BETHEL GRADED SCHOOL.

Closes With Splendid Exercises and Fine Speeches.

Bethel has always had a reputation for its school closing exercises. It has worthily won this distinction and will never lose it as long as it continues to do what it did in the closing exercises which took place on last Wednesday evening, Thursday morning and afternoon, and Thursday evening. No better or more successful entertainment has ever been given in Pitt county. A large crowd was present at every exercise, and every one lavish in praise of what they saw and heard.

On Wednesday evening the smaller boys and girls rendered a program which gave every moment for two hours a joyous passing. Every child in every piece did beautifully and there were many happy hearts as they acquitted themselves so handsomely. The play by some of the larger boys and girls closing this exercise brought down the house. When the curtain dropped a large concourse of people wished that the entertainment could have been prolonged.

Thursday morning a disappointment was upon the town by the reception of a telegram from Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, who was to deliver the address saying that he was detained by a wreck upon the train and would not be able to fill his engagement. At once arrangements began to be made for an impromptu program for the morning. Prof. Ragsdale knows no such word as discouragement and it was not many minutes before every thing had been arranged. No one knew what was coming until the exercises began. After the telegram had been read Prof. Ragsdale introduced Prof. G. E. Lineberry, principal of the Winterville High school who spoke for twelve minutes as interestingly and easily as if he had been the expected speaker. Supt. Smith, of the Greenville graded school, followed with words that delighted those who heard him. Rev. J. E. Ayscue, of Greenville, was then presented to the audience and in that elegant way which he alone has so delighted and charmed the audience that they forgot Dr. Smith was to have been there. Prof. Ragsdale followed these speakers urging the people to go forward from year to year making greater progress as the years come and go. Bethel was charmed with the way this hour was filled.

In the afternoon occurred what has never been seen in Pitt county before. It was the graduation of a class in a public school. Three young ladies had completed the prescribed course in the institution and were entitled to diplomas. The young ladies were Misses Estelle Jones, Novella Bunting and Rosa Whitehurst. Each read a thesis and it was the unanimous opinion of those competent to judge that no three girls of the same age ever read better papers. A medal had been offered for the best thesis. A committee consisting Rev. J. E. Ayscue, Supt. Smith and W. L. Brown awarded the medal to Miss Estelle Jones. It was presented by Prof. G. E. Lineberry in an exceedingly happy manner, making a hit for him with the entire audience.

The diplomas were presented by Prof. W. H. Ragsdale in words that touched the great throng of people who had come out to witness the first graduating exercises that had ever occurred from a public school in the history of the country. No happier man was in that audience than he who was presenting the diplomas. The flowers received by the young ladies were beautiful and showed their popularity.

At night the exercises were a fitting climax to a great occasion. After one or two pieces of music and a beautiful flower drill two plays were given. Those taking part in these would have done credit to the "stage." They were as easy and as up-to-date in their rendering of the various characters as persons of a more advanced age could have been.

Bethel never had a greater occasion than these closing exercises. She never did herself better than at this time. No place in North Carolina is more hospitable than is Bethel. The large number of visitors present will all bear testimony to this.

Too much cannot be said in commendation of the teachers of this school to whom we are indebted for these delightful exercises.

The following persons constitute this strong faculty: Prof. J. C. Carson, H. McDairmud, Misses Blanche Mayo, Bertha Waldrop, Barbara Manning and the music teacher, Miss Willis. Special mention should be made of the music interspersed through the entire program.

Misses Effie Grimes and Bertha Waldrop added to the pleasure of the entertainment by two vocal duets.

There are several pieces and all of the pupils that deserve to be specially referred to but time and space forbid. Taken all and all it was a great occasion and will long be remembered by more than one person.

GREAT COUNCIL OF RED MEN

Officers Elected. Contribution Will be Made to the Cornelius Harnett Monument.

Raleigh, N. C., May 3.—The great council of Red Men today elected the following officers: F. M. Hodges, great prophet; W. B. Taylor, great sagem; E. A. Ebert, great senior sagemore; Joseph E. Pogue, great Junior sagemore; E. P. H. Strunck, great keeper of wampum; F. M. Hodges and W. D. Goodwin, representatives; W. Ben Goodwin, great chief of records; Mr. Goodwin's salary was increased so that he can devote all his time to the work of the order. Money was ordered to be raised for the San Francisco sufferers. An application from the Colonial Dames was received asking for funds for the monument for Cornelius Harnett who it is stated was the first great sagem of this order. A contribution will be made in response to this request. Official announcement was made that the next session, that of 1907, would be held at Greensboro.

