AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes from a Hustling Town.

Ayden, N. C., June 5, 1906.—Drunkenness and rowdiness must be suppressed. So far as Ayden is concerned it will be. We have a police right. This fact was made evident last Saturday evening. He has been and will be backed and supported by our best citizens. That is also in evidence. It has been a long felt need here and our best people realize now that they have the right man. He can act feeling that the power and the wealth will be at his command. On this all good citizens here are determined. The lawless element to the contrary.

Dr. U. L. James spent Thursday night with W. J. Boyd.

Mrs. W. L. House, of Winterville, returned to her home Saturday after taking in the commencement.

Miss Venie Crawford, of Winterville, has been visiting Miss Annie McLawhorn during the past week.

Miss Evelyn Barnhill, of Greenville, after a pleasant visit to her sister, Mrs. A. L. Sumrell, has returned to her home.

Leon McLawhorn, who has been home since January, has gone back to Philadelphia to resume a position he held up to that time.

Rev. B. E. Stanfield and two little daughters are visiting up in Caswell county.

Messrs. Harkney and Keel, of Wilson, and Will Parker, of Greenville, were here Sunday visiting.

Live men advertise. Dead men can't. The names of the real live, energetic merchants of Ayden can be found in the columns of this department. We guarantee every one of them. They are fair, honest and conscientious in all their dealings. When they sell goods they do so at living prices, without extortion and are never beyond reason. Look out their names, and when you come to Ayden be sure to call on them, if your purpose is to deal with men who are strictly up with the times and from whom you can obtain a bargain. They are not afraid to let the public know their purpose and avail themselves of every honorable means in making themselves and their goods known. They will stand the test.

Miss Nancye Coward, of Greenville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. Dixon.

The sign of the drain—age is here, but somehow it doesn't seem to materialize. Tiling is a lovely ornament for the streets. It is so much in evidence.

If a skating rink proves a profitable investment, why couldn't a cotton factory or some other useful industry be more so?

Those pumps recently planted are beauties and that hose, well, when rain is needed we suggest hanging it on a gourd vine.

Don't forget the Oxford Asylum class Thursday night at the Disciple church. They come only once a year and need and deserve your aid. Let us give them a big time and a fat purse.

When the new brick block is completed Ayden will have 83

BROWN FOR LEGISLATURE.

Belvoir Township, N. C. June 4th. EDITOR REFLECTOR:

As the time is approaching for the people of Pitt county to select good and faithful men to represent us in the legislative assembly, I desire to call attention to the fact that there has been so much written of late about railroad lawyers representing the people and the corporations both at the same time, it becomes very important that we should have a representative in the next house of representatives who is not dominated by the influence of the great railroad corporations. We should, I think, have at least one lawyer in the house of representatives, but it is very important that we have a lawyer who is not a railroad lawyer.

I desire to recommend for this place a young man of fine ability and attainments, a good lawyer who is on the side of the people and is not a railroad lawyer. That man is Mr. Julius Brown, of Greenville, N. C.

Mr. Julius Brown is a young lawyer of high character and ability, and I feel confident in saying that the interest of the people will be in good hands if we send Mr. Brown to the Legislature. He is not a railroad lawyer, but a lawyer who was raised in the country on a farm, and whose interest is closely allied with the farming classes. He knows their needs and if elected to the Legislature will protect the interest of the people.

Belvoir township will heartily support Mr. Julius Brown for the Legislature, and we heartily recommend him to the people of Pitt county. W. W. BULLOCK.

Good Residence Lots.

The lots on the Sam White property in South Greenville are the most desirable for residences of any on the market and they can be bought at a much lower price than less desirable lots in the old part of the town. Houses are already going up out there and others will follow.

Died.

Lloyd Jasper, aged 11 months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Windham died of measles Monday afternoon at their home in South Greenville. The remains were taken to Farmville today for interment.

