WITH THE ALDERMEN.

Business Transacted at Last Meeting.

The board of aldermen met in regular monthly session Thursday night, all but two of the members being present.

G. S. Prichard, representing the tobacco board of trade, requested that drinking fountains be placed in the tobacco section of the town. The matter was referred to committee with authority to place two fountains at most convenient points.

The street committee reported that much work had been done during the past month and streets were in fair condition.

No others of the regular committees had any reports.

The several officers filed their reports of collections for the month.

The report of the superintendent of the water and light plant showed an addition of six water customers and five light customers during the past month. Income for the month was about $900.

Fred Cox was refunded taxes on $1,800 cash and solvent credits incorrectly listed.

The chief of fire department and building inspector was instructed to make detailed statement of buildings inspected each month.

Residents of Fifth street asked permission to put in a sewer along that street from the railroad to connect with Hotel Bertha sewer. The petition was granted.

A request was made for special police service at the depot, but no action was taken on it.

A PERSONAL TRIBUTE.

In memory of many pleasant hours, I bring one flower to lay as it were on the bier of Mr. Simon B. Wilson, whose spirit on Ash Wednesday after the great god of day was in his western couch, and ere mornings silvery rays kissed darkness away, passed to the bosom of Him who gave it. A consistent member of the Methodist church, gentle as a woman, appreciative, generous nature, devoted husband, fond loving father, a friend loyal and true has left us to join in that happy land the sweet young soul he so mourned and longed to be with. Though for years confined to an invalid's chair he bore his sad affliction with that patience, Christian character and fortitude emblematic of the Savior he loved so well; Familiar with interests of many years of the past, and ever conversant in the present, he was as congenial to me as if we had tread boyhood's happy paths together. I shall miss him in the ides of the summer days to come, and as his body rests in yon cemetery 'neath flowers from hands of friends and loved ones, may the sod press lightly on his bosom.

Why should our tears in sorrow flow?

God has recalled His own,
But let our hearts in every woe
Still say, "Thy Will be done."

HOLDING MOVEMENT STILL FIRM.

Notwithstanding the recent heavy and unauthorized depression in the price of spot cotton, due to bearish speculative influences, the great majority of spot holders have stood firm and refused to be panic stricken over the extreme tactics pursued by the large cotton buyers and exporters to shake out cotton from the interior of the old States. We are now facing comparisons with enormous receipts one year ago. Last March there came into sight 1,200,000 bales and in April 866,000 bales, or during those two months as much cotton as there is in the South to come into sight for the balance of the season. More cotton came into sight last March than there is now left in the hands of the spot holders on plantations and at interior uncounted towns. The spot holders will continue firm and remain unshaken while the exporters who are short in their contracts are being forced to the ports to beg, borrow or buy supplies for immediate requirements. The woast of the depression is already over. The combination of spinners, speculators and buyers have played their last cards, and the holders, by remaining steadfast in the possession of their staple, will soon be able to dictate prices and force the market to fifteen cents. Cotton goods are weekly advancing in price, and the demand cannot be filled, many mills having already taken orders as far ahead as December and into next year. Mill sales are based on the future price of spot cotton as spinners realize prices will advance in the near future. Remember that last March with cotton at 7 cents, in the face of a 14,000,000 bale crop, those who held received 10½ cents early in July. Do not get discouraged. Mill men say raw cotton is worth fifteen cents and that they are prepared to pay it if they cannot get it for less. If the staple is worth it, every interest in the South should assist the holders to get it. Let there be no break in the ranks. The supplies from the interior of the southwest are practically exhausted, and all buyers must soon turn their attention to the holdings in the old States. Do not get panic stricken, but have only one price in view for the balance of this crop, namely, FIFTEEN CENTS. Plant less cotton and increase the food supply crops. Curtail the production of cotton, so that what is grown will be absolutely required by the consuming world and will, therefore, command profitable prices. The slogan for the next two months throughout the entire cotton belt must be DIVERSIFICATION, less cotton, more food supplies, and an absolute refusal on the part of spot holders to market their middling cotton for less than 15 cents. Show the world a normal acreage and a fixed determination to demand fifteen cents for the balance of this crop.

TWO WAYS OF DEALING WITH ER-RING BOYS.

Seven years ago, before there was such a thing as a juvenile court, a boy of nine was arrested in Denver for burglary. He was brought into the criminal court, tried as a burglar, and sent to jail. He served a term of years, during which he learned thoroughly the trade which he had been accused of plying. When he was released he began to practice in earnest. He was rearrested, recommitted, and, after a second term, turned loose again, a more accomplished burglar than before. A few months ago he was shot at by the Denver police in an attempt to escape a third arrest. He was captured and brought into the Juvenile Court, still a mere child that ought to have been going to school.

