COLORED MAN KILLED.

Run Over by a Log Train.

Bethel, N. C., March 23.—While hands were loading a log train near Bethel late this afternoon, a negro man named Selly Howell attempted to jump on one of the cars as the train was shifting. He missed his hold and fell under the car, the wheels running over him and killing him instantly. An examination showed that his neck was broken. The body of Howell was brought to Bethel and turned over to his people.

THE WORTH OF A LETTER

With the break-neck speed in business and the panting race for money today, people do not take time to hold converse with their friends in epistolary correspondence. Even the business letters are often written in a hurry and nothing is considered in them but the financial significance of the proposition they contain or the answers they convey. How much better it would be if people would take an hour or two off now and then and write friendly letters to each other, like our fore parents did a century ago! Life of the present day is literally robbed of much of its sweetness and joy in the mad rush for pleasure or the gasping—yea, almost grasping—greed for money. Some of the most charming books that one can read are books which contain much correspondence between friends or relatives in the long ago. Stop, you half crazy business man, and think up some good and intimate friend of school boy days, write him the best letter you can, and see how you will enjoy the reply.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

THE ERA OF EDUCATIONAL GOOD FEELING.

It is worthy to note that all the educational forces in the State are now working together—the city schools and country schools, the male colleges and the State schools and the private schools are all of one accord working together—and there is plenty for all to do—developing our educational possibilities. Our awakened citizens have recognized the opportunity and the leaders of educational thought and action will all be here at the State Assembly and summer school to confer, to plan, and to act.

Let all rejoice at the era of good feeling, of bright hopes and of the vigorous determination to accomplish the greatest good possible by such concert of action.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Judgment Against Railroad.

The case that was longest before the court this week was the suit of B. M. Whitehurst against the Atlantic Coast Line. The suit was because of damage about a year ago when sparks from the engine of a freight train caused a fire which destroyed some buildings on Whitehurst's farm. The jury awarded Whitehurst $75.

Coal mines in Stokes county are to be developed by a company.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY.

Whereas it hath pleased Almighty God, in His wise providence, to visit our beloved fellow member, Ellen Proctor, with bereavement in the death of her father, therefore,

Be it Resolved:

1. That St. Paul's Junior Guild, in meeting assembled, express its deep sympathy for the bereaved family, and for Ellen especially.

2. That we deeply regret her removal from Greenville, for in her departure we lose a faithful friend and member of this Guild.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Ellen, a copy be spread upon the minutes of this Guild, and a copy published in The Reflector.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

A tribe of Red Men was established at Snow Hill this week.

Salisbury, N. C., March 23.—Charles Canup, a young man, was instantly killed at a railroad crossing about two miles west of Salisbury this morning. His horse which was also killed, was dragged a distance of a hundred yards or more before the engine could be stopped.

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 23.—Mr. O. B. Watson, when questioned today about a report published in several papers to the effect that he would likely enter the race for the Democratic nomination in this, the Fifth District, to succeed Representative W. W. Kitchen, stated emphatically that under no consideration would he be a candidate for Congress.

Wilmington, N. C., March 23.—Mr. Horace M. Emerson, general traffic manager of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, died tonight at 8 o'clock at his home in this city of organic heart trouble. Mr. Emerson was born in Preble county, Ohio, and was in the 47th year of his age. He had been continuously in the service of the Atlantic Coast Line for thirty years.

The Magazine Club met with Miss Annie Perkins at the home of Mrs. J. Stanley Smith, on Wednesday evening. After the regular business a most delightful program was carried out, a very cute idea in a guessing contest was then given to each, with a little story of some of the most popular books making the stars, these were answered by authors of each book. Miss Harper winning or getting the greatest number, a dainty fan was awarded her by the president. Mrs. Smith, in a cute little speech. Dainty refreshments were served by Miss Perkins and Mrs. Smith. Misses Harper and Moore were invited guests.

MR. SETH TYSON DEAD.

On Wednesday night at eight o'clock, at his late home two miles from this place, Mr. Seth Tyson's spirit departed this life, and on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock the friends and relatives of the family met in large number to pay their last respect to one that has lived a good and noble life, and we believe there is a crown of eternal life for him. He had been in feeble health the last few months of his life, and everything was done by the doctors and his dear ones that could be done, but the one that knoweth best saw fit to take him home. He leaves a wife and three daughters to mourn their loss with a host of friends.

