AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town.

Ayden, N. C., June 1, 1906.— This has been seminary commencement week in Ayden, and while the crowds have not been so unusually large, there have been a sufficient number present to lend zest and pleasure to the occasion. The addresses of Rev. T. H. King, Tuesday night, Rev. Mr. Booth Wednesday night, and Hon. L. I. Moore, Thursday, were excellent and showed the speakers thoroughly conversant with the topics under discussion. The commencement was a success, and reflects much credit upon Dr. Peeden and his able corps of assistants. All the students acquitted themselves admirably, showing by their deportment, examination and promptitude in answers that the discipline of this school, while not too rigid, is of a character to make itself felt in the student body as a whole which will not easily be eradicated for some time to come. The institution is a credit to the Free Will denomination of the Christian church and deserves and should receive the hearty co-operation and support of all espousing this faith. There are a large number of Free Will members in Pitt county and Eastern Carolina, and as before stated in this department there is no cause or excuse why it should not be one of the best patronized and prosperous schools in the South. Certainly it is deserving of success, and did but those whose duty it is to manifest a proper appreciation it would be so.

Hon. L. I. Moore, of Greenville, spent the day here yesterday. He delivered an address before the Free Will Baptist seminary and a very large appreciative public, after which he left on the afternoon train for his home. Mr. Moore is very popular in Contentnea and our people are always glad to have him among them.

C. T. Burroughs, wife and child, of Scotland Neck, who have been visiting the family of Capt. D. G. Berry, returned to their home Tuesday.

Mrs. J. C. C. Jenkins, after a pleasant visit to her children here, left for her home in Grifton Wednesday evening.

Johannie Lynn Jenking has returned from a visit down the road.

Several young ladies and gentlemen came up from Grifton Tuesday evening to take in our new skating rink. There were many slip ups during the evening but in the wind up it was a pretty well balanced crowd, and they seemed to enjoy their visit very much. Come again, please.

There will be a special communication of Ayden Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Thursday, June 7th, at 10 a. m. for the election of officers and payment of dues.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McLawhorn died yesterday morning at the home of its parents on Main street, and was buried today.

Miss Rosa Randolph, of House, is visiting Miss Ida G. Edwards.

There was a very large crowd to come up on the train Wednesday

ANOTHER RUNAWAY.

Beaufort County Couple Married Here.

Greenville seems to have become the "Gretna Green" for neighboring counties, judging from the runaway marriages taking place. There have been three inside a week. Two have already been noted, and the third took place Thursday morning. At an early hour Mr. Benjamin Bates and Miss Sydney Woolard arrived here together, having run away during the previous night. They had Register of Deeds Williams aroused to issue the license, and as soon as this was obtained Squire C. D. Rountree was sent for to perform the ceremony. The couple came from Beaufort county.

Prize Winners.

The Gem Photo Co. held their drawing for candy Thursday evening at 5 o'clock, Policeman George Clark doing the honors. The first prize was won by S. J. Parham, holder of ticket No. 106-4, and the second prize by Miss Maggie Moore, holder of ticket No. 74-6.

Mr. Spilman Sunday.

Rev. B. W. Spilman, of Kinston, one of the field secretaries of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention will occupy the pulpit of the Memorial Baptist church here Sunday morning and night. He will also conduct a Sunday school mass meeting in the afternoon.

See?

If two hours and a half delay of the passenger train Thursday evening had been beyond Hobgood, connection could have been made with the afternoon train out of Norfolk.

afternoon to take in the commencement.

Miss Blanche Cannon has come home from Greensboro where she has been attending the N. and I. College.

It is remarkable what pluck and energy will do. The success attained by Hooks & Boyd, insurance agents and brokers, is truly wonderful. Though only in business for a short while, yet one to observe and realize the vast amount of business done by them might well be amazed. Such men are an addition to any community and add much to its development and progress.