THE MEETING.

Another Great Sermon by Dr. Beaman.

Reported for Reflector.

The song service at the Methodist church last night, which began at 8 o'clock and lasted for half an hour, was both enjoyable and helpful. A large number are attending these services and much good is being accomplished.

At 8 o'clock Dr. Beaman took his text from St. Luke, 19:10, "For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Dr. Beaman said in part that these words give us the whole program of Jesus Christ. They are the statement of his mission in all its breadth, sweep and comprehension. Christ came only to seek and to save. This is the one thought, purpose, and passion. His life was a life absolutely under the passion of salvation—a life reaching out with a grasp of infinite love.

We were lost and we are still lost. That is the most tragic fact in this world's history. And it is the last fact that human society is willing to accept with all that it involves and carries with it. Human society will admit everything else but its utter lostness, but it challenges that everytime. And the human soul never rises out of the hell of sin until it admits this fact. If God could get you to admit the fact of the utter lostness of Greenville's unsaved society without compromise and excuse out of that admission would come a protest or a bottomless hell. But it is the delusion of sin to temporarily satisfy that this somehow is an exaggeration; a misstatement of fact, and that human society does not reel and stagger upon the brink of hell, and I would emphasize this fact. This is done until human society wakes up to utter lostness. The man who is out of Christ tonight is not in danger of being lost, not in danger of sin ultimately causing him to be lost, but he is lost now. Sin is not what it seems to be. It is not of the surface but is constitutional and works from within outward. The tongue, for instance, shapes the lie but the untruth is of the soul. Sin breaks out on the hands, the eyes and the tongue, but it is of the soul. The sin is not in the eye that looks on the suggestiveness of the lecherous theatre, but it is of the soul. Sin sometimes breaks out in the dance, but sin is not in the music and poetry heard but in the soul that forgets God. Sin is a constitutional malady. It is not in dishonest money but is in the soul of him who makes it, and we must recognize this before the sins of the soul can be rectified and righted. Sin is of the soul and only the fires of God can reach it. So a soul out of Christ now is as much lost as if it were in hell, save that it is now on this side and may yet be saved. But in hell there is no other opportunity and this is the only difference. The cross may now lift you out of that world of sin, but in the other world that cross will not be to lift your soul out of hell.

And the lost man is not only lost to himself, but he is lost to

Prof. G. E. Lineberry attended the commencement at Bethel Thursday and reported a fine time.

C. A. Fair, of Ayden, was in town Friday evening.

God, and there is not a lost man in Greenville over which God is not suffering. There are many homes in this town over which my God's heart is bleeding, and the Christ stands waiting for your home coming.

And the man out of Christ is lost from God, and will never get back unless God sends the spirit and Angels to get him back, and the joyful news is that Christ came to seek and to save that which was lost. And upon you may be saved tonight if you wish. Christ stands willing and waiting, oh; will you not accept him tonight.

At the close of the service an invitation was given to those desiring the prayers of God's people to manifest it by going forward and giving the preacher their hand. To this invitation one person responded.

At the morning service this morning Dr. Beaman preached a powerful sermon from Matt. 5:6 "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

Dr. Beaman drew a picture of the intensity of physical hunger and thirst, and compared this to the spiritual cravings after righteousness. The point was stressed that we must hunger and thirst after righteousness before we can obtain it.

There will be no services tonight. On tomorrow there will be preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Dr. Beaman will address the league and the Sunday school at 3:30 p. m. The public is cordially invited to these services.

HAUGHTY CHINA.

Once Called England an "Obscure Corner in the Wilderness."

