GRADED SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT.

Splendid Exercises in the Opera House.

There was another very large crowd present Friday night at the last of the closing exercises. While it was not quite so large as on the previous night, more grown people were present and the exercises made a deep impression upon all. They were of a high order and bore strong evidence of the fine work done in the school. The program was as follows:

Festival Procession March Rathbun
Misses Carrie Gay and Elise Vincent
Hungarian Gipsy Dance Horvath
Myrtle Warren
Thesis: Chivalry, The Old and the New Levi Ames Brown
Mazurka Goldbeck
Mattie Moyer King
Thesis: The Shadow Side of Genius Lee Moyer Brown
Instrumental Solo—Thoughts of Thee F. Wenzel
Miss Carrie Gay.
Thesis: The Passing of the Old Field School Nellie Pender
Instrumental Solo—The Lotus Flower Baker
Miss Erise Vincent
La Gazza-Ladra Rossine
Misses Patrick, Brown and Schultz
Annual Literary Address
Rev. N. M. Watson, Wilmington, N. C.
La Baladine—Duet Chas. D. Lysberg
Misses Patrick and Schultz
Presentation of Diplomas F. C. Harding, Esq.

One musical selection was to have been rendered by Misses James and Carr, but owing to the death of a relative of the former she could not take part, and in its place was the trio by Misses Patrick, Brown and Schultz.

The theses by the three members of the first graduating class of the school were splendid. Each subject was treated in a manner that showed thorough study and careful preparation. The delivery was perfect and both subject and presentation reflected highest credit upon each of these young people.

The literary address of Rev. N. M. Watson was delivered in his usual good style and force. He began with a comparison of the educational advantages of the past and present and referred with gratification to Greenville's old academy building of many years' career being supplanted by our present handsome graded school structure.

There are three factors in education, the state, the church and the individual. These ought to be one in idea, but a pronounced division crept in between church and state. This was not the idea of the original founders of our government. Religion was discarded from the declaration of independence, yet this was far from the idea of the first settlers of this country when they knelt upon our shores and dedicated it to Almighty God. Churches and schools were built by the same people, and in many instances the preacher and the teacher were one and the same person.

For more than a hundred years the government has been secular, yet it has conducted a school system. Religion as a factor in the schools has been driven out, and about all that remains is reading a few verses from the Bible and repeating the Lord's prayer. The state had the right to select the course of study for the schools, but he had a thousand times rather see the Bible left out than that it should be only classed with ordinary text books for the mere study of the printed page.

Much has been said in late years about Christian education, but Christianity in the lives of the teachers is preferable. What the teacher is and not what he can teach from the text books should be the qualification required. The pupil gets more from the life of the teacher than from the printed page. The fight should not be on whether the Bible is taught in the school, but on the character of the teacher.

He then discussed three propositions. First, let the money raised by the state for educational purposes be divided between the several denominations according to strength and let them conduct the schools, the state only having enough control to guarantee the proper use of the money. This is the Catholic idea and is not practical. It has been tried in Europe and proved unsuccessful. In this country it would advance Catholicism to the undermining of our institutions and would incite religious wrangling.

Second, let the state abandon education entirely and leave the work to the churches and private individuals. There are too many ifs about this, and too many people would soon be wanting to contribute only what went to the education of their children. Look at the struggle the denominational schools have had for existence and the impracticability of this idea will be seen. Let us thank God for the system of taxation that maintains the schools.

This brings the third and only practical proposition. Let the church and state both do all possible for education, and work in the spirit of harmony. This brings the best results.

He congratulated Greenville that in point of her schools religious and political lines had been abolished, and urged that it keep free from the entanglements of politics and sectarianism.

Following the address Mr. F. C. Harding presented the diplomas to the three graduating pupils—Levi Ames Brown and Misses Lee Moyer Brown and Nellie Pender. His presentation remarks were in most beautiful language. He said these exercises marked an epoch in the history of Greenville, these being the first graduates of any school here, and the work of our graded school being of such high order that its diploma would admit pupils to the university and colleges of the state free of entrance examination.

Prof. H. B. Smith, superintendent of the school, stated that Evans' Book Store had offered a fountain pen to the pupil of the school making the highest mark in English literature. His examination showed that Miss Lee Moyer Brown had reached this distinction and the pen was presented to her.