Gave Her A Gold Watch.

Spartanburg, S. C., March 22.—A special from Gaffney says: This afternoon at 6 o'clock the young men of the city went in a body to the home of Miss Mae Peeler and presented her with a gold watch as a token of their appreciation of her attention to Misses Sheridan and Bishop just after the killing of Messrs. Davidson and Bennett by George Hasty, and during the trial of Hasty, when the two young ladies were stopping in Gaffney as witnesses.

Hook's Fishy Compliment.

It was Theodore Hook's good or evil fortune to find himself one night at a musical "party," says a biographer. In the course of the evening's entertainment a young lady attacked a very difficult song, which she gave with exaggerated expression and a great many blunders. Next to Hook sat an elderly lady, as decided an amateur in criticism as the songstress was in singing, overflowing with gushing ignorance and sparkling superlatives.

"Oh, Mr. Hook," she murmured, "don't you adore singing? It's so full of soul!"

"Well, madam," replied the famous English humorist, "for my part I think there is more of the flounder than the sole about it."

Looking Behind.

In one of the barrack rooms in Aldershot a soldier, not having much time to dress for guard, had cleaned his boots very well in front, but hardly at all behind. One of his chums, noticing this, said, "Why don't you clean the back of your boots, Ben?"

"Oh," said Ben, clapping on his helmet and hurrying out to the parade ground, "a good soldier never looks behind!"

In consequence the adjutant awarded Ben three extra parades, and a few days after his chum, seeing a great difference in his boots, remarked:

"I thought a good soldier never looked behind, Ben?"

"No," said Ben, "but the blooming adjutant does."

Collecting a Chinese Debt.

A shopkeeper named Chan a Canton sued his debtors, Chow and others, at the mandarin yamen for a debt of a few thousand dollars. Palm oil reached the mandarin, and the plaintiff not only lost his case, but had to pay the defendants $1,500. He determined not to pay. What did the defendants do? They hired and sent about a dozen women, old and young, to his shop to eat and sleep there, of course at the expense of the plaintiff. After standing this for a day or two the plaintiff hired six or seven lepers to stay in his shop. The women cleared off then.—Hongkong Press.

An Unanswerable Argument.

The superintendent of the Indian school at Chamberlain, S. D., nodded toward a prim, grave little girl. "Sometimes," he said, "the arguments of children are unanswerable. You see that little girl with straight black hair tied with a red ribbon? Well, her name is Arrow. She is a chief's daughter. Her father and mother are quite civilized, and she is being brought up in a household as civilized as a Bostonian's. In argument it is sometimes impossible to get the better of her. She said to her mother one day:

"I wish I had a new doll."
"But your old doll," her mother answered, "is as good as ever."
"So am I as good as ever," little Arrow retorted, "but the doctor brought you a new baby."

WEATHER SIGNS.

Things That Are Said to Foretell Sunshine or Storm.

If it clears off in the night, look for rain the next day. If smoke from the chimney settles instead of rising, there is a storm at hand. When sound travels a long distance there is also a storm near. Never expect much storm in the old of the moon. The absence of dew and unusually heavy dew are alike forerunners of rain. Not much frost need be expected in the light of the moon.

An owl hooting in the hollow is a sign of a cold storm; on the hill it foretells a thaw. If the hornets build low, the winter will be hard. When leaves fall early the winter will be long. When snow falls on a hard road it will not last long. The last spring snowstorm never comes until after the "sugar snow," which may be recognized by coming in unusually large flakes and lasting only a few minutes. If the hog's milt is found big at the front the first part of winter will be most severe. If the reverse is true we may look for hard weather in February and March. Bright "northern lights" bring severe cold. Sun dogs indicate a bad storm.

Distant sound heard distinctly forebodes no good weather. If the sun "draws up water" it will rain. The pitcher sweating and the tea kettle boiling dry also indicate rain. Cobwebs thickly spread upon the grass are an indication of fair weather. Animal life seems, according to the popular notion, to have peculiar warnings regarding the weather changes. Some of these are explainable by natural causes. It is a fact recognized by all intelligent stockmen that cattle have an intimation of an approaching storm some hours before it is visible to the human eye. There is certain restlessness which the cowboy has learned to interpret at once.

