REPUBLICAN PRIMARY.

Only a Dozen Were Present.

The Republicans of Greenville township held a primary in the court house Saturday afternoon. It was presided over by Postmaster R. C. Flanagan with W. J. Manning secretary. The only thing done in the way of business was the election of a township executive committee consisting of R. C. Flanagan, S. I. Fleming and W. J. Manning.

No delegates were selected by name to the county convention which meets on July 4th, but the chairman extended an invitation to every Republican of the township to attend that convention and consider himself a delegate. There were just an even dozen Republicans in attendance upon the primary, at least that many were inside the bar and were addressed as brother by the chairman when he called on them to see if any body would make a speech. There was no response to the invitation so the chairman had to do all the taking that was done. He said while they were very few in number these few were faithful and big things were expected of them. He also said that it would be better for the nation, the state and the county for the two political parties to be more evenly divided.

All those present at the primary were white, the colored element being conspicuous by its entire absence, making it vastly different from the Republican gatherings of days gone by when there were about the same number of white men surrounded by hundreds of black faces. While this fact may give some color to the claim that the party is becoming more decent it will hardly gain them enough followers to cut much figure in Pitt county politics.

Shooting at Parmele.

Parmele, N. C. June 25.—W. H. Harper, a white man living here, on Saturday night shot and seriously wounded a colored woman named Bet Jolely. Cause of the shooting is not known. The woman is in a serious condition.

SCHOOL FOR STAMMERERS.

Detroit, Michigan, June 23, 1906.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

Will you allow me space to say a few words in regard to the school located at this place for the cure of stammer. I left my home on the 17th of this month filled with a little hope and doubt of finding a real cure for stammering and I think now I can shout "Eureka."

The school now has a few more than one hundred pupils which is about all that can be cared for at one time. I see in the school mothers and sons, brothers and sisters, all here seeking to be made free from the fearful malady. It seems to me when so much public money is being spent for erecting monuments to the dead that it would be much better to spend it in building and supporting an institution of this kind for the dead are in a better condition than the poor unfortunate victim of stammering. They have a place for the insane, while these creatures who are worse than crazy are entirely unnoticed. There is in the United States something near one half million and yet they have received no attention at all. They have so far received no state aid and the philanthropists as yet—like the priest and the Levites, have passed by on the other side.

Surely it is not that the affliction is not sufficiently severe nor that the number so afflicted is not sufficiently large. I am not speaking from an imaginary view, but speaking as one who has been so afflicted from childhood and knows how to sympathize with suffering humanity. J. A. MANNING.

MAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Another Hurt by Falling From Bridge.

Tarboro, N. C. June 25.—Sunday afternoon during a thunder storm Mr. G. W. Wynne, who lived out at the knitting mill about one mile from town, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

This morning a Mr. Womble while working on the new bridge here, fell off into the river. He struck a piece of timber in the fall and was badly hurt.

Freak of Nature.

The Telegram found a gentleman yesterday who had one of the strangest things of all to tell about the hail storm. He said he hesitated to repeat it, for it sounded fishy, but it had come to him from parties whom he had absolute confidence in and he knew it was true.

It was this: Some ladies on Asheboro street found two or three hail stones that were in the exact shape of a watch. These stones, besides being in the general form of a watch, actually had the regulation watch-stem—most wonderful of all—there were markings on one side which resembled hands and these hands pointed, the one directly from the stem downward and the other directly to the right. Thus, had there been figures on the face of the ice watch, the hands would have been pointing to 3:30 p. m. This was the hour at which the hail fell! It is not reported, however, that any of these watches ticked. But it is a wonder that they didn't.—Greensboro Record.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

The Dental convention at High Point last week granted license to practice to twenty-seven applicants.

George W. Strickland, a farmer of Nash county, was run over and killed by a train on the Atlantic Coast Line, near Rocky Mount. He leaves a wife and 13 children.

