MISS JONES EXONERATED.

Coroner's Jury at Selma Hears Evidence in Case of Miss Pearl Jones.

Selma, June 16.—For the present at least, the killing of the negro, Bud Richardson, by the brave little telephone operator, Miss Pearl Jones, of this place, is a closed incident and the matter will be left to rest until the September term of Superior court for this county. So far as Miss Jones is concerned it is a thing of the past, this, as the result of the coroner's jury having completely exonerated her.

When she entered the room every eye was fastened upon her and remained there until she was excused and left the building. This within itself seemed sufficient to unnerve her. Instead, her walk was as steady as a soldier and she was as composed as if she had been on duty, shut out from the searching stare of the multitude of curiosity seekers. Her voice was peculiarly steady and distinct and being both graceful and good looking, she completely captivated the crowd, many of whom had never seen her before. She told her story deliberately, using good language, and impressed every one present with her candor and sincerity.

Among other things she said she had anticipated the possibility of such an attack and had prepared herself with a pistol which she kept by her side constantly when she was on duty and always in hand when she was moving from one room to another. On this particular night when she opened the door she thought she could hear something but saw nothing until she fired the first shot just to be sure. When she saw Richardson crouched in the corner she continued the firing until she was out of cartridges. She said certainly she shot to hit and would have been very sorry if he had escaped. As it turned out, she has no remorse nor nothing to regret. She was excused and the evidence closed.

The jury, like the goat, had already voted and the foreman immediately wrote the following verdict:

"North Carolina, Johnston county, Selma township, in the matter of Bud Richardson, deceased, verdict:

"We the coroner's jury summoned and sworn to make inquiry in the death of Bud Richardson, by whom produced and when and where, after consideration of the evidence heard by us, find that the death of said Bud Richardson was caused by a shot fired from a pistol in the hands of one Pearl Jones who undoubtedly fired the shot in the defense of her honor for which act this jury highly commends her.

It is reported that the lodges and churches are already voting commendatory of her action, which only goes to prove the brutes have no sympathy among their own race here.

MAN'S HEART SEWED UP.

Philadelphia Surgeon Takes Six Stitches in Pulsating Organ.

For twenty minutes the pulsating heart of William Wyatt, a negro, who had been stabbed in a struggle over a knife, was held in the hands of two physicians in the Pennsylvania hospital last night, while Dr. Richard Hart sewed six stitches in the organ and then replaced it in the man's body.

Wyatt who was first thought fatally injured, was reported to be resting comfortably today and the physicians believe the operation was successful.

It was the third time such a delicate operation had been performed in the city.

When Dr. Hart examined the negro he knew there was about one chance in a thousand of saving his life. That chance was in performing an operation on the heart. Dr. Hart made a long incision in the side, sufficiently large enough for the surgeon to lift out the pulsating heart and place it in there as it lay throbbing vigorously as it sent the blood coursing through the arteries.

The knife had inflicted a wound measuring an inch and a quarter in length fortunately on one side and missing the big arteries.

Dr. Hart was compelled to sew six stitches in the organ. This had to be done very slowly and carefully, and in order that the heart action should not be interfered with he was compelled to make the stitches between the pulsation.

When the operation was concluded the heart was put back in place and the external wound sewed up.—Philadelphia Dispatch.

AN UNRIGHTEOUS RULING.

That is a very unjust ruling of the Postoffice Department imposing a fine of $200 on any one who opens a letter by mistake. Business men do this constantly and in perfect honesty—with no thought of larceny of the contents of the envelopes. It is argued that people should examine their mail before leaving the postoffice and turn back any that may have been put in their boxes by mistake. But few if any of the people of cities or large towns get their mail at their postoffices. It is delivered to them by mail carriers and their is nothing more natural than that a business man, running hastily through a large bunch of letters should open one addressed to another person or firm of somewhat similar name and sent to him by error. He assumes, and naturally, in his postoffice box he finds a letter addressed to him, and he opens it. He finds it is a letter addressed to another person, and he is embarrassed. He is embarrassed because he has opened a letter which is not his, and he is embarrassed because he has opened a letter which is not his, and he is embarrassed because he has opened a letter which is not his.

