

ISN'T IT ODD.

When a fellow owes you money
You seldom see the chap,
It is really funny
How he dodges off the map.
Other people seem to find him
As he goes along the way,
But you're always just behind him
And you miss him every day.
If you owe a fellow dollars
You will meet him everywhere;
In a store you go for collars
And you'll find him waiting there.
Visit plumber, visit grocer,
Visit any place you may
He goes everywhere you go, sir,
And you meet him every day.

Facts About Failure.

People do not die from overwork so much as from a sense of failure in their work. It is not what they have done that kills them, but what they could not do; not fatigue, not mental nor physical exhaustion, but a sense of not having had the power to grasp their opportunity for success. No one ever knew of an egotist dying of overwork—such people have an opinion of their own capabilities that will support them through all disasters: but it is the sensitive person, who after having made a desperate struggle and bent every energy toward reaching the goal, finds that they are left behind in the race for wealth or honor, who feel the sense of utter failure and the chagrin of defeat, and are conquered, and so they fill premature graves with victims—not of overwork—but of failure of having succeeded in their work.—Orange (Va.) Observer.

National Reunion.

It is now proposed to hold in Washington City at no far distant date a national reunion of all the old soldiers who were engaged in the Civil war, the Mexican war, the war with Spain and the campaigns with the Philippines and China, together with all sons of veterans.

The idea is to continue the rally for one week and a part of the programme will be one grand review before the president.

We trust that the reunion may be arranged as planned and that all the soldiers of many wars may be allowed to meet, to forget past differences and to join in one grand and happy reunion.—Charlotte News.

A peculiarly curious news item is sent out by the Tar Heel of Elizabeth City. It is to the effect that the customs port maintained there, collected only $5 last year, while the cost of maintaining it was $1,607! While this takes the cake it is but one of many similar cases that exist merely to "give jobs to patriots." The president has recommended the closure of all custom offices that are not self-supporting.—Gastonia Gazette.

President Roosevelt has intervened again as peacemaker between the coal miners and operators and as the result of a letter addressed by him to John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, a national convention of the organization will be held March 15 to try to reach an agreement with the soft coal operators in the hope of averting the threatened strike.

The boys did not wait for March to begin kite flying.

The Highest Honor.

The Greenville Methodists, who are preparing to build a handsome new church, decided in the absence of ex Governor and ex-Senator Jarvis from home to name it "the Jarvis Memorial Church," in honor of Pitt's first citizen and one of the State's first statesmen of the ante-bellum period. No honor could be higher. Governor Jarvis is the son of a Methodist preacher and is devoted to the faith of his father. In the General Conference which meets in Birmingham in May, he will be the most distinguished lay delegate.—Raleigh News and Observer.

MR. S. B. WILSON DEAD.

One of Our Oldest Citizens Passes Away.

Wednesday night at 11 o'clock, at his residence on Dickinson avenue, the spirit of Mr. Simon Burney Wilson took its departure from earth to the spirit world. In his death a long and upright earthly life is ended and the better life entered upon.

Mr. Wilson was in his 73rd year and was a native of Per county. The best years of his life were spent on the farm, and not until the advance of age rendered him too feeble for active work did he leave the vocation he loved. He moved to Greenville about sixteen years ago and spent the remainder of his days here. During the last few years of his life he was an invalid, unable to get about at all except on buggy or rolling chair. The devotion of his family and friends during these years of confinement and suffering was beautiful, everything being done that could in any way contribute to his comfort and pleasure.

Mr. Wilson possessed that strength of character and true manhood that made friends of all who knew him. He held their esteem through life and his death is mourned by all.

In January, 1857, he wed Miss Martha Brown, and their happy wedded life lacked less than a year of covering half a century. Ten children blessed their home, and four times the death angel crossed their threshold taking away one of their loved ones. He is survived by the widow and six children three sons and three daughters. The sons are Messrs. Walter B., Frank and Eugene Wilson, and the daughters Mrs. Ollen Warren, Jr., Misses Nannie and Lillie Wilson. These have the sympathy of hosts of friends in their sorrow.

