A STEEL LINED BLOUSE

Found by Philadelphia Police in Probing Chinese Shooting.

Complete verification of the statement that members of the warring factions in Chinatown wear coats of mail to protect them from the bullets and knife thrusts of their enemies was found yesterday when the police, in investigating the shooting of Willie Lee-York, found an armored coat in the room of Lee Pock, his alleged assailant. The coat is made after the ordinary style of a Chinaman's loose blouse and is blue jean or heavy drilling. On the body it looks like an ordinary laundryman's working blouse, but when the police picked it up they found out differently.

The garment from hem to neck was padded with steel, in the shape of pieces about an inch and a half square. These do not lap like scales, but are brought together, edge to edge, and held with loops of wire. That the metal lined coat might conform to the body the pieces of steel were pounded and made slightly concave. Across the body of the garment, back and front, is apparently a seam, but examination showed that the coat was made of double thickness in the lower portion, and underneath the apronlike lap in front there was a long pocket like a holster.

The garment weight all told about fifty pounds, and is about three-fourths of an inch in thickness. It was turned over to Superintendent Taylor and will be taken into court as an exhibit in the case of Lee Pock, who was held at a hearing before Magistrate Gallagher to await the result of York's injuries.—Philadelphia Record.

From a Six-Acre Farm.

G. W. Baker, who owns four acres of land in the northern suburb of Gaffney, last year rented two acres from a neighbor and went to work, and from these six acres, after supplying his father large family bountifully from his farm, he sold from one and two-third acres 340 bushels of sweet potatoes for $272. From two acres of land in cotton he sold $93 worth and from his snap bean patch he sold $35 worth of beans, making a total of $415 in cash received for the surplus products made on this small farm.

Besides this above, Mr. Baker made 50 bushels of corn and killed 500 pounds of pork, which he grew at home and fattened with the products of his farm. During last year Mr. Baker worked much away from home. Among other things, he earned enough by work to pay for a one-horse wagon and mule, with which he made his crop. We had often heard about Mr. Baker's crop, and a few days ago we asked him about it. The above facts were obtained from him, and no one who knows him will doubt any statement he makes about his work or anything else. Cherokee (S. C.) News.

In the report published yesterday of the Odd Fellows memorial service held in the opera house, Sunday afternoon, it should have been stated that Dr. D. L. James was master of ceremonies.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town.

Ayden, N. C. June 19, 1906.

Mrs. Marion Crawford, of Winterville, was visiting friends in Ayden from Saturday until Monday.

Edward Mumford, of Morganton, who has been here for several weeks with his parents, left for home yesterday.

Mrs. H. G. Burton, who has been away on a visit to her parents, has come home.

William Manning left yesterday for Kinston from whence he will go on the excursion to Raleigh today.

Rev. T. N. Peaden left last Thursday to spend the summer at his old home up in Ohio.

Lil Cannon is back in the drug store from Wrightsville. Lil says he saw lots of girls and all kinds of girls, but the Ayden girl is good enough for him. He displays good taste, too.

Walter Harrington, after visiting relatives here, has returned to his position in McCall, S. C.

Elder Cashwell, a former resident of Ayden, but who has been away for several years, was here last week shaking hands with old friends.

Merrimon McKinney, of Washington, has been here on a visit to his mother.

Robert Anderson, of Grimesland, was here Sunday.

Walter Barfield, of Norfolk, has been a welcome visitor in Ayden during the week.

Has the interest in the cotton factory died out? We hope not.

J. H. Browning came home yesterday from his old home in Jamesville and can now be found at the popular stores of J. R. Smith & Bro.

The Methodist observed children's day last Sunday. There was a very large crowd present. The exercises consisted of songs recitations, &c., and everything passed off nicely and pleasantly. The children especially seeming to enjoy the occasion. The church chancel and pulpit were all tastily fitted off with lovely flowers and evergreen beautifully and artistically arranged, plainly showing the handiwork of God's noblest and best creation, fair womanhood. This is as it should be, encouraging as it does the young in their duty and teaching them the better and brighter side of devotion to truth and loyalty to their Creator.

