Thought it a Georgia fun.

The Tar Heel refers to the alacrity with which the entire South took up the opposition to Father Sherman's Second March to the Sea, and in this connection recounts the experience of a federal regiment marching through the streets of Atlanta when the band struck up 'Marching Through Georgia.' That occurred some time during the '808. This is what happened.

When troops were first transferred to Fort McPherson, a regiment marching through Atlanta, Ga. Passing up one of the principal streets, the band started up the stirring strains of 'Marching Through Georgia.' There were derisive yells and cat calls on every side and before the band had proceeded half a block some one shied a full sized brick through the bass drum.

The commanding officer rode furiously back to the band. The leader was a stocky little Dutchman, short, fat, and red faced. The officer collared him.

"What do you mean, sir, by playing this tune at this time?" he shouted.

The Dutch bandmaster scratched his head thoughtfully for a moment then blurted out:

"Well, I thought 'it was a Georgy tune.'"

Jeweler—You say you want some name engraved on this ring?

Young Man—Yes, I want the words "George to his dearest Alice" engraved on the inside of the ring.

"Is the young lady your sister?"

"No, she is the young lady to whom I am engaged."

"Well, if I were you, I would not have 'George to his dearest Alice' engraved on the ring. If Alice goes back on you you can't use the ring again."

"What would you suggest?"

"I would suggest that the words be 'George to his first and only love.' You see with that inscription you can use the ring half a dozen times. I have had experience in such matters myself."—Pearson's Weekly.

Whom the Gods Love.

"Whom the gods love die young" is an adage which has come down to us from the stoics, who believed that lengthening years invariably meant increase of sorrow and misery. There is a story told of a mother in Athens who, having rendered the gods some service, was assured that any petition she offered would be heard and answered. She prayed for her three sons the best gift the gods could bestow. The next morning they were all found dead.

Discovery of Glass Etching.

The art of etching from glass was discovered by a Nuremberg glass cutter. By accident a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that they became corroded and softened where the acid had touched. That was hint enough. He drew figures upon glass with varnish, applied corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing. When the varnish was removed, the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground.

Vegetable Sandwiches.

Take the remains of any kind of cold vegetables and mince very finely all together. Season with a little sauce and spread on thin slices of bread and butter. Cover and cut into neat shapes. The addition of pounded hard boiled yolk of egg is a great improvement.

Shiny Serge.

The shine that shows a serge skirt or jacket to be no longer new can easily be removed by sponging the garment with bluing water, such as is used to laundry clothes. While still damp press the goods under a thin cloth.

Packing the Trunk.

Don't pack clothes in a trunk which has not been used for some time without airing the latter. It may have been lying in a damp corner.

The Chicago packing house district is worse than a festering sore.

The nation lost one of its most valuable men in the death of Senator Arthur Pue Gorman, of Maryland.

If the President's special message to Congress regarding the Chicago packers does not turn the stomach against canned meats, nothing else will.

Greenville might take advantage of the 4th of July to draw a big crowd here. A celebration with a big crowd would not be against business.

If the county commissioners would stick to the law and make double tax apply whenever a person failed to give in taxes, you would find fewer of them skipping the appointed list taker and waiting to list before the board of commissioners.

Ex-Senator Marion Butler delivered the alumni address of the University commencement at Chapel Hill. He spoke for two hours, and the correspondent of the Charlotte Observer designates it as "a harmless sorry effort." We fail to see how much more could have been expected from such a not harmless, but sorry fellow.

At the meeting of the board of directors of The Home Building and Loan Association, held Monday night, several applications for loans were passed upon and granted. The association will soon be making its presence felt in the upbuilding of the town. Every loan that is made will mean a new house.

When yellow fever appears about New Orleans the government makes haste to stamp it out, sparing neither money nor labor to protect the people against the scourge. Yet right in the heart of Chicago the packing district is a worse menace to the lives of the people of the country than the yellow plague, and it is allowed to go right on spreading disease and death.

Some people do remarkable things in this world, and show wonderful endurance and fortitude, but a story that comes from up in Pennsylvania is too much to believe. The story goes that a man was caught under the trunk of a tree which he was felling, and for five hours was pinned under it. In this position he dug with his finger nails and after five hours freed himself. Then with a broken leg and crushed shoulder he crawled five miles to the nearest town.

