MRS. LULA W. CLEVE.

This Excellent Woman Passed Away.

A beautiful life on earth has ended, and the peace, sweet peace, of the life beyond begun. This afternoon a multitude of sorrowing friends paid the last tribute of respect to Mrs. Lula W. Cleve as they stood with aching hearts and tear dimmed eyes around the spot where her form was gently laid to rest until the resurrection morn.

For sometime Mrs. Cleve had been in feeble health, and for two weeks was confined to her home. Her condition became so serious that on last Thursday morning she was taken to a hospital in Norfolk where a difficult and dangerous operation was performed. Though frail and feeble she stood the operation well, and the daily tidings from her bedside that came to loved ones and friends at home gave them hopes of her ultimate recovery. These hopes were shattered when it was learned that a change for the worse took place Tuesday evening, and followed by the sad message Wednesday morning that she was dead. Her beautiful life on earth ended at 11 o'clock Tuesday night when waiting angels bore her spirit to the arms of the Savior whom she loved and served.

The remains, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. W. Goodwin, of Pailadelphia and Mrs. F. G. James, reached Greenville on Wednesday evening's train, were met at the depot by the pall bearers and many friends and taken to the home of her mother on Pitt street that she had left but a few days before. The funeral services, conducted by Rev. J. E. Ayscue, were held in the Memorial Baptist church at 5 o'clock this afternoon, the interment being in the family plot near the church. The pall bearers were J. L. Wooten, D. L. James, H. A. White, W. H. Ragsdale, R. C. Flanagan, W. F. Burch, B. E. Parham, J. C. Tyson, J. W. Perkins, W. L. Brown, B. F. Tyson and D. J. Whichard.

Mrs. Cleve was nearly 48 years of age. She was a daughter of Mrs. P. E. Dancy, and beside the aged mother is survived by three sisters and three brothers. These are Mrs. M. M. Nelson, of Greenville; Mrs. V. N. Seawell, of Faison; Mrs. J. W. Goodwin, of Philadelphia; Messrs. J. J. and F. L. Dancy, of Richmond and W. C. Dancy, of Tarboro. Mrs. Cleve was a member of the Baptist church and none was more earnest, devoted and Christlike than she. Always when health would permit she was at her place in the cauren, the Sunday school and the prayer meeting, and she was never happier than when performing some service of love to her Master. Her devotion and tenderness to her aged mother was beautiful, and her love to friends sincere.

She was also a faithful member of the church choir, giving her talent and sweet voice to the praise of Christ. Among the numerous beautiful floral tributes on her bier was a large harp as an expression of love from the choir. Her accustomed seat and the organ were draped in mourning. The infant class of the Sunday

Department Requires Signal on Mail Boxes.

The postoffice department has issued the following circular which is important to patrons of the rural free delivery service, effective July 1, 1906:

1. On and after July 1, 1906, patrons of the rural delivery service will be required to display signals on their boxes when they leave mail in them for carriers to collect, as, after that date, carriers, when serving their routes, will not be required to open and examine any small mail boxes except those to which they have mail to deliver and those on which signals are displayed to indicate there is mail for carriers to collect.

2. Those patrons whose boxes are not provided with signals must attach thereto some device which, when displayed, will plainly show passing carriers there is mail to be collected. It is not necessary that such device shall be either complicated or costly; a very simple arrangement will answer the purpose.

3. Carriers must lower the signals on boxes after making collections, provided no mail is left therein; and must display the signals when they deposit mail for patrons, unless the patrons have made request to the contrary.

Going to Be Married.

In France it used to be necessary to have a certificate of confession before a fellow could get married, and on one occasion a young man went to the priest for this purpose and observed:

"You may take it, father, I have committed all the sins that a gentleman could."

"Are you sorry?" inquired the priest. "Quite penitent?"

"M—yes," replied the other.

"Then depart in peace and sin no more," said the priest.

"Is there no penance, holy father?" asked the young man.