Prof. Smith then read the names of the following pupils entitled to distinction for perfect attendance, not having missed a day from school nor been tardy:

First grade—Douglas Arthur, Arthur Brown, Exum Rives.

Second grade—James Perkins, Effie Corey.

Third grade—Christine Johnson, Fannie Smith.

Fourth grade—Pattie Wooten,

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Weldon, N. C. May 24—Burglars last night broke into the store of the Pierce-Whitehead Hardware Company and carried off over $300 worth of goods, principally pistols and cutlery.

High Point, N. C. May 24—As a result of an attempt to gain their liberty this morning James B. McMillan, white, and Jessie Tomlinson, negro, convicts, at the camp near here, are dead. Three negroes, who ran with them made their escape. The negro was killed outright. McMillan was shot through the back and died a few hours afterwards.

Concord, N. C., May 24.—Sam Barnhardt, the 15-year-old son of John Barnhardt, of Cold Springs, No. 8 township, killed himself this evening, the deed being done with a shot gun. The shoe of the right foot had been removed, and with this he had evidently pulled the trigger, holding the muzzle of the gun in his left hand, which was badly scorched. The load from a single-barrel gun went into the head and death was instantaneous.

Who Was It?

We are informed of a bloody fight that occurred on the Coast Line Passenger train between Richmond and Weldon one day last week. It seems that a native of the north came out of a Pullman car to smoke and became engaged in conversation with a Southerner, a native of Greenville this State. In some way they became involved in a dispute about the North and South and began to fight. They were separated, but while the southerner was at the water cooler, the Northerner hit him with a pair of metal knuckles, bringing the blood. They clinched and the southerner got his combatant down between seats and stamped his foot in his face. He was pulled off his adversary and the latter said he had enough and went back to the Pullman.—Rocky Mount Record May 24th.

Several members of Greenville Masonic Lodge went to Grifton today to attend the funeral of Mr. Claude Quinerly.

Grace Smith, Ficklen Arthur, Louis Arthur, Joe McGowan, Bennie Taylor, Bessie Corey, Nellie Williams.

Fifth grade—Lucille Tripp, Mary Brown, Nina Harris, Maggie Savage, Linda Smith.

Sixth grade—Nannie Bowling, Willie Ragsdale.

Eighth grade—Harry White.

Prof. Smith then referred briefly to the work of the school and what he hoped it should accomplish in the future and in closing thanked the people for the interest they had taken in the exercises by attending in such large numbers, and in fitting words thanked the Masonic fraternity, who he said were always the aids in education, for the use of the opera house in which to hold the commencement.

RUNAWAY MARRIAGE.

Couple From Kinston Came Here to Wed.

On Friday afternoon Mr. Albert Brown and Miss Maggie Chestnut, both of Kinston, were married at the home of Mr. A. L. Potter, near Greenville, Elder W. H. Laughinghouse officiating.

The couple runaway from Kinston, Thursday night and first went to Snow Hill where an unsuccessful effort was made to get license. They then came on here but were afraid to come in town and stopped at the home of Mr. Potter, near town, and sent in for the license and a preacher. After being married they came on in town and waited for the evening train to take them back to Kinston.

The bride once lived in Greenville her parents moving from here when she was a little girl. She is said to now be only 17 years old.

JONES FOR THE HOUSE.

BETHEL, N. C., May 25th.
Editor Reflector:

For several years past it has been conceded that the north side of the river is entitled to one of the members of the lower House of the Legislature. If this is true he ought to be a man who lives in reality on this side of the river. We have a right also to name a representative man and a man who would be acceptable to the people. Such a man Bethel township has in the person of S. M. Jones. He has served the public a number of years and done so without any cause for criticism. He is capable, honest and attentive to every duty imposed upon him. He is informed as to the needs of the county. He has convictions and the courage to arrest them. He is one of the best farmers on this side of the river and knows the needs of the farming class as well as any man in the county. He has succeeded in his own business and can be trusted to attend strictly to the duties of a legislator. He is a man who would regard the wishes of his constituents. Bethel township nominates S. M. Jones for the lower House of the Legislature, believing that in doing so, she presents a man acceptable to every township on the north side of the river, and we believe that such a man is the man that the south side will delight to help nominate in the convention.

WHEN HE QUAILED.