It is all clear now why the people read of so many cases of poisoning from eating canned meats.

If Congress whitewashes the report of the conditions existing in the Chicago meat packing district and allows such outrages to health and decency to go on unchecked, the people of the country can put a stop to it by refusing absolutely to use any canned meats. The latter course would be safest in any event.

The Jews of America set the balance of us many good examples in benevolence and charity. They are a people who never withhold a hand from a brother in need or adversity, and it is said to their credit that one of their nationality is rarely found in an almshouse. A recent dispatch from Chicago tells of a laudable enterprise they have undertaken. It says:

Jews of America propose to raise $1,000,000 to fight the white plague. Members of B'nai B'rith the national Jewish secret order, the council of Jewish women and Jewish people in general will insure their lives for the benefit of the National Jewish Hospital for consumptives, which treats tuberculosis without charge, irrespective of nationality or creed. Resolutions to this effect were adopted at the annual convention of the hospital trustees and delegates at the Auditorium Annex today. The money will be used to seek out consumptives in tenement and congested districts; to send them to Denver for scientific sanitarium treatment of possibly six months or a year; teaching them a light, healthful occupation in the training school there, providing them, if necessary, with a loan to be used in setting up a business after being discharged as cured.

Bridegroom is Missing.

The unexplained absence of a bridegroom thwarted a wedding ceremony that was appointed to have taken place yesterday morning at the parish house of St. James at 8 o'clock. The parties to the marriage vow were to have been Miss Maggie Douglas, of this city, and Mr. E. C. Hill, of Newbern, but the latter failed to call for the bride at the home of Mrs. J. H. Bornemann, 24 Orange street, as had been agreed and to this moment there are no tidings of him. He is said to be a man of some influence and property and his actions upon this occasion are exceedingly difficult to explain. At the Bonitz House where he had been rooming for some time, he left an order for his trunk to be sent to the depot yesterday morning and that was the last seen of him. It is surmised by those acquainted with the facts that he has gone to Saluda, N. C.

The young woman who was to be his bride is much distressed over the affair.—Wilmington Star.

We do not suppose Cubans shed many tears over the news that General Weyler was one of those wounded by the bomb explosion in Madrid on the day of the royal marriage. If they had any regrets they were that he was only wounded instead of being killed.—Wilmington Messenger.

The man with the hoe had just finished planting his sweet peas. "There," he said, straightening up, "I've spoiled a $6 pair of shoes and ruined a $10 pair of trousers; but if we have good luck we'll get a boquet for which the florist would have charged at least 20 cents."—Chicago Record Herald.

The Towers' Party.
Oh, never was a party given
More gay than the Towers', I know,
For all who were kindly invited
Were more than delighted to go!
Oh, never was merrier laughter!
It echoed for many a mile,
And no one was there for a minute
Before he was certain to smile.

The mistletoe hung in the passage;
The mistletoe hung in the hall,
While nice little candles on brackets
Were fastened to every wall.

But, oh, how the time seems to hurry
Whenever there's plenty of fun,
For all said the party was over
Before it had hardly begun!

Her Opinion of Mrs. Stowe.

It was only natural that in the Beecher family the name of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was often quoted to the younger generation as one having authority, says the Boston Herald.

On one occasion a grandniece of Mrs. Stowe became very angry at one of her little playmates and, stamping her foot, said, "I hate you, and I don't want anything more to do with you, nor your manservant, nor with your maidservant."

Her mother, overhearing the outburst, sternly reproved her offspring, asking if she knew what she was saying:

Little Miss Beecher promptly replied, "Yes; the Ten Commandments."

"Well, do you know who wrote them?"

The child, looking much disgusted, answered: "Goodness, yes! Aunt Harriet did, I s'pose!"

Well Up in His Class.

Apropos of nothing at all apparently a senator told this story in one of the cloakrooms the other day: "I was at a dance one night, or at what was going to be a dance, but the musicians had not arrived. They scoured the town and found a man who could fiddle. He came over to the hall.

"Are you a first class fiddler?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "I am not."

"Are you a good second class fiddler?"

"No," he said, "I am not a good second class fiddler, but I'll tell you what I am. I claim to be high up among the third class fiddlers."

A Slave to Silk.

