PITT'S MEMORIAL DAY.

Veterans Have Reunion, Hear Fine Speech and are Handsomely Entertained.

Again has come the annual day that makes glad the hearts of the veterans of the Confederacy who lay down their arms forty-five years ago. Though every year since that eventful struggle of the 50's has marked a further depletion of the ranks, there are yet many of the noble heroes surviving, and these reunion days bring them together to greet each other and talk over the stirring experiences of the past. Though they lost in that great struggle they are happy—happy in the knowledge of a faithful performance of duty as they saw it, and happy that they have the esteem and love of their countrymen. When our old soldiers meet together they are always happy and light hearted. They do not meet to celebrate a great victory over some foe, and yet their coming together is a great celebration. They are brave men and have done nothing for which they should hang their heads in shame. They lost property, friends, brothers, but they retained their greatest possession honor and patriotism. And although they are conscious of their loss, all this is eclipsed by the glad consciousness that they were true men. We lost our cause, but on the account of bravery we gained admiration from men in all parts of the world. Not only is it a joy to them to come together but it also a pleasure to those who are younger to have them with us and to join with them in observing the day. We can never do too much in showing our appreciation of their deeds of bravery and heroism.

The Bryan Grimes Camp of Confederates met at 10 o'clock this morning in the court house to transact such business as might come before them. The camp was called to order by the commander, Maj. H. Harding, who greeted his old comrades with appropriate words. Secretary H. A. Blow called the roll. Occasionally as some name on the roster was reached, the solemn word "dead," told that he had passed over the river.

A committee consisting of C. D. Rountree, A. L. Blow, W. G. Little and J. J. Laughinghouse was appointed to draft resolutions in memory of those who had died in the past year.

Major H. Harding was unanimously reelected commander of the camp.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the veterans formed in front of the court house and marched to the cemetery where the Daughters of the Confederacy decorated the graves of the soldiers with flowers. There was a long line of the veterans.

The procession returned to Masonic temple where the exercises were held, the program as previously published being splendidly carried out, a very large crowd being present.

The songs were much enjoyed by the veterans and audience.

A pretty scene was the presentation of a battle flag to Bryan Grimes Camp of Confederate Veterans by little Miss Helen Grimes, a grand daughter of Maj. Gen. Bryan Grimes in whose honor the camp was named. Her presentation was sweetly made and Major Harding was happy in his response of acceptance.

Commander Harding stated that a request had been made for the "Rebel Yell," and at his order the veterans gave it with a whoop.

Mr. F. C. Harding was to have made the speech presenting the orator, but in his absence this was done by Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, who always proves equal to all occasions. His introduction was a gem.

Hen. J. Bryan Grimes, the orator of the day, spoke for more than an hour, and his speech was the best for such an occasion that has been heard in Pitt county. He said he was going to talk about the neglected history North Carolina and Pitt county, and going to the days preceding and leading to the revolution war, and on down the years through the civil war, he pointed out the part North Carolina had taken in making the history of the nation. As to the last war he said North Carolina suffered more on the battlefield and sacrificed more at home to support the army than any other State.

He said North Carolina lost more men in a seven days fight around Richmond than five other states lost in the entire four years of the war.

The valor of Pitt county soldiers was most strongly portrayed in all the trying scenes and battles of the war, and many acts of bravery and heroism were pointed out by the speaker, the participants in some of these being men sitting before him and whom he called by name.

Yet, said Col. Grimes, while Pitt county was valiant in war, she had done practically nothing to preserve her history. In her bosom men of renown and heroes slept in unmarked graves. We are unmindful of the glory of our dead. He hoped for the day when the county court house should be a temple of fame and on its walls should be placed tablets bearing a roster of the gallant men who went in the war.

It was a superb speech and the statements made were backed by such statistics as to show that Col. Grimes had gone deeply into the records and incidents of the past to search out and bring to light such valuable historical information. It would be helpful to coming generations if his speech was itself made a matter of record and preserved.

At the conclusion of the splendid speech came an incident not on the program, when Mr. H. W. Wheelbe stepped on the stage and in behalf of the Daughters of the Confederacy presented Col. Grimes a magnificent bouquet. The presentation was in words most beautiful and Col. Grimes responded eloquently.