"Did you not say you were going to be married, my son?" answered the holy man—Kansas City Independent.

school, the ladies' societies of the church and many friends also showed their esteem in beautiful floral designs.

Mrs. Cleve was an admirable woman in every way. She was gentle in disposition and manners, lovable in character, bright and cheerful at all times, even when suffering, patient and forbearing, cultured and easy in every place, thoughtful and generous, and ever true and faithful to duty. She was known for her earnest and noble devotion to her Christian duties, consecrated in her life as she walked in the footsteps of her Savior. She will be missed in the church and in her home.

A patient, consecrated and loving life of a true woman is the most beautiful thing God has given to earth. Such was Mrs. Cleve, and fond recollection of her will dwell in the memories of those who knew her best. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labor; and their works do follow them."

A LAW OF EXCEPTIONS.

The Free Pass Amendment of the Senate to the Railway Rate Bill.

Our readers have had the news that the Culberson anti-pass amendment to the railroad rate bill was adopted. When the rumor got abroad that the rate bill was to carry an amendment that would kill the free pass industry, a great howl went out from all parts of the country. We believe that Salisbury and Spencer made special prayers to Senator Overman to see what could be done in the way of serving the free pass. Well, the much dreaded Culberson amendment was voted into the bill and free passes are to be cut off—except to—

Officers of the railroads and their families.

Agents of the railroads and their families.

Employees of the railroads and their families.

Attorneys of the railroads and their families.

Physicians and surgeons in the employ and their families.

Female nurses who served in the civil war.

Ministers of religion and their families.

Inmates of hospitals and eleemosynary and charitable institutions.

Destitute and homeless persons.

Destitute and homeless persons transported by charitable societies and hospitals and their necessary agents employed in such transportation.

Inmates of the national homes or State homes for disabled volunteer soldiers or former union soldiers or sailors.

Inmates of soldiers and sailors' homes, including not only those who ever entered, but those "who would be able to enter" if they felt so disposed, and those on their way to friends after being discharged from the homes.

Persons who are either traveling with some live stock or going to travel with some if they can get the job.

Laborers who are going from one place to another where they think they can get a raise in wages.

It seems from this that even brick yard hands can get a pass: About the only class of citizens that are barred out are those who are barred in the jail. The anti-pass law might properly be called a law of exceptions. The editorial fraternity does not seem to be specially provided for unless it comes under the head of "destitute and homeless persons," which, translated into plain English means tramps. The anti-pass amendment seems to be provided with more pockets than the jacket of an automobile driver.—Charlotte Chronicle.

VALUE OF ADVERTISING.

Every Large Business Needs Someone to Look After This End of the Business.

The Columbia State in a recent issue published the following notice which is applicable to Greenville as it is to the readers of The State.

"No successful merchant expects his business to grow of itself and he ought not to expect any department of the business to manage itself. Yet a great many merchants seem to conduct the advertising end of their business just this way. They wait till the last minute to prepare the copy, when it should be prepared with the greatest of care and thought. If they would devote the same care to telling the public of the merits of the goods as they do in buying them they would find the profits accumulating faster. An Advertising Department is what every large business needs, with some one whose special business it is to know the stock and push the sales through the medium of printer's ink."

GRIMESLAND ITEMS.

GRIMESLAND, N. C., May 23.

Quite a number of our people attended the closing exercises of the Winterville High School last week some could not stand the dust so went by rail.

Mrs. J. O. Proctor and Mrs. Jennie Forbes went to Washington Friday.

It has been dry so long the farmers are a blue looking crowd.

D. G. Moore and Miss Ada Ward spent Sunday at Miss Ada's home near Pactolus.

Mrs. Lydia Proctor, of House, is spending sometime with her children here.

Mrs. G. A. Daniel, after spending several weeks with her brother E. D. Holliday went home Friday.

We all just had to go to Black Jack Sunday.

H. H. Proctor wants to know if the weather forecast will be fair tonight and tomorrow.

Our R. F. D. carrier is feeling pretty independant, as his average is running over three thousand.