The funeral service will be held at the residence at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, the interment following in Cherry Hill cemetery.

Man's Duty to Man.

There is no way of helping men but by bearing what they bear. No man will lighten a sorrow of which he has not himself felt the pressure. The saviors of society have still to be crucified. Jesus Christ would never have been the Lamb of God that bore away the sins of the world, unless He Himself had taken our infirmities and borne our sickness. No work of healing will be done except by those whose hearts have bled with feeling of the miseries which they have set themselves to cure. You must take blind beggars by the hand if you are going to make them see; and you must not be afraid to lay your white clean fingers upon the feculent masses of corruption in the leper's glistening whiteness, if you are going to make them whole. Go down in order to lift, and remember that without sympathy there is no sufficient help; and without communion with Christ there is no sympathy.—Alexander McClaren.

A Pleasing invitation.

Two passengers traveling north, according to the London Globe, got into conversation, and one was most attentive to the other, pressing cigars, papers and refreshments upon him. Their destination was the same town, and No. 1 asked where his traveling companion intended to put up. The latter replied, "The George." He said: "Oh, don't bother about a hotel. Come to my place for the night." This completed No. 2's astonishment at such extraordinary gushing kindness, and he felt compelled to ask the reason of such unlooked for hospitality, but was uncomfortably enlightened by his would be host replying, "My wife says I am the ugliest man in the world, and I just want her to have a look at you!"

His Best Assistant.
A physician lost a case, as the saying goes, not long since, and he had the customary excuse for his failure to cure the patient:
"Well, we can only assist nature."
This was all right, for we are all human and are often defeated after our best endeavors, but when the doctor later on was boasting of his success in restoring a man to health a satirical friend checked his vainglorious remarks with the question:
"How much did Mother Nature help you this time?"
Then silence, like a poultice, came to heal the blows of sound.—Boston Budget.

Then He Remembered.
"President Finney of Oberlin," said an old Ohio man, "was a very absentminded man. When he met a person he knew he would stop and say: 'I know I've met you before. Let's see; what is your name, sir?'
"After this had happened several times to a certain student the graceless youth one day responded, 'Tom Jones, sir.'
"The conjunction of the new name with the old face shocked the president into present mindedness. He gazed fixedly at the student for a moment and exclaimed, 'John Steele, how you do lie!'—New York Press.

A Shock.
The young man with the uncut hair and hungry look had submitted a poem for editorial consideration.
"Well," said the man behind the blue pencil, after a hurried glance at it, "how does $3 strike you?"
"Why—er—really," stammered the rhymester, "that is more than I—er—"
"Well, that's the best I can do," interrupted the busy editor. "I couldn't think of printing a poem like that for any less."

INCEPTION OF PRINTING.

How Others Got Fame and Wealth From Gutenberg's Invention.

In Gutenberg's time the city of Prague was famous for its manufactures and mechanical inventions. In the books of the university several Gutenbergs are entered, and among them is John, who may reasonably be supposed to be our inventor. After the failure of his first printing press he seems to have returned to Prague for the purpose of improving himself in mechanical invention. But the history of his first printing press is interesting. He hired a room in Strassburg and proceeded to carry out his idea of multiplying block books by means of movable wooden type. These books were very numerous and in great demand, and Gutenberg's intention was to manufacture them in considerable quantity for sale at the approaching septennial fair at Aix-la-Chapelle. In order to conceal his purpose when his employment was inquired into he took advantage of a double meaning and said that he was manufacturing mirrors or looking glasses for sale at the fair, some of the block books being known as specula, such as the "Speculum Salvationis." Gutenberg borrowed money of a family named Dritzehn, and one of them entered into partnership with him.