J. Bentley Harris was a visitor in Ayden Tuesday.

It is terrible to contemplate, but there seems to be an epidemic among the babies in our community. Within the past week six infants have died and never so far as we can remember has such an incident occurred among us. We deeply sympathize with the afflicted parents and sincerely hope the crises as far as others may be concerned has passed. We hope those who have lost their little ones will realize that their dear children have gone up higher and for them sorrows and pain are no more, and further may these parents remember the Lord chasteneth those whom He loves.

GENERAL NEWS.

Happenings of Interest Over the Country.

One of Armour & Co's. grain elevators with a million bushels of wheat, corn and oats, was destroyed by fire Wednesday.

WHEN SCHOOL DAYS ARE OVER.

Young Ladies and Gentlemen: The pomp and ceremony of commencements are over. The strenuous work of the school room is behind you. You have fought the sham battle and won. Now you must throw your blank cartridges away and load for game! You have the wonderful advantages in your college career, but they will avail you if you depend on them for the struggle of the future. You have the weapons in your hands but they are worthless unless you wield them. Did you ever hear of a college dead-beat? Not long ago a graduate of Princeton was boasting in our presence that the curriculum at that great institution was so high that a man holding a diploma from any of our North Carolina colleges could not enter the junior class. And he was a graduate of Princeton. And he couldn't make a living for a jay bird! No matter about the honors you have won; they are valuable as stepping-stones to higher things but utterly worthless for anything else. Do not fall back on your past record. Set your face like flint to the future. What are you going to do with yourself now? That is the question. Be careful that some awkward country boy who has never seen a college does not distance you in the real race of life. You have seen that many a time; so have we all—and that is why the unthinking sometimes discredit the value of a college course. The college is not to blame. It cannot furnish brains. It can never make a man out of a thing. It cannot convert a dude into a human being. Be humble and patient and charitable. Do not try to impress the fact that you are a college graduate upon every company you enter. A lamp need not shout out on a dark night the fact that it is shining. Get right down to honest work, my boy and girl. All these years you have been serving yourself; now begin your service for others. We have done. The sermon is over. Take it or throw it away—just as you like. Remember, though, that we are watching you and that we love you, that we hope you will not run out of North Carolina, but throw yourselves into the glorious task of making the old State great and strong.—Charity and Children.

Public Reception.

The reception to Rev. J. E. Ayscue and bride at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Parham tonight, will not be for the church only but for the public. Everybody is cordially invited.

THE WEATHER.

Showers tonight and Saturday, except fair on the coast tonight.

A DELIGHTFUL DAY ON THE BANKS OF THE TAR.

Reported for The Reflector.

A picnic is always looked forward to with eager delight by the young people, and all the joy is not realized in the mere anticipation. Thursday the hearts of many of Greenville's boys and girls beat with thrilling rapture, for the time had arrived for the glorious realization of the pleasures of which they had thought and dreamed for many days and nights. At half past eight o'clock, forenoon, classes No. 11 and No. 12 of the Methodist Sunday school and several invited guests met at Mr. Wiley Brown's residence, and went together to the boat landing, their nimble feet keeping time to the rhythmic beat of their merry hearts.

At nine o'clock we boarded the Alteiro for Mr. Brown's farm about three miles down the river. After a few minutes of pleasant conversation, we found ourselves at the beautiful picnic grounds.

The morning was spent in chatting, rowing, jumping the rope, taking kodak pictures, and strolling on the soft green grass in the shade of the mighty oaks, whose gnarled branches tell tales of decades of struggle and growth.

At one o'clock dinner was served --My! What a dinner it was! What could be more pleasing to young folks than a big dinner on a big picnic ground to respond to the pleadings of their big appetites? There was fried chicken plentiful, pickles, boiled ham, deviled eggs, chocolate cake—good things galore! Think of it, a large box of delicious chocolate cake was left over—folks just can't do more than they can, not even in the eating line.

The afternoon was spent pretty much as the morning was. It is rumored that some of the boys took dips in the sparkling waters of the classic Tar.

At five o'clock we met on the river bank, and, with songs on our lips and melody in our hearts, awaited the arrival of the Alteiro, "bound for the shores of the home-land."