Several Greensboro negroes entered into a conspiracy to kill two of the policemen in that city. While attempting to execute their plot one of the conspirators was fatally wounded by a shot intended for an officer. The plot was exposed and the other conspirators are in jail.

AROUND GRIFTON.

Vanderbilt Sees and Hears Things.

GRIFTON, N. C., June 18.—

We had the pleasure of listening to a lecture at the Disciple church last evening on the subject of "Push," by Mrs. Meta Sagra, of Indian Territory. Mrs. Sagra was formerly Miss Chestnut, born and raised near Grifton, who by herculean efforts on her part and great energy and push, has succeeded most admirably in the life work she has undertaken by advancing the cause of education in both the practical and theoretical standpoints. Honoring honest labor, both physical and mental, that the right of this exercise of both body and mind is God given, and that it is obligatory upon us, little boys and girls, men and women, to educate our hands to honest toil, which is both healthful and expedient for the development of the physical and spiritual man. Oh, that we could have all our men and women of the present day, hearty, healthy and strong in physical, mental and spiritual exercise. After the address all her former friends and acquaintances gathered around and greeted her and husband with a warm welcome. Wish we could know all our people were filled with the spirit of pushing along to the utmost until successful in all our honorable undertakings.

Your correspondent rode around in the community looking at the crops yesterday and find that the farmers are mostly up with their work, but the crops not coming up in the time they ought to, gave the grass a chance to step in between them and the farmer, and all the farmer has got to do now is to put in all the licks he can and weed out his row until he can get between the grass and his crop and then he will be all O. K.

We are very sorry indeed that Mrs. W. J. Kittrell is no better. She is very feeble with typhoid fever.

Capt. Pope is confined to the house and very feeble.

We commend the choir at the church Sunday evening for their good music, under the management of Miss Bessie Spier, the organist, and all the people present for the close attention given Mrs. Sagra while giving her lecture.

For several days last week we had the pleasure of the company of E. Wallace, of Wilkesboro. He is working up Masonic insurance, which is confined severely to the Masonic order.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Laughinghouse were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Loftin Sunday evening.

Ohio's Governor Dead.

Cincinnati, O., June 18.—John M. Pattison, governor of Ohio, died at his home in Milford, a suburb of this city, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. He had passed a good night and there had been no report of any serious change during the day. During the early afternoon the news from his home was considered favorable, and the later announcement of death came as a great shock to the governor's friends.

SUGG FOR REGISTER OF DEEDS.

Bethel, N. C., June 19th, 1906.—

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

As a Pitt County farmer I desire to say that we want Mr. J. L. Sugg for our next Register of Deeds for Pitt County. Mr. Sugg is a man we all want to honor and a democrat who has always stood for the best interest of the public good.

Bethel township will support him and no better man can be selected for that office. We can nominate him and he will serve the people in that capacity with credit to himself and with justice to every citizen of the county. He has always been faithful and loyal to his party, and we cannot make a better selection than to nominate him for Register of deeds.

LOWERING DEVICE.

For Placing Bodies in the Grave.

The John Flanagan Buggy Co., have procured a lowering device for use in their undertaking department when conducting burials. This device is placed over the grave, the coffin is placed on it and the device automatically and slowly lowers the casket in the grave. This device does away with the old way of lowering the casket by means of straps, takes a severe strain off the pall bearers and removes the anxiety often felt by persons around the grave that by some slip the casket might be let fall. The lowering device can be adjusted to fit any size grave. It shows enterprise and care on the part of our undertakers to procure such appliances.

TOO MUCH OF A JOKE.

