THE BIRD NEST LAW.

It is just as important for the officers of the law to protect bird nests and eggs in the spring and summer from the raids of the small boy, as it is for the game wardens to protect birds during the closed season. The North Carolina law protecting bird nests is very plain and should be brought to the attention of all youths, and men, too, for that matter. It provides that if any person shall take or needlessly destroy the nests or eggs of any wild birds, except those of the English or European house-sparrow, owls, hawks, crows, black-birds, jackdaws and ricebirds, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined one dollar for each nest or egg destroyed or taken, or be imprisoned not less than five nor more than ten days for each offense.

In copying this from The Asheville Citizen, we endorse the sentiment of that paper that "bird life is one of the greatest charms which this old earth possesses. Were it not for the songs of the little feathered foresters that life would be dreary indeed. Yet such conditions are likely to come to pass in the distant future, unless some stop is put to the wholesale slaughter of young birds and the destruction of bird's eggs.—Charlotte Chronicle.

FIRST ROUTE GETS KNIFE

The work of breaking down the rural delivery service in North Carolina has begun. The route from Rocky Hook, Chowan county, is to be reduced to a thrice weekly basis. The first in the State to meet the displeasure of the postoffice department officials. Representative Small has been notified of the decision and the reason assigned for decreasing the service to an every-other-day basis is that the patrons do not receive 2,000 packages, the minimum number fixed by the postoffice department at the requisite for a daily service. Mr. Small has endeavored to secure a readjustment of the route so as to maintain the daily service, but his efforts have not yet met with success.

The matter of discontinuing or establishing routes is entirely within the power of the post-office department as there is no statute defining conditions for the establishment. Mr. Small is thinking of introducing a bill for the purpose of limiting the powers of the department in this respect.—T. J. Pence in News and Observer.

At Quinerly.

There will be an all day picnic at the closing of Quinerly school, near Grifton tomorrow Thursday. Prof. J. B. Carlyle, of Wake Forest College, and Hon. L. I. Moore, of Greenville, will both be present and deliver addresses. It is going to be a great day and everybody is invited.

Feels like "the good old summer time," but the cool spell in May is yet to come.

GOV AYCOCK IN NOT A CANDIDATE FOR U. S. SENATE.

That the persistent rumors that Governor Aycock is a candidate for United States Senator, against Senator Simmons, may be set at rest the following statement from the ex-governor himself is published and may prove of interest to those who would have it that he was out after Senator Simmons' scalp:

In response to an inquiry bearing upon the subject Governor Aycock said to a newspaper correspondent at Goldsboro: "No, I am no candidate, and whenever in the past I have wanted a public position I have never hesitated to announce the fact. If I were a candidate for the United States Senate or intended to be I should long since have notified my friends of my purpose. I am out of politics, and if I ever return to it my friends shall know at once."

THE MEETING.

A Great Sermon Tuesday Night by the Gifted Dr. Beaman.

An inspiring song and prayer services was held in the Methodist church Tuesday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. After which Dr. Beaman preached a great sermon. His text was selected from the Acts of the Apostles, 1st chapter 6th 8th verses.

He said the people to whom the words of the text were addressed composed the entire church of Christ in the world at that time, about one hundred and twenty souls. This was indeed a small beginning, but baptised with the Spirit of power they went forth with an unction and power that nothing could resist, until the mighty Empire of Rome was compelled to capitulate at the altar of God.

The first great blunder the church made was when it compromised itself by choosing Constantine as head and leader. He was not chosen because of his piety, for he was not pious. When the church thus turned from the Divine to the human its real power departed, and a long, dark night settled down upon it and reined there for more than a thousand years. He said that no individual or church could witness for Christ without the "Tongue of Flames." One of the saddest sights in this world is to see an individual trying to lead a Christian life without Christ in the soul. In all cases such a task is impossible. Measured from a Scriptural view point it was one of the greatest sermons this writer has ever heard.

At 10 o'clock this morning Dr. Beaman preached again with great power and unction on Psalms 95: 1-2. He said that Methodists used to sing and testify and back of their singing and testifying was the life hid with Christ in God. Now we have become still, silent, cold, formal, and back of all this stillness and coldness is spiritual death. In many cases all go to church for entertainment and for show rather than to sing and praise and worship. But you say things have changed. Yes, some things have, but there are some things that never change. God does not change. Christ does not change. The Holy Ghost does not change, and the needs of the soul never change.