An old soldier is a mighty privileged person sometimes. And nowhere is this more clearly shown than at the Home theater. Out there if an old boy doesn't like the show he gets up and leaves. Not long ago "Richard III." was given at the home to an audience of varied and mingled emotions. One old man had followed the play breathlessly until it came to Richard's famous haunted dream. As the specters began to file out behind the bed the old man leaned forward and gasped, "Good Lord, look at the ghosts!" and, grabbing his cane in his hand, he beat a hasty retreat. He had stayed by Richard through all of his wickedness, had hissed him when he had killed his relatives by squads and bunches, had gripped his chair hard to keep from going down and laying him out when he had ordered the murder of the prince—but this last was too much. When the ghosts appeared the man who had faced the cannons turned and fled. —Leavenworth Times.

Victor Hugo's Modesty.

Victor Hugo liked to be praised. Robert Harborough Sherard, author of "Twenty Years in Paris," tells how when young women from England or America came to gaze upon the master, as occasionally it was permitted them to do, the interpreter of their simple praises did not boggle matters in the least. The young ladies would say in English or American something like this: "Oh, tell Mr. Hugo that we have read his works and like them so much and that we are so pleased to see him." These seemingly encomiums would be rendered thus: "Illustrious master, these young daughters of the young republic (or of an antique monarchy, as the case might be) feel it impossible to leave Paris without laying at the feet of that genius which is the imperishable glory of France and the wonder and honor of the universe the laurel wreath of their profoundest admiration and homage."

Her Reason.

A little girl attended a distribution of prizes given by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She had won a book as a reward for writing the best essay on the subject given and, with the other successful children, was undergoing a viva voce examination.

"Well, my dear," said the gentleman who had given away the prizes, "can you tell me why it is cruel to dock horses' tails and trim dogs' ears?"

"Because," answered the little girl, "what God had joined together let no man put asunder."

• Both of One Mind.

"Please be very careful," said the nervous lady at the hairdresser's to the attendant, who was twirling a smoking hot curling iron in her fingers preparatory to plunging it into the victim's hanging locks. "I hate to have my hair scorched."

"Oh, yes, indeed; I'm always careful," chirped the highly perfumed and pompadoured girl who was presiding over the tongs. "There's nothing worse to me than the smell of burning hair."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Enemies of the Panama canal are chuckling gleefully over the thought that after all there may be no action by Congress on the type of canal at this session and that the whole question will have to go over or else that the President will be forced to proceed on his own initiative, which he has a right to do under the law.

It looks as though the next place where there might be a house cleaning is the patent office. The big bureau is in worse shape than it has been for years past. The examiners are eight months behind in their work in some divisions and there is no prospect of their catching up. This means that if a man puts in an application for a patent it will be eight months before the government gets ready to take a look at it. After that it may be a year or two years before the patent is ready to issue. The trouble is principally with the head of the office. He is a man who has held the position for a long time, and like a good many other officials who have had a long term on a fat salary he has let his department get into the habit of running itself. The result is that though the examining force has recently been increased by Congress, the increase has only left more time for a good many of them to smoke, visit and gossip. The work is piling up meantime and there is little prospect of the force catching up with it under the present management. The patent office is one of the few departments of the government that is self supporting. It is much more than that. The office now not only pays its own way but has brought in a revenue of $4,000,000 to the government.

There is every prospect that there will be a battle royal over the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company. No one doubts that such a prosecution is contemplated, though the Department of Justice tries to look wise and the Commissioner of Corporations is more mysterious than ever about the preparations. A good enough reason for the coming prosecution is that it will be good politics. Whether the corporation will be convicted or not is a question. In view of all the lucky escapes it has had in the past it is very doubtful if it will.

The weather hot sultry and sticky today just like it wanted to rain.

Seventeen Mutes Confirmed--An Impressive Service.

It is seldom that one witnesses such a service, impressive in its stillness and solemnity, as was that held in St. Phillips' church last night, when seventeen deaf mutes were received into the church by the Episcopal rites of confirmation. There are only 22 or 23 deaf mutes in the community, and last night seventeen of these were taken into communion with the Episcopal church. In the chancel were the Rt. Rev. J. B. Cheshire, bishop of the diocese of North Carolina, Rev. Oliver J. Whildin, missionary to the deaf mutes in the

SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as

Double seats, double knees extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

SLOUCHED HATS.

They Once Caused a Riot With Great Loss of Life in Spain.