Would you believe that this picnic ended in a break-down? Well, it did, but it was the boat that cut the break-down capers, and not the orthodox picnickers. Before we had time to become uneasy, however, Mr. Pender and Mr. Harris met us with their boats and carried us safely to shore.

We reached Greenville with hearts full of gratitude to our kind chaperones, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Brown, Mrs. G. S. Pritchard, and Mrs. Congleton, and to Him who sent the beautiful weather, and who guarded the affairs of the happy day in His unerring wisdom and love.

County Convention.

The township primaries will be held on the 9th and the county convention on the 14th. This convention is not to make nominations, but only to select delegates to the state, congressional and judicial conventions. Another county convention will be held to nominate the county officers.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Order in Which the Five Senses Go to Sleep.

Those wonderful men, the scientists, are always telling us about some queer discovery that they have made. Now it is about the order in which the senses fall asleep—you would never have thought of that, would you? Perhaps you may have thought that all five of them go to sleep at the same time, but it is not so. It seems that sight is the first, being obscured by the eyelids. Then follows the sense of taste, smell, hearing and touch coming next in order. The sense of touch is the lightest sleeper and is the most easily wakened. Smell, though one of the first to fall asleep, is the last to wake. After touch, hearing is the first to regain consciousness. The different parts of the body fall asleep at different times too. The influence begins with the feet and goes gradually upward to the center of nervous action. Warm feet are therefore essential to sound sleep.

Not Even Standing Room.

A traveler on an electric car had a seat next an old negro couple, whose earnest voices attracted his attention. "I tell yo', Sam, dat's one ob yo' mod'n notions. I ain't got no patience wif dese yere mod'n notions," said the old "mammy."

"And I say again, just like I done say'd befo'," replied Sam, "dat I seen it in de newspaper."

"Yo' mean foh t' tell me dat yo' seen in de paper how folks was a-livin' on de moon?"

"Yas'm, dese yere wise folks say people am a-livin' on de moon. An' what's mo', dey say de moon is crowded wif 'em."

The old lady's eyes gleamed suddenly in triumph.

"Den ef dat's de case, Sam, whah do all dem people go when de moon dwindles down t' a little streak?"—Youth's Companion.

Honey Dew on Leaves.

The peculiar deposit often noticed on the upper surfaces of leaves, especially upon those of the basswood and the hickory, has been accounted for in two ways—by the excretion of a species of a minute insect called aphides and also as an exudation of the leaves themselves. It may be truthfully said that the cause of this exudation, which is a saccharine liquid of wonderful sweetness, is still an unsolved botanical mystery. Gray says, "It seems to be caused by something peculiar in the atmosphere that occurs most frequently on trees growing upon islands in temperate latitudes."

A Good Reason.

A boaster related to an admiring crowd some of his marvelous deeds. Afterward a smaller man who knew him well remarked to a friend that the boaster, to his certain knowledge, had never done the things he had claimed to have done. "And why," said the friend, "didn't you call him a liar then and there and let the crowd know just what sort of a man he is?" "For the simple reason," answered the small man, "that my nose is of a blamed sight more importance to me than his reputation is to him!"

If Editor Roscower, of the Goldsboro Headlight, does not mind out he will make some of the boys envious. They used to hear of his nice bank account at the annual gatherings, and now he is off on a two months' tour of the West, covering an itinerary of something like 15,000 miles. Some of the papers talk like they are sorry McMillan was ever punished at all for his crime. But he met the fate that any one who takes the risk is in danger of. He was convicted of stealing (obtaining money by false pretense) and sentenced to the roads. He attempted to escape by making a dash for liberty and the guard shot him. The court and the guard both did their duty. McMillan took the chances and paid for his folly with his life.

The scientists are busy people, and the balance of us are indebted to them for much information. They tell us what to eat and what not to eat, what to do and what not to do, so that if we would take their advice we would live forever, provided we did not die sooner. Two late discoveries made by these scientists are that strawberries produce insanity, and that automobiling will cure insomnia. We expect a big crop of strawberries selling for hardly enough to pay the picking is likely to run the farmer who raises them crazy, and he shows it by just raising as many next year. And the automobile will certainly put a fellow to sleep, and that for good, if it gets a chance to run over him.