In the message sent by the empress of China to King George III. there appears this passage:

"The stores of goods at the Celestial court are plentifully abundant. There is nothing but what is possessed, so that there is really no need for the produce of outer barbarians in order to balance supply and demand. However, as the tea, silk and porcelain produced by the Celestial court are indispensable objects to the different states of Europe and to thy kingdom, for this reason we have in our grace and commiseration established the foreign hong at Macao in order that all daily needs may be duly supplied and every one share in our superfluous riches. But now thine envoys have made considerable demands over and above what is provided by fixed precedent, in such wise as to run seriously counter to the principle of recognizing the bounty of the Celestial court to distant men and its nurturing care of the different barbarians. Moreover, the Celestial court exercises a controlling supervision over all countries and is benevolent to each in an equal degree. For instance, those trading in Canton province do not come from the kingdom of England alone. If they were all to come clamoring in the same way and wantonly to pester us with requests impossible to concede in this style, is it to be supposed that we could always go out of our way to grant them?"

"Remembering, however, that thy kingdom occupies an obscure corner in the distant wilderness and is far removed from us by ocean upon ocean; also that thou art naturally unversed in the political etiquette of the Celestial court, we for this reason commanded our ministers to make all this plain to thine envoys, instruct their minds and dispense them back to their country. But, fearing that thine envoys on their return home may fail to present matters thoroughly to thee, we again fake up their requests, one by one, and prepare these further commands for thy particular instruction, opining thou wilt be able to grasp our meaning."

Willing to Compromise.

An Englishman at a dinner once told a tale of a tiger he had shot which measured twenty-four feet from snout to tail tip. Every one was astonished, but no one ventured to insinuate a doubt of the truth of the story. Presently a Scotchman told his tale. He had once caught a fish which, he said, he was unable to pull in alone, managing only to land it at last with the aid of six friends. "It was a skate, and it covered two acres." Silence followed this recital, during which the offended Englishman left the table. The host followed. After returning he said to the Scotchman: "Sir, you have insulted my friend. You must apologize." "I dinna insooit him," said the Scot. "Yes, you did, with your two acre fish story. You must apologize." "Well," said the offender slowly, with the air of one making a great concession, "tell him if he will take ten feet off that tiger I will see what I can do with the fish."

Frequently the baseball score is 18 to 1 against the umpire.

We care not how you suffered, nor what failed to cure you. Hillister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes the puniest, weakest specimen of man or womanhood strong and healthy. 35 cents, Tea or tablets. Wooten's Drug Store.

A lazy man always believes that a thing of duty is a bore forever.

If you ever bought a box of Witch Hazel Salve, that failed to give satisfaction the chances are it did not have the name "E. C. DeWitt & Co." printed on the wrapper and pressed in the box. The original DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve never fails to give satisfaction for burns, sores, boils, tetter, cracked hands, etc. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles it affords almost immediate relief. It stops the pain. Sold by John L. Wooten.

If people in the suburbs would quite trying to raise their own vegetables, they could have money enough to live in the city.

Don't tie a cough or a cold up in your system by taking a remedy that binds the bowels. Take Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. It is different from all other cough syrups. It is better. It opens the bowels—expels all cold from the system, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. An ideal remedy for young and old. Children like it. Sold by John L. Wooten.

The Important Comma.

A certain business man thinks he has an exceedingly bright office boy, and nothing pleases him better than to tell how he acquired the young man's services. A short time ago he posted in his shop window a notice which read as follows: "Boy wanted about fourteen years." A lad of that age, with little that was prepossessing in his appearance, came into the office and stated that he had read the notice. "Well, do you think you would like to have the place, my boy?" asked the merchant, gazing patronizingly over the rims of his spectacles at the youth. "Yes," came the prompt answer; "I want the job, but I don't know that I can promise to keep it for the full fourteen years." Then the merchant remembered that he had left out a comma on his sign, but he told the boy he might have the place.—London King.

Slicing a Pineapple.

The toughness of pineapples is almost entirely eliminated by slicing the fruit up and down, from stem to blossom end, instead of through the core, as is usually done, says the National Magazine. Thrust a fork into the blossom end to hold the apple steady and slice until you come to the hard, pithy core, which can then be discarded. The trick was explained by an old pineapple grower and makes all the difference in the world in the tenderness of this fruit, which is usually hard and chippy when sliced with instead of against the grain.

His Audience.