Willis B. Briggs, city editor of the Raleigh Times, is to be the new postmaster of Raleigh.

A drunken man at Salisbury kicked his leg off at the officers while resisting arrest. It was a wooden leg, and striking one of officers laid him out for a time.

AN IMPOSSIBLE TRINITY.

Francis Wilson, at the Players Club, was narrating reminiscences of the stage.

"In early youth," he said, "I went upon the road with a stock company. There was only eleven members of this company, yet we often produced plays involving twenty five or thirty characters. Hence a doubling-up process; even, at times a tripling-up process, if such an expression may be used.

"Our repertory embraced nearly a hundred plays.

"One night the manager came to me and said;

"Get ready to rehearse 'The adventures' for next week, Frank I'm sorry for you, but you are cast for three parts in this piece—Mannering, Grandpa Vane and Diamond Dick."

"I laughed scornfully.

"It is impossible for me to take the three parts of Mannering, Grandpa Vane and Diamond Dick," said I.

"The manager frowned. He was a strict disciplinarian.

"Impossible? Why is it impossible?" he growled.

"Well," said I "it is impossible because, in act four, scene two, Mannering and Diamond Dick get into a fight, and Grandpa Vane rushes on and separates them with a club."

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. H. H. Moore, who for two years has been pastor of the Christian church, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation Sunday. This week he and Mrs. Moore will leave for their new home in Kentucky. They have made a host of friends in Greenville all of whom regret their departure. Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore are consecrated workers in the cause of Christ. Our best wishes go with them to their new field of labor.

Cotton Blossoms.

Mr. H. R. Robinson, of Belvoir, sent us two red blossoms this morning and says he has plenty with three on a stalk.

Cotton blossoms are getting plentiful now. Mr. David Hyman tells us he had one on the 18th and now has them several on a stalk.

The police officers have received new summer uniforms.

ELDER T. H. BARNHILL VINDICATED.

June 16, 1906.—Quarterly Meeting at Hickory Grove appointed a committee to investigate the charges made against Eld. T. H. Barnhill, a member of this church, by one L. C. James, of this county. He is charged with keeping whiskey on his premises to sell illegal, also drinking himself. We your committee have investigated the charges the best we can. We had before us B. M. Whitehurst, a member of the Educational Board. W. G. Little, Ex commissioner. Zeron Taylor and others, who have been acquainted with Eld. T. H. Barnhill, for years gone by. And they say the charges made by L. C. James is false and without foundation. The charges were made on account of some little personal difference. No one brought any charge against him.

Respectfully Yours,

D. N. NOBLES,

ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY.

Adam is not the only man who ever made a fool excuse for sin; others are living all around us. Today Policemen Causey and Stedman arrested Sam S. Osborne on a charge of bigamy. Osborne lives on South Davis and is a telegraph operator for the Southern at Hendrix's a few miles from the city. He came here since Christmas and about two months ago married the daughter of Robert Gilchrist, living not far from where he works. How the information was secured that Osborne has another wife is not known, but this makes no difference, for when arrested today he made no denial of the fact, saying that he did not know he was violating any law, for his first wife had two husbands and he thought he was entitled to two wives. He was locked up. He is about 25 years of age.

Another incident in connection with the second marriage of Osborne may make interesting reading. The wedding took place only a few Sundays ago at the country home of the bride. Miss Mattie Gilchrist, who is a daughter of County Surveyor Gilchrist. A few hours after Miss Gilchrist was married to Osborne, another young man, to whom she was engaged to marry on the same day, arrived to claim her for a bride. This was W. S. Wyrick, a popular young man of Greensboro, who was engaged to the young lady in good faith, and, having armed himself with the license and the other arrangements being complete, he was expecting easy sailing. His chagrin when he found that his expected bride was married to another man can be more easily imagined than described. He can now find solace in the fact that he is clear of the present domestic infelicity of the unhappy couple.—Greensboro Record.

The eleven o'clock train was an hour late this morning.

CONDENSED STORIES.