What marriage would endure after a practical joke, especially upon the husband? A St. Louis man, victim of a merry jest, is suing his wife for divorce. The pair went to a masked ball. The husband was somewhat jealous of a German actor. The wife disappeared in the throng, and after a long search the husband grew suspicious of a pair in black dominoes who appeared much interested in each other. The other women at the ball insinuated that the pair were the wife and the actor. The husband gave the female black domino a severe lecture, when, lo, his wife appeared wearing no mask except an expression of innocence! Everybody laughed, as the whole farce-comedy had been arranged in advance. The husband's sense of humor would not stand the strain. He seeks relief from the practical joker.

A Remarkable Watch.

There is in the possession of the czar a very remarkable watch. It was made by a Polish mechanic named Jules Curzen. The late czar had heard some wonderful tales about the inventive ability of this man, and, wishing personally to test his skill, he sent him a parcel containing a few copper nails, some wood shavings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire and a few cribbage board pegs. Accompanying this was a command to make them into a time-piece. Within a remarkably short time the czar received them back in the shape of a watch. The case was made of china and the works of the other odds and ends. So pleased and astonished was the czar that he sent for the man, conferred several distinctions on him and granted him a pension.

Reads by the Light of a Sausage.

Professor Hans Molisch of Prague, according to the London Mail, has been able to read a newspaper by the microbic glow emanating from a sausage. All meat—beef as often as in 52 cases out of 100 and veal in 50 out of 100—contains the microbe which projects a greenish white light. With sausages it is not so frequent, but is, when present, much stronger. When the fat on the luminous sausage was scraped away it immediately ceased to give forth light, but as soon as the surface had again been covered by the fat oozing from the interior the light reappeared. Professor Molisch asserts that the presence of these microbes in meat is no sign of decay, but rather the contrary, as in no case have they been found in meat unfit for human consumption.

A Trouble Center.

The small boy had just smoked his first cigar. "Boss," he gasped, with a troubled look, "w-where was dat cigar made?" "That cigar, my lad," replied the man who had given him the weed, "was made in Santo Domingo." "Gee! I thought so." "Why did you think so?" "It—it started half a dozen revolutions in me stomach."—Chicago Daily News

Instructions For Repairing a Mirror That Has Become Spotted.
Equal parts of the following formulas are used for the purpose of repairing spotted mirrors: (A) dissolve sixty grains of nitrate of silver in one ounce of water, and pour the solution quickly into a boiling solution of forty-eight grains of rochelle salts in one ounce of water. On cooling filter the liquid and make up to twelve fluid ounces with distilled water.
(B) Dissolve sixty grains nitrate of silver in one ounce of water, then add ammonia until the precipitate is nearly redissolved, and then make up to twelve fluid ounces, as in A.
To renovate the spotted glass proceed as follows: Cut out the affected part, first marking off squarely with a straightedge and chisel, lay the glass flat on its face and apply the silvering compound. Mix equal parts (A) and (B), pour on the clear glass, allowing the solution to flow evenly over the bare space. Distilled water should be used and the solution kept in black bottles. Absolute cleanliness is essential to satisfactory work.—Boston Traveler.

"SPOTTED DOG."

A Dainty Sn. Morsel That Is Not Very Hard to Make.

One evening my friend, the skipper, suddenly clapped his hand on my back and blithely announced that tomorrow would be his birthday.

"And, gee whiz," he continued, "we must have some 'spotted dog'."

This is always considered a rare treat aboard ship. Just why it is so regarded is as rare as a hen's tooth. "Spotted dog" is a sailor's term for plum pudding. In my wanderings around the world I have seen it served scores of times to celebrate some great event and taken from the table untouched. Mayhap some young woman who is learning to cook would like the recipe, so here goes:

Spotted Dog For Ten Persons.—Take about three-fourths of a bushel of flour in a large dishpan and add sufficient water to make a pasty dough. Do not knead it thoroughly, and do not add any yeast, for fear it may rise when baking. When you have finished kneading, place the pan containing the dough against the wall and step back about five paces. Take several heaping handfuls of dried currants and throw them with all your might and main at the dough. Those that hit the dough will give it a freckled appearance; hence its name. Place in a slow oven. If any of the currants miss fire sweep them up and add while baking, as they give the dish a peculiar piquancy and zest.