A servant of Dowie says: "I used to buy silk socks for him at $3 a pair, and he never got less than five dozen at a time. He would buy many suits of silk underwear at $15 a suit, and once he bought thirty-six pairs of silk suspenders inlaid with blue butterflies. He never paid less than $150 for a suit of clothes, and all his furnishing goods were proportionately extravagant."

His Morning Prayers.

Losnitza, a village in Servia, had a mayor who has just been condemned to five years' imprisonment for an original form of leze majesty. He was accused of systematically abusing the crown and admitted before the tribunal that he was in the habit of piously cursing King Peter every morning before he touched his breakfast.

THIS HAZARDOUS LIFE OF OURS.

Bad as the earthquake was, the whole country ought to understand clearly that San Francisco's chief disaster was due to the fire. Thousands, if not millions, of people have been asking whether or not it was going to be at all safe to rebuild San Francisco; in view of its liability to what the scientific men call "seismic disturbance." This is really something like asking whether or not it is worth while to build cities and towns in Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, and adjacent States, because destructive tornadoes from time to time visit that general region and do local violence. As these pages were closing for the press, immense forest fires were raging in northern Michigan and in sections of Wisconsin. A number of villages and towns were said to have been burned, and the very considerable city of Escanaba was reported in imminent danger. Flood, drought, fire, earthquake, volcano, epidemic, tornado, blizzard, tidal wave, cyclone, monsoon, hot wave—every section of the land, sooner or later, suffers from some visitation of nature that departs so far from the normal as to cause great suffering and loss. The powers of nature are so profound and the possibility of some exceptional scourge is a thing so ever-present, that it is a very hazardous affair to be alive at all on any square mile of this lovely but harassed plant of ours. The prophet who claims to have predicted San Francisco's disaster has now affixed the date for the dreadful calamity that is to overwhelm New York. The fact is that California is probably as safe a State to live in as any other. Its equable climate and general salubrity gives it advantages which most States do not possess under the law of averages. Of San Francisco's financial losses, it may be roughly gessed that less than 5 per cent. are due to the earthquake and more than 95 per cent. to the fire.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for June.

THE SECURITY BOND SUIT.

Our now popular Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security" Bond Suit originated last season in an attempt to furnish progressive dealers with a really meritorious boy's suit that can be sold at $5.00 with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction or money back should the suit prove defective. After considerable experimenting as to fabrics, tailoring, improved features, such as

Double seats, double knees extra strong thread, linings waist band, etc.

We succeeded in producing a guaranteed boy's suit that is proving a tremendous success with dealers now selling it. The "security" bond suit is good because it is so thoroughly reinforced throughout. Our success of last season has encouraged us to still greater efforts, and we are determined that the future of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins "Security Bond Suit" shall be a bright one from your standpoint and ours.

Ready Retort.

An Irishman once met an Englishman who had an artificial leg. Being of a sympathetic nature, Pat inquired the cause of the loss of the limb, whereupon the Englishman said: "A short time ago I discovered that there was some Irish blood in my body and that it had settled in this leg, so I had it cut off." "Tis a pity it didn't settle in your head," came the quick retort.—Troy Times.

Killed by a Swan.

A large white swan recently killed a young woman in Geneva, Switzerland. One windy day the girl was crossing a bridge in that city when the swan, driven headlong by the gale, collided with her. The great bird's beak struck the young woman in the ear. Her injuries were so severe that she died three days later.

For Embezzlement.

Earnest E. Vick, who has been working at the A. C. L. station here for a few months was arrested Monday and taken by the sheriff to Greenville where he is charged with embezzlement. Vick was agent at Farmville for the E. C. road and there fell behind in his returns.

Mr. Bridgers endeavored to help him when he came here and secured a situation. Since he came, we are told that he gave a part of his salary each month to pay for his Farmville shortage, etc. Bridgers trying to permit him to, by monthly payments, make up the shortage.

The bonding company however, took a different view and was not so charitable as Mr. Bridgers, so the company began a prosecution with the result that Vick, who is a clever young man, was taken to Greenville where he gave bond. What defense he has, or even if he denies any such charge, this reporter has not been able to ascertain. The shortage is said to be about $750.—Farmville Southerner.

WINGED SEEDS.

How Nature Provides For Propagating Some of Her Plants.