Wendell Phillips, the famous orator, had an effective way of dealing with disturbances. Once when he was interrupted by an unfriendly audience he stooped down and began talking in a low voice to the men at the reporters' table. Some of the auditors, becoming curious, called, "Louder!" Whereupon Phillips straightened himself up and exclaimed: "Go right on, gentlemen, with your noise. Through these pencils," pointing to the reporters, "I speak to 40,000,000 people."

Willing to Economize.

Little Willie, the attractive child of the washerwoman who has seen better days, was taken to dinner by a kindly disposed patron of his mother. He had the feast of his life, ordering almost everything on the bill of fare, and was finishing dessert when he announced that he wanted more. Reason did not appeal to Willie, and after several peremptory "Whys?" from him his hostess gave an excuse which she thought he could understand. "It costs too much," she said. "Oh, well, then," said Willie in a loud and cheerful voice which penetrated the room, "let's have some more ice water. That doesn't cost anything, does it?" — New York Press.

Freight Charges in Germany.

Freight charges in Germany are as uniform, as generally known and as simple as are postal charges on letters, post cards and printed matter in the United States. Freight charges in Germany are not determined by negotiation or by influence, and the goods of a foreigner which compete with German goods are not carried at a lower but at a higher rate than the native product. In Germany railways are built where they are wanted, by the population or by the state, even if they do not pay. The German state encourages the building of canals and electric railways.

SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1906.

Now all together and lets make The Home Building and Loan Association of Greenville a great success

Senator Tillman does not have much better opinion of Federal courts than he does of some other things.

The Wilkesboro Chronicle is responsible for the statement that a dog caught whooping cough from some children and died. So there is some virtue in whooping cough after all.

If the Water and Light Commission will just put on the day current Greenville will be showing you some other enterprisess to help the business of the town

From the evidence we believe Duke is entitled to the divorce from his wife. But a man of his calibre ought to have been more careful in the beginning and not become entangled with such a woman of the world of whose character he knew practically nothing.

Greenville certainly makes a fine showing in the launching of The Home Building and Loan Association. This association begins the first series of stock with one thousand shares. There are many building and loan associations in North Carolina in towns several times larger than Greenville, but we doubt if there is another that started business with as many as one thousand shares in the first series of stock.

No, The Reflector is not discouraged because people did not go tumbling over each other to carry out the suggestion to build bath houses on the river front, nor because the town is not yet provided with day needed electric current. This paper has learned the lesson to keep hammering patiently after needed measures until they are procured and be gratified later in seeing the fruits of its labors. So will it be as regards the bath houses and the day current—both are coming. Greenville is sometimes slow to move, but when she moves it counts.

The story copied in this paper a week ago from the New Bern Journal about a pigeon following a train, and which at the time we thought was a fake because we had seen almost the same story in the correspondence of the Charlotte Observer as having occurred in another section of the State, is vouched for by Rev. J. S. Corbett. He tells us that wheas over on the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad last week and saw the pigeon flying along with the train. So it is in order for The Reflector to apologize to the New Bern Journal for suggesting that the latter paper was palming off a fake on its readers, and here it is

A NEW RAILROAD SYSTEM AND ITS PRESIDENT.

Mr. Frank S. Gannon, who has recently become president of the various railroads in Eastern North Carolina and Tidewater, Virginia, that will compose the Norfolk and Southern railway system, was in Raleigh yesterday making an inspection of the Raleigh and Pamlico railroad and will today go over the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad and the Pamlico, Oriental and Western railroads.