The discourse was exceedingly helpful and instructive and a gracious feeling pervaded the congregation.

Services tonight at 8 o'clock. People of Greenville are cordially invited to attend.

PERSONAL MENTION

Of Those Going and Coming

S. T. White went to Raleigh Tuesday evening.

Rev. E. D. Viche returned from Tarboro Tuesday evening.

Ex-Gov. Aycock, of Goldsboro, who had been here attending court, left this morning.

F. M. Hornaday returned from Rocky Mount Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ola Forbes left this morning for Norfolk, to visit relatives.

Mrs. Terrell, of Tarboro, and Mrs. Cook, of Franklinton, who had been visiting their brother, C. C. Vines, left Tuesday evening for their homes.

It brings regret to his many friends that ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis has been in feeble health and confined to his home for several days.

J. F. Oper, representing the Gem Photo Co., was in town today making arrangements to open business in the telephone building May 10th. Mr. Oper went to Kinston on evening train.

END OF THE CENTURY CLUB.

Reported for Reflector.

On Tuesday afternoon, May 1st, the End of the Century Club and a large number of friends were delightfully entertained by Mrs. E. B. Ficklen at her home on Fifth street. This beautiful home was decorated with spring flowers, adding to the daintiness of the scene.

The lovely young hostess, one of Greenville's favorites, received the guests with gracious cordiality and manner. The house was soon resonant with merry feminine voices attesting to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The president, Mrs. Cotten, presided after an absence of several weeks.

During the business session there was some discussion of the public library, and of further extension of the club in other directions.

There being no literary program for the afternoon the guests and members were entertained by a literary contest, the prize won by Miss Lollie White was one of Christy's pictures, which she then presented to Miss Mary Gottlieb, of Baltimore.

After enjoying the delightful hospitality of the hostess the club adjourned to meet again May the 15th with Mrs. W. A. Bowen.

Among the out of town guests enjoying this happy occasion were Miss Lois Long, of Statesville, Miss Mary Gottlieb, of Baltimore and Miss Sallie Cotten, of Cottondale.

Stores Closing.

The dry goods and hardware stores began closing early Tuesday night. We heard a grocer remark that he wished these in his line would follow suit. The way to do this is to make a start.

The first number of Plantation Life, the monthly agricultural journal to be published here, will make its appearance this week.

THE SMILE MUSCLES.

A Keyboard on Which We Play With More or Less Skill.

Smiling has been studied from a physical standpoint by George Dumas, a French physiologist, and his conclusions on why we smile are published in the Literary Digest, translated and condensed from the Revue Scientifique. M. Dumas produced artificial smiles by applying an electric current to the nerves under the lobe of the ear.

"The muscles concerned in smiling were made to contract, and the opposing muscles remained quiescent, but the action of the members of the smiling group was unequal, so that most of the 'electric smiles' that the experimenter obtained seemed to indicate grief rather than joy, particularly since the contraction around the eye exceeded that around the mouth. Nevertheless he considers the result a triumph for his theory and exhibits with pride a photograph of a 'unilateral smile' caused by electric excitation of only one side of the face."

He says a smile may appear without any psychologic excitation and in itself has no expressive value. "And man," he says, "has formed the habit of associating the muscular sensations and the sight of these movements with an agreeable impression, so that he regards them as a sign expressive of this state of pleasure. To manifest it he has formed, by association, the habit of smiling and considering the smile of others as an evidence of their satisfaction. * * * We have learned to smile in different ways to indicate irony, indulgence, etc., and the accentuation of the movements of different muscles has assumed the same value as a shrug of the shoulders, the raising of the head or the pronunciation of certain syllables or words. It is thus that psychologic progress has made of the smile a keyboard on which we play with more or less skill."

"The oriental, especially the Japanese, always smiles out of politeness, even when he is sad, because it is a social fault to sadden a stranger. He has reached the maximum of self mastery and, in a sense, a superior state of psychologic progress and of civilization."

M. Dumas says animals do not smile with their faces because their facial muscles are not, as in man, the most mobile. Those of his tail are a dog's most mobile muscles, therefore "he smiles" by moving his tail, and this movement has a tendency, even in his case, to become a real gesture. Cats also smile with the tail and perhaps also birds. The erectile muscles of the feathers and tail are, with the magpie for instance, real smiling muscles.

