THEIR PATHWAY RADIANT.

Brilliant Wedding of Margaret Kerr Cass and Charles Thomas Lipscomb.

From the Daily Herald of Tyrone, Pa., we take the following account of a brilliant wedding that will be read with interest by Greenville people, as this is the home of the groom's parents, and he is well known and a great favorite here. Messrs. W. T. Lipscomb and Harry W. Whedbee, of Greenville, were among the out of town guests at the wedding. The Daily Herald says:

Never before in the annals of Tyrone could there be recorded such a magnificent nuptial event as that of last evening, the marriage of Miss Margaret Kerr Cass, of Tyrone, and Charles Thomas Lipscomb, of Columbia, South Carolina.

For several days the beautiful home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerr Cass, 910 Lincoln avenue, had been a scene of loving preparation and pre-nuptial entertainment. The guests there comprised a happy house party; and with the exuberance of youth, the sunny smile of June, and the abundant hospitality of the home, all combined so graciously, those were perfect days. On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Cass entertained the bridal party and their house guests at an elaborate dinner. There were twenty-five covers, and the table decorations were pink and white sweet peas. The bride's gift to each of her maids, preceding the wedding, were beautiful belt pins of green gold set with peridot. The groom presented to the ushers handsome cuff-links bearing the monograms of his bride and himself.

The wedding took place at the First Presbyterian church last evening. There the artistic scheme of the decorators, Pennock Brothers, of Philadelphia, was the admiration of all who beheld it. The pulpit platform and organ loft were completely covered with a mass of stately palms with overhanging hemlock from the pillars and trimming the edges. Banked against this miniature forest of palms were great clusters of mountain laurel in flower, dotted bountifully with immense white peonies. Peeping from the rich array were the gracefully sweeping blades of variegated pandanus, and the completeness of the decorative scheme was attained by huge clumps of Boston ferns.

It was shortly after 6 o'clock that the church was opened and it was soon quite filled by the invited guests. For the half hour before the ceremony, the organist, Prof. Emil Hornberger, of Philadelphia, gave a recital that was most pleasing. He played the wedding chorus from "The Huguenots," by Meyerbeer; an offertory by Batiste; Rubenstein's Melody in F; Evening Star from "Tannhauser," Wagner; an improvisation; and Piniuti's "Serenade." Then, the hour for the ceremony having arrived, at 7 o'clock were sounded the familiar and stately cadences of the bridal chorus from Wagner's "Lohengrin." Simultaneously the bridal party, with measured step, entered.

The officiating minister, Rev. George T. Gunter, with Mr. Lipscomb and his best man, Christie Benet, of Columbia, entered at the right and passed down the side aisle, awaiting the bride's party at the kneeling stool. First in the party passing down the centre aisle were the ten ushers: J. Palmer McMaster and Albert Douglass, of Columbia, Vivian Guion, of Greenville S. C., Frederick Orlady and William L. Rowe, of Pittsburg, John P. Ramsey, of St. Louis; Charles A. Cass, the bride's brother, and Robert B. Wilson, of Tyrone; Walter Petersen, of Davenport, Ia.; and Robert E. Barnwell, of Boston. Then followed the six bridesmaids: Miss Genevieve Hall, of Ridgway; Miss Jane Lloyd, of Pittsburg; Miss Aleta Geddes, of Columbia, S. C.; Miss Marie McIntosh, of Cleveland; Miss Faithful Ames, of Chicago; and Miss Rose Luke, of New York. The maid of honor, Miss Anna Cass, the bride's sister, immediately preceded the bride who was upon the arm of her father.

The costumes of the ladies were charming. The bride was most radiant with a princess gown of white liberty satin, with court train; elaborately trimmed in pointe applique. She wore a bridal veil with a coronet of lacinated with orange blossoms. Her only jewel was a pearl and diamond pin, the gift of the groom. She carried a magnificent shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and pale mauve orchids. This bouquet was cleverly arranged, so that it was afterward divided into seven parts, each a distinct bouquet, for presentation to the bride's maids.