Judge "Ben" B. Lindsey, who presides over this tribunal, was confronted by a bold, hardened, and unnaturally sharp young expert in crime who had mystified the police by telling half a dozen different stories. Judge Lindsey began by telling the boy he didn't believe him to be half as "tough a kid" as the police had made him out, and that he would not be "sent up" if he was 'square with the court' and made a clean breast of his trouble with the "cops."

This new treatment got from the boy his real story. He had been led into his first offense by a desire for a knife with which to make a kite. His father refused to get him one, and he broke into a barber shop and took a razor. According to the letter of the criminal law, the boy had committed a burglary. As there was no 'juvenile' law at the time, he was dealt with as a professional housebreaker. Asked about his first trial, he said to Judge Lindsey:

"Aw, de guy wid the whiskers wot sat up on the high bench looked over at the 'cop,' and de 'cop,' he says, 'Dis is a very bad kid; he broke into Smith's barber shop and took a razor, and he admits it, yer Honor.' Den de guy on de high bench sends me up widout givin' me a chance to to say a woid."

Thus, the boy was well started on a criminal career before he was ten years old. Fortunately, he fell into the hands of the Denver Juvenile Court, which had been established in the interval between his second and third arrest, while he was still able to "pull up." Instead of telling him he was a bad boy and sending him to jail again, Judge Lindsey told him that he was a "bully fellow" and set him free—on probation. Today that boy is still going uphill as fast as he was going down hill before.—From "The Children's Court in American City Life," by Frances Maule Bjorkman, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for March.

Runaway.

Friday evening about 4 o'clock a colored boy, working for Dr. J. L. Wooten, drove up to the depot to get a trunk. While the boy was in the depot the horse took fright and ran down Dickinson avenue. The buggy came in contact with a hydrant, near the Presbyterian church, and two or three spokes were broken. No other damage was done. The horse did not stop until he reached the lot.

BETTER FIXED THAN EVER.

Our Motto to Keep Going Forward.

Since THE REFLECTOR has installed an electric motor to operate its presses a number of people have been in to see the machinery at work and many have expressed admiration. One business man in offering congratulations said "you you have equipped your plant better than it has ever been." That is what we try to do constantly, improve all the time and never go backward. We spend money on it just as fast as it can be made, and as never a dollar has been invested in the plant but what the good people helped us to put there we want them to feel that it is their plant and when they help us with their patronage they help themselves.

Some have asked us when is the best time to see the presses at work. As day current is not yet supplied by the town's plant we seldom can operate the motor except late in the evening and at night. At present the presses are running from about 7 to 9:30 every Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday night, and those interested can come in on either of these nights.

Some Pertinent Remarks.

Advertising is business steam. Keep your boiler humming.

Advertising is better for business than Cod-liver oil. It makes it fat.

If you placed $100 worth of advertising last year, endeavor to place $200 worth of better advertising this year and your business will increase in proportion.—By Old Timer.

Curious Leaseholds.

Some of the English tenures are exceedingly curious. A farm near Broadhouse, in Yorkshire, pays annually to the landlord a snowball in midsummer and a red rose at Christmas. The manor of Foston is held by a rental of two arrows and a loaf of bread. An estate in the north of England is held by the exhibition before a court every seven years of a certain vase owned by the family, another in Suffolk by an annual rental of two white doves. The British government holds land in Chatham by paying the heirs of the man from whom it was bought two peppercorns. The man's descendants now live in Holland, and the peppercorns are annually sent thither in a gold box.

Sea Gull Surprises Cigarette Smoker.

While a number of people were watching the antics of the sea gulls, which rose continually to the parapet of London bridge recently in search of the food which several of the spectators were throwing to them, one gentleman gave a large bag of sprats to the gulls, who eagerly took the fish from his fingers one at a time.

Standing close by was another spectator, who held an unlighted cigarette in his lips.

Judge of the latter's surprise when one daring bird, finding no sprat awaiting him, suddenly swooped on the cigarette and deftly removed it from the owner's mouth.—London Mail.

They never gripe or sicken but cleanse and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. This is the universal verdict of the many thousands who use DeWitt's Little Early Risers. All old time Cough Syrups bind the bowels. This is wrong. A new idea was advanced two years ago in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. This remedy acts on the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs and loosens the bowels at the same time. It expels all cold from the system. It clears the throat, strengthens the mucous membranes, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. Sold by John L. Wooten.