It is understood that the purpose of this company is to bring together all its properties as rapidly as possible by building links that will give them physical connection. When joined together the mileage of the system will be six hundred miles. The force at work on the Raleigh and Pamlico Sound railroad, which will run from Raleigh to Washington, is to be increased and the construction work prosecuted without interruption with a view to its earliest possible completion, giving a new line from the city to Norfolk. Concurrent with this work will be that of the construction of a line from the Norfolk and Southern at Washington to some point on the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, probably New Bern. Also it is understood that the Pamlico, Oriental and Western will be extended from Bayboro, its present terminus, to Oriental. By September 1st if not earlier the extension from Morehead City to Beaufort will be completed and in operation, and it is announced, on what we take to be good authority, that a bridge across Albermarle Sound will be built at once from Mackey's Ferry to Edenton to take the place of the railroad ferry now in use. This bridge will be over five miles long—the longest railroad bridge in the South except the Flagler bridge at Key West, Florida. This in general seems to be the outlines of the plans for linking up these very valuable properties without taking into account the various branch lines and feeders that this company is constructing and preparing to construct.—Raleigh News and Observer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May 4—For the first time in the history of the cotton business in the United States, there has been a real effort of the growers and the spinners to get together and control the crop that they both depend on for a livelihood and to eliminate the middleman and the cotton gambler who have both fattened for generations out of handling the crop. There has been a convention this week in Washington of the growers and the mill men. There have been representatives from the great mills of England and from all the associations in the United States interested in the handling of cotton. It was a striking gathering to see and a more interesting one to listen to. There were the correctly dressed and conventional mill men of England who are now on a tour of the United States, the equally correct though more alert and aggressive manufacturers from New England, the younger men of the South, both those interested in mills and in growing cotton, and there were men of the fields who came, many of them without neckties, the first of that style that the fashionable hotel where they met has ever seen. And there was even one old gentleman who came in a suit of Confederate gray with brass buttons and a regimental badge on his coat. He made a talk in the course of the meeting, and it was a mighty good talk too. He said that the farmers he represented were waking up, that they had found the virtue of warehousing and holding their crop for decent market conditions before selling it, and that they would hold the crop with the help of heaven and Southern money till they could get a decent price for it and not live from hand to mouth on the bounty of the middleman and the country store keeper.

It was rather pathetic to see that all of the advances were made by the growers to the manufacturers. The growers explained that they had found through much tribulation that there was money to be made, though they had never made any before, in warehousing their crop and holding it till there was a legitimate demand for it from the mills. They said that the warehouses were being built rapidly, that the cotton was being protected from the weather which had ruined so much of it in the fields, and that they were cleaning and grading it in the warehouses in accordance with the best that they understood of the mill owner's demands. This being so, they asked merely that the mill men should deal direct with them instead of with the middlemen and speculators and they promised if this were done to estimate the actual cost of raising the crop and to divide profits fairly.

The reply of the spinners was suave and was that of polished business men. They were glad to know that the cotton was being better taken care of and that it would reach them in better condition. And they would be glad to deal direct with the growers if that would get them the cotton cheaper, and if the warehousing scheme was effective. If in short they had to. E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, who is a large grower and one of the young business men of the South, left them in little doubt as to this. He said the warehouse scheme had been tried was proving an immense success.

America is in good position to dictate to the rest of the world the disposition of the cotton crop, for the United States raises in the cotton belt five-sixths of the world's supply. The demand of the world is increasing at the rate of 400,000 bales annually.

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as Double seats, double double knees, extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

THE MAN'S OUTFITTER

Why Swimming Beginners Fail.

You try hard to keep your mouth closed, but the water somehow will find a way into your mouth and nostrils. A beginner always draws in his breath just at the moment he strikes out. This insures the getting his mouth and nostrils full of water at once, and a collapse is inevitable. If you will remember to take breath between the strokes all will be well. Quite naturally, when you draw your knees outward for the kick, you will inhale, and just as surely as your feet are thrust from you will you expel the air from your lungs. Knowledge on the management of the breath will come with practice and can only be acquired in that one way.

Faithful to the Last.

"Go, you cruel, base deceiver!" sobbed Angelina to Edwin.
"Why, what is the matter, darling?"
"Matter, indeed! I have only just seen what is engraved in the horrid ring you gave me."
"Yes, dear," taking up the spurned token and reading, "Faithful to the last."
"And you told me I was the first you ever loved!" she moaned.—Kansas City Independent.

DO NOT IMITATE.

Make an Effort in Your Work in Life to Be Original.

There are a thousand people who will do faithfully what they are told to one who can lay out a programme or execute it—a thousand who can only follow to one who can lead. It is a rare thing to find a young man who has the power of accomplishment, the ability to put a thing through with the force of originality.

Whatever your work in life, do not follow others. Do not imitate. Do not do things just as everybody else has done them before, but in new, ingenious ways. Show the people in your specialty that precedents do not cut much of a figure with you and that you will make your own programme. Resolve that, whether you accomplish much or little in the world, it shall be original—your own. Do not be afraid to assert yourself in an original way. Originality is power, life; imitation is death. Do not be afraid to let yourself out. You grow by being original, never by copying; by leading, never by following. Resolve that you will be a man of ideas, always on the lookout for improvement. Think to some purpose. There is always a place for an original man.