The directors of The Home Building and Loan Association will meet at 8:15 o'clock tonight at the office of the president, H. A. White.

brick stores that would greatly add to the appearance and credit of any town. If we only had a factory.

W. E. Hooks has been appointed tax lister for the town of Ayden.

C. L. Tucker, of Grifton, was here Monday listing State and county taxables.

W. H. Rouse, of Winterville, spent the afternoon here yesterday.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

The plant of the Enterprise Lumber Company, at Goldsboro, was destroyed by fire Sunday.

During a storm lightning struck the convict camp of Lenoir county killing a guard and one of the prisoners.

The opening German of the season at the Atlantic Hotel, Morehead City, will be held on Saturday evening, 9th.

Dr. J. S. Bassett has resigned as professor of history in Trinity College to accept a similar position in Smith College at Northampton, Mass.

W. M. Beatty and family, of Mecklenburg county, were saved from being burned to death in their home by a faithful dog awaking them. The roof of the burning house fell in almost as soon as the family passed through the door.

Franklinton, N. C., June 4.—While W. H. Mitchell and wife were on their way home from church yesterday, about four miles east of town, their horse took fright and dashed away at break-neck speed, flinging the occupants of the buggy violently to the ground. Mr. Mitchell's left shoulder was crushed by the fall and his skull fractured. He died as the result of his injuries about eight o'clock last night.

SUMMER GREETING.

By way of midsummer greetings and fireworks Harper's Weekly sends forth this refrain:

"To Benjamin R. Tillman—Greeting! In at least a score of years no man in public life has reversed so quickly and so advantageously popular opinion of himself. The country now knows you for what you are—an honest, capable, and generous statesman, equal to an emergency, controller of a naturally unruly tongue, tenacious of your own and the people's rights, an earnest foe, yet unwilling even in a moment of excessive irritation to withhold from your most bitter enemy frank and manly recognition of the credit justly his due, squarely and successively risen to with the sympathetic helpfulness of the noblest Roman of them all. Fortunately indeed is he who possesses the friendship of William B. Allison.

"To Joseph W. Bailey—Greeting! To have established, in a single debate, a reputation for pre-eminence as a lawyer, an orator, and a statesman, among colleagues of genuine and recognized ability; was an achievement worthy of a Benton or a Clay.

"To Nelson W. Aldrich—Greeting! Sagacity, determination, and courtesy, supplemented by the faith of one's fellows, make for and retain true leadership.

"To Joseph B. Foraker—Greeting! Conviction, the courage thereof and the respect therefore be yours.

"To President Roosevelt—Greeting!

To have said more to Mount Teddy might have resulted in some one being called a liar.

Three Reasons for Good Roads.

In the first place, bad roads are an extravagance, and in the second place they contribute much to the isolation of farm life. A third consideration may be added—the wholesome effect of good highways on the farmer himself. Any one of these reasons is sufficient to warrant a considerable expenditure of money and time on improvements. Together they make an invincible argument.

The modern farmer keeps in touch with the market either by telephone or by his daily newspaper. Frequently in the case of ordinary produce, occasionally with the important staples, he can take advantage of a temporary rise in the market—provided the roads are good. If they are bad his precautions go for nothing.

The waste of time involved in hauling through mud is apt to be overlooked. The farmer is too inclined to think that it makes no difference—maybe he wouldn't be working that day, anyway. But it is just in this neglect to make the most of their time that other farmers fail. It is important that all hands keep busy all the time on a farm as it is that they be kept constantly at work in a manufacturing plant. Another element of waste in using bad roads is wear and tear on the horses, wagons and harness. All the appliances have to be renewed much more frequently when they are subject to the strain of hauling through mud than they would if used only on macadam.

The side of this question which affects the matter of taste also has a practical bearing. Dirt and shiftiness tend to get together. The farmer whose wagon is covered with clay doesn't feel the pride in keeping up his place that he would if his vehicles came back clean from a drive to town. Manufacturers and business men of all sorts are finding that it pays to keep their places shipshape. The most successful farmers have learned the same lesson. Muddy roads are enemies to the good order that help make a farmer successful. It is roads. There is no reason why a farmer's family should suffer solitary confinement during many weeks of the year.