Don't deceive yourself. If you have indigestion take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It will relieve you. Rev. W. E. Hocutt, South Mills, N. My druggist recommended Kodol, and it has relieved me. I can now eat anything and sleep soundly at night. Kodol Digests what you eat. Sold by John L. Wooten.

A POT SHOT.

It Was an Unintentional One, but It Bagged Four Quail.

Four of us were out rabbiting, with indifferent success. H. got tired of it and thought he would try to walk up a bunch of quail. He walked along a road dividing a stubble field, and in nearing a bunch of grass alongside of the road a bunch of birds got up out of the grass. He gave them the first barrel as they rose, but missed. Then he gave them the second and saw two drop. One was dead, but the other only wounded. He picked up the dead bird and, having no dog, ran after the wounded bird and retrieved it. Then he followed up the birds he had marked down in some scrub oak to try for another shot.

About an hour afterward we came along the same place, when S. noticed one of the beagles mouthing a bird in the bunch of grass. The grass was about a foot and a half high, about two yards long and one yard wide. S. shouted to the dog to drop it and ran toward him. We both got there about the same time, and S. had taken the bird from the dog, saying, "Why, it's a quail." Just then I noticed one at my feet and said, "Here's another." S. walked on a step and said, "Here's another." Just then W. came along and stopped and said, "Here's another," picking one up at the same time. Well, we picked up four quail in that bunch of grass. The birds were still quite warm and were lying on their breasts, with wings spread out.

Well, we all wondered how such a thing could have happened. We all had heard H. shoot twice after he had been gone a short time, but no others. Just then we saw H. coming up the road. When he got to us we asked him if he had fired the two guns a short time before. "Yes," said he. "What at?" asked S. "Quail," said H. Then he explained that as he walked along the road the bunch of quail got up about sixty feet away. He fired the first barrel, but missed, "as he thought," as they got up out of the grass. Then he gave them the left barrel, knocking down two. "The one was dead, but I had a good run after the other one," he said, "and here they are," taking the two birds out of his game pocket. We then told him about the four we had found, and after a lot of talk and study we concluded that he had shot too low with the first barrel and killed the birds on the ground and, not knowing it, had gone right on after the others.

H. has been my shooting partner for the past eighteen years, and we all know him to be a thorough sportsman, one who would not shoot a quail on the ground. I don't know about a duck asleep. Nevertheless I am afraid the name of pot hunter will stay by him a long while.—For-

MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION.

There were not enough present at the meeting of the Merchant's Association called in the Mayor's office Friday night to constitute a quorum, so no effort at the transaction of business in connection with the association was made. Those present, however, put in some good time talking informally about several matters of interest. There ought to be such interest awakened in the association as to bring out the cooperation of every merchant and business man. Nothing succeeds like working through organization; and there are so many things the association could accomplish for Greenville that it looks like every man should be interested. There are measures that vitally concern Greenville which the association ought to be looking after right now. Greenville is losing by her business men not working together as they ought and taking interest in matters that concern all.

The "profession" got a jolt in San Francisco the other night when one of the pugilists in a contest received injuries in the knock out from which he died.

If the Republicans themselves think every appointee of their party to office in North Carolina is unfit for the place, what can they expect the balance of the folks to think?

From some matters we have heard talked you may look for even bigger things to be taking place in Greenville. The flood tide of progress is coming in for this good old town.

The trial of George Hast, for the murder of Bennett and Davison, two members of the "Nothing But Money" troupe, is in progress at Gaffney, S. C. The trial is attracting much interest.

"Squire G. T. Tyson, of Beaver Dam, dropped in to see us today. "I had a fire last night and came in to tell you my misfortune," remarked the squire, and a pencil and note book were drawn to get the particulars. He continued: "I had just got the mail out of my box and wanted to read a postal card. The lamp was not lighted, so I picked up an old paper to brighten up the fire. I had THE DAILY REFLECTOR in my hand also and through mistake put that in the fire instead of the old paper, and lost my news. Get me another copy, as I cannot afford to miss it." The copy was quickly provided and the squire's misfortune re-

Stay on the Farm.

The leading editorial of the Catawba County News begins with the words of Daniel Webster, "When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers therefore are the founders human civilization." With this as a starter the editor of the Catawba News proceeds to give out some mighty sensible counsel to the sons of farmers as to their duty to stay on the farms.

The advice is good. There is a spirit among the youths of the country that they can soon make their fortune by going to the city. Nothing is more erroneous or detrimental to their future welfare.

There may be an apparent glamour about the life of a clerk in the city, and the noise of the street car may sound musical to the young farmer, but it is all a mistake.