When you see a big pasturing in the field build for itself a nest you may look for a storm. Chickens take extra pains in oiling their feathers just before a rain. Peafowls send forth their shrill cries as a warning, and when the quail cries "more wet" from the meadow the farmer works briskly to get his hay under shelter.—Putnam's Magazine.

Laconic Men.

Von Moltke, Germany's great soldier, was most laconic. His intimates knew almost to a word in what language the toasts allotted to him would be proposed. The health of his royal master would be submitted in four words or twice as many, because, as he reasoned, his hearers knew as much about the sovereign as he did. There was once a bet over a toast which he was to propose. The man who made it wagered that Von Moltke would discharge his task in eight words or, at the outside, nine. He lost. The old soldier tacked on the word "gentlemen" at the end of his sentence, and that made ten.

Lord Dalhousie was another laconic man. His note to his secretary sent one midnight out in India serves for example, "If you are up and have your breeches on, come here; if not, come without them."

One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. Somebody wants to know what The Reflector will be working for next when the building and loan association gets organized. Never mind about that now. Lets get the building and loan association on wheels and we will not be long finding something else the town needs.

The building and loan association is coming, and those who contemplate building had as well be looking after the purchase of a lot. Lots can be bought cheaper now than a year hence. There is no probability that property in Greenville will ever be any cheaper than at present.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Clansman," and all other plays representing the white and black races in conflict are hereafter barred by law in Kentucky. Governor Beckham has signed the bill making it unlawful to present anywhere in the State plays calculated to inspire race prejudice.

A building and loan association will create a desire for house owning by giving the opportunity to secure a home on easy weekly payments. This desire will make business for the man who has lots to sell, business for the man who sells building material, business for the man who sells house furnishings, business for the man who sells food and clothing for the family, in fact business for everybody who is in business. Hence everybody should be interested in the building and loan association that Greenville will soon organize. Come to The Reflector office and enroll your name for some shares.

Most towns wink at the houses of ill fame, claiming that they are a necessary evil, but if this is the case why not be honest about it and repeal all laws aimed at their suppression.—Durham Sun.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 23, 1906. —The war department has just delivered itself of a long announcement anent the Mt. Dajo fight or massacre, whichever one chooses to call it in the Philippines. It is not written by any of the officers who were on the spot at the time of the fight but was prepared at the cabled suggestion of Gen. Wood by Maj. Scott of the 14th cavalry, one time governor of Jolo and now on duty in Washington. It is not pretended that the report throws any light on the real action at Mt. Dajo, but it described conditions previous to the fight and points out by inference that no matter what happened to the Moros who were the victims of the battle that they had earned all that was coming to them. It is a remarkable political document from the fact that it is an apology in advance for the action of Gen. Wood who is naturally the darling of the administration.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon is out with a boom for the Presidency. This is no great wonder to those who know the versatility and the ambition of the present speaker. The boom is a parlor growth as it were and has not yet gotten extensively into print. But the fact that it is more talked than printed makes it all the more significant at this stage of the game.

It appears from a report of the Interstate Commerce Commission this week that there is more trouble on the railroad horizon. The commission set for hearing in New York of March 23, a complaint affecting a number of the big eastern roads. It is that they have been granting rebates to favored shippers under a new guise. They have been billing freight carried at a lower valuation than the merchandise warranted and thus in effect paying a rebate to the shippers while nominally sticking to the published schedule. This is a new dodge in the railway world, but it is of course not unexpected.

Little attention need be paid to the rumors that the Supreme Court intends to proceed against the parties who lynched the negro Ed. Johnson at Chattanooga recently, the negro was nominally under the protection of the Supreme Court, a stay of execution having been granted when the citizens became impatient at the delay and took the law into their own hands. Of course the members of the Supreme Court were very indignant and there was talk of direct proceedings for the contempt of court. But it is said now that while the Department of Justice has been directed to inquire into the case, it will be left to the local courts to punish the perpetrators of the lynching if they can.