The remedy is in the farmer's own hands. With unanimity hardly necessary to dwell on their relation in isolation which Mr. Morton rightly said is the chief objection to farm life. In part this is inevitable. But it can be greatly relieved by the improvement of action they could enlist help that would bring widespread relief within a few years.

A Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Latham wish to take this method of assuring their friends, and the public generally, of their deep appreciation of the kindness, and sympathy manifested towards them during their recent bereavement owing to the death of their infant son.

Many willing helpers and beautiful floral tributes brought sunshine through the clouds and made the sorrow easier to bear.

TOWN ELECTION.

Board of Aldermen for Next Year.

The town election passed off very quietly Monday, so quiet in fact that unless attention had been called it could hardly be told that an election was in progress. The result was in accordance with the nominations made at the previous primaries except in the first ward, where E. M. McGowan ran as an independent and defeated B. T. Bailey, the nominee. One scattering vote was cast in the fourth ward and with these exceptions everything was for the nominees.

The voting was very light, not more than half the strength in any ward being shown. The number of votes cast was as follows:

First ward—E. M. McGowan 15, B. T. Bailey 13.

Second ward—D. S. Spain 29, B. W. Mosely 29.

Third ward—A. H. Taft 42, W. A. Bowen 43.

Fourth ward—T. E. Hooker 63, C. S. Carr 62, W. F. Evans 1.

Fifth ward—George J. Woodward 14.

They begin their term of office on July 2nd.

J. B. JOHNSTON,

FIRST CASE OF LYNCH LAW.

The Hanging of a Murderer by His Father in Ireland.

So many different versions and explanations of the term lynch law have at various times been given and occasionally are even yet added to that it seems fitting to recount the tragic incident which has since given a name to so many calamitous occurrences not only in our land, but on occasion also in that of others.

The very name of "Lynch" gives the direct clew to the land of its origin—Ireland. Thackeray in his "Irish Sketch Book" in Chapter 1, which treats of Galway, thus speaks of an occurrence within its precincts which in 1842 bore the gruesome "memento" so grimly described in the words following:

"Then there is Lombard street, otherwise called Dead Man's lane," with a raw head and crossbones and a memento mori over the door where the dreadful tragedy of the Lynches was acted in 1493. If Galway is the Rome of Connaught, James Fitzstephen Lynch, the mayor, may be considered as the Lucius Junius Brutus thereof. Lynch had a son who went to Spain as master of one of his father's ships and, being of a wild, extravagant turn; there contracted debts, drew bills and alarmed his father's correspondent, who sent a clerk and nephew of his own back in young Lynch's ship to Galway to settle accounts. On the fifteenth day young Lynch threw the Spaniard overboard. Coming back to his own country, he reformed his life a little and was on the point of marrying one of the Blakes, Burkes or Bodkins or others when a seaman who had sailed with him, being on the point of death, confessed the murder in which he had been a participant.

"Hereon the father, who was chief magistrate of the town, tried his son and sentenced him to death, and when the clan Lynch rose in a body to rescue the young man and divert such a disgrace from the family it is said that Fitzstephen Lynch hanged the culprit with his own hands. A tragedy called 'The Warden of Galway' has been written on the subject and was acted a few nights before my arrival." — New York Times.

One Thing at a Time.

The last king of Hanover, before that state was incorporated into the Prussian kingdom, was for many years blind. There was living at the court an English lady, Mrs. Duncan Stewart, who, with her wit and learning, entertained his majesty. The blind king delighted in her conversation, and for many years she would save up every interesting story she heard so as to tell it to him. It is remembered that one day she was telling him a story as they were out driving together. Suddenly the horses started and the carriage seemed about to upset.

"Why do you not go on with your story?" said the king.