Irreparable.

"You don't eat cheese, Miss Benderby?" said the hostess.

"Oh, no," replied the smiling young woman. "I'm a vegetarian."

There was an embarrassing silence for a moment, and she added somewhat hastily:

"I mean, of course, that cheese is made from milk, and milk, you know, is an animal product."

"What else did you suppose I thought you meant, Miss Benderby?" freezingly asked the hostess.

AROUND THE WORLD ON FOOT

Nicholas Georgis is a Roumanian traveler now in Africa, who is going around the world on foot. He carries a book signed by the various dignitaries of the places through which he has passed, and among others are portions in Arabic, Greek, Abyssinian—one page written by the Emperor Menelik, with whom he dined—besides numerous European languages. The traveler made his way through the Sahara desert, carrying eighty pounds of water on his back, and when this was exhausted he had to exist for many days upon roots alone. On the Sudan-Abyssinian boundary he was pursued by three lions and kept up a tree for three days, while farther back, at Nhamdich, through mistaking the White and Blue Nile, he lost his way and was attacked by cannibal pygmies. In the Sudan he found the sun's heat so unbearable that he traveled only at night, while during the day he lay with his water bags in a pit.

Elevated Road Hangs in Air.

To relieve congested traffic conditions in Berlin it is proposed to erect a monorail suspended electric railway, such as has been for some time in successful operation between Eberfeld and Barmen, Germany, writes Dr. Alfred Gradenwitz in Technical World Magazine. The passenger cars in this system hang down from a single overhead rail and have no support whatever underneath. Advantages of the system are its perfect safety, the fact that the superstructure is comparatively simple and does not shut out the light and air, as does an ordinary elevated structure, and the further fact that in operation the monorail cars are almost completely noiseless. It seems probable that the monorail suspended system will be adopted in the German capital.

"What did you think of him?" asked Chief Porter as they were walking through the White House grounds.

There was no response for a few moments. Then one of the visiting chiefs said: "I was disappointed. I expected to see a fine looking man like Colonel Zeveley."—New York World.

man ought to be selected who is "retained," etc., by a railroad, or trust, insurance company or any other interest that the Legislators need to be regulated.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Another matter to be in consideration is that lawyers are so easily "retained" after they are elected.

Nashville, Tenn., is one of the few places that have no whiskey law, or rather where the saloons are permitted to stay open day and night and where the saloon-keepers do not require a front door key. A movement has been started to bring about a closing from midnight to 4 a. m., and it is being vigorously fought by the saloon interests. All over the country the sentiment for greater restrictions upon the whiskey traffic is growing and everywhere the whiskey men put up a fight against reasonable regulations, they lose. The Nashville saloon keepers do not seem to be any wiser than those in some other towns.—Charlotte Chronicle.

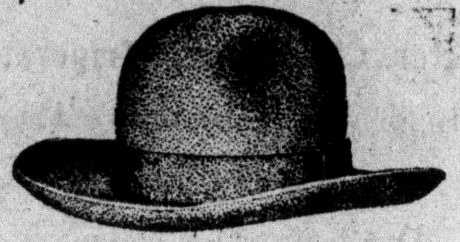

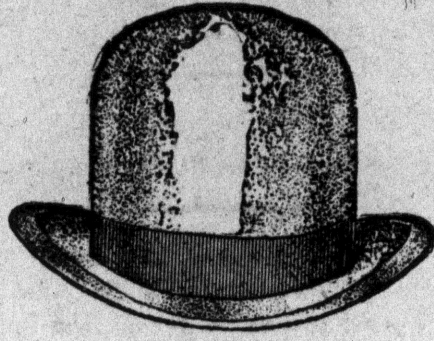

Almost everywhere there is a growing sentiment against whiskey, and we hope it will continue until the whole business—manufacture and sale—is wiped out of existence. Whiskey is the greatest evil of the country. It causes more poverty, more suffering, more crime than any other agency. Examine the records of any criminal court and a great majority of the cases there can be traced to whiskey. It fosters crime not only by its use but also in its traffic. Of course there are exceptions, but in most cases where a man is engaged in the manufacture or sale of whiskey, he will resort to almost anything to keep from being put out of it. And when it comes to the illegal traffic of it, nothing so quickly robs a man of every vestige of character and principle. It is horrible to think how low the whiskey business can drag man.