There is nothing else which will kill the creative faculty and paralyze growth more quickly than following precedents in everything and doing everything in the same old way. I have known progressive young men to stop growing, become hopelessly rutty and lose all their progressive-ness by going into their fathers' stores, factories or places of business, where everything was done in the same old fashioned way and precedents were followed in everything. They lost all expansiveness. There was no motive for reaching out for the new and the original. Because their fathers would not change, and I have seen these splendid fellows, who might have become great and grand men, shrivel to pygmies in their fathers' ruts.

How many of our business houses are weighted down with machinery, old, antiquated methods, ponderous bookkeeping and out of date appliances when new devices or new methods, with short cut ways of doing things, would enable them to economize greatly on room and get along with much less help! But they cling to the old with a fatal tenacity.

This is why so many old concerns which have been strong and powerful for generations gradually shrink, shrivel, get into ruts and fail, while their never competitors, the bright young men who have gone out from these houses, do things in a new way, adopt up to date methods, keep up with the times and go on to greater success.—Sue

CAUSES OF FAILURE.

Queer Reasons That Have Been Assigned For Bankruptcy.

The petitioner in the court of bankruptcy was a young man of aristocratic birth. He had inherited a fortune of $2,000,000 at the age of twenty-three. Now, at twenty-six, he was a bankrupt.

"How did you come to run through your money at this rate?" asked the judge.

"A love of food ruined me, sir," the bankrupt answered. "I gave the best and costliest dinners America has ever seen. One of my dinners—a dinner of ten covers—cost $10,000."

"Foolish young man," murmured the judge.

This judge at the end of the session talked about the strange reasons for their bankruptcy that some bankrupts would give.

"A bachelor of thirty-five," he said, "appeared before me owing something like $75,000 for gambling debts, $20,000 for wines, $4,500 to his tailor, $15,000 to the jewelers, $1,700 to his haberdasher and $1,100 to his florist. When he was asked the cause of his bankruptcy he answered:

"An inability to negotiate any more loans."

"The weather often causes bankruptcy. A succession of warm winters will make skate manufacturers and sleigh manufacturers and furriners go under. A succession of cold winters will ruin the hotel men and the shopkeepers of summer resorts. Weather unprecedentedly dry will send to the wall the handlers of india rubber goods—waterproof coats, overshoes, gum boots, and so on.

"Insects hardly visible to the eye have caused the bankruptcy of florists, farmers and fruit growers. One of these insects, the phylloxera, made bankrupt the whole island of Madeira. Getting among the vines, it destroyed them utterly.

"A woman insurance agent once pleaded in my court that a depreciation of beauty was the cause of her failure. She had been making $7,000 a year, but an illness seized her, and this illness impaired her beauty greatly. 'Before and after' photographs of her were shown, and I must admit that her looks had suffered much. Since her illness she had been unable to make much money. Men had not listened to her as before. Her income, in fact, had fallen from $600 to $75 a month."—Chicago Chronicle.

Why Julia Quit.

The most peculiar reason yet assigned for a servant leaving her place "without notice" was given by a Germantown mistress when asked why Julia, a colored maid, had suddenly quit. "The whole trouble came about last wash day," said the indignant housekeeper. "It began to rain before the wash was done, and when it was ready to hang out it was drizzling at a good rate. Then it was that Julia, the colored help, came upstairs and asked me to lend her my rain coat while she hung out the clothes. I had never found an umbrella or a mackintosh necessary when I did similar work and declined to grant the request. Then Julia quit."—Philadelphia Record.

A Fear.

"So you think that this concentration of wealth is the inevitable outgrowth of our civilization?"

"I do," answered Mr. Thinker.

"And you must admit that the ultimate result of such a condition would be to put all the money under the control of one individual?"

"Yes."

"Well, it seems terrible to think of."

"What does?"

"The possibility of some billionaire getting out of temper some day and making up his mind to discharge the entire human race."—Judge.

"Whoa!"