After the exercises in the opera house a bountiful dinner was served on the court house lawn.

Every one in any way connected with the arrangements for the entertainment of the veterans did full duty, and it was made a glad day for them. Greenville is glad to do her best for the veterans.

HOPE FIRE COMPANY.

Special Meeting--New Foreman Elected--Other Business.

Hope Fire Company met Wednesday night in their hall in special meeting, with R. Hyman in the chair, D. D. Overton, secretary. The chairman stated the call of the meeting and after the roll call and fines recorded went into the election of a foreman. W. F. Birch placed Paul Metrick in nomination, and was seconded by D. D. Gardner and there being no other nomination E. J. Flanagan moved to make it unanimous with instruction to secretary to cast the vote of the company for Paul Metrick.

Chief R. Hyman made a talk to the company and as chairman of the fire alarm committee made report as to the progress made on a fire system for the town.

Three applications were made for membership.

After roll call the meeting adjourned until the first Monday night in June.

A Duty of Citizenship.

There are some people who hold aloof from participation in political affairs as if fearful of contamination. They seem to think that voting and holding office is exclusively the function of the politician and that nobody else should interfere in political matters. To say that this is a very foolish conception is putting it mildly. Every citizen, no matter what his walk in life may be, owes it to himself and to his State to discharge every duty of citizenship, including the duty of voting. When he fails to vote he neglects one of the most important duties of citizenship and forfeits, for the time being, the right to criticize the official acts of those who are elected to office. No citizen is too good to hold office when he is asked to do so. The better the class of people who vote and hold office the more efficient will be the administration of public affairs.—Winston Sentinel.

Earthquake in Connecticut.

East Hampton, Conn., May 8.—An earthquake was felt at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Dishes rattled and small articles were thrown from tables in the section known as Barton's Lodge, but no damage to property is reported. There were two distinct shocks, lasting but a few seconds. The shock was not noticed outside the section mentioned, so far as learned.

School Closings This Week.

The Grifton and Ayden Graded schools will both close this week, the former on tonight and the latter on Friday night.

At Grifton the address will be delivered by Hon. E. E. Hilliard, of Scotland Neck. Prof. J. B. Carlyle, of Wake Forest, will speak at the Baptist church in Ayden on Friday night at 8 o'clock.

THE WEATHER

Fair and warmer tonight and Friday.

The Pestilence in San Francisco.

Washington, May 8.—The Surgeon General of the army this morning received a telegram from Lieut. Col. Turry, chief surgeon of the Department of California, announcing that there are 57 cases of smallpox in San Francisco among the earthquake victims, and seven cases of typhoid fever. The most rigid precautions have been taken to prevent their spread.

Change of Place.

Owing to sickness at the home of Mrs. W. F. Burch, the meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Baptist church appointed to meet with her tomorrow afternoon, will be held with Mrs. D. J. Whichard instead.

She's a Wise Woman.

Who is able to mend both her husband's clothes and his ways.
Who has learned the paradox that to have joy one must give it.
Who can tell the difference between her first child and a genius.
Who most admires those eyes which belong to a man who understands her.
Who acknowledges the allowance made her by her husband by making allowances for him.

Who appreciates that the largest room in any house is that left for self improvement.

Who manages to keep not only her house and her temper, but her servants and her figure as well.

Who realizes that two husbands of 25 years each are not necessarily as good as one of 50.

Who can at once distinguish between the laugh of amusement and the one meant to show off a dimple.

Who gets off a trolley car the right way—though she runs the risk of being arrested as a man in disguise.—Tom Watson's Magazine

Mark Twain and Advertising.

Mark Twain, in the midst of a panegyric on advertising, told a remarkable story.

"There was a man," he said, "back Iowa way, who was so pleased with an advertisement in the local paper that he wrote the following testimonial letter to the editor:

"Mr. Editor, Sir: after selling all I could, giving barrels away, and stuffed my hogs til they would eat no more, I still had, last fall, about two hundred tons of big, juicy, fine flavored apples left on my hands. I inserted in your valuable paper an ad. that I was willing to send free a barrel of picked fruit, freight paid in advance by me, to any one who would apply, there being of course, no charge for the barrel. You will hardly credit it, but that little forty-cent ad. cleared out my whole stock of apples, and I could have disposed of five times the quantity on the same terms.