It is reported that the lodges and churches are already voting commendatory of her action, which only goes to prove the brutes have no sympathy among their own race here.

MRS. PATTIE BYNUM PARKER.

Passes From Earth to Her Heavenly Home.

Mrs. Pattie Bynum Parker, aged nearly 56 years and widow of the late Mr. W. R. Parker, died a few minutes past six o'clock Sunday morning at her home in South Greenville.

Mrs. Parker was born in Farmville township August 16th, 1850. At the age of 16 years she united with Antioch Christian church and was baptised by Rev. George Joyner. She lived in Farmville until the year 1890, when she moved to Greenville. At the organization of the Christian church in Greenville her membership was transferred here where it remained until her death.

January 6th, 1892, two years after coming to Greenville, she was married to Mr. W. R. Parker and was a truly devoted wife. The death of her husband a few months ago tended to hasten her demise, and it is remarkable that she passed away on the day set apart by the Odd Fellows on which to hold memorial exercises to Mr. Parker. Her death was due to asthma and complications arising therefrom.

Six years ago Mrs. Parker became a cripple from rheumatism and was never able to go about afterward except by aid of a rolling chair. She was a great sufferer, though always patient, cheerful and uncomplaining. Notwithstanding her affliction, she was ever faithful and devoted to the cause of her Master. She was an active member of the Christian Woman's Mission Board of the church, and had the meetings held at her home to enable her to take part in the work.

Mrs. Parker is survived by two brothers and two sisters—Mr. Joseph J. Bynum, of Saratoga, Mr. W. B. Bynum, of Wilson, Mrs. J. M. Barrett, of Kinston, and Mrs. Henry Harris, of Falkland. She leaves no children but her stepchildren are Miss Ellen Parker and W. R. Parker, of Greenville, C. D. Parker, of Washington, Thomas Parker, of Florida, and Seth Parker, of Wilmington.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. H. Moore at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Christian church, followed by interment by the side of her late husband in Cherry Hill cemetery. The pall bearers were: Active—Messrs. E. A. Moye, Jr., C. O. H. Laughinghouse, J. L. Wooten, R. Williams, T. E. Moore and D. J. Whichard. Honorary—Messrs. E. E. Moye, Sr., J. A. Lang, W. J. Turnage, H. L. Coward, D. C. Moore, J. S. Tunstall, D. L. James, C. T. Munford.

Milne's Chance.

Had it not been for chance Professor Milne, the famous seismologist, might never have taken up the study of earthquakes at all. He was twenty-one years of age when Cyrus W. Field, the founder of the Atlantic Cable company, sent to the Royal School of Mines, London, for a young man to go out to Japan. The present professor was the man selected. "When can you start? On Tuesday?" asked Field. The student responded that the time was too short to get his things together, as it was then Friday. "Look here, young man," said Field. "It only took six days to make the world, and if a whole world can be made in that time your few things can be got together in less. Leave a note with my secretary as you go out as to what salary you want." On the Tuesday the young man was on his way to Japan.

The Story of a Novel.

The story of Lord Brougham's duil novel, "Albert Langel," is a curious one. Its author was so disgusted with the review which the London Times gave to an early copy that he suppressed the whole edition of 500. After his death an enterprising man bought the edition, which, mostly in sheets, was discovered in Brougham's library. It was issued in three volume form with the author's name, and one copy, it is recorded, was sold for $300 to a library in this country. Another went to Paris at a cost of $250, while a Berlin library paid $200 for a copy. The rest of the edition went to the London lending libraries on the usual terms. The publisher paid only $100 for the entire stock and copyright.

Mistaken.

"Well, captain, how were you pleased with the lady?"

"To speak frankly, I was somewhat disappointed."

"How so?"

"They said she was intellectual, but I talked with her half an hour, and she did not open her mouth once."

"You are mistaken there, captain. She yawned six or eight times."—London Mail.

The Oldest Man.

Says a writer in the Cape Times of Cape Town: "Stuurman, an old bushman who lives on the top of a hill at Stuurman's huts, in the Prieska district of the Cape Colony, claims to be the oldest man in the world. He is said to be 146 years old and his wife, his second, over 100. It is known for certain that sixty-five years ago he was a very old man and that his son is more than ninety years old."

His One Regret.