"Because, sir, the carriage is just going to upset."

"That is the coachman's affair," said the king. "Do you go on with your story."

TUESDAY, JUNE 5 1906

Miss Alice and her husband are on a tour to London town.

If they keep trying them they may yet hang those Rawlinges down in Georgia.

The Pennsylvania railroad has adopted phonographs to call out trains at union stations. Perhaps they will talk plainer than the fellow who bawls out something nobody can understand.

At their meeting Wednesday night we hope the Water and Light Commission will give further consideration to the matter of putting on day electric current. It is one of Greenville's great needs and sooner it is inaugurated the more rapid can be the development of industries that will help upbuild the town.

We have heard it rumored that it is the purpose of the Raleigh & Pamlico Sound Railroad Company in purchasing more property here adjoining the site already selected for a depot, to erect a handsome office building at this point. This is a matter the business men of Greenville should be interesting themselves in. If there is a possibility that this office building and the company's workshops can be located at Greenville nothing should be left undone to secure them. They mean much in increasing the business of the town and developing new enterprises. They are just such things as Greenville needs. Other towns along the route of the road want them and will work with the view of securing them, and Greenville cannot hope to win if no effort is made in that direction. Right now is the time Greenville should have an active chamber of commerce or board of trade looking after such matters as this.

Every man, woman and child in the State owes to the board of medical examiners for North Carolina a vote of thanks for their earnest effort toward protecting the public against every form of incompetence in the medical profession. This board realizing that without proper preliminary training, the average mind cannot grasp in its entirety the great problem of medicine, has, for the past four years been urging all young men who contemplate the calling, to acquire a degree from a recognized college or university, before entering a medical school. It is to be hoped that all medical colleges will adopt this plan, as human life and health should be in the care of men with trained minds.

Besides this progressive step, the board of medical examiners at their meeting held conjointly with the North Carolina Medical Society in Charlotte last week, called the attention of that body to the fact that upon sufficient proof, the board stands ready to exercise the right, given them by the law, to rescind the license of any physician who is of immoral character, or who is the victim of any drug habit as morphin, cocaine, whiskey and the like.

It should be a source of great pride to the State to know that its medical men are instilling into the profession the very highest of ideals.

PREDICTING EARTHQUAKERS.

Professor Thomas Augustus Jagger, of Harvard, thinks that there should be a department of earthquake prophecy established. Professor Thomas Augustus believes that, with practice, the earthquake prophets would soon be able to foretell the great quakes and thus save lives and property. Japan, notes Dr. Jagger, has kept up a system of seismographic observatories for many years in order to see what could be done in the prophetic line.

But if the Japanese experts have ever been able to secure any real forewarnings the fact has never been noted. Even Dr. Jagger is silent with regard to that particular point. Earthquakes come when they chose, and usually sends no authorized press agent ahead.

It is true they are often preceded by minor disturbances, small shocks and ominous sounds. And yet these do not necessarily imply that a disaster is to follow, since they may occur dozens of times without any further consequences. In short, it would seem to be about as easy to predict strokes of lightning, cloud-bursts, the explosion of powder magazines and the appearance of Marie Corelli novels. All sure signs of earthquakes thus far discovered seem to be the outcome of individual imagination after the event.

Rip Van Winkle Outdone.

After an absence of sixty-five years from Robson county, of which he was a native, the Rev. Angus Johnson a few days ago returned to Red Springs from Texas. He is now 97 years of age.

It is not difficult to imagine that the venerable minister feels like a strange man in a strange land. So many changes have taken place at Red Springs in the last fifteen years that one would not recognize it as the same place, but to think of the changes in those 65 years of absence of Mr. Johnson! When he left his native heath Robeson county was practically a wilderness, and it will be astonishing is Mr. Johnson recognizes any place with which he was familiar when he was a young man 32 years of age. Robeson must have some very aged people if any of them remember Mr. Johnson before he went away, as a child then 10 years old would be 75 years of age now. It is to be hoped that Mr. Johnson will enjoy his visit, and live many more years of a remarkable life.