BRITISH DIPLOMACY.

In speaking the other day on the subject of the powers of Europe putting their armies and navies on a real peace footing some one said it was not necessary for Great Britain to have a large army for she generally got some one to do her fighting for her.

It might have been said also that she could get out of any kind of a tight place by her shrewd diplomacy. She can get ahead of most any other nation in forming close alliances. Only a few years ago she made herself solid with the tripple alliance then formed and so maneuvered as to get all the benefits of a member, though she would not join in with the three continental powers in the stipulations. She was not bound by any of the agreements made, but put herself in a position to profit by them.

More recently, when Germany's growl became alarmingly angry in tone, Great Britain astonished the world by making a close alliance with her inveterate enemy just across the English channel.

Still later, when Japan was about to enter into a war with Russia, which, if it terminated in the latter's favor, would expose Great Britain's Indian possessions to Russian invasion, she made an alliance with Japan, which virtually stipulated that if the Japs alone could not whip the Russians, then she would come to their aid. Japan was to check the Russian movement toward India if she could, but if she found herself unable to do so Great Britain was to come to her assistance. Japan, we all know, surprised the world by the manner in which she carried out her part of the compact and forced a halt in the Russian advance.

Japan has now become a mighty power in the Pacific, Great Britain, evidently, is becoming uneasy because of this, and, in order to be ready at any time to check any hostile advance the other may make, she is trying to form an alliance with Russia for mutual protection against Japan's encroachments in the east. In other words she says to Japan: "If Russia tries to get out of bounds and you can't keep her back I will help you." To Russia she says the same thing about Japan.

In the mean time she is talking to Uncle Sam about how exposed to attack are his Philippine possessions and telling him all the while how she loves him and how important it is that kinfolks should always be on friendly terms and ready to spill their blood for each other. She knows she has nothing to fear from this side of the Atlantic in any combination that may be made against her, but she wants to make it appear to the powers of Europe that these two nations, so closely allied by blood, while having made no treaty offensive and defensive, have an understanding, growing out of their close friendship, that an injury done to one will be taken as an affront by the other. She would like for the Americans to believe the same, but they are not going to be fooled into putting themselves in danger on Great Britain's account, thinking that she would do the same for them. She can continue to pat Uncle Sam on the back and say sweet things to him, but he is going to be careful not to make any rash promises, though he may be willing for her to fool Europe by appearances if she can. —Wilmington Messenger.

SUIT.

The case is this:

If a man has one Summer Suit, it ought to be a Serge Suit.

If he has two or more he ought to have a Serge Suit among them

For his comfort, for one thing, for his looks, for another; and for the durability and service he'll get out of the Suit, for a third.

It might seem as though we were trying to make the Serge Suit out a paragon of all the virtues. It is really—at least

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as

Double seats, double knees extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

Special Sale at Munford's.

There have been special sales and big sales generally, but the one planned by C. T. Munford for next week is going to make people open their eyes with wonder. He says he bought goods expecting the seasons would be favorable so he could meet the bills as they come due. On the contrary the season has been bad on business and he has not the money to meet his bills. To get the money quick, he has inaugurated this special sale. You have only to look at the prices to see what this sale means, and if you miss the bargain it is your own fault.

The movement for establishing reformatories for youthful criminals is growing through the southern states. Hardly a term of court is held in this state that the great need for such an institution is not demonstrated. It has been announced that Mr. J. D. Rockefeller has set aside one million dollars to be donated to such use and that the south would get its share of the donation. We suppose his gifts will be based upon co-operation by the states or benevolent or charitable institutions. It is to be hoped proper steps will be taken to secure benefit from this fund for our state.—Wilmington Messenger.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Having duly qualified before the Superior Court Clerk of Pitt county as administratrix of G. T. We are requested to state that the primaries in the several wards tonight will be called to order promptly at 8 o'clock. All the voters should be on hand by that hour.

HUMAN HAPPINESS.

Is It Coupled With Love or Wealth or Ambition?