Swiggs—I wish I was about three feet taller than I am.

Biggs—Because why?

Swiggs—The doctor says whisky is killing me by inches.—Chicago News.

The Other Extreme.

"I know a man who married at ninety-seven."

"Well, he was too old to know better."—Detroit Free Press.

Instructions For Repairing a Mirror That Has Become Spotted.

Equal parts of the following formulas are used for the purpose of repairing spotted mirrors: (A) dissolve sixty grains of nitrate of silver in one ounce of water, and pour the solution quickly into a boiling solution of forty-eight grains of Rochelle salts in one ounce of water. On cooling filter the liquid and make up to twelve fluid ounces with distilled water.

(B) Dissolve sixty grains nitrate of silver in one ounce of water, then add ammonia until the precipitate is nearly redissolved, and then make up to twelve fluid ounces, as in A.

To renovate the spotted glass proceed as follows: Cut out the affected part, first marking off squarely with a straightedge and chisel, lay the glass flat on its face and apply the silvering compound. Mix equal parts (A) and (B), pour on the clear glass, allowing the solution to flow evenly over the bare space. Distilled water should be used and the solution kept in black bottles. Absolute cleanliness is essential to satisfactory work.—Boston Traveler.

To the Top of the Jungfrau.

The success of the Alpine railways, notably of those around Interlaken, encouraged Mr. Guyer-Zeller, an engineer of Zurich, to venture a railway to the top of Jungfrau. He obtained the concessions from the Swiss federal council, and, being a man of wealth and enterprise, he set to work at once, notwithstanding apparently insurmountable difficulties. Today the first half of the work is completed, and thousands of tourists visit the famous glaciers of the Eiger and the sea of ice on the other side of the Jungfrau range as an afternoon excursion, sipping their 5 o'clock tea in the subterranean station of the Eiger pyramid, 10,500 feet above the sea.—Century.

He Was That Child.

David Lloyd-George, M. D., had been making a political speech. When he stepped down from the platform a ragged old man came up to him and took his hand. Mr. Lloyd-George could not remember him. "Years ago," said the old man, "I was a doctor in Wales, and one night I was called out to go five miles to attend a young child who, I was told, was dying of croup. On my way home I wondered whether it was worth while to go so far to save a child who would only be brought up to a life of misery and hunger. However, the child recovered, and—well, you were that child."

Save the Golden Trout.

The golden trout is found in but one place in the world, in Volcano creek, California. Immense numbers are killed off each year by ruthless campers. An instance is on record of a game warden finding a heap of these fish stacked up to dry and decay. On the heap was a card stating that "we caught over 1,000 golden trout here," and the heap contained pretty nearly that number. If this sort of thing continues it will be but a short time before the golden trout will be practically exterminated.—Country Life

The Flight of Time.

"I knew of a case once where two darkies swapped mules," said a judge. "One of them was an old hand at the business, and in making the trade he represented his mule to be seven years old and told of many good traits the animal had not. This was in February. About two months later the other darky began to realize he had been victimized in the bargain and that the beast was fully twelve years old. So he decided to go back and tell the swindler he had lied to him about the animal. However, owing to it being the busy season of farming, he was not able to go until about the middle of June. He finally did go and told his man what he thought of his rascally misrepresentation about the mule.

"You say," said the other fellow, "dat when you got de mule in February he was seven years old and now it's June and he's twelve year old?" "Yes, I do," was the angry response. "Well, sah, time sure do fly."—American Spectator.

Tongue Twisters.

Some elocutionist has made a collection of more than 200 "tongue twisters."

"A growing gleam glowing green." "The bleak breeze blighted the bright broom blossoms."

"Flesh of freshly dried flying fish."

"Six thick thistle sticks."

"Two toads tried to trot to Tebbury."

"Give Grimes Jim's great gilt gig whip."

"Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slyly six sickly silky snakes."

"She stood at the door of Mrs. Smith's fish sauce shop welcoming him in."

The first three are the gems of the collection. It is said to be impossible for any one to repeat them rapidly.

GREENVILLE NEEDS FACTORIES.