The Columbia State remarks; "President Roosevelt says that 'This is the day for the man with the patch in his trousers to come forward.' Not if the patch is in the usual place." But if the patch were in "The unusual place" would not a man be more presentable coming forward?"—Charlotte News.

CONDENSED STORIES.

Story of a Blacksmith Who Prepared For Emergencies.

In Sandown, N. H., there once resided a blacksmith, Timothy Canney, strong and healthy, never having been ill an hour during his manhood years. He was suddenly stricken with a fever. His wife, Mary, was frantic when he became delirious.

The old village doctor being summoned, was asked in a fearsome voice, "Is he very bad, doctor?"

"He is very low; won't live the day out!" he replied, and, leaving some "drops," departed.

Soon after the doctor's departure Tim regained consciousness. The wife, kneeling by the bedside, thought of his future state. "Tim, dear," she inquired, "d'ye think ye'll go to heaven?"

"TIM, DEAR, D'YE THINK Y'LL GO TO HEAVEN?"

"I hope so," he answered; "but, Mary, dear, would ye mind going to the forge and bringing me big leather apron and lave it handy by me in case there is anny mistake."

Tim is somewhere in Maine wielding his hammer, as well as ever.—Boston Herald.

A Baby In Politics.

This story is told of the late Congressman Clarke of New Hampshire, who was one of the best campaign speakers in the state, though of a very nervous temperament and easily annoyed.

During the campaign of 1896, in company with another gentleman well known in New Hampshire politics, he addressed a very large audience in the southern part of the state. The second speaker had, unknown to Mr. Clarke, brought along his wife and baby daughter, who were in the audience, and the whole time that Clarke was speaking the child kept up her baby prattle, much to his disgust.

When he had finished and while the town band was playing a selection the other man who was to speak leaned toward Mr. Clarke and asked, "What kind of an audience is it to talk to?" and was surprised to hear him reply, "It is all right if you can get that woman and kid out."

"But," replied the other, "I can't do it. That is my wife and baby, and I brought them."

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as

Double seats, double knees extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

Monster Frog Plays Ghost.

A squad of police solved the mystery of a haunted house on Royal and Touro streets this morning, when they found under the building a bullfrog which weighed 12 pounds.

For several months the house has been without tenants, lessess having fled because of unearthly noises which disturbed them in the dead of night.

The sepulchral sounds increased in frequency and volume after the departure of the tenants, and the neighborhood was aroused. The house has been shunned.

Last night, as a result of complaints, policemen were placed on watch and discovered the frog.—New Orleans Dispatch.

INDUSTRIOUS BIRDS.

Some of Them Rear Several Families In the Year.

Birds are the most interesting of the lower order creatures with which men have to deal, and they are also the most industrious, though according to the ideas of some men their notions of industry are sadly perverted.

The English sparrow is an industrious bird, but its industry is not appreciated to any favorable extent save by naturalists who are not prejudiced. The English sparrow raises several broods of chicks every year, the female beginning to build a new nest almost as soon as the young are out of their shells, leaving them to the care of the male while she hustles for a new location and new material for a nest.

Many of the minor birds build extra nests. The robins may sometimes be seen in summer putting a nest, having built one and got it of a first brood. Blackbirds are occasionally industrious in this way and the warblers are likewise go-breeders.

The little field sparrow and its cousin, the song chip, lay eggs in the spring and in summer, and the young are still under tuition in September.

The woodcock, the ruffed grouse and other large birds sometimes build late nests as well as early ones. The late broods are probably those of birds whose first lot of eggs was destroyed by a fox or some other predatory animal. But the early broods may be safely ascribed to a young pair of birds, yearlings, who think the first pleasant day of springtime to be a harbinger of many such days.

Hawks and predatory birds are the power of bird society. They live by the lives of the weaker birds. They are aristocrats, almost ranking with the eagles and herons. Their children are few, but mighty, being princes of the air when young and becoming kings and queens before their parents die.