Mr. James H. Tillman, who shot and killed Mr. N. G. Gonzales, editor of The Columbia State, has been nominated by his admiring South Carolina constituency to represent his district in Congress. We should have thought Mr. Tillman would have preferred to spend the remainder of his days in retirement. His friends are not doing him a kindness in thus dragging him from his seclusion.—Charlotte Chronicle.

THE LECTURE.

Rev. Z. Hinohora Delights a Large Audience.

The lecture Wednesday night in the Methodist church by the Rev. Z. Hinohora, a native of Japan and a graduate of Trinity College, was both interesting and instructive. A large audience was present and every one was greatly interested.

The speaker read as a lesson for the evening Matt VII 7-10. After reading this very appropriate selection he told in glowing words how today Japan is knocking at our doors for aid in seeking religious enlightenment. He told of the great progress made by his people on all lines, but there are thousands and thousands who have never heard of Christ.

The lecture was especially striking as the speaker stood himself a living example of what the Gospel of Christ has done and is doing in far off Japan.

He gave an interesting account of the habits and religious beliefs of his people, of their customs of living and ideas of war and many other important features of Japanese life.

While here Rev. Hinohora, by his graceful manners and sweet Christian disposition, has made a host of friends who will always feel a deep interest in him, and in the great work he leaves so soon to begin in Japan.

Henry Brown, a well known colored man here, and who for many years attended to the county bridge in opening the draw for boats to pass, died Wednesday.

The Corporation Commission has ordered the railroad companies with lines entering Goldsboro, the Atlantic Coast Line, Atlantic and North Carolina, and the Southern, to locate the union passenger depot at the terminus of Walnut street, the site selected by the railroads and recommended by some of the citizens of Goldsboro.

THE STORY OF AN INGRATE

A Gambler's Generosity and What it Brought In Return.

There is a well authenticated story of Scrope Davis, a London dandy of a hundred years ago, an inveterate gambler, but also a man of talent, a gentleman and a wit. One night he was introduced to a young man named Hastings, who had inherited a colossal fortune, much of which he had already gambled away. They commenced to play hazard, Hastings remarking at the same time that he must soon cut that sort of fun, as he was about to marry and settle down.

Scrope was in great luck. Main after main he won and as often wished to cease play, but Hastings, who continued to pour glass after glass of champagne down his parched throat, was pallid with excitement and insisted upon a chance to retrieve his fortune. The excitement became general. Other players left their own tables to crowd around the duelists. Time after time Hastings threw crabs, while Davis followed with the nick.

The rattle of the dice and the ceaseless flow of wines went on all night and far into the next day. Hastings was mad with excitement. Every pound and every security he possessed or could think of he pledged and lost. At last, like the gamester who staked his wife upon a cast of the dice and lost, he would have risked the welfare of the girl to whom he was engaged if the other would have accepted that kind of security. But he would not. Then Hastings hurled dice and box across the saloon, smashing a splendid mirror, and, throwing himself exhausted upon a sofa, burst into tears, exclaiming: "I can play no more. I have lost everything I have in the world. I am a beggar!"

Davis stood still, calm, unmoved, watching him. Then he said: "Mr. Hastings, listen to me. I will forego everything I have won tonight on one condition, and that is that you will take a solemn oath never to touch cards or dice again." The ruined gambler fell on his knees to thank his benefactor and to take the oath. The latter immediately restored everything he had won, and, oddly enough, Hastings kept his vow and lived a wealthy and prosperous man.

But the medal has a sordid reverse. When in after years Scrope Davis, reduced to great poverty, ventured to ask him for some slight assistance, the hound wrote him a curt, formal reply in the third person, regretting that Mr. Hastings was unable to offer Mr. Scrope Davis any assistance.

Not a Matter of Arithmetic.

"I hear you're very good at arithmetic, Bobby," said the visitor pleasantly.

"Sure," returned Bobby, without looking up from his play.

"Well, if I should tell you when your papa and your mamma were born could you tell me how old they are?" asked the visitor.

"I could tell you how old pap is," answered the boy.

"And not how old your mother is?"

The boy shook his head. "Arithmetic hasn't anything to do with that," he said.