One thing the business interests of Greenville needs is factories and the town is not going to show any very marked growth until these are secured. Through all its past career the town has depended upon the surrounding country for its patronage and it used to be the case that Greenville drew trade over a territory covering many miles. But things have changed in this particular. The country has developed, and along with it other towns have sprung up in almost every direction. These new towns are calling for a division of the country trade and getting their share of it, and every new town narrows the trade territory of the other towns just so much. The town that looks out most for itself is going to have the largest business and factories afford the best means in this direction. The people living throughout the country can go where they please, as best suits their convenience, to do their trading. With factory employes it is different—they do their trading in the town where they work.

If there were a thousand, or several thousand, hands employed in factories in Greenville, you would see a vast increase in the volume of trade when these employes received their wages. A large number of factory employes here would make the town a better market for country produce. This would naturally bring more of the people who raise this produce here to supply the demand, and while here selling the products of their farms they would also make their purchases, and business would be increased proportionally. In numerous other ways would the town be helped by having factories. Greenville needs to be taking hold of this idea and doing something to bring the factories.

As Chicago is now taking a hand in it and issued a cleaning up order the packing houses may get busy.

Mrs. B. L. Duke says she had rather have Brodie than his money. She places too high estimate on the man.

Wonder why Abernathy never took hold of the idea of going to Utah. He might not have been in jail if he had gone there for his four wives.

On Saturday Oklahoma and Indian Territory were admitted jointly to statehood under the name of Oklahoma, and the flag gets one more star on it.

Some of the men folks around Selma should follow the example of the young lady telephone operator and learn how to use a pistol. By that means they might stop store robberies there.

Outrages against the Jews in Russia have again broken out. It seems that upon the slightest pretext these offenseless people are set upon by infuriated mobs and brutally maltreated many of them being killed. And the civilized nations of the world look on without a protest.

The outcome of the recent controversy between the State Corporation Commission and the Southern railway over the commission ordering the railroad not to change a schedule and the order being utterly ignored, shows that the commission is wanting in authority. The next Legislature should give this authority or else abolish the commission.

We were beginning to think something of the recent excessive rains in North Carolina, but they are small as compared to the floods that have struck portions of South Carolina and Georgia. In portions of the latter State crops are reported practically ruined by inundation.

In treating the authorities of the State with contempt and ignoring orders issued to it, the Southern railway is making trouble for itself when another Legislature gets a chance at it. Possibly the railroad is taking chances with the idea of getting control of the Legislature by securing the election of those under its influence. This is a matter the people should guard against.

AS TO FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES.

The demand for special legislation is generally an unjust demand, because it is in the interest of a few people rather than the public good. Unfortunately there is too much of it, and so much that it has become accepted as the proper thing. Special legislation is generally an effort to secure just as much in behalf of particular parties as can be secured without a protest from the public. It is often merely the use of the power of the State in the interest of a few or a class. Such a law as the present so-called landlord and tenant act, for example, is, in effect, giving to an employer the power of the State to punish criminally a laborer for violating a contract, in the making of which the strong man, in the person of an employer, has all the advantage. After making an agreement to his advantage, the landlord can invoke the power of the State, not to see that his rights to liberty and property are not violated, but that a penniless and perhaps ignorant laborer shall carry out an agreement that he has become to believe deprives him of his rights. North Carolina is in need of harking back to some fundamental principles.—Monroe Journal.

The discovery that there are only sixty up-to-date guns in the British army might be more alarming for England if she did not usually have some other nation at her fighting.—Washington Post.

The Responsibility of Disease Laid to The House-Fly.

The musca domestica or house-fly, says Mary Hinman Abel in her paper on "Flies and Food," in The Delineator for July, is known to convey cholera in the East, and is under suspicion as to other diseases.

Its origin and habits are such as to put us on our guard. It lays its eggs in excrement, preferring horse manure, but if that does not offer, readily using any other. It feeds on the same and on the sputum of diseased throats and lungs, on refuse of all kinds, and it bears on its hairy feet and legs particles of these substances.

Unlike the mosquito, the house-fly is not a biter—but it has its own way of carrying contagion. It deposits, wherever it goes, disease and disease germs may abound in its breeding and feeding places. On the joint of meat exposed for sale by the butcher, on the bread and sweetmeats of the confectioner counter, on the edge of the milk can, on the kitchen and dining room tables, they have been found.