Papa's Pulpit Manner Strange.

Not so long ago that it is ancient history the little daughter of a clergyman had the treat of being taken to church to hear her father preach. It was the first time she had been in the church, and she was as good as sugar and spice all through the service. "Well, dear, what did you think of papa in the pulpit?" asked mamma proudly as they were walking home. "He doesn't talk a bit like he does at home," replied the candid child.

His View.

Uncle Josh—It seems the minister has had rheumatism for the last three years, but he hasn't said anything about it.

Aunt Hetty—Why, I could have told him just what to do for it.

Uncle Josh—Mebbe that's one of the reasons why he kept it quiet.—Watson's Magazine.

The Judge and the Lawyer.

In an altercation between counsel and the judge the judge, after several attempts at conciliation, remarked, "Well, I have done all I can to promote peace, but the result reminds me very much of the fable of the old man and the ass."

The counsel, with visible irritation in his countenance, wished to know which of those entities applied to him.

"Neither in particular," was the reply; "but, considering our respective ages, you cannot object to my saying that I am the old man."

THE SHOCK OF 1663.

When Canada, New York and Pennsylvania Were Shaken Up.

Canada, New York and Pennsylvania experienced a terrible shock on Jan. 26, 27 and 28, 1663. A quaint description of the occurrence, published at the time, says: "The heavens being serene, there was suddenly heard a roar like the noise of a great fire. Immediately the buildings were shaken with great violence. Doors opened and out of themselves with a fearful rattling. The bells rang with the ropes being touched. Cracks appeared in the walls of buildings and doors separated and in some places fell down. Chimes appeared in the fields, and the hills received a tremulous motion. The fright of the inhabitants was shared by the beasts and birds, who sent forth fears, cries, howlings and bellowings."

"The duration of this earthquake was very uncommon. The first shock continued half an hour before it was over, but it began to abate a quarter of an hour after it started. Three other shocks occurred the same day. The second day there was a more violent shock, which lasted a long time, and that night some counted no less than thirty-two shocks, of which many were violent. The tremblings of the earth did not cease till July. Many trees were torn up and the profiles of the mountains seemed to be much changed. Springs and small streams were dried up. Waters once sweet became sulphurous and the channels in which rivers formerly ran were so altered as to be unrecognizable."

"Halfway between Tadousac and Quebec two hills were thrown down and formed a point of land which extended an eighth of a mile into the St. Lawrence river. The island of Aux Coudres became larger than it was before and the channel of the river was greatly changed."

How He Thought Kings Should Die.

Cramer was Voltaire's Geneva publisher. At a rehearsal of one of Voltaire's tragedies M. Cramer was finishing his role, which was to end with some dying sentences. Voltaire, objecting to the manner in which that death scene was played, cried out in accents of scathing scorn, "Cramer, you lived like a prince during the four preceding acts, but at the fifth you die like a bookseller." Tronchin, being present, could not help in kindness interfering. "M. Voltaire," said he deprecatingly, "can you expect to have gentlemen to be at the expense of dresses and fatigue of getting up such long parts if you thus upbraid them? On the contrary, I think they all deserve the greatest encouragement at your hands, and as to my friend Cramer, I declare that, so far as I am a judge, he dies with the same dignity he lived."

Voltaire raised his head and glanced defiantly at Tronchin. "Doctor," he cried, "when you have kings to kill kill them your own way. Let me kill mine as I please."—Notes and Queries.

Where She Had Seen Him.

Dr. Hook, a celebrated Yorkshire vicar, afterward dean of Chichester, was not a handsome man. An old acquaintance says of him:

"The boy, Walter Farquhar Hook, might almost have been described as one of those on whom nature is said to have tried her prettiest hand." He was very fond of commenting on his own ugliness and repeated with great amusement some of the "left handed compliments" he had received.