A report just issued shows that it requires 51,146 employes and about $200,000,000 a year to attend to the business of the city of New York. Of the employes, 11,000 are in the employ of the board of education and 40,146 in the other departments. They divide in salaries about $70,000,000 per year. The remainder of the money spent by the city goes for public improvements, the maintenance and construction of buildings, the purchase of land, and the payment of interest on the bonded debt. New York is indeed a great city—greater by far than a number of the States of the Union.—Charlotte Observer.

THE PORTLAND VASE.

A Masterpiece That Long Puzzled Antiquarians of Europe.

The workmanship of the Portland vase and the material of which it is composed long exercised the ingenuity of some of the greatest antiquarians in Europe. Brevai believed it to be chalcedony; Bartoli, Montfaucon and others, sardonyx; Count Fezi, amethyst; De la Chausse and Misson, agate, while Venuti decided that it was paste. Wedgwood's examination of the vase proved the last opinion to be the correct one. A layer of white glass had been fused on a dark blue body, the exquisite figures being afterward produced in this layer by cutting down to the blue by the gem engraver, after the manner of real cameos. Wedgwood also discovered that the vase had at some time been broken and repaired. It was his opinion that the head which formed the bottom of the vase was a piece of some other work that had been cut down and inserted in the place of the original bottom, which had probably been destroyed at the time the vase itself was broken.

By the autumn of 1789 Wedgwood, after many failures, had succeeded in his arduous undertaking, and the first perfect copy, made in the famous jasper ware, was finished. Several more copies were subsequently made, though the exact number does not seem at all certain. These were of various degrees of perfection and varied in size and color. Originally sold at from 30 to 50 guineas each, according to excellence of finish, time has, of course, considerably enhanced their value, and some years ago, at the sale of the Martineau collection, one sold for £294.

In 1810 the Duke of Portland placed the vase in the British museum, where some thirty-five years afterward it was wantonly broken to atoms by a drunken visitor. After being skillfully repaired it was placed for additional safety with the gems.

Authorities are by no means agreed as to the subject of the bas-relief, though various explanations have been offered. According to the museum catalogue, the composition represents on the obverse Thetis consoling to be the bride of Peleus in the presence of Poseidon and Eros; on the reverse, Peleus and Thetis on Mount Pelion, and on the bottom of the vase (now detached) a youthful bust of Paris.

Experimenting.

"That face would stop a clock," said a West Philadelphia father, glancing from a window at an unbecoming pedestrian.

"Why, papa?" asked the little curly-headed three-year-old on his knee, craning his neck to catch a glimpse.

"Because it is so ugly, boy," answered the father absently.

It was that evening that the father came downstairs after dressing for dinner to find his boy standing at tiptoe on a hall chair staring up at the big round face of the grandfather clock and giving the most hideous twists to his pretty baby face.

"What in the world are you doing, boy?" asked the surprised father.

"Trying to stop the clock, papa," was the surprising answer.—Philadelphia Record.

Calamitous.

One day a Dutchman, in his shirt sleeves, was shaving himself before the glass. His hand trembled so that he cut off the tip of his nose. The pain caused him to drop his razor, which fell on his foot and cut off a portion of his big toe. He promptly picked up the two fragments, applied them, still warm, to the open sores and bound them up. A fortnight later on removing the bandages he discovered, to his horror, that he had made a mistake. He had put the toe in the place of his nose, and vice versa. Now when he wants to scratch his nose he is obliged to take off his boot.—From the German.

He Knew.

"Now, children," said the teacher after she had finished explaining measurement, inches, feet and so forth, "can any of you tell me what there is that can be bought by the foot?"

The inevitable Johnny described a few planetary orbits in the air with his hand and, given an opportunity to distinguish himself by being the first to answer, he jumped out of his seat and grinned:

"Stockings."

IMMENSITY OF THE HEAVENS

A Peer Into Space That Dazzles the Imagination.

If our sun were removed to the Pleiades it would hardly be visible in an opera glass, with which nearly 100 stars can be seen in the cluster. Sixty or seventy Pleiades surpass our sun in brilliancy, Aleyone being 1,000 times more brilliant, Electra nearly 500 times and Maia nearly 400. "Sirius itself takes a subordinate rank when compared with the five most brilliant members of a group, the real magnificence of which we can thus in some degree apprehend." If we seek to know the dimensions, not of the individual stars, but of the cluster itself, we are met with many difficulties, but on the assumption that it is approximately spherical in shape we can calculate its diameter to be over 10,000,000,000 miles, so that light would take seven years to pass from one extreme to the other. If we think of the dimensions of our solar system by themselves or in relation to terrestrial matters they appear stupendously enormous.