The B. F. U. girls will get home Wednesday night.

W. E. Proctor has been sick but is much better.

We are about to have too many good things at once the Timothy Band will give us a treat at the Christian church Sunday and on Tuesday night, May 29th we will have a commencement given by Miss Ada Ward's school at this place. Every one who wants to have a good time come both times.

Oh; if it would only rain.

Miss Fannie Hardee, of Greenville and Mrs. Rouse spent Wednesday night with Mrs. J. O. Proctor.

Was that an earthquake Oh; no only the down fall of mother skater.

Joe. Warren spent Sunday in town. How do I know? Why I heard him laugh.

Thomas Proctor spent Friday

PERSONAL MENTION.

Of Those Going and Coming

H. C. Hooker and Sam Foster left this morning for Salisbury.

J. L. Sugg returned from down the road Wednesday evening.

Col. I. A. Sugg returned from Seven Springs Wednesday evening.

Mark Williams returned from down the road Wednesday evening.

Miss Pattie Coffey returned his morning from Rocky Mount.

The special is getting a bad habit, it was an hour late again today.

D. S. Chapman went to Winterville Wednesday evening and returned this morning.

Miss Fannie Peel, of Portsmouth, came in Wednesday evening to visit Miss Esie Vincent.

Mrs. Christian, of Abauna, came in Wednesday evening to visit Mrs. J. F. Brinkley.

Miss M. M. Brinkley who had been attending the Baptist Female University at Raleigh returned Wednesday evening.

Mrs. C. B. Whichard and children and Mrs. Abrams returned this morning from Rocky Mount.

Cotton Acreage.

President C. C. Moore, of the North Carolina division of the Southern Cotton Association, has issued the last blanks to the various cotton countries for reports on the acreage planted in cotton this year, and the condition of the crop. He will leave for Jackson, Miss., to attend the meeting of the states presidents, May 30.

In his last letter to the growers, Mr. Moore says; "There will be a meeting of the officers of the Southern Cotton Association at Jackson, Miss., May 31, for the purpose of issuing a report on acreage. They want this report to come out in advance of the government report. They also want it to prove to be so accurate that it cannot be successfully attacked. They want it so fair as to inspire the confidence of the government officials and every one interested in cotton. Not only this; but we want it accurate for our own good. If there is a decrease in acreage we want to know just what decrease amounts to. If there has been an increase we want to know just what that increase is. There is no one in as bad condition as the man who knows nothing about the condition of his own business. The cotton farmers above all people should know the exact condition of the cotton crops."

night in the country with little Hickey Galloway.

J. L. Gibson and family spent Sunday with Bu'us Galloway and family.

Edward Godley and family, of Chowinits, spent Sunday with W. S. Eiks, of this place.

Mrs. W. E. Proctor and little daughter, Earl, went to Greenville Tuesday.

Miss Helen Galloway was in town Tuesday afternoon shopping and visiting.

Miss Maud Holliday went over to Pactolus Tuesday night to show the girls how to skate.

CONDENSED STORIES.

When Germany Beat Ireland in a Contest of Wits.

Richard J. Barry, better known as Dick, of Irish parentage, is, or has been, the Democratic boss of the Fifth ward, Manchester, N. H., and for a long time represented the ward as alderman. Christian L. Wolff was during Dick's term of office alderman from the Eighth ward in the same city, in which many Germans reside, he being of that nationality. Dick occasionally got one on Wolff, but one morning there was a different story.

Dick was plumbing inspector, and Wolff was a master plumber. Dick came into the office one Monday morning a few minutes late, as usual, with a broad smile on his face, and announced that Wolff would be in shortly and that he would have some fun with him, because the Mannaerchor club, of which Wolff was a member, had, contrary to its usual custom, indulged in a bloody row the day before at its clubhouse at Lake Massabesic.

Wolff did show up, and as he came in Dick straightened up in his chair and said: "Ah, ha! Us Germans were good to ourselves yesterday!"