I never knew a special occasion aboard a sailing ship when this confection was not served as the prelude to resistance. I have known passengers to fast for days and pass by every other offering on the table in order to whet their appetite for it, but I never knew one to eat it when it was set before him. Of all the edibles of a ship's cuisine it is the most unpalatable. It might be replaced by lignum vitae or cobblestones.—Charles Sarka in Success Magazine.

THE WORD "NONE."

Is It Singular, or May It Be Used in the Plural?

It is not from disregard of derivation that the speech is in any serious danger. Much more harmful is the deference mistakenly paid to it. From this results not unfrequently a pedantic and even painful mode of expression in opposition to the best usage, and that, too, without the slightest counterbalancing advantage. A remarkable illustration of this can be seen in the case of "none" as the subject of a plural verb. When and where the outbreak of hostility to this usage first manifested itself it may not be easy to determine. Apparently it was not until of late that any one ever thought seriously of questioning the propriety of the construction. But the fact seems suddenly to have dawned upon the mind of some student of speech that "none" was a contraction of no one. The processes of logic were at once set in motion. No one is exclusively confined in its construction to the singular. It cannot be used with a verb in the plural. In that all would agree. The conclusion was at once drawn that the word derived from it must be exactly in the same situation. It was therefore highly improper to use "none" as the subject of a plural verb.

It is needless to say to any person who has made himself familiar with the best usage, either written or spoken, that "none" has been and is employed indifferently as a singular and a plural, if anything, more frequently in the latter number than in the former. The study of our best writers settles that point decisively. It is in the power of any one to decide the question for himself, and it will make little difference what is the work he takes up. At Miletus Paul tells his followers of the bonds and afflictions which await him at Jerusalem. "But none of these things move me," he continues, according to the authorized version which adopts here the trans-

The Charlotte Observer vowed it would never call it anything but a flying machine, yet in the very next item referred to it as an airship.

An amusing coincidence in connection with Rockefeller's gifts, is that every time he makes one the price of oil or gasoline pops up.

Dowie should be put along in the catalogue with Munchausen. The whoppers he tells entitles him to that distinction.

They keep talking about whether it shall be a lock or sea level canal, but no one alive today will be living when one of either kind is built. Yet while the discussion and preliminaries are going they will spend enough money to build half a dozen canals if it was all paid for digging.

WHERE GAMBLERS ARE MADE.

At a mass meeting in the Second Presbyterian church of this city (Portsmouth, Ohio,) on a recent Sabbath afternoon, in the presence of over two hundred men, a converted gambler and ex-saloon keeper made the following statement, which has created a profound impression, and I herewith transmit it to your paper that it may do good in a wider sphere:

"I have been in the saloon business with a gambling room attached, for the last four years, and claim to know something about what I am going to tell you. I do not believe that the gambling den is near so dangerous, nor does it do anything like the same amount of harm, as the social card party in the home. I give this as my reason: In the gambling room the windows are closed tight, the curtains are pulled down; everything is conducted secretly for fear of detection, and none but gamblers, as a rule, enter there. While in the parlor all have access to the game, children are permitted to watch it, young people are invited to partake in it. It is made attractive and alluring by giving prizes, serving refreshments and adding high social enjoyments. For my part I never could see the difference between playing for a piece of silver moulded in the shape of money and silver moulded in the shape of a cup or thimble. The principle is the same, and whenever property changes hands over the luck of cards, no matter how small is the value of the prize, I believe it is gambling.

"Perhaps you have never thought of it, but where do all the gamblers come from? They are not taught in the gambling dens. A greener unless he is a fool, never enters a gambling hell, because he knows he will be fleeced out of everything he possesses in less than fifteen minutes. He has learned some where else before he sets foot inside of such a place. When he has played in the parlor, in the social game of the home, and has become proficient enough to win prizes among his friends, then the next step with him is to seek out the gambling room, for he has learned and counts upon his efficiency to hold his own. The saloon men and gamblers chuckle and smile when they read in the papers of the parlor games given by the ladies, for they know that after a while those same men will become patrons of their business. I say, then, the parlor game is the college where gamblers are made and educated. In the name of God, men, stop this business in your homes. Burn up your deck and wash your hands.

