent work of his navigator, which was the direct cause of his rapid promotion.

Quite a Disappointment.

When the first shipment of frozen eggs arrived in London from Australia their extreme hardness surprised the brokers. One man, calling at a broker's office, was surprised to see him taking aim at a wall with an egg.

"What the dickens are you at?" he said.

But the broker let fly, the only result being a dent in the wall. The thing being explained, the man left with a couple of eggs in his pocket to startle his wife.

Arriving home, he assembled the family together and then banged an egg at the new daddo.

But the smile quickly faded off his face. The egg had thawed!—London Answers.

Sufficient Excuse.

John Quincy Adams was very fond of fishing and not especially fond of his legal profession. One day a case in which he was counsel was down for trial in a Boston court. Mr. Adams did not make his appearance, but sent a letter to the judge. That worthy gentleman read it and then postponed the case with the announcement:

"Mr. Adams is detained on important business."

The note read as follows: "Dear judge, for the sake of old Isak Walton please continue my case until Friday. The smelts are biting, and I can't leave."

Can't Do Without It.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Dr. Goodman lays rather too much stress on the idea that we should divorce ourselves from anthropomorphism. It may be all right to preach what he does in a general way, but the anthropomorphic sentiment is still very dear to a great many people."

"I know it," replied her hostess as she toyed with the diamond studded paper cutter. "There's a woman lives right on this street that goes to the drug store and gets it on the quiet nearly every day."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The epigrams of Voltaire, the French philosopher, were often ruthlessly sarcastic and severe. He could, however, exercise tact and gentleness, and, as is usually the case with brilliant persons, those qualities became him wonderfully well.

He met the famous statesman Turgot and cordially inquired about his health.

"It is as you see," replied Turgot. "I am tormented with gout. I can hardly drag my feet about."

"You remind me of the statue of Nebuchadnezzar, M. Turgot."

"Yes," assented the invalid sadly, "you are right, poet; the statue had feet of clay."

"And a head of gold," cried Voltaire warmly; "remember that, a head of gold."

What She Saw.

Mme. de Cornuel went to Versailles to see the French court, when M. de Torcy and M. de Seignelay, both very young, had just been appointed ministers. She saw them as well as Mme. de Maintenon, who had then grown old. When she returned to Paris, some one asked her what remarkable things she had seen. "I have seen," she said, "what I never expected to see there. I have seen love in its tomb and the ministry in its cradle."

Limewater.

It is well known that limewater has a beneficial effect on the growth of children, and in countries where the drinking water is impregnated with salts of lime the men are apt to be tall. An English medical authority states that for a perfect sanitary diet alkaline water is needed for every person who eats heavily of meat, and this means nearly every one excepting the vegetarian.

We are now making preparation for the biggest year's business any firm in Eastern North Carolina has ever known. Leather, Cotton Goods and Wool are advancing rapidly, therefore for the protection of our customers we are placing large orders as far in advance as the factories will accept them.

Our after-Christmas clearing and stock adjusting sale will commence with the New Year. The holiday rushing has left us with broken lots, odd sizes and season goods such as the economical shopper is always on the lookout for. These goods will be sacrificed during this Great Clearance Sale and the prices will reach the lowest limit.