In a gown of Chantilly lace with tight-fitting V-shaped bodice hand-embroidered in white silk, the maid of honor was very becomingly attired. She wore an Empire sash, as did the six bridesmaids who were uniformly gowned in white radium silk, with bodices of Chantilly lace, trimmed with French embroidered satin buckles. Each of the maids carried an arm bouquet of maidenhair fern and white pansies in cluster, with falling ends of a variety of delicate ferns, the mass being held by rich umbrage ribbon. The gowns of many others in the company were rich, elaborate and stunning. The bride's mother, Mrs. Cass, wore an especially handsome gown. It was of beautiful hand-embroidered white crepe. The men of the bridal party were distinguished by boutonniere of white pansies.

Arrived before the officiating clergyman, the bridal party halted and spread out in semi-circle. Rev. Mr. Gunter then conducted the ceremony of marriage according to the Presbyterian form, the bride being given away by her father, and the groom bestowing a ring as pledge of truth. The ceremony was dignified and impressive. At its conclusion Prof. Hornberger rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march, when the newly united Mr. and Mrs. Lipscomb led the attending party in the march from the church.

Immediately following the ceremony the reception was held at the spacious home of the bride's parents. Here, too, the decorators achieved wonders. In the several rooms the mantles were banked with catodium, maidenhair fern, lau el, peonies and hemlock. The windows were surrounded with great bouquets of hemlock, and clusters of laurel entwined with peonies. The buffet table had as centre-piece a mammoth vase of richest American Beauty roses. The bride's table was decorated with white roses, lilies of the valley and white ribbons.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Cass, the bride's parents; William T. Lipscomb, the groom's father; the bride and groom, and their attendants of the wedding party. A happy social intermingling, with formality absent and geniality heartily present, marked the passing of the hours. The young couple received most cordial felicitations and godspeeds. They were richly deserving. The bride is a young lady of culture and attainment, endowed with graces of heart and disposition that give her the most enduring charms of womanhood. She is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cass. Mr. Cass is president of the Morrison & Cass Paper Company, and is a director and one of the large shareholders in the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company. He is also president of the First National bank of Tyrone, and one of the foremost citizens of this place. Like the bride, the groom is of distinguished lineage. He is the son of William T. Lipscomb, who possesses extensive plantations at Greenville, N. C. The groom is an excellent young man of real promise. He is secretary and treasurer of the Standard Cotton Warehouse Company, a merger of the cotton warehouses in the southern states.

While the company chatted and were regaled, the Hertzberg orchestra, of Philadelphia, played most captivatingly on the spacious landing overlooking the busy rooms. A wedding dinner was served in the dining room by Caterer John S. Trower, of Germantown. It was sumptuous and delicious. The menu included deviled crabs, chicken croquettes and peas, sweet-bread patties, chicken salad, raspied rolls, ice cream and ices, strawberries, cake, boubons, lemonade and coffee. There was a dainty box of wedding cake for each guest. The bridal party sat down to an elaborate laden table in the pink room upstairs. Here the menu was: Strawberries in baskets, cream of chicken, spring chicken, cress, new peas and potatoes, Roman punch, a paragus salad with French dressing, crackers, bar-de-luc, ingenious fancy creams, cake, boubons, coffee and rolls. Trower's achievement was a conspicuously successful one.

The gorgeous display of gifts bestowed upon the bride excited fullest admiration. Nor were they all to be placed in the spacious room that the guests saw. For instance, a handsome residence, completely furnished, at Columbia, S. C., is the costly and magnificent gift of the bride's father. The bride's mother presented her a massive chest of flat silver, Tiffany's choicest offering. The groom's parents bestowed a fine gift, a beautiful

China dinner and tea set. The bride's uncle, John G. Anderson, presented her a baby grand piano. Besides, she received a profusion of rich jewels, beautiful silver, cut glass, art works, and other tokens of esteem. A gift that spoke expressively was a handsomely engraved silver dish from the Columbia Light Infantry of which the groom is the honored captain.