Joseph H. Appel, advertising manager for John Wanamaker's Philadelphia store, in a speech at an advertising club meeting in New York the other night, said: "Good advertising is merely giving proper information to the public about the goods that a store has to sell—information that will enable the public to buy intelligently." These are the words of a man who "does both act and know" and hence should have weight. They give the whole secret of advertising. An advertisement is a bit of information. It tells the reader facts that he or she does not or may not know. When a merchant, through an ad has told of what he has to offer and has given the price and a good reason for the assertion that it is a low price, in case he so asserts he has covered the ground pretty thoroughly. And the reader, too, should remember that the ads. in a paper are information about the stores. Look at the ads. and you will know what is inside the stores.—Greensboro Telegram.

LOCAL ITEMS.

RACES AT THE RINK.

Friday night at Center Brick skating rink there will be two races, one for boys under 14, and one for all above that age. Prizes for the winners. Admission 10 cents to all, no extra charge for skating.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

OAKLEY, N. C., May 1, 1906.
G. S. Whitfield went to Tarboro Sunday.

Mrs. W. J. Madry and children, of Kingsboro, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Mabel Highsmith, near here.

Quite a large crowd attended the meeting at Oak Grove Sunday. Henry King, of Greenville, was in our town Saturday.

Miss Lannie Moore, of Greenville, came up Saturday to attend the union.

Miss Annie Grady, of Mt. Olive, and Miss May Hines, of Dudley, spent a week with Mrs. J. E. Hines and returned home Sunday. They came up to be present at the Williams-Corey wedding.

Miss Emily Lottin, of Grifton, spent Wednesday with little Miss Irma Hines.

Mrs. Julia Roberson, of Robersonville, is visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. J. O. Williams.

Good many our people are attending court this week.

WILLIAMS COREY.

Last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Gray Corey, one mile from here at 5.30 o'clock, his daughter, Miss Ludie Lillian, was married to Mr. James Oscar Williams, of this place. The beautiful ceremony was performed by Elder M. T. Lawrence. The attendants were: David Hinchurst with Miss Reber Corey, W. H. Highsmith with Miss Lizzie Mooring, Ollen Cobb with Miss Lula Roberson, J. R. Jenkins with Miss Emma Roberson, E. S. Mizell with Miss Minnie Whitehurst, G. S. Whitfield with Miss Pearl Jenkins. There was a large crowd present. After the marriage, the bride and groom with their many friends and relatives repaired to the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. S. H. Williams, where a beautiful supper awaited them.

The bride was attired in a lovely costume of white silk accented with plaid. The groom wore a jet black suit. They were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents.

Please Take Notice.

As this is campaign year and the time drawing near for candidates for the various offices to be coming from under cover, The Reflector wishes to give notice that hereafter a small charge will be made for all announcements of candidates, either by themselves or by their friends through communications. It is a heavy tax on newspapers to do all such work free, and the candidates have no right to expect it, but should be willing to pay for what they get just like other advertisers. Hereafter all such announcements or communications advocating any man for office will be charged for at the rate of one-half cent for each word. If you want such communications printed write them brief, count the words and send the money along with them.

For a number of years Georgia has led in the production of peaches for the Eastern market. The State has nearly eight million trees.

No "Breaking In"

ONE characteristic of the "Queen Quality" Custom Made shoe is its flexible fit. Too many shoes are made of wood-grain leather which they are made to conform to the foot. They have to be "broken in." What a shoe is broken to conform to the foot, the original lines must be changed. The shoe then becomes lumpy and shapeless. "Queen Quality" shoes are made of a material that yields to the foot as it wears. The shoe yields to the foot as it wears. We have over fifty styles of these superior shoes to show you.

Offer to Advance Frisco $100,000,000.
San Francisco, May 1.—The first definite proposition for furnishing money in large scale to San Francisco for the purpose of rebuilding some of the burned sections was made public today when it was announced that a syndicate of New York capitalists had agreed to advance one hundred million dollars. The news came from the council of the Board of Finance from United States Senator Newlands, who had a large interest in the burned Palace Hotel. Senator Newlands stated that he had submitted the plan to New York financiers and that they had virtually consented to supply the money in a bond and mortgage basis. The names of the New York people are not given. The offer is under discussion by the local finance committee.