What is happiness? It all depends upon what you consider happiness. The peasantry of the continent place money possession far above all other sources of happiness. Woman, art, music, power, ambition, are absolutely nothing to the peasant of France or Hungary compared with possession of money. Balsac, in "Eugenie Grandet," has drawn this terrible passion in the character of old Grandet, who lived and died for one thing—money.

The Greeks despised people who liked to live alone, the Cyclops, arguing that they could not be happy. Yet Diogenes of Corinth, according to Dionysius, was perfectly happy, for he had learned a recipe for happiness—"Despise the world, despise self, despise being despised." Why the Greeks were the happiest people the world has known was because they lived a life of only one dimension, while people today live in three or more—the state, society and the church.

To use a musical simile, the ancient Greek life was a legato; ours is a staccato. The Greek life was like an andante of Mozart; ours is like a furious, agitating scherzo. In some countries life is not only staccato, but ten times worse.

The middle ages invented women. In ancient Greece women had no standing at all. Plato knew nothing of the notion that women might make man happy.

Love is full of the most amazing contrasts and contradictions—the dark man passionately admires the blond woman, the short man the tall, the man of the north the beauty of the south. The young man whose youth has been solitary is shocked when he meets a young girl full of life and briskness. He should have danced and amused himself with the society of women. Men always love the same type. No matter how many different women they love, the type never varies.

The opposite of love is ambition. Men after forty or forty-five are women after twenty. Men lose love and gain ambition. Lecture of Dr. Emil Reich in London.

He Did It Well.

During the civil war a Mr. Wertheimer kept a restaurant in a central Indiana town. As all commodities were high at that period, in consequence of an inflated currency, his pie crust had no more shortening in it than was absolutely necessary, lard costing 25 cents a pound and more. One day a transient customer came in and called for pie, which was served to him, and he set out to devour it forthwith. But the crust was so short of shortening that he could not get his fork through it. He struggled with it manfully for a few minutes and then laid down his knife and fork in despair.

"Mr. Landlord," he declared at length, "I'd like to know who in thunder tans your pies!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Eating Snails.

Do you know how many snails are said to be consumed in New York city in one week alone when the season is at its height? Why, in the neighborhood of 20,000. They do not seem a very tempting food, but they are like them and pay high prices for the dainty. The supply comes from France, and it is stated that they are such a profitable product that vineyards are given up as food for the snails, which bring better prices than grapes.

JUDGE PAGE'S LOST COAT.

Judge Calvin Page of Portsmouth, a leading member of the New Hampshire bar, has been prominent in New Hampshire politics for a number of years. A few years ago he was sitting in the rotunda of the Eagle hotel in Concord earnestly discussing the political situation with some friends. He had a very nice new overcoat, which he carefully placed upon the chair underneath him. Becoming interested in the conversation, he paid no further attention to the coat. A stranger standing near noticed that the judge was very much absorbed and, walking up to him, placed his hand on his shoulder and said, "Excuse me, sir, but you are sitting on my coat." The judge promptly arose and apologized, allowing the man to walk off with his coat. When the conversation was finished and the judge looked for his coat his remarks were rather emphatic.—Boston Herald.

Points on Oysters.

When oysters are removed from more saline water to that which is less salt, says Dr. William K. Brooks, professor of zoology in the Johns Hopkins university, who has made the oyster a life study, they absorb water quickly and become plump, or "fat," but the fatness is nothing but water. The "fattening" is usually carried on in the mouths of rivers, which are always near towns and polluted by sewage. Every "fattened" oyster is too suspicious to be eaten raw, and the outbreaks of typhoid fever which have been traced to oysters most clearly have been traced to "fattened" oysters. All the fresh water that a "fattened" oyster has absorbed is at once extracted by cooking, so that the "fattening" of oysters that are to be cooked is not only an unnecessary expense, but a fraud on the consumer, who is sold filthy water from the harbors of cities at the price of oysters.—New York Times.

Chances in Modern Battles.