Mr. and Mrs. Lipscomb, with the inviting strains of "Dixie" in their memory, departed on the night train for an extended honeymoon tour and all their destination is their own precious secret. They will be in New York for a time and visit at the home of the groom's parents at Greenville, N. C. They will be at home after September 1 at 1631 Senate street, Columbia, S. C.

WINTERVILLE NOTES

Interesting Items from Our Hustling Neighbor.

WINTERVILLE, N. C., June 9.—

C. J. Tucker of Grifton, has been here for two days, listing the county and state taxes. F. C. Nye has been listing the town taxes.

A. W. Ange spent Thursday out at his farm in the country.

Messrs L. J. Chapman, Claude and Thomas Dawson of Grifton Mrs. Bertha Bulmann of Ayden, were here Wednesday to be present at the Uzzell-Cox marriage.

Miss Ethel Carroll left Thursday morning for Asheville, N. C. to be present at the annual meeting of the Young Woman's Christian Association. She will represent the Baptist University for women. This honor clearly shows the high stand that she is taking there.

Quite a number of our best farmers were here Thursday and Friday listing their taxes. They report crops in much better condition than a few days ago.

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, of Greenville, was here Friday night to take in the concert by the Oxford orphan class.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Episcopal church, one of the prettiest marriages that ever occurred in our town, took place. The church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion. The contracting parties were Mr. Atlas Uzzell, one of the most popular young men of Seven Springs and Miss Addie Cox, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mrs. E. E. Cox of this town. Just after Miss Laura Cox had sung a solo, "O Perfect Love," the wedding party entered to the entrancing strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, beautifully rendered by Miss Vivian Roberson of Gold Point, N. C. Messrs Claude Dawson and C. J. Jackson acted as ushers. Mrs. J. D. Cox, dame of honor. There came the following couples: J. S. Cox with Miss Kate Chapman, J. E. Green with Miss Mattie Uzzell, Theodore Cox with Miss Hellen Galoway, W. S. Granger with Miss Olivia Cox. The bride entered leaning upon the arm of Mr. J. D. Cox and was met at the altar by the groom leaning upon the arm of Mr. Floyd Uzzell, best man, where they plighted their troth in a beautiful

J. B. JOHNSTON,

A Wonderful Feat of Endurance.

All the automobile endurance contests are thrown into the shade by the remarkable performance of Emil Bouhours of Paris, who rode a bicycle 815 miles and 291 yards in twenty-four hours, at the remarkable average rate of thirty-four miles an hour. When one considers the delay and stops entailed in such a race it means that for hours the rider must have been pedaling his bicycle at the rate of fifty miles an hour and sometimes even faster than that. The old record for the time was 634 miles and 57 yards, or about seven hours slower than Bouhours' record. It is true that Bouhours was paced by a motor cycle, but he rode without a wind shield, and for a large part of the time he made his own pace. The weather was intensely cold and seriously affected Bouhours in the last four hours of his riding. He says that under better weather and pacing conditions he would be able to cover 1,000 miles in twenty-four hours.—Leslie's Weekly.

Side Lights on the French Census.

France does not take its censuses as seriously as this country, though some Parisian wits are now paying fines for the gayety of their answers to the enumerators' queries. Some towns and villages set about swelling their population. Marseilles and Lyons were jealous about the second place among French cities. Whether they padded the returns or not does not appear, but Cassoulet-sur-Lot, a little town in the south, was anxious to bring its population up to 20,000, so that its magistrates could have their salaries increased by $125. As only a few score of people were wanted, the affair was comparatively easy. Cassoulet jail was made the workhouse of a whole district, but entry was obligatory, not permissive, for all the tramps in the neighborhood. This drafting of citizens was successful.

The Solemn Back Bay Butler.

Some Boston editor intimated that Back Bay butlers made love to the housemaids. One of them has replied in defense of his class, and incidentally he shows how far culture has got down the back stairs of Boston society. He writes:

"I do not flirt with any of the female members of the household, and it is no exaggeration to say that I am not better than the average butler of the Back Bay, so far as morals are concerned. I have educated my boy in France and England and am now giving him a postgraduate course at an American college. Our feelings have been hurt by the article to which I refer, and we have undergone a great deal of mental suffering from the annoyance unwittingly caused us."