Without a quiver came back this answer: "Yes, we played Irish." For once Dick had no answer.

Too Pious For Natt Head.

When General Natt Head was governor of New Hampshire he once applied to a well known clergyman to write for him a Thanksgiving proclamation. The clergyman wrote out what he considered an appropriate proclamation and sent it to Governor Head for approval. The next day the governor appeared, and the following conversation ensued:

"Well, governor, what do you think of the proclamation?"

"T'won't do."

"Why, what is the matter with it?"

"Too pious! Anybody'd know Natt Head never wrote that."—Boston Herald.

If Russia keeps on assassinating them the trouble will ere long end itself by the empire going to pieces.

There is no reason in the world why Greenville should sit still and let the neighboring towns all outstrip her in the way of progress.

The papers have recently contained accounts of many burglaries and attempts to crack safes. People should put their money in the banks instead of keeping it around to tempt robbers.

It is evident that the near future is going to show wonderful development in Eastern North Carolina. If Greenville is to get her share of this and keep pace with the march of progress, she must be up and doing.

Durham is one of the towns that goes about to do things. A chamber of commerce was recently organized there, nearly every business man in the town joining it. Now that chamber of commerce has gone to work to induce the Raleigh & Pamlico Sound railroad not to stop in Raleigh but to go on to Durham, where more railroads center than at Raleigh. That is the way to do—be organized, see what you want and go after it.

Greenville must put down the spirit of rivalry and narrowness in business and take up the broader idea of helpfulness and co-operation if the town is to take the progressive stand it ought to occupy. There will not be much going forward with every man merely working for himself and against his neighbor. All come together with the spirit and determination to do something for the advancement of the town. What helps one business helps all others. Encourage every business enterprise already here and reach out to bring more.

NO CHANCE FOR REFORM.

Once a Criminal Always a Criminal the Theory of the Law.

Berkman, the man who made an attempt on the life of H. C. Frick during the Homestead strike, was released from prison this week after serving 14 years. He was immediately told to leave the city, which he said he would be glad to do. The point at issue is, whether it is wise for a State to carry out the policy towards offenders "once a criminal always a criminal." Here is a man who served his 23 years out, gaining nine years by good behavior. He is met by officers and detectives who tell him to move on and the report says that he will be kept under surveillance for all time. If there were any of the human left in a man, such treatment as this would set him for all time against the authorities. It is calculated to make an anarchist and a devil out of a man. If the fellow's spirit has been broken from the long confinement he does not need to be pushed on. If the man had not reformed in prison the authorities should have kept them there during the full 23 years. If Frick is responsible for such hounding as this fellow is getting, he must live in dread that he might give his detectives the slip some day and just settle the thing. There are few States whose policy in dealing with criminals tends to reform them. In most cases they make hardened criminals out of petty offenders—High Point Enterprise.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Alfred Dunnegan, an old negro man, late yesterday afternoon met death in a very unusual way by falling in a well. The good darter was fishing for a well bucket, and it seems that the earth around the well was rather loose and all at once the side he was standing on caved in and carried him to the bottom with it. The top of the well and several large rocks fell on his body, mashing him to death.—Durham.

SECURITY TO DEPOSITORS

A National Bank

Is under the supervision of the United States government,

They are required to submit to the government a sworn detailed statement five times a year. The stockholders are held responsible for double the amount of their stock, which has to be paid in, in CASH, and held in tact for the protection of the depositors. Further, the Bank has to add to its surplus account each year before declaring a dividend. This adds more to the depositors security.

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as

Double seats, double knees extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

ABUSE OF THE STOMACH.

Crime of Overeating and the Best Way to Avoid It.

The practice of consuming more food than is required for the nutrition of the body is a very old one. In order to correct it Hippocrates, about 400 years before Christ, advocated the omission of breakfast, a custom that has recently become popular in many places.

The harmfulness of overeating is not so much in the increased burden thrown upon the digestive organs as in the production of an excessive amount of poisonous matter which may become dangerous to life if retained in the system. The poisons are produced either by decomposition of the undigested food or through defective transformation within the organs and tissues.