Has not some one calculated that a sixth part of the memoirs of St. Simon in the original is occupied with the controversy whether or not the president of parliament should wear his hat or put it on the desk when performing various functions? At length the matter was compromised. The Tiers-etat should wear a chapeau rabattu, which had the slouched brim pinned up. This childish quarrel was remembered, no doubt, when the states general met and the king harangued them. His speech over, he put on his hat, and the noblesse did likewise, according to their privilege. The commons had no such claim, but they also clapped on their chapeaux rabattus, amid fierce protests from the nobles. The revolution might have begun that day with a scrimmage in the king's presence had he not removed his own hat, when all, of course, did the same.

But slouched hats had already caused a riot in Spain, which lasted so long and cost so many lives that it might almost be termed a civil war. This was twenty years earlier. Charles III. thought them untidy. He thought the streets of his capital untidy also and denounced both eyesores in an edict. Every Spaniard henceforth must pin up his slopping brim, and every household-er of Madrid must clean the street opposite his premises. Forthwith the people rose. They were little interested comparatively in the street cleaning, but they would die for their hats. And a good many of them did, but not unavenged. More than a week the fray lasted, but it was thought remarkable by foreign observers that at 2 p. m. regularly the soldiers piled arms, the furious citizens withdrew and silence reigned for one hour. Both parties were enjoying the siesta except perhaps the wounded. After that interval they recommenced. The king fled, and for the rest of his life he never returned to Madrid willingly. In fact, it was understood he designed to make Seville the capital henceforth and only gave up the project when his ministers showed him what a vast sum he had already spent on the new palace. So mighty may be the influence of the hat in state affairs. Finally the king compromised. He withdrew his edict so far as the realm at large was concerned. Within the walls of Madrid every man must wear his brim pinned up, but outside he was at liberty to let it slouch. But the police courts did not cease to be busy until the fashion changed.

AMUSING BLUNDERS.

Some Queer Slips That Have Been Made by Famous Writers.

The writer of an article in the Yorkshire Post recalls some amusing literary blunders. Translators contribute largely to the list of mistakes, and the inspired lack of accuracy of our Gallic neighbors when dealing with things English is proverbial. Victor Hugo in "Les Tra-vailleurs de la Mer" translates "the Firth of Forth" by the words "Premier des quatre." Then there is the priceless translation that gave Ciber's play, "Love's Last Shift," the title "La Dernière Chemise de l'Amour."

Chaucer in his tale of Troilus makes Pandarus refer to Robin Hood. One writer records the fact that Virgil placed Aeneas in a harbor which had no existence at that time, "the blunder being about the same as if a modern poet were to make Columbus pass through the Suez canal."

Mediaeval romance teems with anachronisms, "Orlando Furioso," Ariosto's great poem, taking the prize for reckless disregard of chronology. In this work Charlemagne and Edward, king of England; Henry, duke of Clarence, and other mis-mated celebrities enjoy each other's company. The Moors are settled in Spain at least 300 years before the Saracens invited them, while Prester John, who died in 1202, and Constantine the Great, dead in 337, figure gayly in these daring pages.

Schiller in his "Piccolomini" refers to lightning conductors 150 years before they were invented, and Shakespeare, whose genius included a happy gift of inaccuracy, is generous in blunder. In "Julius Caesar" the clock, a luxury unknown to the Romans, is the subject of conversation between Brutus and Cassius. "Peace," says Brutus, "count the clock." Cassius: "The clock has stricken 3." It must have been several hundred years after the death of Caesar that striking clocks were invented. Cervantes is responsible for making the company at the Crescent tavern sit down twice to supper on the same evening, a jovial mistake that savors of hospitality and good cheer.

To Charles Dickens we owe gratitude for many a delicious blunder—to Mr. Squeers for setting his boys to work to hoe turnips in midwinter and to the girl, Tattycoram, in "Little Dorrit," who enters "with an iron box two feet square under her arm."

It was a Glasgow paper that described this unique shipping disaster: "The captain swam ashore, as did also the stewardess. She was insured for £3,000 and carried 200 tons of pig iron."

ready Next Time.

There seems to be an occasional slight misunderstanding as to the nature of the aurora. Certain people have indeed regarded it as a fixed appearance, as regular in its course as the sun and moon. When a beautiful display took place not long since a certain lady was asked next morning if she had seen it.

"No," said she in an aggrieved tone. "Did you?"

"Oh, yes! We watched it for a long time."

"And I saw you that very afternoon, and you didn't tell me there was going to be one!"