Reply to China.

When the emperor and empress of China appear in public no other person is allowed to carry a higher place than they do. Therefore, on such occasions the shoulders of all buildings are covered, and the upper parts of the houses past which the royal procession passes are to move are decorated with flags and swarming to the ground floors in order to show due deference to their rulers.

Honey Dew on Leaves.

The peculiar deposit often noticed on the upper surfaces of leaves, especially upon those of the basswood and the hickory, has been accounted for in two ways—by the excretion of a species of a minute insect called aphides and also as an exudation of the leaves themselves. It may be truthfully said that the cause of this exudation, which is a saccharine liquid of wonderful sweetness, is still an unsolved botanical mystery. Gray says, "It seems to be caused by something peculiar in the atmosphere that occurs most frequently on trees growing upon islands in temperate latitudes."

A Good Reason.

A boaster related to an admiring crowd some of his marvelous deeds. Afterward a smaller man, who knew him well remarked to a friend that the boaster, to his certain knowledge, had never done the things he had claimed to have done. "And why," said the friend, "didn't you call him a liar then and there and let the crowd know just what sort of a man he is?" "For the simple reason," answered the small man, "that my nose is of a blamed sight more importance to me than his reputation is to him!"

Modern civilization seems to be penetrating even Turkey. The favorite daughter of the Sultan is reported to have appendicitis.

The most rational remedy for coughs and colds is Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. It acts on the bowels as a mild cathartic—expels all cold from the system. Cuts all phlegm out of the throat, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. An ideal remedy for children—equally good for adults. Sold by John L. Wooten.

CALAMITIES IN CITIES.

Every Great Center Sooner or Later Meets With Disaster.

Sooner or later, it seems, every city in the country is sure to have its great calamity. New York has had its blizzard, Charleston its earthquake, Galveston its deluge, Johnstown its flood, Chicago and Baltimore their fires, New Orleans its pestilence, St. Louis its cyclone, Pittsburg its riots, Paterson its dread trinity of flame, flood and tornado, the cities of the lower Mississippi valley their freshets, and San Francisco and the sister cities of the coast ruin in earthquake and fire. Somewhere every year it seems to be the case that the destruction that befell the ancient cities of the plain is to be repeated, to awaken the same superstitious dread and remind humanity that "God made the country and man made the town."

Why is it that the lament "Babylon is fallen, is fallen" must be uttered every year? The reason is as prosaic as the force of gravitation, but it may be as formidable as that force working through an earthquake shock. Where a multitude of people are gathered together the forces exist for conveying a calamity that would dissipate itself unnoticed in a wilderness or a pastoral country. A great city means a great population to disseminate contagion. It means a site on a navigable river that may be murderously swollen in a freshet or on a bay of the ocean out of which a swollen tide may come. As for the wind, it "bloweth where it listeth," and a storm that in a farming country might uproot a few trees and unroof a few cottages, in a city may topple down walls on a sleeping population and lend wings to the death angel of fire.

The life of the ordinary individual contains a few startling incidents, but a city may live for hundreds or thousands of years, and sooner or later something will happen to it that will be matter for history.—New York Mail.

SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1906.

The Democrats of Indiana, South Dakota, Missouri, Arkansas and Ohio having declared in favor of the nomination of Bryan for president by the Democratic National Convention in 1908, makes a pretty strong showing for the Nebraskan thus far ahead.

Andrew Joyner, the Greensboro correspondent of the Raleigh News and Observer, gives that paper a lengthy account of outrages against a lot of Italian laborers who had been brought to McDowell county, in this state, to work on a railroad being built from Tennessee to Marion. The Italian Consular agent stationed at Charleston, and United States Attorney Holton, of the Western North Carolina district, have been in Marion investigating the reported outrages and found such conditions may lead to international complications. The Italian government may make heavy claims on the United States for damages.