How They Crossed.

A father and his two sons wish to cross a river, which it is impossible to do without a boat. They have a boat which will carry only sixteen stone (224 pounds), but the father weighs sixteen stone, and each of the sons weighs eight stone. Yet in less than half an hour they are all across the river. How do they manage it?

The riddle is an old one, but a new answer, offered by an English paper, is more ingenious than the trick solutions that the reader probably remembers. Here it is:

The two sons cross in the boat. One goes back to the father. The father then crosses. The other son goes back again with the boat, and then the two sons cross together.

Babes in the Wood.

It is not alone in our great English cities that children are to be found who have never known the joys of a day in the country. There are, or were until a short time ago, two at least of them in Berlin. But at last good fortune chanced their way, and into the country they were taken. They were not at first favorably impressed with what they saw, gazing about them with stolid disfavor, but in time they came to where a flock of sheep were feeding in a field. Then, indeed, little Max opened his eyes. "Look, Moritz!" he cried excitedly. "There are lots and lots of sheep without wheels!" —London Tribune.

A Little Heroine.

Little Janet, aged four, noticed the other day at dinner the rest of the family helping themselves liberally to the mustard.

Nobody offering her any, she waited until something drew away the attention of the others, when she lifted the mustard spoon, liberally daubed a piece of bread which she was eating with the fiery condiment and took a substantial bite.

Her hand immediately went up to her burned mouth; but, bravely suppressing an outcry, she put the bread away, remarking:

"I think I'll wait till that jelly gets cold." —Pearson's Weekly.

Infantry.

Some have supposed that the name infantry was applied to foot soldiers from the fact of the page boy or under attendant in feudal times being unmounted, while his lord rode off to the battle. A far more likely derivation of the term is seen when we remember that the infante is the official term of the heir apparent in Spain, as the dauphin is in France. Infantry, therefore, was originally a particular army of foot soldiers raised by the infante for the purpose of rescuing his father, who had been overpowered in one of the many contests with the Moors in Spain. The name finally passed from the particular to the general use and was adopted by other countries.

THURSDAY, MAY 10, 1906.

By the time strawberries are through going to market, potatoes will be moving.

Here's to the old soldiers. May they all be invited to come to see us again next reunion day.

Son-in-law Longworth continues to ascend the ladder of fame. The latest honor showered upon him is umpire of a baseball game.

You can mark this down for a fact—there are few towns the size of Greenville that can show as many pretty women, fine horses and some thoroughbred as this town.

With already fewer slices of pie than their hungry mouths after them, they are at a loss to know how the republican party is going to make provision for their recruits.

One more man up the west he deserted the Democratic camp and gone over to the Republicans. And it makes the latter nuckle like they were having a great revival in North Carolina. But the deserters will not be missed when the votes are counted.

Since putting in type setting machines the Wilmington Star has assumed a wise air and occasionally propounds enigmas that show its up-to-datedness in the linotype school. A late issue of that esteemed paper says:

"There are now thirty-one women's undergarments EIA SH LCM CMF—"

If it was not for displaying our own ignorance we would be tempted to ask Maj. Bernard what new fangled novelty this is for the women.

Again in the same paper is:

"Says the Washington Post: 'What's m hteuseofaDe ocartic - H g fi Hu.'"

Hanged if that ain't too many for us, and we can't tell what that is either. The Scotland Neck Commonwealth or Charlotte Observer must come to the rescue, as the Major is losing us.

The bald-headed men will feel better when they read that statistics gathered in England show that there are no bald-headed criminals in London prisons and no bald-headed lunatics in England. Court officials and managers of insane asylums state that while there are a few exceptions that almost all the criminals and lunatics have plenty of hair. There has been a disposition, since the days of the Prophet Elisha, to make sport of the bald-headed fraternity, but it will probably be admitted that as a rule those who are short on hair have something inside their craniums, and those disposed to laugh at bald-heads want to remember also that two she bears ate the children who laughed at Elisha's bald-head.—Statesville Landmark.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

A Democratic convention of Pitt county will be held at the court house in Greenville at 11 o'clock A. M. Thursday, June 14th, 1906, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the various State, Judicial and Congressional conventions.