When the President's Carriage Moved as Directed.

The recent episode at the Belasco theater here when the president's coachman had a difficulty with the manager because he would not move his carriage, although nobody was in the carriage and it was waiting for some White House guests, reminded an old police sergeant of a time when he was stationed at the Baltimore and Ohio station here.

Among his other duties he had to keep carriages from standing at the curb directly in front of the station entrance, it being necessary to keep that place clear for carriages that were coming and going at that point. President Grant drove to the station to meet one of the incoming trains. While the officer was in another place the carriage stopped in front of the station. When the officer returned he noticed the president's rig standing there and waited for it to move along. When it did not move and no one alighted the officer supposed that the president had gone into the station.

"THAT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE. YOU MUST MOVE."

"You know as well as I do that you cannot stand there," said the officer to the president's coachman.

"Do you know whose carriage this is?" was the only answer of the man on the box.

"That makes no difference. You must move." But there was no move on the part of the coachman to stir from the place.

"Hawkins," came a voice from inside. "Did you hear what that officer said?" And the head of the president of the United States was poked out of the carriage window. The carriage moved.—Washington Cor. New York World.

For a feat of dexterity and nerve it would be difficult to surpass that of the Bosjesman of South Africa, who walks quietly up to a puff adder and deliberately sets his bare foot on its neck. In its struggles to escape and attempts to bite its assailant the poison gland secretes a large amount of the venom. This is just what the Bosjesman wants. Killing the snake, he eats the body and uses the poison for his arrows.

Greensboro gets many good things these days. The Retail Merchants' Association will meet there next year.

Senator Tillman says there must be an apology from the President before he makes up with that gentleman.

America is horrified at the reports of Jewish massacres in Russia, and Congress has adopted a joint resolution expressing sympathy for the bereaved, but that is not doing anything to relieve the situation. The massacres ought to stop, and if nothing else will answer the other nations should demand that Russia put an end to the horrible butchery of innocent people.

IF YOU DON'T SEE WHAT YOU WANT, ASK FOR IT.

Under the title "If You Don't See What You Want, Ask For It," the Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore has recently issued a leaflet referring to the interest with which many people study its advertising pages (as everybody should study the advertising columns of all newspapers) in which it says:

"John F. Cox, Mayor of Lakeland, Fla., in a letter to the Manufacturers' Record under date of May 29 says:

"The information that I have gained from reading the ads in the Manufacturers' Record is worth more than the subscription price for a whole year. You are doing good work for the South."

"We welcome Mr. Cox to the ranks of the readers of the Manufacturers' Record who find its advertising pages of so much interest and value. As recently said, a man who wants real information about almost anything that relates to business possibilities can find it in the 75 to 100 advertising pages of this paper. These pages constitute a great medium of communication between buyer and seller.

"The dictionary and the encyclopedia are no more essential to the student or to the man who wants to know things and know them right than are the advertising pages of the Manufacturers' Record to the tens of thousands of people not only in the South, but elsewhere, who at times have occasion to look for just the things covered in our advertising columns. It matters not what you may want to buy in the way of machinery of equipment or supplies or technical skill or timber or mineral properties, if you cannot find what you are after in these pages, write to the Manufacturers' Record and we will put you in touch without cost with the people who can provide what you want.

"Get in the habit of studying these ever-interesting and ever-changing pages and, of following the old advice of the storekeeper—"if you don't see what you want, ask for it."

EXPENSES OF THE PRESIDENT.

The Springfield (Mass.) Daily Republican, commenting upon the item in the sundry civil appropriation bill granting the President $25,000 for traveling expenses, concludes:

"But anyhow we had better pay his way to the extent of $25,000 a year, or even more, than load upon him the railroads to be carried about at their expense, thus creating for them an obligation against the public which will not be lost sight of."