If a man has anything to sell it is his right to get as much for it as he can, but at the same time justice and equity should govern his transactions. The Reflector has been told that some persons owning land along the proposed line of the Raleigh & Pamlico Sound railroad with the idea that it is right to extort every dollar possible from a corporation, are demanding several times more than their land is worth for rights of way through it. They may have the legal right to ask what they please for this land, but mistakes are sometimes made in this particular. It is better to encourage enterprises that will develop the country rather than drive them away by extortion. Because the railroad is going to build from Raleigh to Washington is no reason it not could deflect from the proposed line where unreasonable demands are made for right of way.

DOWN AT GRIFTON.

Interesting Things Told by Vanderbilt.

Grifton, N. C., June 8th.—We were glad to shake the hand of our young friend, Thomas A. Holton, who has just returned home from Trinity College, Durham with his sheepskin, a graduate of that institution. In looking at his diploma, we run up against old times when we were a boy at school. It was all written in Latin, a dead language, and by the way, I don't see any use for the continuation of the dead languages, except in the two professions of law and medicine, and there is only 12 feet difference in these two. When a doctor makes a mistake it is hid six feet in the ground, and when a lawyer makes one it is exposed six feet above the ground.

We are pleased to know that Capt. W. J. Pope is somewhat improving. Hope he will continue to do so.

Mrs. W. J. Kittrell is quite sick.

J. C. Lanier has been down this way this week putting up tombstones for some of his patrons.

There is a great improvement going on in our town. New buildings, new painting, etc. Everybody seems to be busy at work but, 'father.

The Oxford orphans gave us an exhibition of their singing on the night of the 6th inst., and the little "teeny tiny" creepers 'wa jest as gude as any of 'em in demonstrating about what they knew about the old folks, young folks, and all sorts of folks. We reciprocated about $51 worth.

The post master at Coxville having resigned, the patronage of that office was turned over to the Grifton office. R. F. D. route which gives Grifton five routes.

Mrs. M. A. T. Green, who has been quite sick for sometime, we are glad to learn is convalescing.

Our little milliner people seem to be very busy, which shows good custom in their line of business.

From the looks of so many of our farming people, hauling western hay shipped here it does look like some of them would start and build up hay farming in every community.

Grifton has one sporting old widower, who can walk a plank or climb a tree same as a raccoon. Now look here old man, I thought you were cripple, but den dere's no tellen'. Look out old feller, Vanderbilt will have to put one eye upon you.

Bet you can't guess who it is: Don't eveybody speak at once.

Lincolnton, June 7.—As the result of an explosion of a can of oil at the residence of Mr. Ed. Crowell here about 3 o'clock this afternoon, one of his sons, Jake, aged eight years, is dead and another son, Lewis, aged five, is so seriously burned that it is believed he will die. The explosion it is supposed, was caused by one of the boys pouring oil from the can on the fire in the kitchen stove.

"Keep it out of the paper" is the cry which the local newspaper publisher hears daily. To oblige often costs considerable, though the party who makes the request thinks the granting hardly worth "thank you" for. A newspaper is a peculiar thing in the public's eye. The news-gatherer is stormed at because he gets hold of one item and is abused because he does not get another. Young men and often young women, as well as older ones, perform acts which become legitimate items for publication and then rush to the newspaper office and beg the editor not to notice their escapades. The next day they condemn the same paper for not having published another party doing the same thing they were guilty of, forgetting apparently their last visit to the printing office—Durham Sun.

SLEEP OF HIBERNATION.

How It Differs From Repose—Shock That Causes Death.

The sleep of hibernation is a very different matter from the sleep of repose. If it be complete respiration can no longer be detected. A torpid bat when disturbed will heave a sigh or two and, being left alone, again to all appearances ceases to breathe.

Submerged in water of a temperature slightly higher than his own, the hedge hog not only continues to live, but appears to suffer neither inconvenience nor harm. Inclosed in an airtight receptacle, his atmosphere undergoes a change so slight that it cannot be imputed to breathing. But circulation does not cease. As respiration diminishes the irritability of the muscles of the heart increases, and thus, without the stimulus of oxygen, although much more slowly, the heart continues to beat. In the absence of the fresh air drawn into the lungs in times of activity, uncleaned and unrevigorated and venous blood passes on to fill the whole system of circulation.