"The other day I overheard two ladies talking on the street. One said: 'I am going to have a card party, and am going to the store to buy a pack of cards. Which are the best kind to get?' The other replied: 'Get the Angel Card. It has an angel on the back.'

"Think," said he, "of dragging the pure angel of Heaven into this infernal business."

After he had taken his seat another converted ex-gambler, who led the men's meeting in the Second Presbyterian church the following Sabbath, arose and said: "I endorse every word which the brother before me has just uttered. I was a gambler. I learned to play cards, not in the saloon, not in my own home, but in the homes of my young friends, who invited me to play with them and taught me how."—Gospel Messenger.

She Scolds and He Sulks.

"Of course the man who sulks is very foolish, but the world is full of them. Six months ago a neighbor of ours named Volney mysteriously disappeared; this evening the children came running in and said that Mr. Volney had come back. Soon after the man's disappearance I talked with Mrs. Volney, and she said that the morning before her husband disappeared she had given him a good scolding. That explained it; he had gone off in a fit of the sulks to punish his wife. Of course this was contemptible in Volney, but men do many things that are contemptible, and the indignation of their neighbors will not cure them. I have known several men to go to the devil because of the sulks. One of them was educated and wealthy, occupied a high social position and was very fond of his wife. Her friends told her that she should break him of it; that there was no sense in the way he was acting, which was perfectly true. So once when he was sulking without apparent cause she left home, intending to reprove him. But she soon came back in answer to a telegram announcing that her husband had shot himself. I believe every woman who 'jaws' her husband makes a mistake. Men cannot be controlled in that way. I know a woman who took a wreck of a man and made him a good citizen. She never spoke a cross word to him, and his devotion to his wife is the talk of the town. I know another woman whose husband was drifting into very bad habits; habits that wives particularly dislike. Instead of taking the advice of her friends to leave him she resolved to save him, and did it. I admire that woman immensely. These men deserve 'roasting,' undoubtedly; they deserved boiling as well, but neither of these cooking processes would have saved them. If I were a woman, and found gentleness more effective than 'jawing,' I should adopt it without reference to my rights."—Aitchison Globe.

BEAUFORT BOARDING HOUSE QUARANTINED FOR SMALLPOX.

Mrs. Sarah Davis' boarding house at Beaufort, one of the most popular places at this summer resort, was placed under quarantine Sunday morning for smallpox, Mr. and Mrs. Bradham, of Edenton, and a child of Mrs. Webb, having the disease. It is said the cases are all very mild and occasions no alarm except for the inconvenience resulting from the quarantine. As soon as the action of the health authorities at Beaufort was taken the Atlantic Hotel quarantined against the city across the river and there is no danger of the infection reaching the guests at the Atlantic.—Kinston Free Press.

It is more fun to see a man read a puff on himself in a newspaper than to see a fat man slip on a banana peel. The narrow minded man reads it over seven or eight times and then goes around to appropriate what copies he can. The kind hearted man goes around to the office and pays what he owes. The successful business man who advertises regularly, and makes money by it, immediately starts out to find the editor and the two walk silently down the street and the business man takes sugar in his's and they both eat a clove or two and life is sweeter and peace settles down on their hearts for moments. Such is the experience of a mustard seed that falls on different ground.—Louisburg Times.

A Peculiar Occupation Followed Off the Coast of Ireland.

Along the northwest coast of Ireland, on the borders of the Atlantic, dwells a hardy race of men whose chief occupation, when not engaged in fishing, consists in the manufacture of kelp.

This kelp is of great commercial importance, as from it is obtained nearly all our iodine, a body of vast use in medicine.