28 Photographs 25cts.

Coming May 10th, for only 4 weeks. To secure 28 photos for 25c. of different positions, Gem Photo Co., new telephone bldg. Back of postoffice. 25th St. S.W.

Occasional showers, but not yet enough to lay the dust or prepare the ground for setting tobacco plants.

A rubber sponge or brush is excellent for cleansing the skin.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Appropriate Garnishes For Various Fish and Meat Dishes.

Slices of lemon for fish and raw oysters; also for roast veal and calf's head.

Red beets cut in ornamental shapes for cold meat and boiled beef.

Currant jelly for game and also for custards and bread puddings.

Fennel for mackerel and salmon, whether fresh or pickled.

Carrots cut into ornamental forms for boiled beef, either hot or cold.

Use the tiny sprigs of celery tops for salads and cold meats.

Sliced eggs, showing both the white and yellow parts, are nice for chicken salad.

Spots of black pepper alternating with red on the fat side of the boiled ham, which should be uppermost.

Parsley is the garnish most universally used for all kinds of cold meats, fish, cheese, etc.

Horseradish for roast beef and for fish in general. When used for fish slices of lemon alternate with the little heaps of horseradish.

Washing Woolens.

To wash blankets so they will retain their first freshness use soft water and plenty of it. Make a strong suds of soap, and in it immerse the blankets, previously shaken free of dust and lint. Never rub the soap directly on the articles. Wash with the hands. Never rub on a board. Rinse through several waters, having each hotter than the one which precedes it. This is the one great secret of the process. The heat expands the wool and keeps it soft. Shake out well, pulling the edges straight, and dry quickly. Wash all woolens the same way.

Souffle Potatoes.

For souffle potatoes boil six good sized potatoes in their skins, and when cooked peel and wash them quickly, and add one tablespoonful of butter and half a pint of cream, a teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of pepper. Beat until light and smooth. Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth and stir gently into the potatoes. Heap the mixture on greased paper, a spoonful at a time. Dust with grated cheese and bake a golden brown.

Toast Better Than Bread.

Toast is better as an article of diet than ordinary bread, says Health, for the simple reason that it is better cooked and therefore more easily digested. The toasting destroys the life of the yeast and eliminates some of the harmful products of yeast fermentation, and the action of the heart converts the starch into a more digestible substance.

NO ENGLISH BILLIONAIRES.

In Great Britain the Sum is Too Vast For Reckoning.

"If you had a billion dollars," began Judson.

"I haven't that much about my clothes," returned Wagstaff, "but if you want it only for a month or so perhaps?"

"Oh, quit your guff," said Judson severely, "and learn something. If you had a billion dollars and took it to England with you, how much money would you have over there?"

"Very little after paying the steward's fees and tips on board ship," admitted Wagstaff. But Judson went on with the cold, calm determination which characterizes a man who has just learned a new fact and is resolved at any cost to impart it to his friends.

"You would not have a billion when you struck British soil, though you had every dollar with which you left here, for in Great Britain a billion is a million millions, while in France and the United States it is only a thousand millions. It is possible for a man to be a billionaire in this country or France, but no one is ever likely to be a billionaire in Great Britain. The English use of the word is the older and more correct, and how we ever came to take the French style I don't know. I imagine it was because it was handy to have something to jump to after you said million. Anyway, nobody ever thought of talking billions in ordinary conversation until late in the sixteenth century. The term was known only to scientists and great mathematicians, and even the great philosopher, John Locke, speaks of the word as a 'novelty.'"

"People used to think and count in thousands then, but nowadays we are as familiar with millions as our ancestors were with hundreds and speak of billions as they used to speak of thousands, so much vaster has the world grown. I suppose in future years trillions and quadrillions, quintillions and sextillions will be as familiar in the mouths of men as millions and billions are now in ours. Yet, as a matter of fact, you know, there are comparatively few people who are able to grasp the meaning of the term 'million.' We use it every day, but not many minds form a clear idea of what a million of anything would be."—New York Press.

Wrong in His Head.

A Yorkshire mill worker charged with having set fire to a large hayrick was defended on the ground that he was not altogether responsible for his actions. One of the witnesses, a typical Yorkshire man, testified to the belief that the prisoner was "wrang in his heid."