A profound lethargy ensues, only distinguishable from death by the slight beating of the heart. The waste is very small. The fat accumulated during the plenty of summer and autumn supplies all expenditure until the coming of spring, when earlier or later the hibernating animal, having no capital in reserve, begins to suffer the pangs of hunger. In response to the demand respiration very slowly increases. His oxidized blood flows more quickly and his energy returns.

Then the bat flies forth once more from the hollow tree in the wood, to find the warm dusk teeming with insect life, and the hedge hog comes, it may be, from the cavity under the gnarled roots below, to find beetles, worms and slugs once more among the spring grass. Hibernation has saved him from starvation. But if his nook had not been snug and wise chosen it could not have preserved him from death from frost.

The hiding place also must be secret and free from intrusion, for the hibernating animal cannot bear to be suddenly aroused. Even the little dormouse, which comes out at intervals to feed, when in deep sleep does not survive too hasty an awakening. The heat of the hand gradually passing through the nest or to be carried indoors to the warmer temperatures of a room is well enough.

He awakes refreshed, full of activity and with a disposition speedily to become tame and make friends. But if you warm him suddenly back to life before he has gradually breathed the torpor out of his blood and established an equilibrium between his respiration and muscular irritability his heart will beat at a tremendous rate, and in a few minutes he is dead.—London Spectator.

A Bronze Mummy.

A miner who lost his life while at work 2,000 years ago has been taken from a copper mine in Chile recently. His whole body had been mummified by the action of copper oxide, which had given it a greenish tinge. The mummy is in a fine state of preservation. Coarse sacking, evidently the clothing of the ancient Inca workman, was found with the body, as were also two mallets, one fashioned out of granite and the other out of ironstone. These implements were tied with thongs into bent sticks made as double handles. Both the hide and the sticks were as fresh looking when found as if they had been in use only the day before.

A COMMON AILMENT.

The Curious Nerve Affliction Which Is Known as "Tic."

"A curious nervous affliction which members of my profession are sometimes asked to prescribe for," said a family physician, "is that of the nervous movement, or, as the people call it, the 'tic.' It is, of course, only when the 'tic' takes some very pronounced or objectionable form that medical aid is summoned. As for the less pronounced cases, you meet them everywhere in everyday existence. Unconscious gnawing of finger nails and biting of lips are examples of the malady in lesser form.

"Almost all 'tic' subjects are sufferers at the same time from some form of nervousness. Sometimes the movement arises in a natural cause. The contortions of a woman's features caused by a tight face veil, for example, which sometimes become chronic and continue after the cause is removed. Again, they are imitations consciously or unconsciously indulged in until a habit is formed.

"We have all seen the woman whose hand passes every few moments over her coiffure and the man who regularly strokes his chin or manipulates his beard while talking. How amazed these people would be to know that theirs was merely a lesser form of the distressing grimaces which attract attention in public places and cause us to regard the subject with pitying horror!

"As to the more pronounced forms, these have many variations. A recognized variety is that of 'cuss words' poured forth in great volume, the subject being either unaware of his delinquency or unable to control it, even when unprovoked by any annoyance.

"Any one who is subject to 'nerves' or who has been a victim of nervous prostration will do well to guard against the insidious encroachment of an individual 'tic.'" —New York Press.

Rheumatism.

"There is nothing so good for rheumatism as cotton batting," a lady declared the other day to a friend who was a victim of it. "I have tried every other remedy under the sun and cotton batting has been the only one when everything else has failed. For sciatica it hasn't an equal. I had suffered from it for weeks, could not turn myself in bed and had about concluded that I had better get to wait and let it wear out or wear me out. I sat for several sheets of cotton batting and scratched my leg in it from hip to toe, leaving not a loophole through which a particle of air could enter. In less than a week I was up and about the house. The pain had left me entirely, and I never have felt a twinge of it since." Care should be taken, however, especially in the winter, not to leave off the wrappings too suddenly.

Soap Economy.

The pulverized washing powders last much longer if used from a talcum powder shaker. A baking powder can with holes punched through the lid may be utilized for the purpose.