Many seeds seem, by their formation, to be especially designed for transmission through the air, and of these several are quite as good illustrations as the thistle. The seed of the common dandelion, a plant to be seen on every common, has wings that will carry it away on the slightest breath of air. The wings are very slight filaments, radiating backward from the seed, so that when the latter finally lodges it falls tip first in the most favorable position for taking root.

Country children often find amusement in blowing the seeds from the stalk and watching to see how far they will go before falling to the ground, but whenever there is even a moderate breeze the experiment is a failure, as the fleecy seeds fly out of sight, and the next season a dandelion springs up where the plant was never seen before.

The common tumble weed is another example of the winged seed. The plant grows in a woolly bunch, which, when dried, is easily separated from the stalk, and a light breeze sets the ball rolling over the ground, to scatter its seeds wherever it goes. The seeds of many ferns and microscopic plants are so constructed as to be readily lifted and carried away by the wind, while some, of considerable size, are provided with an elaborate arrangement for aerial transportation. The common maple is an example of the last kind, for projecting from its large head is a membrane closely resembling in size, shape and general appearance the wing of the locust. When the seed is separated from the tree, even if the air be quite still, it does not fall directly to the earth, but, by its peculiar construction, acquires in falling a spiral motion that takes it several feet from beneath the starting point, and when a brisk breeze is blowing one of these winged seeds has been known to twirl through the air for six miles before its journey came to an end.

Mistress and Maid.

They had come to the parting of the ways, and at last Mrs. Tartyly felt she could with safety indulge in a few trenchant and apposite remarks.

"And now you are going, Jane," she said, "allow me to say that I trust you will be orthodox style—I mean in your conveyance. You remember when you came your mother helped you in with your box, which was brought on a wheelbarrow. I wouldn't mention it, but I am afraid some of our friends might see you."

"Yes," said Jane serenely, "that will be all right. My new master and mistress are coming for me in a motor car. I just caught sight of them waiting a little way down the street."

"But," asked Mrs. Tartyly, "why didn't they drive to the front gate?"

"Well, mum," said Jane blandly, "I expect they didn't want people to think they were visiting here."—London Tit-Bits.

Don't Be Afraid to Laugh.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sickroom. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in the world keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares to hear whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism. Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but they are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. The good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic or hypochondriac is not wanted anywhere and is a nuisance as well.

Lapland's Big Ants.

The ants in Lapland are three times as large as our common ant. Their nests are hillocks of fir sprigs and rubbish, often four feet high, the inside a mass of eggs and ants. Well beaten roads diverge from them in every direction like the lines of a railway. These ants cross the little streams and brooks by means of natural bridges. One day a naturalist was jumping over a brook and brushed with his head and shoulders two willow branches which met over the water. In an instant he was covered with ants, which were making their way across the bridge which he had disturbed.

The Knot Reminded Him.

Hiram Bobbs was absentminded. He admitted that himself. Still even he was occasionally surprised by his own failings. One morning he reached his office unaccountably late. "Dear me," he thought, "where can I have been?"

The answer was not forthcoming. Hiram sat down at his desk and took out his pocket handkerchief. It was tied tightly in a knot.

"Now," he exclaimed, "what was that for? Oh, yes! Marthy told me to get my shoes soled." With an air of resignation to the whims of womanhood, he put on his hat, closed his desk and went out to the "soled while you wait" cobbler's. He went in and sat down, took off his shoes and settled back in a chair to read his newspaper.

"What is it, Mr. Bobbs?" inquired the cobbler.

"What? Oh, er—er—er—why—oh, yes! I want my shoes soled."

"Pardon me, sir," said the cobbler, "but I finished soiling them only half an hour ago. They can't be worn out yet, sir."—Youth's Companion.

Adam.

In the Hebrew language there are four names for man—adam, geber, enosh and ish. It is usually understood that the second title concerns a higher dignity than the first, that the third is nobler than the second and that ish is the most precious of all. The latter three have plurals—gebarim, anashim and ishim—but for adam there is no plural. When humanity feels as one, when the loss and suffering of one district bring forth active aid and sympathy from every city, town and hamlet in the country, then their unity of purpose receives the approval of the Almighty, "Attem keruyim adam" ("Ye are called adam").