At first Gutenberg taught the art of cutting and polishing gems, but Dritzehn and a friend of his, one Helmann, noticed that he worked in secret at some other art, but before Gutenberg would reveal it he required fresh terms, which were granted. The affairs of the partnership did not proceed well. Dritzehn died, and his relations in 1439 brought an action against Gutenberg for the recovery of the money advanced by them.

Gutenberg attempted to form his type by casting, but the casts were not sharp enough for printing. He consulted a worker in metals (Faust of Mayence), who at once saw the value of the invention and advanced money to Gutenberg on the strength of it. Faust's apprentice, Peter Schoeffer, overcame the difficulty, and his master made him his partner and son-in-law, and the two men, ignoring Gutenberg, appropriated his invention and thus obtained fame and wealth.—Notes and Queries.

Taking No Risks.

"Now, Johnnie, go and kiss your little sweetheart and make it up," said Johnnie's mother.

"No, I won't."

"Go and tell her how much you love her and how sorry you are."

"No, I won't. Pa says he got into a breach of promise case by telling a girl that and had to marry the old thing. I won't run any risks, I won't."—London Telegraph.

FAMOUS DIAMONDS.

The Stories of the Beau Sancy and the Kohinoor.

The famous Beau Sancy diamond was lost by Charles the Bold on the battlefield of Granson, March 3, 1476. A Swiss soldier sold it for a florin to some person unknown. A century afterward the king of Portugal pledged it to the Seigneur de Sancy of France for a loan. In 1589 the latter sent it to Henry of Navarre. Thieves killed the messenger, but Sancy exhumed the body and found his diamond again in the servant's stomach. We next hear of this gem shining on the breast of Queen Elizabeth. James II. then carried it off and sold it to Louis XIV. Robbers in 1792 looted the royal treasury, and it did not appear again until bought by the maharajah of Puttiola, who owns it now.

The Kohinoor, an English crown jewel, valued in the year 1526 "at half the daily expense of the whole world," is linked with uncommon horrors. In order to discover its hiding place half a dozen shahs were successively blinded. The head of one was shaved and circled with a ring of paste, in which they poured boiling oil. Even then he would not tell. Other historic stones, the Regent, the Piggott, the Orloff, the Empress Eugenie, the Pasha, recall adventures similarly gruesome, and so in less degree could many a one or two karat stone worn today were its narrative recorded.

The romance of diamonds grips one the moment he lands in South Africa. The first notable pointed out to me at Johannesburg several years ago was a big man with a black mustache, from whose shirt bosom radiated a twenty karat gem. He picked it up in Kimberly, fed it, concealed in hay, to a horse, ripped the animal open just over the Transvaal border and, there being no extradition treaty between Transvaal and Cape Colony, wore the stone without fear of punishment. At the same time all South Africa was commenting on the foolhardiness of a young Englishman who hid about £15,000 worth of diamonds in the barrel of his shotgun. He got aboard ship safely, and the inspectors were ready to go ashore when out of mere bravado he said to one, laughing, "Why don't you examine my gun?" The inspector, stupidly serious, took him at his word, and the man is now helping to build drydocks along with others in the chain gang of Breakwater prison.—Public Opinion.

They will fix up some way to get Dr. Matthews out of it

It is the fad now when one is caught in crime to attempt suicide rather than take the consequences. Must be that the courts are getting better along the line of administering punishment.

The way that Durham wife murderer gloats over his crime indicates that he is a villain of the deepest dye. Hanging more than once, if such a thing was possible, would be none too severe punishment for him.

The Durham Sun, that has a way of shining brightly, even on cloudy days, has begun its eighteenth year. As a factor in Durham's growth the Sun has made its presence felt, and it is entitled to the best the people of that town can give it.

This is the way they go about it in the enlightened (?) North. At Springfield, Ohio, two negroes shot and wounded a white man. The negroes were taken by officers and put in a place of safety. A mob of a thousand people collected, and not being able to get at the negroes who did the shooting, they went to the negro section of the city and proceeded to bombard and burn houses of innocent persons. It took several companies of military to dispel the mob and stop the frenzy.