The Democratic primaries for the purpose of selecting delegates to the county convention will be held at the various voting precincts of the respective townships of Pitt county on Saturday, the 9th day of June, 1906 at 3 o'clock P. M. At these primaries the Democratic voters of the respective townships will select delegates to the county convention to be held at Greenville on the 14th of June. Each township will be entitled to the following number of delegates, to the county convention based upon its vote for Governor for 1904:

Beaufort	3
Bay	2
Bertie	6
Carroll	6
Chatham	16
Contentee No. 1	13
Contentee No. 2	5
Fairfield	7
Farmville	6
Greenville	20
Hertford	3
Swift Creek	3

It is hoped that a full attendance of the Democratic voters of each township will be at their respective primary meeting to select delegates to the county convention in accordance with the organization of the party.

By order of the committee.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

(By an Occasional Contributor.)

If the Czar really wants to do business with that new parliament, he ought to hire Uncle Joe for Speaker.

The coal operators will now pause to consider whether their offer that the miners accepted is barred by the statute of limitations.

The Standard Oil Company ought to feel in wonderful sympathy with the President in his remarks about the man with the muck rake.

The Pennsylvania company says that "Jimmy" Garfield's inferences as to the connection of their road with the oil trade lawbreaking are "scandalous, outrageous, unwarranted" and a few more adjectives. But there is no sign yet that they are filing any suit against him for libel.

The New York immigration authorities have turned back one applicant for admission because he had a swelled head. Good thing this is not a deportable offense with the natives or it would play havoc with New York's next census.

The only people who are hurt in the earthquake at Monterey were a bridal couple who were hit by a falling chimney. Pity they had not been married a few years in which case the same chimney would never have hit both of them.

By way of showing that the war is really over, the war department has cancelled the permit for the two mules and an escort wagon that were to have accompanied "Father" Sherman on his march to the sea.

Comfortable SHIRTS

The man with a comfortable Shirt is pretty sure to be comfortable all over.

It doesn't take an expert to tell when a Shirt is comfortable, but it takes an expert to make one comfortable. It has to be roomy, well-shaped, well sewed; the sleeves aren't be too long, the collar must not be cut too low or too high.

When a man once finds a comfortable shirt, he comes back for the same brand year after year.

Some even get to know the kind of box they are packed in and won't look at the Shirts at all if they don't see the right box.

SELLING THE BEST SHIRTS

Brings us more business every season, lets us buy more Shirts and, consequently, we sell better Shirts than we did the year before. Don't think you can duplicate anywhere the Shirts we are selling.

A Great Reform in Union.

Glory to the commencement orators! They bring things to pass. Lead by the Governor, some of them who have spoken in this county have given the poodle dog habit down the country. The Governor jumped on it with both feet, saying God deliver us from the women who go about nursing poodle dogs and turning their babies over to nurses. We are delivered. Since these strong and timely speeches against this noxious habit, we have not seen a single woman in Union county nursing a poodle, and since then not a single lady has come on the street rolling a fido in the buggy where the baby ought to be. If there has been a single case since these speeches we haven't heard of it. That's reform for you. Not a single woman has been seen to kiss a pet dog in public for a week now. The custom may be dead for good; who knows? Very few ladies in Monroe, or the county even, now let their dogs sit in their laps at public gatherings, and one has gone so far as to notify the old man that he must get rid of some of his rabbit dogs that stand around the back door to lick the skillet at every opportunity. The evils of the day must go down before the onslaughts of the orators. We even expect to see the big britches and the middle-split hair go by the board next. Great evils of this kind can't always withstand the orators.—Monroe Journal.

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as Double seats, double double knees, extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

A long string is held by the players, who stand in a circle, with one in the center. A ring is slipped on the string, which is rapidly passed from one player to another, covering it with their hands. The one in the center endeavors to seize the hands that hold it, and the person in whose hand the ring is found must take his turn in the circle. Pretending to pass the ring from one to another when it may be at another part of the circle bewilders the person in the center and makes the game more amusing.

The Morning Glory.

Here is an experiment to make with a morning glory vine: Early in the morning of some day that is likely to be hot and sunny make a mark on the training stick exactly opposite to the top of the vine, and an examination at night will show that the vine has not grown. But look at it the next morning, and you will find it grew a good deal during the night. It is said that this night growth is always in proportion to the light and heat of the preceding day.