The epidemic of typhoid fever in Chicago in 1902 fixed guilt on the fly. It was especially severe in the nineteenth ward, which finished one-seventh of the deaths, while containing but one-thirty-sixth of the city's population. This locality did not differ from the rest of the city in its water or its food supply, but it did differ in having more than fifty per cent. of its houses without sanitary plumbing, the water being insufficient. Flies caught in undrained closets, on the fences, and in the room of a patient were proved to carry the germ.

Nine Cars Piled Up in Wreck on A. C. L.

Wilmington, N. C. June 16.—Nine cars of an eastbound local freight on the New Bern division of the Coast Line were completely demolished in a wreck at the nine mile post, just this side of Scott's Hill, about 7 o'clock this morning.

The train dashed into a washout at the bottom of a steep grade, a what is known as Sweet Water Branch the locomotive and tender passing over safely with the exception of the rear wheel of the engine and nine of about fifteen cars behind telescoping and piling in a confused heap along the track. The engine and tender broke loose from the train and ran on the ties for some distance ahead, capsizing with comparative no damage.

The engineer, Eugene Knight, was thrown against his cabin and knocked insensible for a short time, but he is thought not to be seriously hurt if complications do not follow an operation for peritonitis some time ago.

An Old Fish Story.

Here is an eighteenth century fish story. It is told in a letter written by a traveler in Russia to a woman in England. A vessel laden with the latest fashions from Paris was run down in the channel of St. Petersburg.

Care of the Hair.

Instead of washing the hair (which takes off the natural oil and causes it to "fly just everywhere" for several days, until the oil exudes and is brushed over the hair) spread a clean, white cloth that will not lint over the slightly parted fingers of the left hand and with the right one rub your brush thoroughly, but gently, on the cloth.

Remedy For Insect Pests.

A good way to rid the house of pests is to place an old saucer under different articles of furniture in the room filled with a strong solution of carbolic acid. Close all the windows and doors and keep them closed for twenty-four hours.

Queer Reasons That Have Been Assigned For Bankruptcy.

The petitioner in the court of bankruptcy was a young man of aristocratic birth. He had inherited a fortune of $2,000,000 at the age of twenty-three. Now, at twenty-six, he was a bankrupt.

"How did you come to run through your money at this rate?" asked the judge.

"A love of food ruined me, sir," the bankrupt answered. "I gave the best and costliest dinners America has ever seen. One of my dinners—a dinner of ten covers—cost $10,000."

"Foolish young man," murmured the judge.

This judge at the end of the session talked about the strange reasons for their bankruptcy that some bankrupts would give.

"A bachelor of thirty-five," he said, "appeared before me owing something like $75,000 for gambling debts, $20,000 for wines, $4,500 to his tailor, $15,000 to the jewelers, $1,000 to his haberdasher and $1,100 to his host. When he was asked the cause of his bankruptcy he answered:

"An inability to negotiate any more loans."

"The weather often causes bankruptcy. A succession of warm winters will make skate manufacturers and sleigh manufacturers and furriners go under. A succession of cold winters will ruin the hotel men and the shopkeepers of summer resorts. Weather unprecedentedly dry will send to the wall the handlers of india rubber goods—waterproof coats, overshoes, gum boots, and so on.

"Insects hardly visible to the eye have caused the bankruptcy of florists, farmers and fruit growers. One of these insects, the phylloxera, made bankrupt the whole island of Madeira. Getting among the vines it destroyed them utterly.

"A woman insurance agent once pleaded in my court that a depreciation of beauty was the cause of her failure. She had been making $7,000 a year, but an illness seized her, and this illness impaired her beauty greatly. 'Before and after' photographs of her were shown, and I must admit that her looks had suffered much. Since her illness she had been unable to make much money. Men had not listened to her as before. Her income, in fact, had fallen from $600 to $75 a month."—Chicago Chronicle.

His Friends.

Could Take His Place.

There is a delicious story of a very vain officer who was helping to garrison Edinburgh castle when the Boer war was in its early days.

"You are ordered off for active service immediately!" exclaimed a stripling, rushing into the officer's establishment.

The pompous man, alert with excitement, was on his feet in an instant.

"Good heavens!" he burst out. "Has Roberts been killed already?"