New Trust busting idea.

All through the West there are local unions of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Association of America. They number, it is said, two thousand, and these have banded together to break up the trusts. They hold that the farmer has a right to price his own products; that such price shall be uniform over the nation, except as governed by freight rates for moving to market, and that no union farmer should sell for less under any consideration. The following is taken from the letter of instructions issued to the members of the union. They have agreed upon a schedule of prices and call upon every farmer in the United States to hold their farm products for sale according to this schedule. They want: Cotton middling, per pound 11 cents; wheat, No. 2 red, per bushel, $1.00; corn, No 2 per bushel, 50 cents; potatoes, sweet and Irish, per bushel, 75 cents; hay, No. 1, per ton, $10; hay, No. 1, alfalfa, per ton, $15; broom corn, per ton, $85 to $100; cotton seed, per ton, $15; hogs, per cwt, alive, $5.50 to $6.00. At present the farmers of the Southern States will not be much interested in this Western project for cornering all the markets and "busting" the trusts. They have a little cotton problem on hand which is demanding all the time they can spare. —Charlotte Chronicle.

SHAPE OF THE NOSE.

Pay Attention to the Nasal Organ in Early Life.

The shape of the nose is a thing which troubles all of us more or less at some period of our existence. Whatever shape we have we feel that we should have been better pleased if it had been formed according to some different pattern. This is on the principle of always wanting what we do not possess.

In speaking of this or that feature we often say that nature has given us this or that. The remark is correct, as a rule, but persons who possess a short nose may make a mistake in saying it. As a matter of fact, it can be shown that the nasal organ might have been longer in hundreds of cases if attention had been paid to it earlier in life. The shortness of growth in these cases is due to some trouble with the organ of smell.

When a child speaks in a peculiar manner, when it finds difficulty in breathing freely through the nose, then an examination should be made. Some children have to all appearances a perpetual cold, manifested only by "stiffness," but the real state of the case is that they are suffering from adenoids or some other trouble that can easily be remedied.

The importance of being able to breathe freely through the nose cannot be overestimated. One of the greatest men in history said that the power to take plenty of breath through the nasal organ meant a clear brain, clear lungs and a clear heart. Your success in life as well as your personal appearance may be spoiled by an impediment which to some people seems of little consequence.

Adenoids will sometimes prevent the growth of the nose, and the afflicted person may grow up with a very stubby specimen. A small boy afflicted with adenoids, as it was afterward discovered, was taken to an expert in order to ascertain why the child's nose did not grow. An operation was performed, and the medical man enjoined a kind of massage of the organ several times a day with a view to increasing the size of the nose as the child increased in years. In order to explain to the little one what to do, as "massage" was too big a word, he said that he must pull his nose. Every day the father on returning in the evening asked the seemingly strange question, "Have you pulled your nose today?" One evening he received the startling answer, "No, papa, auntie pulled my nose for me!"—San Francisco Examiner.

Put Daniel in Fiery Furnace.

A clergyman, recently engaged with another of a different belief in a controversy regarding some question of religion, sent to a newspaper office an article supporting his side of the question. The article in question contained about 2,000 words and had been prepared at the expense of much midnight oil. The manuscript had been received at a local newspaper office and set up in type for the next day's issue. About midnight the telephone bell rang furiously, the minister at the other end asking for the city editor.

"I am sorry to trouble you at such a late hour," he said, "but I am in great trouble."

"What can I do for you?" was asked.

"In the article I sent you today I put Daniel in the fiery furnace. Please take him out and put him in the lions' den."—Baltimore Sun.

Willard Huffman, a young man residing at Dalestown, O., is the happy victim of a peculiarly fortunate tooth pulling. Eighteen years ago Huffman partly lost the sight of his right eye. This week he had a tooth pulled. He next discovered that he could see as well with the right eye as with the left. It is believed the root of the tooth caused some pre-ure which affected the sight.