Why should people pay taxes for their servants to travel for pleasure? Officials in all branches of the public service are paid for traveling on public business, and the law should provide that when the President travels on public business his expenses should be paid. But to pay the President and his friends to travel on hunting trips, or to make Republican campaign speeches, is not a just cause for taxation of all the people. If the political party to which the President owes allegiance wants him to join in a political campaign, it should bear the expense.

AS TO FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

It is a rather ghastly joke for the newspapers to get gay in the discussion of the existence of hell, where men are punished for their sins, when every man who can reason at all knows that the account is not squared in this life, but that in the other the Lord will adjust the matters that are so unequal here. As The Charlotte Observer well says: "Whatever else may be wrong about our belief in future things, there is too much evidence of a hell to be overcome." Aside from the plain teachings of the Bible on the subject, our innerconsciousness tells us there must be a place of punishment in the future world, and the flip-pant skeptic commands the respect of nobody, not even to himself. —Charity and Children.

Some of the newspapers have been disturbed over a report that the postoffice department had issued an order imposing a fine of $200 on any person opening the letter of another even by mistake; that is to say, if mail is put in the wrong box or handed out to the wrong party by an error of the postoffice people, as is often done, the party opening a letter thus received by mistake is liable to a fine of $200. The order appeared so absurd that the Newton Enterprise took the pains to look into it and found that there is nothing in the report.—Statesville Landmark.

The city council of Philadelphia is such a partisan Republican body that it voted to override the veto of Mayor Weaver of an appropriation of $5,000 for the entertainment of the National League of Republican Clubs, under whose auspices the golden jubilee of the Republican party was held. The mayor gave as his reason for the veto that the appropriation was for a political and partisan purpose. Philadelphia is fortunate in having such a mayor, but most unfortunate in having such a partisan council.

The threat of President Roosevelt that if the people of Arizona and New Mexico do not vote now to come into the Union as one State it will be fifteen years before they have another chance, is all buncombe. In 1909, when the Democrats will be in power, those territories will be admitted in spite of Republican opposition.

Picnicers will have to substitute something else for canned goods.

One kind of noise Greenville should have more of is the hum of factories.

The most curious of all the ways of spreading the seeds is that adopted by the jewel weed. This is a handsome plant, often seen in shady places along brooks. It owes its name to the dew, that in early morning hangs in glistening drops, like small diamonds, along the scalloped edges of the leaves. Late in summer—in August and September—the jewel weed is covered with pretty flowers, something like snapdragon blossom, orange red spotted with brown. Later on, when the seeds are ripe, the slightest touch will make the pods that hold them burst open suddenly and scatter them far and wide, like shot from a tiny cannon. For this reason the European jewel weed is known as Noli me tangere, which is Latin for "touch me not." The garden balsam, or lady's slipper, a relative of the jewel weed, has the same sort of elastically opening pods.

Locked the Part.
The town of Newport, Me., was at one time the proud possessor of a county sheriff who was death on tramps. This man, whose name was George Cole, had the reputation of being the slackest for miles around in regard to dress. One night, having heard that there were tramps about the railway station, Cole gathered up a few men and went to investigate. A freight car door was opened, and Cole entered. He struck a match and discovered that the car contained about a dozen "Wearies Willies." As he stood there holding the match a sleepy eyed warder blinked up at him and remarked: "You'll have to go into the next car, pard. We're all full here."

A member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin told of some questions made by a pupil during an examination in English. The student had been instructed to read a number of the poet's works, and the exhortatory motto of the result was as follows:
"I am endeavoring to pass an English examination. I answer twenty questions and I pass. If I answer twelve questions I may pass. God help me!"—Harper's Weekly

Origin of Surnames.
Nearly all surnames originally were descriptive of their owners. The Parkers were keepers of nobleman's parks, the Warners were warreners, or rabbit tenders; the Barkers prepared bark for tanning. Foster means a forester, Webster a weaver, Wright a carpenter, and so on.

Two boys or girls can get up a first class delusion by following out the idea pictured here. Try it and see what your friends say.