A Cigar Story.

A few of the friends of a Broadway cigar dealer enjoy at times high priced smokes for very little money.

The dealer in question carries several lines of one and two dollar cigars as well as one brand selling for $2.50. These are naturally made of the richest Havana leaf and are especially attractive to an insect which burrows into the cigar, making a hole as large as the head of a pin and perhaps a quarter of an inch deep. The insect does not spoil the flavor of the tobacco. But in the higher priced grades it is impossible to offer for sale a patched wrapper, and so these cigars are laid aside to be sold to the favored ones.

They are grouped with regard to the number of perforations, those with a couple of holes selling for 35 cents each, while others go for as low as 15 cents. A bit of cigarette paper wetted and placed over the hole preserves the draft, and the cigar is every bit as good as those in the case.—New York Press.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Legend of the Tame Goose—How It Lost Freedom.

There is a legend which purports to tell why the tame goose cannot fly. Once upon a time two geese agreed to take a long journey together. On the eve of their departure one said to the other, "Mind you are ready, my friend, for inshallah (if God will) I shall set out at sunrise tomorrow."

"And so will I, inshallah or not," replied the other.

Next morning the pious goose rose lightly on the wing and flew to a distant land. The impious goose, however, found himself unable to spread his wings and after many vain attempts to fly was caught and carried home by a fowler. And ever since that the tame goose has lost the use of his wings because he would not say "inshallah," while the pious goose still enjoys his original freedom.

Too Well Posted.

"Woman," said he in agonized tones, "you have broken my heart." She laid her ear to his manly bosom.

"No," said she after listening intently, "there is not the slightest evidence of organic lesion. There is a slight palpitation, due perhaps to cigarettes; that is all."

And now the young man swears that hereafter when he makes love to a girl he will be sure she is not a medical student.

Less Capacity For Suffering.

"I notice the soprano doesn't sing any more solos, Mr. Battong," said the Rev. Dr. Fourthly. "Why is that?"

"Because," answered the leader of the choir, "there's a lot of jealous, ill natured souls in the congregation that are always knocking her singing. They come to her and say it's 'such a pity she wasn't at her best when she sang that solo,' and they worry her so she can't do herself justice."

"She ought not to let that trouble her. Why, I never preach a sermon without displeasing a lot of people. They don't fail to let me hear of it either, but it doesn't bother me a particle."

"Yes, but it's different with you, doctor. You haven't the artistic temperament."—Chicago Tribune.

Trades For Boys.

Few boys take to tasks that require thought and persistent efforts. Yet skilled work is the only employment in demand.

Hodcarriers and common laborers glut the markets everywhere. The tradesmen and artisans are the ones that get the easiest jobs and the most money. The others are always hunting work.

Should they accidentally stumble upon a job they cannot hold it. A superficial knowledge will not do. It must be thorough.

Boys, learn a trade while young. After you are twenty years old few will be found who will take the time and trouble to teach you one. When you are that old you will want a man's pay. If you don't know anything you don't get it. Knownothings work at odd jobs and are paid the lowest scale.—Gem.

Walking Backward.

Boys and girls sometimes suffer from nervous headache, and they are advised to try a simple remedy. It is not a drug, but is so very simple and harmless that it may be tried by the most delicate person. It is merely the act of walking backward. An instructor in physical culture claims that it is an infallible remedy. You should walk very slowly, letting the ball of the foot touch the floor first, and then the heel. A few minutes' walking generally effects a complete cure, according to the instructor. He also claims that walking backward for a little while every day is the best way to learn to walk forward easily and gracefully. Suppose you try it. It certainly cannot do you any harm.

Tribe of 2,000 Commit Suicide.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—An entire nomadic tribe, the Tshukto-bees, numbering about 2,000, has just perished by its own act as the last avenue of escape from famine.

The tribe inhabited one of the bleakest parts of Yakutsk, and obtained a precarious subsistence rearing reindeer. Early in 1906 a deadly disease appeared among the deer, and by winter the entire herd had perished. With slow starvation staring them in the face, the elders of the tribe spent a day in discussing what should be done. The decision was that each father should first kill his family and then himself.

On the following day the appalling tragedy was carried out in the open air in a general assembly.