"Can you mention any occasion on which the prisoner behaved in a manner to warrant your statement?" he was asked by the prosecuting counsel.

"Yes," answered the witness. "Ah mind once 'at he got hawf a crown too much for his wage, an'?"

"Well?" said counsel as the witness hesitated.

"He took it back to t' manager!" concluded the witness amidst a roar of laughter.

Something Wrong.

"My dear," said the trusting wife, "I don't think your rules of economy are any good."

"You don't?" asked the fond husband.

"No," she replied, bending anew over the column of figures in her beautifully bound account book. "You told me the way to save money was not to buy things; that thus we would save the amount the goods would have cost us. So I have been careful to set down the exact price of everything I have wanted to buy, but felt I could not afford. I find, in adding it up, it amounts to $524, but I only have $150 in cash on hand. There must be something wrong with your theory."

Suspicious.

"If you want to be liked in a newspaper office," said the man at the desk, "you must be careful to write only on one side of the paper."

The youth with a bunch of manuscript looked at him suspiciously and exclaimed:

"No, you don't. I may look young, but I can see through some things. You want me to write my poetry on one side of the paper so that you can turn it over and use the other side for your long winded articles about finance. It's an economical idea, but I'm not so foolish."—Washington Star.

The Higher Criticism.

Cyril Scott, who played at the Belasco theater recently in the "Prince Chap," tells of an old darkey down south who is inclined to doubt the Biblical account of Daniel in the lion's den.

"Does yo' mean tu tell me dat Daniel done jumped into dat den ob lions an' dey didn't eat him up?" he demanded of a colored preacher.

"Yas, indeedy," replied the parson.

"Dey mus' ha' been circus lions dat had been tamed."

"No, sah! De Bible says jus' de contrary."

"Whah does it say dat?"

"Don' hit say dat the miracle tuk place 750 B. C.?"

"Yas."

"Well, hain't B. C. befo' circuses? Huh, niggah!"—American Spectator.

The Careful Millionaire.

Lieutenant Bevan of the Drake described at a dinner in New York an English millionaire.

"This man," he said, "never earned a penny in his life. He never lacked a penny, yet he is as careful of every shilling as though it were his last.

"I once dined with him, and as it was raining when I came to go I hesitated a little while before the umbrella rack in the hall.

"I hate," I said, "to start out in this rain."

"Then I laid my hand on an umbrella.

"I don't like, either," I went on, "to borrow your umbrella."

"Oh, take it," he said heartily. "Take it, my dear fellow, and I'll keep this stick as security!"

Priest and Rabbi.

The friendship existing between Father Kelly and Rabbi Levi is proof against race and religion. Each is distinguished for his learning and eloquence and his will, and they delight in chaffing each other, so runs the story in Everybody's Magazine. They were seated opposite each other at a banquet where some delicious roast ham was served, and Father Kelly made comments on its flavor. Presently he leaned forward, and in a voice that carried far he addressed his friend:

"Rabbi Levi, when are you going to become liberal enough to eat ham?"

"At your wedding, Father Kelly," retorted the rabbi.

The Name "Porcelain."

In the natural progress of nations and the development of trade porcelain was brought from China to Europe, and various legends were current as to its origin. Magic properties were attributed to it—as, for instance, that a porcelain cup would immediately burst if poison were poured into it. It was said to be composed of plaster, eggs, the shells of "marine locusts" and the like, and this suggests the origin of the word "porcelain." The Portuguese word "porcella" means "little pig," and a certain shell, being shaped like a hog's back, was named porcelana. This shell was used to some extent in the arts by being carved into cameos and personal ornaments. These became porcelana wares, and when the new production became known its likeness to the shellwork was recognized. The new material thus acquired the French name "porcelaine," or, in English, "porcelain."

Alboni and Royalty.

Among the many anecdotes told of that famous Italian contralto, Mme. Alboni, is one which, reading like fiction, is nevertheless perfectly true. Many years ago at a state concert at Buckingham palace Mme. Alboni was commanded to appear. And appear she did and sang exquisitely. As she turned to go after her last aria she slipped her hand into her pocket and drew forth a pair of scissors, sharp and new. Bending down, she quickly snipped the rope which separated the artists from the audience. "I have done it," she whispered triumphantly to a friend and escaped as gracefully as might be. Mme. Alboni had republican tendencies.