In Homeric days a battle was a conflict of armed mobs. The nearer you got to your assailant the better was your chance of killing or being killed. The bigger the man the better were his chances in the strife. In these piping times of mechanical warfare the situation is reversed. Battles are fought at ranges of a mile or so. The smaller the man the less are his chances of being hit. An ingenious mathematician has figured out that perhaps the casualties on the Japanese side must have been considerably less than those of the Russians in the recent war, if it be assumed that the marksmanship of each was equally good. The advantage of the Japanese was inversely as the cubes of their height and breadth. The average targets offered by each to the enemy are as the cubes of 1.585 and 1.642, or as 106 to 118, an advantage in favor of the Japanese of about 12 per cent.—Scientific American.

A Nice Place to Live.

"On the Broken Hill road," says the Bulawayo Chronicle of an incident in that part of South Africa, "on a recent night a lion entered a hut wherein were sleeping two white men. Pushing open the reed door, the animal made for the nearer of the two sleepers and, gripping him by the shoulder with its teeth, lifted him from his bed. The cries of the man brought several natives to the scene, and these pluckily attacked the beast, bringing it to bay. A shotgun happened fortunately to be near by, and this the captive succeeded in reaching, instantly shooting the lion. The man, whose name is Thornton, was very badly mauled, but he is making favorable progress."

Dead Letters of New York.

It is observed that the "no smoking" rule on the street cars in New York is a dead letter. So is the rule against carrying lighted cigars and cigarettes into the subway stations. So is the board of health anti-spitting or lincane. So is the law making it an offense to join flat house letter boxes with advertising circulars. So is the rule of decency which should prevent the throwing of orange peeling, banana skins and newspapers out upon the pavements. Almost the sole regulation which is rigorously enforced is "Keep off the grass!" And sometimes that should not be.—New York World.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Tribute to Shakespeare by an Editor of Irish Descent.

There is an editor in Boston, a man of very excellent parts, who is of Irish descent, a fact of which he is supremely proud. He is fond of contending that a majority of the great poets had, to a greater or less degree, Irish blood. One evening while at dinner with a number of friends he was holding forth on his favorite topic when he was interrupted by one of the guests, who said:

"At least there was one exception to your contention—how about Shakespeare? Surely you can't say that he was an Irishman!"

For a moment the editor was taken aback. But quickly recovering his composure he replied:

"Perhaps not, but his genius would justify the supposition."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Tested.

Smart Wife—Don't worry, George. I wrote an article for the paper today, showing how to get up a family dinner for $1, and I took it around, and the editor gave me a dollar.

Husband—That's a rare piece of good luck. What are you going to do with the dollar?

"I'm going to try that recipe myself and see if it will work."—New York Weekly.

The Race For Fame.

"So those two old settlers have quarreled?"

"Yes," answered Farmer Corn-tassel.

"What caused it?"

"Jealousy. One of 'em was advertised in the paper as bein' cured by six bottles of patent medicine and the other had to take seven."—Washington Star.

Very Necessary.

"George loves me, pa, and he will call on you tomorrow at your of fice."

"Well, he had better bring a friend along with him."

"What for?"

"To identify the remains."—New York Press.

Just That.

Mrs. Longwed (excitedly) — I should like to know what you had before I married you!

Mr. Longwed (dejectedly)—Well, I had a latchkey anyway!

Condiments In Plenty.

"Put more ginger in this story," said the city editor, handing back the copy.

So the reporter described the cayenne throwing episode as a pepper and 'sault case, thus winning instant promotion. — Philadelphia Ledger.

The Idea.

Pearl—I think Uncle Sam should issue special postage stamps for ladies.

Ruby—And how would they be different from other stamps?

Pearl—Why, he might flavor the glue with vanilla and wintergreen. —Detroit Tribune.

His Hope.

"I really believe you married me simply because I have money," complained the heiress, who was stingy as she was plain.

"No," replied her husband candidly, "I married you because I thought you'd let me have it."—Houston Post.

Nothing too GOOD

FOR

OUR CUSTOMERS

we are always looking for something better; always working to secure values and styles superior to other stores. when

The Ladies Home Journal

began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. we said to ourselves,

 THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

is the leading Womans Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We knew that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as a Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other pattern. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guide Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