Most injurious are the products of decomposing animal food—meat, eggs and shellfish—and since the kidneys are engaged more than other organs in the removal of this class of poison, the first indications of serious injury are often found in them.

Before permanent organic disease has been produced, however, there are generally repeated evidences of poisoning of the system in the form of indigestion, headache, vertigo, neuralgic pains, rheumatism, gout or an indefinite sense of illness. Then the appetite fails, the sufferer reduces the amount of food and obtains relief. There may be, however, a sudden alarming attack resembling apoplexy and even more fatal in its result.

When an improvement of the health is recognizable after an accidental or experimental restriction of the diet it should be taken as an indication that the mode of living has not been altogether correct. But it is not always an easy matter to decide upon the best means of correcting the error. A change of diet may fail of the desired effect if it be too abrupt or too radical, and privation is not advisable in all cases. A certain bulkiness of the food is necessary both to comfort and to good digestion, and in many cases an excess is only a relative one. The abandonment of certain articles of food, with more complete mastication of others, is often better than a decrease of the entire quantity consumed. Sometimes indeed the difficulty can be overcome by the administration of laxatives, increased consumption of water and more active exercise. These things enable the system to utilize more fully the food that is eaten.

To determine intelligently the course of treatment in most cases involves an investigation of the digestive capability of the stomach and an examination of the functional integrity of other organs. It is generally more expedient therefore to submit the case to the physician than to be governed by abstract rules or the experiences of other people.—Youth's Companion.

HARVEST OF THE SEA.

A Peculiar Occupation Followed Off the Coast of Ireland.

Along the northwest coast of Ireland, on the borders of the Atlantic, dwells a hardy race of men whose chief occupation, when not engaged in fishing, consists in the manufacture of kelp.

This kelp is of great commercial importance, as from it is obtained nearly all our iodine, a body of vast use in medicine.

During the winter months the kelp burners set out in their frail little "currachs" (small canoe-like boats about twelve feet long, made of canvas), and, proceeding along the coast, fill the boats with seaweed, from which the kelp is made. In this they are assisted by the women, who, bareheaded and shoeless, take their turn regularly at the oars and are almost as expert at it as the men.

After a storm is the time selected for obtaining the seaweed, as by the force of the waves it has been torn from its bed and is cast in along the shore in large quantities.

When the boats are laden the seaweed is brought to a small creek and there placed in heaps out of reach of the tide. From this it is carried in creels on the backs of men and women to a point farther inland, where it has to undergo a process of drying.

The drying consists in exposing it to the sun and wind, and the better to do this they have rows of loose stones laid about twenty yards in length and a few feet in height. Along the tops of these they scatter the seaweed.

The drying takes months, so that spring is well advanced ere it is ready for burning. This does not matter, however, as, owing to the fuel—the peat, or turf, got from the bogs at hand—not being yet cut and dried (or "win," as it is termed), it is summer before the burning in the kilns can commence.

The kiln is a deep trench dug in the ground. Alternate layers of turf and seaweed are laid in this till full, and the whole is kept burning for about three weeks, until it cakes together in a large black mass resembling coke, but much more solid and heavier. This is the kelp.

It is then broken into blocks about fourteen inches square and brought by boat to the villages, where it is sold, to be shipped to more profitable markets.—London Standard.

Refined Torture.

The wife of a well known official in Washington holds some novel ideas with reference to the punishment of refractory children. Physical chastisement is most repugnant to this lady's mind, but she has evolved a unique system that has proved most successful. On one occasion a friend was visiting her when one of the boys had surreptitiously appropriated an orange belonging to his younger brother. The misdemeanor was discovered before the culprit had disposed of his spoil. So the two youngsters were summoned to the judgment seat.

"James," was the stern command of the mother, "take this seat, and you, Thomas, that one. Now, Thomas, give James the orange you have stolen from him."