An Ideal Duster.

A soft chamois skin soaked in cold water and then wrung nearly dry is the ideal duster. It can be used on the finest furniture, and it will leave a clean, bright surface.

A Laundry Hint.

A good way to make starch for dark dresses is to place lump starch in a tin can and color a dark brown ink. Then make in the usual way.

Beware of Ointment for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. CONDENSED STORIES.

How Lord Palmerston Squelched a Youthful Annoyer.

When the late Lord Palmerston, who had a keen sense of humor, first put up for the parliamentary representation of Tiverton and had duly introduced himself to the electors in the usual manner at a public meeting a youth scarcely out of his teens mounted the platform and requested permission to ask his lordship some questions.

The audience appeared somewhat astounded at his impudence, but the veteran statesman showed neither annoyance, surprise nor contempt. Coolly, quietly and clearly he answered question after question till the malapert querist appeared satisfied.

"And now, young man," said Palmerston, "may I be allowed to ask you a question?"

"Oh, certainly, my lord; most certainly," replied the unsuspecting catechist—"anything you please."

"Thank you. Then may I inquire does your mother know you're out?" asked his lordship gravely, and the youth made a hasty exit amid roars of laughter.—New York News.

He Had Heard That Name.

The stagecoach that carries the mail between Kent's Hill and Readfield station in Maine drew up along the roadside, and the driver accosted a little old man working in a field:

"Do you know who Mrs. Abby B. Brown is and where she lives?"

The old man considered. "Brown, Abby B. Brown?" he repeated. "You don't mean Mrs. Polly Brown, do you?"

"No; Mrs. Abby B. Brown. We've got a letter for her."

"B., you say the middle letter is B, do you? I know a whole lot of Browns that live on the other side of the road, but there ain't any Abby B. among them. You don't mean Abby B. Smith, do you? She lives over—"

"No; it's Abby B. Brown. We'll find it somehow. Thanks."

The stage driver started his horse, but before the corner was reached a faint "Hello!" caused the passengers to turn around. The old man, hoe in hand, was pursuing the stage.

"Brown, Mrs. Abby B. Brown, did you say? Why, I know her. She's my wife."—Pittsburg Press.

Not Addition.

An editor was talking about the late Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice In Wonderland," "The Hunting of the Shark" and many other delectable tales.

"Lewis Carroll," he said, "was a mathematician, but his mind was not so narrow and crotchety as the minds of mathematicians usually are.

"I once heard him say that the normal mathematician disliked poetry. He got into an argument about poetry with an instructor in trigonometry on a certain occasion, and, his argument failing, he gave the instructor Tennyson's 'Charge of the Light Brigade' to read.

"There, read that," he said, 'and if you don't find it full of beauty I'll give in.'

"The instructor sneered, looked at the page and began to read: 'Half a league, half a league, half a league—'

"Then he threw down the book. 'If the fool means a league and a half,' he snorted, 'why the deuce can't he say so?'"

POLITENESS IN HAVANA.

To Render a Courtesy Gives Keen Pleasure to the Cuban.

Havana is a continuous performance. Picturesque groups of natives, queer looking wheeled vehicles, grotesque scenes and unusual sounds street one at every corner. Havana is old, and it looks every day of its age, from the stone flagging on the streets to the tile roofs overhanging the sidewalks. In fact, except that it is now the cleanest city in the world, where it bears the reputation of being the dirtiest, it looks just as it must have looked a hundred years ago. About every two squares are kiosks, or fruit stands, where green coconuts are piled up high and where native guanabana, or "soursop" lemonade, is dispensed at a few cents a glass. Pina fria, a refreshment made from the juice of the pineapple, is also prepared in a second.

These kiosks are also virtual information bureaus, not because they cater to this business, but because so many strangers stand on the corners and ask questions. The native Cuban, be he man of leisure or ordinary laborer, is cast in the same mold of old Spanish chivalry, and he will put himself at your disposal even to the neglect of his business. To the New Yorker, accustomed to the constant cry of "Step lively!" it is a genuine novelty as well as a pleasure to board a car in Havana and ask the conductor to call out when he reaches a certain street. To render a courtesy gives, to all appearances, the keenest pleasure to the Cuban. Even the blacks are Chesterfieldian in speech and manner, and they do not overdo it and make politeness a burlesque, as the French so often do.