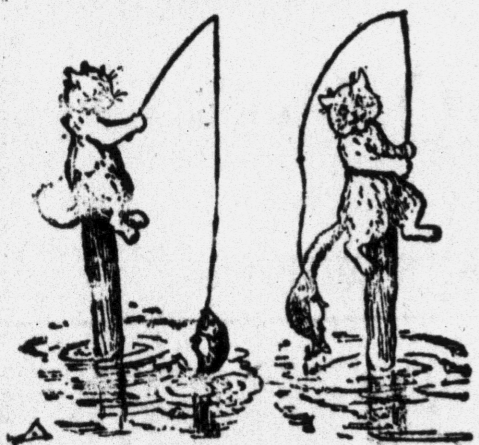

Blind Artist—a Game.

Hang a blackboard at one end of the room. Take each guest in turn, stand him in front of the board, blindfold him, give him a piece of chalk and ask him to draw a picture of a pig or cow or horse.

The other guests should note down on pieces of paper their opinion of each pig as it is drawn, and when all have done their stunt then let them vote which did the best. Give a prize for best and consolation for worst.

When Tommy Went Fishing.

Tommy went to fish and took Rod and line and bait and hook. "Who can tell? I may," thought he, "Catch a sardine for my tea."

Out he waded from the shore: Then for quite an hour or more There upon the post he sat; Then he caught—a tittlebat! "Here's a catch at last!" cried he, "Just the very fish for me." Up he pulled it with a will, Showing off his angling skill. Oh, but didn't Tom look grim When that tittlebat caught him By the tail and made him yell— In the river splash he fell. Luckily he still could shout. Brother pussies pulled him out. Next time Tom goes catching fish He will catch them off a dish.

MOVABLE TYPES.

The Honor of Their Invention Belongs to the Far East.

China, the "cradle of the arts," claims the honor of the invention of printing. Away back in the year 593, nearly 1,000 years before Gutenberg issued the first volume of his famous Bible, the Chinese were using the "block system" of printing, and in the tenth century, 400 years before Europe had become acquainted with the "art preservative," the almond eyed Celestial types were better versed in the science of setting movable types than were the American printers of the days of Benjamin Franklin. The "block system" of printing, which was so well known in the Flowery Kingdom less than six centuries after the birth of Christ, did not find its way to Europe until about the first of the fifteenth century, when "devotional manuals," each bearing a portrait and a few lines in printing, became popular. These cuts and printed lines were taken from engravings made on a single block, the very earliest dated specimen of that character made in Europe bearing date of 1423.

There is still a question as to who was the first European printer to use the movable types. It is not a question as to what European invented movable types, for it is known that the honor belongs in the far east. The honor of being the first to adopt the system appears to rest between Laurentz Coster of Haarlem (died 1440), John Faust and John Gutenberg. In the above list some include the name of Peter Schoffer, a son-in-law of Faust. Dutch authorities claim that Coster was the first to use the movable types and that Gutenberg, who was at one time a workman in Coster's shop, stole the idea from him. The Germans give Gutenberg the honor and set the date of his first successful practice of the art at 1436. The first entire European book ever printed from movable types bears the name of Johann Faust on its title page. It bore the name of "Tractatus Petri Hispani" and was printed at Mentz in 1442. As Gutenberg did not put his name on all of his books or the date when they were issued, there is some doubt when the first appeared or how many were issued. Gutenberg's great work was his Latin Bible, which appeared in 1456 and which is often catalogued as the "first book ever printed on movable types."

Jefferson's Idea.

Joseph Jefferson was a strong believer in early marriages, and he never missed an opportunity to impress his convictions upon young men. In an address at Yale once he said:

"I abominate bachelors. The older they grow the more conceited they become. I was talking to one and I asked him why he did not marry. He parried the question by telling me about different young women he had known, finding some fault with each one. But it appeared that all of them had married.

"You are in danger of getting left," I said to him. "You had better hurry up before it is too late."

"Oh," said the bachelor, "there are just as good fish in the sea."

"I know that," I said, "but the bait—isn't there danger of the bait becoming stale?" — Everybody's Magazine.