Of a more cheerful and contented nature was another lady who was in Paris during a fine appearance of these "northern lights."

"Did you see the aurora last night?" asked a friend.

"No; I didn't know there was one."

"Oh, yes! It was perfectly beautiful. You ought to have been out watching it, as we were."

"Well, I'm sorry," quoth she, "but never mind. I'll see it tonight!"

The Planet Venus.

Venus is the earth's nearest planetary neighbor and on that account an interesting subject. Her greatest distance from the sun is 67,705,000 miles and her least 66,787,000, which makes her orbit nearly circular. At times, when she gets between us and the sun, she is only 4,000,000 miles away. At another time, when the planet is beyond the sun in a straight line from us, she is 162,000,000 miles from us. Venus is 7,700 miles in diameter, which makes her volume 92 per cent that of the earth. On the earth falling bodies travel 16.09 feet the first second; on Venus only 13 1/2 feet. Venus receives twice the light and heat that the earth does, and her year is only 224 days and a fraction in length.

TATTOOING.

It Seems to Have Originated in Early Religious Customs.

What is the origin of tattooing? Religion, which has so much power over peoples and which proves so obstinate in preserving ancient customs, has certainly contributed to maintain it among the more barbarous part of our population. We see a quasi official proof of it at Lorette. Those who cultivate a devotion for a saint believe that by engraving his image on their flesh they will give him a proof, a clear testimony, of their love. We know that the Phoenicians marked the sign of their divinity on their foreheads (Ewald, Judaischen Alterthum, iii). In the Marshall islands they have to ask the permission of the gods to tattoo themselves, and the priests alone in New Zealand perform the office of tattooing (Scherzer). Lubbock adds to this that a woman who does not wear a tattoo mark cannot enjoy eternal felicity. The women of Britain tattooed themselves in obedience to religion (Pliny, 33).

The second cause is the spirit of imitation. A Lombard soldier answered me laughingly one day when I rallied him on his having spent a small sum to spoil his arm. "See, monsieur, we are like sheep, and when one of us does anything we all imitate him at once, even if we risk doing ourselves harm." Love of distinction also has its influence. A thief of the most incorrigible sort who had six brothers tattooed like himself implored me, although he was half covered with the oddest tattoo marks, to find him a professional tattooer to complete what might well be styled the embroidery of his skin. "When the tattooing is very curious and spreads all over the body," he told me, "it is to us other thieves like the black coat of society with decorations—the more we are tattooed the more we esteem one another; the more a person is tattooed the more influence he has over his companions. On the contrary, one who is not tattooed has no influence. He is regarded simply as a good fellow and is not esteemed by his company."—London Chronicle.

Intensive Farming.

Hilda possessed a hot temper and an aching tooth, and when she had endured the pain of the one as long as she cared she took both to the nearest dentist. "I can't tell until I look at it," said he, "whether to pull or to fill it."

The dentist was at no time renowned for gentleness, and on this occasion he handled his instruments with what seemed to Hilda very much like unnecessary roughness. With her blue eyes blazing with wrath, she bore the torture as long as she could, but a badly aimed turn of the drill finished her. Leaping from the dental chair, she tore the rubber dam from her swollen countenance, hurled it at the dentist and exclaimed as she made for the door: "Farmer! Plowman! Mys mout' is no garden! Mys toot' is no trees! You can't pull heem, nor you skan't full heem! Go buy vone beeg farm if you vill dig potatoes!"

Tree 6,200 Years Old.

The distinction of being the oldest living thing undoubtedly belongs to one of the giant trees, and many attempts to locate it and determine its age have been made. A century ago De Candolle found two yews, one at Fortingal, in Perthshire, and one at Hedsor, in Bucks, that were estimated to be respectively 2,500 and 3,240 years old. Both are still flourishing, and the older tree has a trunk twenty-seven feet in circumference. A gigantic baobab in Central America, with a trunk twenty-nine feet through, was thought by Humboldt to be not less than 5,150 years old. Mexican botanists believe that they have now discovered a life span even greater than this, and from the annual rings a cypress of Chapultepec, whose trunk is 118 feet in circumference, is assigned an age of about 6,200 years.

Nothing too GOOD

FOR

OUR CUSTOMERS

we are always looking for something better; always working to secure values and styles superior to other stores. when

The Ladies Home Journal

began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. we said to ourselves,

THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

is the leading Womans Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We knew that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as a Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other pattern. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guide Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