There has never been such an opportunity in the history of the State for a young man of energy and hustle as there is today on the farm.

It is the happiest life in the first place, and is about as profitable as any kind of business in the country.—Charlotte News.

North Carolina People Caring for Themselves

"The sentiment in favor of Home Insurance Companies is stronger in North Carolina than in any other Southern State," was the remark made a few days ago by the representative of a Life Insurance Company who travels through the South. This fact speaks volumes for the future welfare of North Carolina and shows that our people are learning to care for themselves instead of relying upon others. They are caring for themselves in increasing numbers by buying from THE GREENSBORO LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

THE SUPERB INCOME INDEMNITY POLICY.

Which is recognized as the best Life Insurance contract yet devised. The best evidence of the superiority of this contract is to be found in the fact that more North Carolina people are buying the Income Indemnity Policy than are buying the Policies of any other Company. This Policy costs no more than others, but it affords a great deal more protection. It pays double Insurance in case of accidental death and becomes fully paid up for life in the event of total permanent disability or incapacity. Dividends are guaranteed and may be used to reduce the number of Annual Premiums.

DIDN'T GET THE JOB.

Why One Man Is Now Careful About Stamping Envelopes.

"I know a man who lost a good job once by doing that," said the tall, slim man in the lobby of the Stafford.

"Doing what?" asked the short, fat man who was putting a stamp on an envelope.

"Why," said the tall man, "sticking a stamp on lopsided."

"You don't say?"

"I do," said Harold D. Stauffer of New Orleans. "It happened that I was the young man. It was not so many years ago either. A paper in Galveston had advertised for a proofreader in 1893, and at that time I was out of work and needed a place badly. The salary was good, the work congenial, and I had enjoyed some little experience at it with satisfaction to myself. So I wrote a formal application, addressed the envelope and hurriedly stuck a stamp on about a quarter of an inch northeast of the proper position and zigzaggy across the top. A few days later I received this answer:

"Dear Sir—Your application has been placed on file; but, while all other qualifications seem to be present, the carelessness indicated by the manner in which you affixed your stamp may, unfortunately, be an index to the character of your work, and we may frankly say that the circumstance will be taken into consideration in reaching a decision.

"You could have knocked me down with a feather. I had no idea of a stamp except as carrying agent for the letter; and whether I placed it upside down, sideways to, criss-cross or on edge so long as it carried the letter did not appeal to me as material. I wrote and explained that the position of the stamp was not a character index and suggested the unfairness of the conclusion, as the stamp might have been put on by my office boy. An answer came in due time. Such deeply personal letters, the writer said, were not trusted to office boys by careful men. Argument: The office boy plea was merely another indication of possible carelessness. Now, whether that man was having fun with me or really took the matter so seriously I don't know, but I do know one thing."

"What's that?"

"I didn't get the job."—Baltimore News.

Strawberries as Medicine.

All herbalists agree in pronouncing strawberries as wholesome and beneficial beyond every other English fruit. Their smell is refreshing to the spirits, they abate fever and are diuretic and gently laxative. The leaves may be used in gargles for quinsies and sore mouths. The chemical constituents of the strawberry are a peculiar volatile aroma, sugar, mucilage, pectine, citric and malic acids in equal parts, woody fiber and water. The fruit is mucilaginous, somewhat tart and saccharine. It is especially suitable in inflammatory and putrid fevers and for catarrhal sore throats.

ANIMAL STORIES.

Some of the Views and Superstitions of the Ancients.

The knowledge of animals and their habits which existed among the ancient Greeks and Romans was most fantastic.

Among other snakes described in the ancient natural histories, for example, was the basilisk, which Pliny called the "king of serpents." According to the description, it was six feet long, wore a white crest on its head and had a skin spotted with white. Such was the abundance of its venom, according to these reports, that it made the body shine all over. The air was poisoned where this vile reptile passed, and great plants were envenomed with its subtle and luminous fluid, while the birds, in turn, fell before the odor exhaled by the trees. But this monster was an easy prey to the weasel. The dragon was the largest of serpents and inhabited especially Ethiopia and Egypt. When he flew out of his cavern he furrowed the air with such violence that it gleamed with fire. His mouth was small, and it was not the wounds which it inflicted which made him so formidable, but the strangling power of his tail, which was capable of destroying even elephants.

It is interesting to notice that the mythical dragon was already evolving toward the boa constrictor. The real siren lived in Arabia and "was a sort of white serpent which ran so marvelously that most men say it flew."