When the lads had done as they were ordered the mother added:

"James, I want you to take as long as possible to eat that orange. You, Thomas, are to sit there and watch him eat it. Under no circumstances are you to leave the room."—Harper's Weekly.

Had a Better Start.

It is difficult to get Daddy Nixon, the village centenarian, to view life with the seriousness which would appear to be natural to a man of his age. But a really earnest man never despairs, and Mr. Sleeker is a really earnest man. He pays a visit to daddy every Christmas morning, and just as he was concluding his call on the last occasion he took the opportunity to make another attempt.

"Now, daddy," he commenced, "probably you will not live to see another hundred years."

"Well, mon," interrupted the old fellow testily, "we dinna ken the future, but one thing I kin—I ha'e begun my second hundred years ruckle stronger and heartier than I did my first."

And Mr. Sleeker had to admit that it was even so.—Exchange.

ANIMALS AND DEATH.

The Difference Between Wild Beasts and Domestic Species.

Animals realize intuitively when death is near. Most animals, excepting pet animals, who are assured of what one might call a Christian burial in the back yard, have prompt extinction and no flowers to look forward to, for haven't they often come across the bones of their once loved mates slowly whitening under the blue of heaven?

Savage beasts actually "prepare" for death with a fine composure unshadowed by any possibility of subsequent "will contests." So called domestic animals, while not showing the fear characteristic of their masters, become strangely clinging and dependent and seem to dread separation from the human beings to whom they are attached.

It is natural for most wild animals to die in combat with an enemy, and while the combat lasts there is hope of escape.

When a number of elephants are shipped a strong structure is erected on deck, and there they are stabled, chained by the feet. In an emergency they could easily walk away with their chains and the deck flooring, throwing the stable aside if it offered any impediment to their progress, as was shown in the case of the sinking of the ship Agra some years since. The Agra was swinging at anchor off Ceylon preparatory to her journey to America when she sprung a leak and quickly sank. The elephants set up a call, but there was no despair in the noise that followed. It was the businesslike sound of crashing timber, and before the Agra had reached bottom a herd of elephants were swimming to Ceylon.

M. Jules Gerard, a great French student of animals, tells of a lion which, having fallen into a great ditch that had been dug for him, resigned himself after several ineffectual efforts to escape. He heard the cries of delight of the men who saw him trapped. He understood that he was lost—that he was about to die an ignominious and defenseless death.

But it was his way to receive the injuries that were to come to him without sound of protest. After taking a dozen bullets without moving he lifted his fine head with a majestic movement to cast a look of scorn on the Arabs who were aiming at him their final shots. Then he lay down resigned to death.

A Metaphor.

When a traveler has once found out that he has taken the right train and is aware that the bringing of him to his destination can in no way be helped by himself he is wise to extract all the pleasure possible from the few hours of idleness that he must pass. It seems to me that the secret of good reading may be suggested by a comparison with the traveler on the railroad. He should be at the same time doing two things—advancing steadily toward his destination and finding all possible enjoyment on the way. Young readers should have in mind some object or purpose in their reading and studies, but while they are steadily advancing toward this they should remember that there are times and seasons which may be devoted to recreation and amusement of the mind. Of course the comparison is not exact, but there never was a fable capable of more than suggesting a moral.—St. Nicholas.

Dandruff Remedy.

Forty-eight grains of resorcin, one-fourth of an ounce of glycerin, diluted alcohol to fill a two ounce bottle. Apply to the roots of the hair by means of a medicine dropper or a small brush, and rub in well with the finger tips.

When plush photograph frames become faded and spoiled they may be freshened up with salt. Sprinkle the salt thickly over the plush, rub well with a soft brush, let it stand for fifteen minutes and then brush off.

Nothing too GOOD

FOR

OUR CUSTOMERS

We are always looking for something better; always working to secure values and styles superior to other stores. when

The Ladies Home Journal

began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. we said to ourselves,

 THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

Is the leading Womens Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We knew that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as the Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other pattern. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guard Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