During the winter months the kelp burners set out in their frail little "currachs" (small canoe-like boats about twelve feet long, made of canvas), and, proceeding along the coast, fill the boats with seaweed, from which the kelp is made. In this they are assisted by the women, who, bareheaded and shoeless, take their turn regularly at the oars and are almost as expert at it as the men.

After a storm is the time selected for obtaining the seaweed, as by the force of the waves it has been torn from its bed and is cast in along the shore in large quantities.

When the boats are laden the seaweed is brought to a small creek and there placed in heaps out of reach of the tide. From this it is carried in creels on the backs of men and women to a point farther inland, where it has to undergo a process of drying.

The drying consists in exposing it to the sun and wind, and the better to do this they have rows of loose stones laid about twenty yards in length and a few feet in height. Along the tops of these they scatter the seaweed.

The drying takes months, so that spring is well advanced ere it is ready for burning. This does not matter, however, as, owing to the fuel—the peat, or turf, got from the bogs at hand—not being yet cut and dried (or "win," as it is termed), it is summer before the burning in the kilns can commence.

The kiln is a deep trench dug in the ground. Alternate layers of turf and seaweed are laid in this till full, and the whole is kept burning for about three weeks, until it cakes together in a large black mass resembling coke, but much more solid and heavier. This is the kelp.

It is then broken into blocks about fourteen inches square and brought by boat to the villages, where it is sold, to be shipped to more profitable markets. — London Standard.

Refined Torture.

The wife of a well known official in Washington holds some novel ideas with reference to the punishment of refractory children. Physical chastisement is most repugnant to this lady's mind, but she has evolved a unique system that has proved most successful. On one occasion a friend was visiting her when one of the boys had surreptitiously appropriated an orange belonging to his younger brother. The misdemeanor was discovered before the culprit had disposed of his spoil. So the two youngsters were summoned to the judgment seat.

"James," was the stern command of the mother, "take this seat, and you, Thomas, that one. Now, Thomas, give James the orange you have stolen from him."

When the lads had done as they were ordered the mother added:

"James, I want you to take as long as possible to eat that orange. You, Thomas, are to sit there and watch him eat it. Under no circumstances are you to leave the room." — Harper's Weekly.

Beware of Ointment for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. CONDENSED STORIES.

How Lord Palmerston Squelched a Youthful Annoyer.

When the late Lord Palmerston, who had a keen sense of humor, first put up for the parliamentary representation of Tiverton and had duly introduced himself to the electors in the usual manner at a public meeting a youth scarcely out of his teens mounted the platform and requested permission to ask his lordship some questions.

The audience appeared somewhat astounded at his impudence, but the veteran statesman showed neither annoyance, surprise nor contempt. Coolly, quietly and clearly he answered question after question till the malapert querist appeared satisfied.

"And now, young man," said Palmerston, "may I be allowed to ask you a question?"

"Oh, certainly, my lord; most certainly," replied the unsuspecting catechist—"anything you please."

"Thank you. Then may I inquire does your mother know you're out?" asked his lordship gravely, and the youth made a hasty exit amid roars of laughter. — New York News.

He Had Heard That Name.

The stagecoach that carries the mail between Kent's Hill and Readfield station in Maine drew up along the roadside, and the driver accosted a little old man working in a field:

"Do you know who Mrs. Abby B. Brown is and where she lives?"

The old man considered. "Brown, Abby B. Brown?" he repeated. "You don't mean Mrs. Polly Brown, do you?"

"No; Mrs. Abby B. Brown. We've got a letter for her."

"B, you say the middle letter is B, do you? I know a whole lot of Browns that live on the other side of the road, but there ain't any Abby B. among them. You don't mean Abby B. Smith, do you? She lives over—"

"No; it's Abby B. Brown. We'll find it somehow. Thanks."

The stage driver started his horse, but before the corner was reached a faint "Hello!" caused the passengers to turn around. The old man hoe in hand, was pursuing the stage.

"Brown, Mrs. Abby B. Brown, did you say? Why, I know her. She's my wife." — Pittsburg Press.