North Carolina People Caring for Themselves

"The sentiment in favor of Home Insurance Companies is stronger in North Carolina than in any other Southern State," was the remark made a few days ago by the representative of a Life Insurance Company who travels through the South. This fact speaks volumes for the future welfare of North Carolina and shows that our people are learning to care for themselves instead of relying upon others. They are caring for themselves in increasing numbers by buying from THE GREENSBORO LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

THE SUPERB INCOME INDEMNITY POLICY.

Which is recognized as the best Life Insurance contract yet devised. The best evidence of the superiority of this contract is to be found in the fact that more North Carolina people are buying the Income Indemnity Policy than are buying the Policies of any other Company. This Policy costs no more than others, but it affords a great deal more protection. It pays double Insurance in case of accidental death and becomes fully paid up for life in the event of total permanent disability or incapacity. Dividends are guaranteed and may be used to reduce the number of Annual Premiums.

THE ATOMIC THEORY.

A Mathematician's Proof of the Immortality of Man.

Dr. Ivan Slavonski, the eminent Russian mathematician, who died in St. Petersburg in December, 1887, left, among other curious and valuable papers, one entitled "The Atomic Theory—A Mathematical Proof of the Immortality of Man."

The learned doctor starts out by taking the position that the whole universe is made up of atoms and that these atoms are not "innumerable," but it can be shown that their number is limited. He further declares that the words "infinite" and "innumerable" are only used to cover ignorance, because it is impossible for our minds to form a proper conception of a vast number of units. After making the above and other broad statements he sets himself to the task of proving that the atoms of the universe are constantly undergoing changes and that the time will come when all possible changes, combinations and permutations will have been exhausted. Spencer, Helmholtz, Thompson and many other distinguished men, living and dead, believe and believed this queer doctrine. Thompson says that when these changes have been exhausted the universe will be at rest. When that day comes, the sun will cease to shine, the planets will stop revolving on their axis, and all the vast systems of worlds will hang perfectly dead and lifeless. But no. Dr. Slavonski does not propose to have a grand finale "wind up" at that stage of the game.

He declares that when these atomic permutations have been exhausted nature will return upon its tracks. In other words, when the pendulum has swung to its utmost limit it must return again. If all the positions of the atoms of the universe must again repeat themselves Slavonski argues that there must come a time when all nature will again be in the track now occupied. The earth will again undergo its geographical periods, and man will again appear, each individual being precisely the same individual he is now. He will be born of the same parents, be reared under the same circumstances that he now lives and with those with whom he now lives and will finally die, as he will die in a few years from now. After another untold age of cyclic changes he will "live again" just as in his former lives. This is immortality.

An Accommodating Artist.

An artist, celebrated in his day as a successful painter of portraits, while making a counterfeit presentment of a lady perceived that when he came to draw the mouth she tried to render it smaller by contracting her lips. "Pray do not trouble yourself so much, madam," he exclaimed. "If you like, I will draw your face without any mouth at all."

THE GREATEST WEDDING.

Over Ten Thousand Couples United at the Same Time.

The largest and most remarkable wedding since the world began took place at Susa. When the great Alexander had conquered Persia, wishing to unite the victors and vanquished by the strongest ties possible, he decreed a wedding festival. Now guess how many people he ordered to be married. You could never do it.

Well, Alexander himself was to marry Statira, the daughter of Darius; 100 of his chief officers were to be united to ladies of the noblest Persian and Medean families, and 10,000 of his Greek soldiers were to marry 10,000 Asiatic women—20,202 people married at once.

I don't see how they managed to get up a feast for so many, but they did, and for a vast multitude of guests besides. They had the most splendid arrangements. On a plain near the city a vast pavilion was erected on pillars sixty feet high. It was hung and spread with the richest tissues, while the gold and precious stones which ornamented it would have made your eyes blink. Adjoining this building were 100 gorgeous chambers for the hundred bridegrooms, while for the remaining 10,000 an outer court was inclosed and hung with costly tapestry, and tables were spread outside for the multitude.