On one occasion the good vicar saw a little girl looking attentively into his face.

"Well, my dear," said he, "I don't think you've seen me before."

"Oh, yes, I have!" "Where?" "I saw you the other day climbing up a pole and I gave you a bun."—Pearson's Weekly.

Convictions.

What most people call "deep and earnest convictions" on political and social topics are generally middle headed medleys of knowledge of fact and opinion. They know that such and such a thing is an evil and they opine that they see a way to amend it, and if other people point out to them that the evil would not be so amended or that greater evils would accrue from the attempt they only feel that their "convictions" are affronted and opposed by cold blooded calculations. This kind of opinion is often as confident as actual knowledge.—London Graphic.

STARS AND PLANETS.

They Give a Faint Idea of the Awful Immensity of Space.

Some people find a curious difficulty in mentally distinguishing between stars and planets. Again and again they hear that stars are suns and that planets are worlds, that a sun is not a world and that a planet is not a star, and their confusion of mind on the subject remains untouched. Yet the distinction is not really difficult to grasp, and to see it clearly is quite essential to any understanding of the heavens. Our sun is a star, brother to all those twinkling points which lie scattered over the night sky. Our world is not a star, but a planet, sister to the few shining but non-twinkling bright bodies which appear to wander slowly among the stars. The planets belong to our solar system—all of them, without exception, that we are able to see. Other planets belonging to other stars may and doubtless do exist in countless millions through the universe, but we have no power to detect their presence. They, like the planets which belong to our sun, shine by the reflected brightness of their particular star, not by their own intrinsic radiance, and so they cannot be seen at a very great distance. Any watcher with eyesight and telescopes such as ours gazing from the region of any star in the sky outside our solar system would see nothing whatever of the planets or the moons of our system. He might make out the sun as a more or less dim star. He would not be able to detect Jupiter or Saturn, still less our little earth.

And it must be remembered that every single star in the whole universe lies outside our solar system, with only one exception. That exception is our sun. So by the solar system we mean the little family or kingdom of one star, known to us as the sun, and that star is one of tens of millions of stars which all together make up the enormous stellar system, and that stellar system is doubtless one of very many, perhaps millions, of stellar systems, all of which together make up the created universe, using that word in its older and not in its more modern sense.—Chambers' Journal.

Realistic Game.

The youngsters had been consigned to the nursery, says London Answers, and strict injunctions had been laid upon them to "play a nice, quiet game." In a few moments, however, sounds as of a thunderstorm, with a dash of boiler factory, issued from the room, and mother rushed up. "Mercy on us, children!" she exclaimed. "Whatever are you doing? You must not make such a terrible noise."

"But, mamma," exclaimed one of the darlings, "we are only playing theater."

"Theater?"

"Yes. This scene is the storm at sea, and all of us except Tommy are shipwrecked people calling for help."

Mamma's attention was then directed to Tommy, who, crouched in a corner, was emitting doleful howls.

"And what is Tommy doing?" she asked.

"Tommy is the scenery."

"The scenery?"

"Yes. He is the ocean shrieking in the teeth of the storm."

Cigar Boxes.

"That spicy odor that you notice in the cigar box," said the dealer, "comes from the wood of which it is made. It is not because it is impregnated with the tobacco. On the contrary, the tobacco takes the flavor of the wood. That is the reason that particular kind of wood is used for the boxes of all the best cigars. It is Spanish cedar. It is an expensive wood, porous and spicy, and the only kind which has been found to improve the flavor of a cigar. Tobacco, as you know, quickly absorbs any odor with which it is brought in contact. All cigars costing from $75 a thousand upward are packed in Spanish cedar. The cheaper cigars usually come in boxes of sycamore."

Nothing too GOOD

FOR

OUR CUSTOMERS

We are always looking for something better; always working to secure values and styles superior to other stores. When

The Ladies Home Journal

began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. We said to ourselves,

THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

is the leading Womens Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We new that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as e Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other pattern. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guide Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