Not Addition.

An editor was talking about the late Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice in Wonderland," "The Hunting of the Shark" and many other delectable tales.

"Lewis Carroll," he said, "was a mathematician, but his mind was not so narrow and crotchety as the minds of mathematicians usually are."

"I once heard him say that the normal mathematician disliked poetry. He got into an argument about poetry with an instructor in trigonometry on a certain occasion, and, his argument failing, he gave the instructor Tennyson's 'Charge of the Light Brigade' to read."

"There, read that," he said, "and if you don't find it full of beauty I'll give in."

"The instructor sneered, looked at the page and began to read:

"Half a league, half a league, half a league—"

"Then he threw down the book."

"If the fool means a league and a half," he snorted, "why the deuce can't he see?"

SLEEP OF HIBERNATION.

How It Differs From Repose—Shock That Causes Death.

The sleep of hibernation is a very different matter from the sleep of repose. If it be complete respiration can no longer be detected. A torpid bat when disturbed will heave a sigh or two and, being left alone, again to all appearances ceases to breathe.

Submerged in water of a temperature slightly higher than his own, the hedge hog not only continues to live, but appears to suffer neither inconvenience nor harm. Inclosed in an airtight receptacle, his atmosphere undergoes a change so slight that it cannot be imputed to breathing. But circulation does not cease. As respiration diminishes the irritability of the muscles of the heart increases, and thus, without the stimulus of oxygen, although much more slowly, the heart continues to beat. In the absence of the fresh air drawn into the lungs in times of activity, uncleaned and unrevigorated and venous blood passes on to fill the whole system of circulation.

A profound lethargy ensues, only distinguishable from death by the slight beating of the heart. The waste is very small. The fat accumulated during the plenty of summer and autumn supplies all expenditure until the coming of spring, when earlier or later the hibernating animal, having no capital in reserve, begins to suffer the pangs of hunger. In response to the demand respiration very slowly increases. His oxidized blood flows more quickly and his energy returns.

Then the bat flies forth once more from the hollow tree in the wood, to find the warm dusk teeming with insect life, and the hedge hog comes, it may be, from the cavity under the gnarled roots below, to find beetles, worms and slugs once more among the spring grass. Hibernation has saved him from starvation. But if his nook had not been snug and wise chosen it could not have preserved him from death from frost.

The hiding place also must be secret and free from intrusion, for the hibernating animal cannot bear to be suddenly aroused. Even the little dormouse, which comes out at intervals to feed, when in deep sleep does not survive too hasty an awakening. The heat of the hand gradually passing through the nest or to be carried indoors to the warmer temperatures of a room is well enough.

He awakes refreshed, full of activity and with a disposition speedily to become tame and make friends. But if you warm him suddenly back to life before he has gradually breathed the torpor out of his blood and established an equilibrium between his respiration and muscular irritability his heart will beat at a tremendous rate, and in a few minutes he is dead.—London Spectator.

Dr. Prinzing of Berlin, writing in the Zeitschrift fur Sozialwissenschaft, declares that it is not true that the proportion of old maids and old bachelors is increasing in European countries. One is perpetually told by writers, especially those representing the advanced woman movement, that marriage is decreasing and that unmarried persons are relatively increasing. As a matter of fact, this is only the case in Sweden, France and Ireland. In Germany the number of bachelors steadily decreases, and only in certain limited areas can any increase of old maids be certified.

Have the Billiard Habit.

Natives of New Zealand are victims of the billiard habit. The inspector of native schools in New Zealand attributes the lax attendance of the young Maories to the fact that their parents "spend their whole time playing cards or billiards." He alleges that the children are often kept up all night billiard marking and are of course utterly unfit for school work next day. He says he encounters billiards everywhere on his travels. The game is even played on the roadside.

Well may it be said, and so it may be deserved, what other store would ever even dare to reach down in their pockets and hand out, actually give away pure money, free as the water you drink, and what else can you call it. Scant over the prices and just compare, the idea.