Neptune, the most distant known member, has an orbit over 5,000,000,000 miles across—a distance that a ray of light would travel in seven and a half hours—but the solar system is to the Pleiades but as a Lilliputian to a Brobdingnagian—is but as a microbe to a mountain, for a sphere the size of the solar system would, if it were spherical and its diameter that of the orbit of Neptune, be relatively so minute that it could be contained more than 400,000,000,000 times in a sphere the size of the Pleiades. In other words, the limits of the Pleiades could contain 150 solar systems as many times over as there are miles between Neptune and the sun.

It must not be forgotten that, although there are 2,300 stars in the cluster, yet with such dimensions for the entire group vast distances must separate the stars from one another. In fact, 2,300 spheres, each with a diameter of 3,000,000,000 miles, could be contained in the limits assigned to the group, and, assuming equal distribution of the stars in the group, each would be at the center of a sphere 3,000,000,000 miles across, and therefore a light journey of 187 days from its nearest neighbor.

Where Fat Is Beauty.

Of the elevating influence of women in the American sense Morocco knows nothing, according to Budget Meakin, author of "Life In Morocco." There they are, in fact, so many goods and chattels. That a woman should be fat and comely is the highest thought a Moor has on the position of women. If a girl is to be married and is thought to be too thin, she is put through a course of "stuffing," just as if she were a turkey meant for the Christmas market. "This consists of swallowing after each full meal a few small sausage shaped boluses of flour, honey and butter, flavored with aniseed or something similar. A few months of this treatment give a marvelous rotundity to the figure, thus greatly increasing her charms to the native eye."

Truly Rural.

The seventeen-year-old daughter of a certain Wall street man recently visited for the first time the fine farm in Dutchess county for the past year owned by her father. The girl immediately became greatly interested in the prize cattle that are the special pride of her parent, and she asked many questions relative to their breeding, etc.

One evening just at dusk as the girl was standing on the veranda of the farmhouse talking to the manager there came the low, mournful note of a cow.

"Just listen to that poor cow," said the girl to the manager, "mewing for her colt."—Harper's, Weekly.

Not So Silly.

Wary from the chase, the ostrich of the desert had stuck his head in the sand.

"You silly bird," said the hunter, coming up. "Do you imagine I can't see you?"

"You mistake my purpose," replied the ostrich, with dignity. "Of course you can see me, but you miserable, feather stealing, egg hunting land pirate, I thus relieve myself of the necessity of seeing you."

Conscious that he had the better of the argument, the ostrich yielded $40 worth of plumes without a murmur.—Philadelphia Ledger.

She Was Worth More.

In the midst of their busy and troublous experience, where pathos, tears, perplexity and distraction confront them in ever changing combinations, there sometimes comes a gleam of fun to the attorneys of the New York Legal Aid society. In their east side branch office not long ago they were investigating a claim preferred by a poor woman against an express company for damages to her furniture. By the rule of the society no applicant who can be rated as worth at least $100 is entitled to sue through them as a poor person, and the woman was being questioned on the point. She could not speak English, and her husband acted as interpreter.

"Is your wife worth $100?" the attorney asked him.

The man stared blankly for a moment of painful doubt. He thought it was an offer to buy his wife. Doubling up his fists pugnaciously, he shouted:

"Vas! Iss dis what you do? I wouldn't change her for $10,000!"

The Strange Kiwi.

In New Zealand is found the kiwi, a strange bird of the ostrich family. Ostriches have two toes, but the extinct moas had three toes, so also have the existing emus, cassowaries and rheas, or South American ostrich.

The kiwi, however, differs from the other struthious birds in having four toes. Further, the kiwi cannot be said to be quite ostrich-like, for in size it is not larger than the ordinary barnyard fowl. It has a small head, with a large and muscular neck and a long, slender bill, with the distinguishing feature that the nostrils are placed close to its tip. The legs are short, but the muscles on the thighs are well developed, and the feet are strong and powerful and provided with sharp claws.