A separate seat was assigned each pair, and all were arranged in a semicircle on either hand of the royal throne. Each bridegroom had received a golden vessel for his libation, and when the last of these had been announced by trumpets to the multitudes without the brides entered the banquet hall and took their places.

And now don't you think each bridegroom stood up separately and vowed, "With this ring I now thee wed," and so on. No. The ceremony was very simple. The king gave his hand to Statira and kissed her as his wife, and the other bridegrooms followed his example. That was the way. Then came the festival, lasting five days, with music and feats of jugglery, play acting and all kinds of delightful games.—Exchange.

Pet Phrases of Novelists.

As women have their favorite perfumes, as epicures have their favorite dishes, so novelists have their favorite phrases. This is a list of the favorite phrases of certain novelists, compiled by a book reviewer in an idle moment.

"Then a strange thing happened."—H. Rider Haggard.

"For what do you take me?" shrugged his interlocutor.—Henry James.

"But that's another story."—Rudyard Kipling.

"Incontinently I leaped forward."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Now, my dear Watson."—Conan Doyle.

"Well!"—Walter Pater.

Acquiring Knowledge.

"Papa, what is an old saw—not the saw you saw with, but the kind this paper speaks about?"

"What old saw does the paper speak about?"

"That's what I want to know. It says, 'Everybody has heard the old saw, "Never look a gift horse in the mouth."' I want to know where the saw comes in."

"Well, there's your old saw. An old saw is an old proverb."

"Why shouldn't you look a gift horse in the mouth?"

"Because—because it's in bad taste. It's ungrateful and all that sort of thing."

"All what sort of thing?"

"Why, to look a horse in the mouth that has been given to you shows that—it shows that you are not thinking of the giver, but of the value of the gift."

"What would anybody want to look a horse in the mouth for?"

"To tell how old it is."

(After a pause.) "Papa, can you tell how old a saw is by looking at its teeth?"

THE RALSTON

HEALTH SHOE.

Shoemaking has been developed on wooden feet—lasts—which know no "pinch" nor discomfort. The soft, yielding, tender flesh of a live foot has thus been compelled to inhabit an unnatural, ill-fitting and oftentimes unsanitary shoe. To be foot-tired is the average man's daily inheritance. And how much ill health can be traced to an ill-fitting shoe. When the foot is improperly shod the delight of walking is gone, and man's best friend,—his feet—refuse to him the comfort he should enjoy. A perfect walking shoe, one that keeps the foot always in good condition,—can such be had?

Ralston
 HEALTH
Shoes $4.

The Latest Oxford. College Pattern. Extra large Eyelets. Very Stylish
 If you want something distinctive, individual, come and see this shoe.

This question brought into being the Ralston Health Shoe. Recognizing that the foot sole is a curve made by the twenty-six bones which form the heel, ball and toes, (a fact strangely ignored by shoemakers in the past) we evolved a construction method which places prime importance in last modeling.

Ralston lasts are anatomically correct and differ from all other makes. Ralston construction is a principal combining comfort, ease, service, style, fit and commonsense,—real quality in footwear, built into the shoes from the very start.

Shoes made on Ralston lasts are nature shoes, conforming to the natural foot, and because they need no "breaking-in" they never lose that charm and style for which Ralston shoes are famous,—and which cannot be obtained in other methods of manufacture.

In the selection of materials for Ralston shoes the World's best makers are searched and every bit of upper, top, or sole leather, linings and fittings must pass the Ralston test before acceptance. The same idea with our employees. Each and all must do his or her part according to the Ralston idea, whether it is cutting, stitching, lasting, making or finishing. The result is a shoe unrivalled in pleasure giving, service and abounding in comfort and style. Thus our immense factory with its army of happy, skillful employees is dedicated to the gospel of the foot salvation from cramped and unsuitable footwear. The Ralston Shoe cannot be duplicated at the price asked—$4.00—and as good a shoe is not made or sold for less.