His Gratitude.

Dean Shaler of Harvard once took an interest in a lively young undergraduate in danger of expulsion for his revelry. Through the dean's sympathy the lad escaped on probation and came out all right in the end, but, to the dean's astonishment and amusement, the young man's father called upon him one day and, by way of grateful acknowledgment of the dean's kindness, presented him with two bottles of old Irish whisky, which are said to have been kept as trophies for some years in a drawer near the dean's desk. The sense of the "fitness of things" is omitted in some men's makeup.

Johnny's Reason.

The Minister—When you grow up, Johnny, what would you like to be?

Johnny—A preacher.

The Minister—Ah, I am glad to hear you say that, my little man. Now tell me why you think you would like to be a preacher.

Johnny—'Cause then the folks would always git out the best things they had in the house to eat when they seen me comin'.

Macaulay's Modesty.

Authors are not supposed to be particularly modest in regard to their works, and it is therefore worth while to quote a passage in a letter written by Macaulay to his German publisher, a letter which the present Baron Tauchnitz carefully preserves: "I have already received £20,000 from Messrs. Long and I am ashamed to think how many better writers have toiled at their lives without making a fifth part of that sum."

Beware of Ointment for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians as the damage they will do is too fatal to the good you possibly derive from them. FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Simple, Yet Puzzling, Trick With Chalk and a Slate.

Here is a pretty little trick that, as simple as it is, will mystify almost any one who sees it performed. With a piece of chalk write a word or a number backwards on a newspaper, but don't let any one see you do it. Now, with the newspaper lying on the table ready for you, take a slate and wipe it off with a wet sponge, leaving the moisture on it.

Then quickly wrap the slate in the newspaper, taking care that the chalk written word shall come in contact with the slate itself, not the frame. Wrap it closely, tie up the package and hand it to some one to hold.

Now do a little of the talking that magicians amuse their audiences with, and then ask the person who has the package to give it back to you. Open it carefully in the presence of the company and you will find the chalk written word transferred to the slate. The moisture on the slate receives and retains the impression of the chalk.

Too Realistic.

The day of the Indian brave is over, but if he scalps no longer he at least remembers the way it is done.

At a certain side show two boys, finding themselves alone with an ex-chief, requested him to give a warwhoop and show them how he scalped his foes.

The Indian evaded the point, and after a time the youngsters fell into a conversation between themselves. Suddenly the brave sprang to his feet with a scream that made the building ring. At the same moment he seized his knife, gripped the hair of one of the boys and ran the back of the blade around his scalp.

The youngsters were nearly frightened out of their wits, but the chief laughed loudly. He had done nothing more than they had asked him to do, but he had chosen his own time.

The Freak Animal Game.

Would you like to draw some animals more remarkable than any you have ever seen in the menagerie? It is a good indoor game to play with a few children. Each child has a paper and pencil and draws the head of some animal. Then, folding over the paper so that only the end of the animal's neck can be seen, he passes the paper to the next child, who continues the drawing and makes the body of the animal. This, too, is folded over and passed on, and the next player draws the creature's legs—two or four, just as he pleases. Then the papers are unfolded and a queer collection of creatures they will prove. People can be drawn in the same way.

A Perching Bird.

Many persons wonder why it is that a bird or a chicken does not fall from its perch while asleep. The reason is that the tendon that runs along the leg and into the claws contracts when the bird assumes a sitting position and thus keeps the claws in close contact with the perch. When in that position the bird has no control over its claws and could not relax its grasp if it tried to do so, for the bent leg keeps the tendon contracted.

Meeting of Extremes.

The Irishman evidently had been drinking a little. He climbed into one of the two bootblack chairs in front of the corner building, and, after settling himself comfortably, glanced at his next chair neighbor. Then he laughed. His neighbor, who was a fat, pompous negro, about fifty years old, dressed in clerical garb, frowned.

"Well, Smoky," said the Irishman, ignoring the negro's look of disapproval, "this surely is a queer councree. Here I am, and there you are. It's not so long since I was a bog trotter, and I suppose you were a slave. And here we have two dago descendants of Julius Caesar shining our brogans."—New York Press.

The Ladies Home Journal

began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. we said to ourselves,

THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

is the leading Womans Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We new that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as e Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other pattern. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guide Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