The kiwi is a bird devoid of any external trace of wings, and there is no trace of tail visible, while it is covered with long, narrow, hairlike feathers, and on the fore part of the head and sides of the face are straggling hairlike feelers. — Chicago Chronicle.

Acquiring Knowledge.

"Papa, what is an old saw—not the saw you saw with, but the kind this paper speaks about?"

"What old saw does the paper speak about?"

"That's what I want to know. It says, 'Everybody has heard the old saw, "Never look a gift horse in the mouth." I want to know where the saw comes in.'"

"Well, there's your old saw. An old saw is an old proverb."

"Why shouldn't you look a gift horse in the mouth?"

"Because—because it's in bad taste. It's ungrateful and all that sort of thing."

"All what sort of thing?"

"Why, to look a horse in the mouth that has been given to you shows that—it shows that you are not thinking of the giver, but of the value of the gift."

"What would anybody want to look a horse in the mouth for?"

"To tell how old it is."

(After a pause.) "Papa, can you tell how old a saw is by looking at its teeth?"

CASSEL'S ART COLLECTION.

Purchased Mainly With Gold Paid For Hessians Sent to America.

Cassel is perhaps the only town in Germany with a distinctly American chapter in its history, and yet it is seldom visited by Americans.

Once upon a time there lived in Cassel the Landgrave Frederick II. of Hesse. He seemed to have been a very amiable sort of prince, with a level, practical head on his shoulders. He loved his capital city, lying in the mountain cradled plain, and he could look out of his palace windows any fine morning over the waters of the Fulda, which wound its lazy thread under the city walls. He divided his time between improving the town and amusing himself. In Cassel broad squares were laid out, streets cut and buildings erected, while up on the hills at the castle of Wilhelmshöhe the landgrave held court, where ladies fair and gallants bold united to do him honor.

So all went merry as a marriage bell until the year of our Lord 1776. Then from over the seas came news of wars and rumors of wars. The American colonists, impudent rascals, had revolted against the king of England, and the landgrave pricked up his ears. At last one fine day Frederick II. in Cassel received a communication from George III. in England, and the result was that several thousand loyal Hessians were hurried off to aid the British in America, and the landgrave received a neat little consideration in the shape of several million dollars. And then—

Many of these Hessians made the long voyage only to be surprised one night as they lay on the banks of the Delaware and taken prisoners by a colonial general named George Washington, and Cassel became the owner of an art collection which, though small, is one of the finest in Europe, and which was purchased mainly with British gold paid as hire for the Hessian soldiers sent to America.—Grace S. H. Tytus in St. Nicholas.

Entertaining Sister's Beau.

While the swain was waiting in the parlor for his inamorata that lady's younger sister ventured into the room to entertain the caller.

"Sister 'll be down soon, Mr. Swilligin," she said. "Say, can you tell me when a door is not a door?"

The young man looked surprised at the ancient conundrum.

"That's a chestnut," he said. "A door is not a door when it is a jar or a jam."

"That's right," said the young sister gleefully. "Now, here's another: What makes more noise than a pig under?"

"Little girl," interrupted the young man somewhat testily, "Why are you asking me to guess those old gags?"

"Why, to entertain you till sister comes in. Isn't that the way Belle talks to you when she's here?"

"What makes you think so?" asked the young man.

"She told ma that you had proposed several times, but that she was going to keep you guessing every time you called."—New York Herald.

The Light of the Sun.

From a comparison of the relative intensity of solar, lunar and artificial light, as determined by Professors Euler and Wollaston, it appears that the rays of the sun have an illuminating power that is wonderful in the extreme. According to their deductions, the illuminating power of the "great day star" is equal to that of 14,000 candles at a distance of one foot, or of 3,500,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 candles at a distance of 95,000,000 miles. From the above figures it follows that the amount of light which flow from the solar orb could not be produced by the daily burning of 200 globes of tallow, equal to the earth in magnitude.

A Precaution.

A girl baby was brought to a Seattle clergyman, according to the Post-Intelligencer of that city, to be baptized. He asked the name of the baby.

"Dinah M.," the father responded. "But what does the M stand for?" asked the minister.

"Oh, if she turns out nice and sweet and handy about the house, like her mother, I shall call her Dinah May. But if she has a fiery temper and bombshell disposition, like mine, I shall call her Dinah Might."