The word "whoa," used in calling on a horse to stop, is merely a variant and emphatic form of "ho," formerly used in the same sense. This is easily proved, for Chaucer has "ho" in the sense of "halt" ("Canterbury Tales"). When King Edward IV. had to use this exclamation he actually turned it into "whoa." "Then the kyng, perceyving the cruell assaille (onset), cast his staff and, with high voice, cried whoa!" ("Excerpta Historica," page 211), which stopped the tournament, and no wonder.—London Notes and Queries.

IMPOVERISHED BLOOD.

Symptoms of Anaemia and Treatment of the Trouble.

The chief symptom, at least the most obvious one, of anaemia is pallor. The skin is white, the whites of the eyes are even whiter than usual, the lips are light in color and the pink color of the nail beds is absent. But pallor is sometimes deceptive and may be present even when there is little or no real anaemia. This occurs in certain cases in which there is an unequal distribution of the blood, the surface of the body being poorly supplied, while the central organs are congested.

Other signs of anaemia are irritability of the heart, palpitation occurring on slight provocation; indigestion, loss of appetite, constipation, shortness of breath, nervousness, weakness and inability to do any hard work with either brain or muscles, swelling of the feet and ankles in the evening, headache, dizziness, ringing in the ears and sometimes spots before the eyes. All these signs point to an impoverishment of the blood, and the suspicion is confirmed by a direct examination of a drop under the microscope.

In the treatment of anaemia, which is very frequently a secondary condition, the first care is to discover and remove if possible the underlying cause. The cure is helped along, however, and hastened by certain measures which we may briefly enumerate. The diet of every anaemic person must be carefully looked to. It is usually the quality of the food rather than its quantity that needs regulating. Tender, not overcooked meat, milk, eggs and other albuminous articles are to be preferred to vegetables and starchy foods. The juices of fruits and of lettuce, celery and other salads, without the woody substance, are useful as promoting digestion and accelerating the nutritive changes in the body.

Next to food fresh air and sunlight are the most powerful stimulants to blood making functions.

All exercise that causes fatigue should be avoided, but a quiet stroll, a drive over smooth roads, and especially sitting or lying in the open air, occasionally in the direct sunlight, the head being protected, are of great value to the anaemic invalid. If sitting outdoors is impossible the chair or sofa should be continuously by a wide open window, and at night all the windows in the room should be open.

Cold douching or bathing is of great benefit, but the judicious adaptation of this curative measure to the individual needs calls for medical skill, as does also the prescription of iron and other blood making drugs.—Youth's Companion.

A Merciful Punishment.

Sergeant Nolan has a small but active wife of whom he stands in considerable awe. One day the sergeant lost his quick Irish temper. The object of his wrath was a dog belonging to the wife of one of his superior officers. The lady overheard some of his statements and took him severely to task.

"You ought to be ashamed to say such things and to lose your temper with an animal," she said, while the big sergeant looked shamefaced and anxious. "I shall report your language."

"To—to her, ma'am?" faltered the penitent.

"To my husband," said the lady haughtily.

"So do, ma'am," said Sergeant Nolan cheerfully. "I well deserve it. I was only fearing you meant to tell my wife."

"China For the Chinese."

The cry of "China for the Chinese" finds an unexpected echo in another part of the world. According to a writer in the London Mail, there is unrest among the blacks of west Africa, fostered by negroes from the United States who entered Africa originally as missionaries, "but were not many months in the colonies before they dropped their religion and devoted themselves mainly to politics, beginning a propaganda of Africa for the Africans."

GREENVILLE MONEY.

National Bank Notes in Circulation.

The National Bank of Greenville has received a supply of currency from the government with the name of the bank and town on each bill. The circulation of this currency began Friday M. J. E. Winslow secured the first $10 note of the National bank that was given out and tells us an amusing incident in connection with it. He showed the note to an unsuspecting party with the remark that Greenville is now making money.

The man looked at the crisp $10 note expressed his admiration and handed it back.

"Do you want that for a dollar?" asked Mr. Winslow as he took the bill back, but was careful to first get a good hold on it.

"Not much," was the emphatic answer. "You may rob some folks that way but you wout catch me."

Of course Mr. Winslow was glad the man did not bite at the offer, as he would have been forced to "take water" himself.