Most of the facts which are recorded concerning birds are more accurate, for the sport of falconry only made men observers of their habits. Still there are a few strange myths concerning the eagle. He was said to seize his young in his talons and to make them fix their eyes on the burning rays of the sun. Those alone that could gaze without finching were kept and nourished as worthy of life. "This is not cruelty," says the simple writer, "but judgment." The eagle had the power of renewing youth. Mounting higher and higher, till his plumes were burned by the sun, he fell into a fountain, where he bathed three times and was thoroughly rejuvenated.

The habits of the ostrich, an old book said, were regulated by a star named Virgil. When the star began to rise the astute bird laid its eggs, covered them with sand and left their hatching to the sun. Another remarkable thing was the influence which the chanticleer exercised over the king of beasts. His shrill crow put him in full flight—even Pliny says so—but to do this his plumage had to be pure white.

Infantile Reasoning.

The process of the youthful mind when it gets to logical deduction is apt to be fearful and wonderful, and the adult intellect is not always easily able to follow.

At a kindergarten class the teacher asked her pupils to give an example of a cylinder from some object which they had at home.

"Asparagus," one small boy responded very promptly.

"My mother had rhubarb," another said briskly, thus catching at half the cylinder idea and yet improving an opportunity to boast of something which his family enjoyed.

The third, overcome by the connection of ideas on the culinary side, lost sight of the original proposition altogether and cried out with the air of one who is not to be beaten:

"Well, my mother's going to make some root beer anyway!"

Egg in a Bottle.

If an egg be kept in strong vinegar for a short while the shell will become more or less plastic, and the egg can then be rolled out sausage-like until it be of small enough diameter to go with ease in at the mouth of a beer bottle. If cold water be then poured in the bottle, the shell, the life of which has been softened by the vinegar, will harden and return to its original shape.

The Sans Souci club met with Miss Irma Cobb Tuesday evening, Feb. 27th.

The president, Mrs. Stuart Carr, presided. In spite of the disagreeable weather quite a number of the members were present.

After the business meeting the club was delightfully entertained by two very interesting papers by Misses Mary Moye and Bessie Patrick, Miss Moye's subject being the life of Harriet Beecher Stowe and Miss Patrick's the life of William Gilmore Sims.

Miss Nina James and Mrs. Geo. Woodward added much to the pleasure of the evening by reading selections from the above named authors. The charming hostess then served very dainty refreshments and the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. George Woodward March 13th. The visitors present were Mesdames O. G. Calhoun, of Shelmerdine, E. B. Ficklen, J. L. Fleming, C. S. Forbes, C. O'H. Laughinghouse and Miss Lottie Skinner.

THE RALSTON

HEALTH SHOE.

Sho making has been developed on wooden feet--lasts--which know no "pinch" nor discomfort. The soft, yielding, tender flesh of a live foot has thus been compelled to inhabit an unnatural, ill-fitting and oftentimes unsanitary shoe. To be foot-tired is the average man's daily inheritance. And how much ill health can be traced to an ill-fitting shoe. When the foot is improperly shod the delight of walking is gone, and man's best friend,—his feet—refuse to him the comfort he should enjoy. A perfect walking shoe, one that keeps the foot always in good condition,—can such be had?

Ralston
HEALTH
Shoes $4.

The Latest Oxford. College Pattern.

Extra large Eyelets. Very Stylish

If you want something distinctive, individual, come and see this shoe.

This question brought into being the Ralston Health Shoe. Recognizing that the foot sole is a curve made by the twenty-six bones which form the heel, ball and toes, (a fact strangely ignored by shoemakers in the past) we evolved a construction method which places prime importance in last modeling.

Ralston lasts are anatomically correct and differ from all other makes. Ralston construction is a principal combining comfort, ease, service, style, fit and commonsense,—real quality in footwear, built into the shoes from the very start.

Shoes made on Ralston lasts are nature shoes, conforming to the natural foot, and because they need no "breaking-in" they never lose that charm and style for which Ralston shoes are famous,—and which cannot be obtained in other methods of manufacture.

In the selection of materials for Ralston shoes the World's best makers are searched and every bit of upper, top, or sole leather, linings and fittings must pass the Ralston test before acceptance. The same idea with our employees. Each and all must do his or her part according to the Ralston idea, whether it is cutting, stitching, lasting, making or finishing. The result is a shoe unrivalled in pleasure giving, service and abounding in comfort and style. Thus our immense factory with its army of happy, skillful employees is dedicated to the gospel of the foot salvation from cramped and unsuitable footwear. The Ralston Shoe cannot be duplicated at the price asked—$4.00—and as good a shoe is not made or sold for less.