Visitors to Havana, at least those who enjoy novelty, make a point of visiting the chocolate factory, just a few minutes' drive from the main hotels. It is not the amount of sweets which are bestowed upon the visitor nor the method of preparing various candies that makes the trip worth while. It is the fascinating spirit of welcome which greets guests from all sides. The factory is a large one, with many employees, and the especial duty of each seems to be to make it pleasant for the visiting stranger. A good looking guide from the office force accompanies the stranger from the top to the bottom of the factory.—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's Weekly.

The Face.

A single vertical wrinkle between the eyebrows shows strict honesty in money matters. Economy broadens the nose, making it rather short and thick above the nostrils. It gives in age a broad double chin. Lines extending downward from the angle of the mouth toward the chin, when marked, show a tendency to sadness and melancholy. The lines ranging outward from the eyes show capacity for enjoyment, as well as the two deep furrows framing the mouth by the upper lip. The former are the penalty—we pay for mirth and form the future channel of the tear. When one has short vertical lines in the red parts of the lips, strongly marked, they indicate a capacity for friendship. If the lips be full, the chin well developed and square, one has much vital power over others, a strong capacity for loving and self-reliant spirit.

Costly Water.

More money is paid for water in a single day than is paid for liquor in a week, though few purchasers are aware of the quantity of water they pay for. A ten pound turkey, for instance, is but three pounds solids and seven pounds water, and there are six pounds of water in ten pounds of pork, while the percentage of water in beef or mutton is about the same. Salmon and mackerel are but half water, though other fish contain a greater proportion of fluids. Sixty-five per cent of an egg is water, and there are about two ounces of water to the pound of butter. Vegetables run from 40 to 80 per cent of water, and even dried peas contain a small percentage. Taken at an average 55 per cent of all expenditures for food is paid for water. There is no way of avoiding payment.

OVER-TOP-BRAND

The Munford Building Taxed to its Uttermost. Every sales person within the great walls held right at their post, each carrying out the instruction given.

Don't LOSE A SINGLE Sale! To any ordinary man or woman in our city the above sentence is not hard to conceive and the fact that crowds that gather there daily and depart with their arms laden with the good things advertised is sufficient proof to convince every one that MUNFORD'S BIG STORE IS THE PRIDE OF GREENVILLE.

Well may it be said, and so it may be deserved, what other store would ever even dare to reach down in their pockets and hand out, actually give away pure money, free as the water you drink, and what else can you call it. Scant over the prices and just compare, the idea,

Best Granulated Sugar 4c. pound, Ladies Summer Vests 4c., Men's $7.50 Suits, Full Spring styles for $3.98 and Ladies $2.50 Shoes for 91 cents.

Is it any strange mystery that our building is crowded all the time. We don't want to hurry you but try and be here before Saturday night of this week, some specials might be getting low.

Nothing too GOOD

FOR

we are always looking for something better; always working to secure values and styles superior to other stores. when began to sell paper patterns we began to investigate. we said to ourselves,

THE LADIES HOME JOURNAL

is the leading Womens Magazine. It is first class and has never done anything in a second class way. We knew that its reputation was at stake. Our investigation convinced us that the patterns are as high grade as any Magazine

Furthermore the Ladies Home Journal added a new feature which makes these patterns much more desirable than any other patterns. They furnish a Guide Chart free with each pattern. This Chart shows exactly how the pattern is to be put together. It is so comprehensive that a child can understand it. It is a boon to ladies who are inexperienced in garment cutting and garment making. Mothers advise us that by the aid of the Guide Chart furnished with each

LADIES HOME JOURNAL

They train their daughters to do their own sewing

But there is still another point to consider. The patterns are all new, no old styles, no ancient creations; all new, all up-to-date and perfect in fit and style, and so much more easily understood than other patterns that one trial will convince you and make you a regular customer