May Be Rewarded Hereafter.

A child is born in the neighborhood; the attending physician gets $10. The editor gives the loud lunged youngster and the happy parents a sendoff and gets $0. When it is christened the minister gets $10 and the editor gets $00. It grows up and marries. The editor publishes another long winded, flowery article and tells a dozen lies about the "beautiful and accomplished bride;" the minister gets $10 and a piece of cake and the editor gets $000. In the course of time it dies; the doctor gets from $25 to $100, the undertaker gets from $50 to $100, while the editor publishes a notice of the death and an obituary two columns long, lodge and society resolutions, a lot of poetry and a free card of thanks and gets $0,000. No wonder so many editors get rich. —Meade (Mo.) Globe.

W. J. TURNAGE, PROP

ACROBATIC DANCING.

It Was Regarded by the Ancient Greek,
With Contempt.

A passage in Herodotus tells us with what contempt the Greeks treated mere acrobatic dancing and how inferior it was considered to be to the higher art. A certain Hippocleides, having been asked to show one of the many accomplishments which entitled him to become the husband of the daughter of the tyrant of Sicyon, proceeded to display himself in the dance, and having commenced with a stately measure he then wished to show his wonderful agility, and so well did he succeed that Clisthenes, the tyrant, angrily exclaimed, "Son of Tisander, you have danced away your marriage!" refusing to have a son-in-law who was so little of an artist that he could make a boast of his mere skill. Socrates, too, had great dislike to the "wonderful tricks" which dancers could perform with their bodies and thought them very ugly. What would have been his disgust could he have seen some of our modern contortions? As in all great art, the Greeks in their dancing made use of mechanical means only in so far as they could assist in carrying out the artists' inspiration. The true artist should not be so hampered by any technical difficulties. He must be an absolute master of "technique," but never should he allow that "technique" to be the end and aim of his art. By so doing he forfeits all claim to the title of artist in the real and highest sense of that much abused word.

Looking, then, at the subject from this point of view, we can see the gulf which separates modern dancing from the Greek dancing. The modern term denotes something entirely mechanical, however pretty and pleasing our dancing masters contrive to make it by having rhythmical acrobatic feats performed by beautiful executants. Dancing in the Greek sense must be interpreted quite differently. It is rhythmical movement—and so far it is mechanical—but it is also pantomimic. It is the imitation of words by gestures, the bodily expression of a feeling.—Nineteenth Century.

Siberian Loneliness.

Mile after mile as you travel along there is no break in the monotony of this great frozen land. Everywhere is snow, everywhere the vast white plains. In the perspective of distance the very ridges melt into the general level, and as you look around you are met everywhere with the same mantle of unbroken snow. The country lies before you as an earth that is dead, so still, so motionless, so rigid is the landscape. Life has fled before the icy winds that draw out of the north, and the land you traverse is surely the land of death. There is scarcely the cry of a single bird to break upon the ear in this untenanted wilderness. The very streams are motionless masses of ice. Land there is none, and you may wander east, west, north and south without landmark to set you right. Day after day and week after week your deer will gallop along their frozen way, and your compass or, if the gray clouds will lift for awhile, the stars in the heaven above will be your only guide.—"A Winter Journey."

He Struck It Wrong.

When Tommy was about ten years old he was taken to see his grandfather, who was very rich, but extremely parsimonious. One day the old gentleman asked Tommy if he had a pocketbook. Receiving a negative answer, he said: "That's too bad. If you had a pocketbook I would give you a quarter to put in it." The next time Tommy went to see his grandfather he took care to have the pocketbook. As before, he was asked if he possessed the article mentioned, and he hastily answered affirmatively, at the same time producing it. Much to his chagrin the old miser said: "Well, now, and so you have a pocketbook, have you? I was just going to give you a quarter to buy one."

The Gastonia Gazette thinks that the claim that the original Stars and Bars, the Confederate battle flag, was first unfurled on the court house square in Louieburg, N. C., is one that is likely to attract attention at home and abroad. "It is a historic incident of no ordinary importance," says The Gazette, "and carries with it an honor of which any town or state in the South might well be proud." Yes, and you may expect to see Virginia claim it, just as she claimed the first man killed in battle.—Charlotte Chronicle.