Don't Gossip.
Once upon a time there grew
Up from somewhere—no one knew—
Grew and grew and grew until
It went up and down a hill
Where a pretty village lay,
Stopped the children in their play,
Made some neighbors shun some other,
Even caused a fight 'twixt brothers;
Lifelong friends, 'tis said, it parted.
Just a little gossip started—
Such a little gossip! Ah, so
Gone from their acres grow!
So, 'tis said, but of one
Leaf it sprang and down it fell.

Thoughtful Calf's Regular.
On the morning of the earthquake a young eastern woman was seated at the St. Francis table down to breakfast attire in a restaurant in New York. Noticing the commotion prevailing, she asked:
"Why, what's the matter?"
"You can feel the earthquake," answered the waiter.
"I don't feel it," she said.
"I don't feel it," she said.
"I don't feel it," she said.

SARATOGA CHIPS.

Ways in Which the Potatoes Are Prepared and Cooked.

Making Saratoga chips, the Saratoga-chips of commerce, is one business that is not in danger of being monopolized by any concern. In most of the cities will be found half a dozen or more small establishments where it is profitably conducted.

It does not require much equipment. In a typical establishment are half a dozen women busily engaged in peeling the tubers. There is a machine that does the trick nicely, but most of the manufacturers prefer hand labor. An expert peeler can dispose of the potato's jacket in almost as short a time as the machine. A five gallon measure stands on a chair by each worker. A special kind of a knife is used, which rips off the skin with absolute uniformity.

The chipping or slicing is done by machinery. Usually hand power is employed. The potatoes are dumped into a hopper, and by turning the handle it requires but a few minutes to slice them into bits of the required thinness. These fall in a pile and from there are shoveled into a vat.

This is a great iron kettle, containing several gallons of liquid kept at the boiling point. Within the kettle hangs a large perforated vessel that looks like a dishpan, which can be raised or lowered by operating a lever controlled by a piece of rope at the end. In this vessel are placed the slices. A hot fire is kept going during the browning process, and the liquid is stirred constantly to prevent burning. In a few minutes the chips are done and the mass turned into a big tub.

The product finds the readiest sale in the summer months. This, it is claimed, is due to the fact that women don't like to stand over a hot fire in the warm months cooking potatoes in the ordinary way. Twice as many chips are sold in the heated term as during the winter.

Lard is not used in the process by the best makers. This is because it makes the chips soft and in time rancid. Salad oil has been found to be the most satisfactory.—New York Sun.

A Different Spelling of "Turner."

Apropos to this matter of simplified spelling, it was the topic of conversation at a literary gathering in New York the other evening. There was serious and emphatic discussion for some time when at last one of the company very solemnly inquired if any one present could pronounce the word "phtholognyrrh." There was much questioning, much repetition of the conglomerate mass of letters; then it was given up. "Simple enough," declared the propounder of the puzzle. "It spells 'turner.' Don't you see? Phth is pronounced t, as in phthisic; olo is pronounced ur, as in colonel; gn is pronounced n, as in gnat, and yrrh is pronounced er, as in myrrh." Amid shouts of laughter that word which nobody could pronounce was finally pronounced by all to be the very best argument of the evening in favor of simplified spelling.—New York Times.

Cats as Retrievers.

"It is claimed," said a Chicago antiquary, "that cats may be trained as retrievers—trained to swim to your slain birds and bring them back to you in their mouths. The thing sounds incredible. But look here." He held up the photograph of an ancient Egyptian painting. Men with spears rode on the Nile. In some of the boats large cats sat on their haunches in the stern, while toward others several cats swam with dead birds in their mouths. "This picture," said the antiquary, "proves that the Egyptians used cats for hunting dogs. If they, why not we? The original of the picture is in the British museum, where there are also several pieces of carving that display the cat in the role of a retriever."

The Other Extreme.

"I know a man who married at ninety-seven."

"Well, he was too old to know better."—Detroit Free Press.
