BEAUTIFYING HOMES AND FARMS.

It is said that the streets of Jerusalem are kept clean by every person sweeping before his own door. What an attractive county Stokes would be if every one who owns a home or farm would try to make it as pleasant to the eye as possible! Strangers and visitors would wonder at the thrift and good taste of our people, and travelers would delight in passing through our domains. The metamorphosis in a short time would be astonishing, and yet the cost would be small. It is not necessary to live in a stately mansion Grandeur awes, but beauty and good taste attract, invite and please. The humblest cottages or cabins may be made lovely spots at very little expense. Cleaning away unsightly debris from the front yards, cutting down ugly weeds, moving the clothes line, wood yards, swine pens, and stables to the rear, cleaning up trash piles, laying out walks and squares and triangles, planting flowers, shrubberies and plants shade trees, erecting seats under vine-clad arbors,—these and a hundred other things will add to the beauty of your premises. You have no idea how the little touches here and there will help. And every dollar you spend judiciously in the improvements will be justified by the enhanced value of your property, should you ever have an occasion to sell.

Every person who owns his own home or farm should take great pride in it. Home is where we expect to spend our days, and we hope to die.

We don't appreciate the place enough. If we have any money to spend for pleasure here is where it ought to be put.—Danbury Reporter.

State Convention.

Greensboro, N. C., July 3.—The Democracy of North Carolina through its representatives in convention assembled today placed itself on record as endorsing William Jennings Bryan for President in 1908 and presented to the country as a suitable running mate, Charles B. Aycock, ex-Governor of North Carolina.

It stamped with its approval the legislation enacted in the Watts and Ward bills regulating the manufacture and sale of liquor, voiced a demand for enlargement of the powers of the Corporation Commission and also demanded that connecting lines of railroads should make better connections, fulfilling their schedule obligations in the interest of the traveling public.

The election of Franklin McNeill by an overwhelming vote—an election which was then made unanimous—was one of the features of the convention.

Another was the adoption of a resolution providing for the enactment of a graduated income tax law, and the election of senators and circuit court judges by the people.

Republican Convention.

As it met late and The Reflector went to press early to give the printers a part holiday, we print no account of the Republican convention that met here today.

THE INTERNATIONAL POSTAL CONGRESS.

A congress of the greatest importance to the world in general has been conducting its deliberations modestly and quietly in the Italian capital. We refer to the International Postal Congress, whose conclusions have been a useful and practical contribution to internationalism. In the first place the international letter weight unit has been raised from half an ounce to an ounce, making the rate five cents (or its equivalent in the money of other countries) for the first ounce and three cents for each additional ounce. There is also to be the equivalent of an international stamp, in the form of an international postal order, for five cents, which will be exchangeable for a stamp of the same value in any country of the union,—this for "return" postage. A number of proposals were made to reduce the unit from five cents to four (the British "tup-pence,") but these were defeated. Our own currency system prevents our taking much interest in this proposal, since a nickel is a much more convenient unit than four cents. The new regulations will no doubt result in a great extension of the postal business throughout the world, and it will in all probability thereby increase the revenues of the postoffices in all civilized countries. The international postal exchange order marks an interesting advance in the peaceful business relations between nations. In all probability it will prove the germ of the international currency of the future.—From the "Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July:

Marvelous Escape.

During the storm of Monday afternoon a tree blew down across the roof of Mrs. John Parham's house near Crowder's Creek and crushed it. Mrs. Parham and her children, ten persons in all were in the house at the time, but not one was injured in the least. Neighbors cut the tree and timbers away on top and extricated the occupants through the roof. When the others were rescued, it was found that Mrs. Parham was sitting quietly on a chair holding her baby, but in a dazed condition. She soon came to herself, and is now living in a house recently vacated by Mr. Clyde Forbes. In the house only a vase was broken to pieces; the clock was thrown down but not broken. It was a marvelous escape for the family.—Gastonia Gazette

Lighting's Freaks.

The vicinity near the Presbyterian church seems to be a favorite place for lighting. The church has been struck twice, once doing considerable damage to the building, at another time a pole near the corner was struck, and recently the electric arc light on the corner was demolished.

Some of our farmers are curing tobacco this week.

Fortune Teller's Fatal Reading.

A report comes from Lexington that the death of a prominent family of the county was the brooding over a prediction of a fortune teller recently. The young lady was in Lexington recently and had a palmist to "read her hand." He foretold that she would have a long spell of sickness, in short, that she would be sick all the rest of her life. Meningitis set in, which might be the result of an over active and irritated brain, and death followed.

Made to Leave Town.

A hobo claiming to be a preacher struck town Tuesday afternoon. After an interview before the mayor he was given a half hour to get outside the corporate limits. On the way out, at the corner of Pitt and Second streets he intercepted the people returning from a funeral in Cherry Hill cemetery and rattled off quotations of Scripture in a loud piercing voice.

OVER THE STATE.

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

During a recent storm at Ashboro the Christian church was blown down and completely demolished.

Rev. J. W. Jenkins, superintendent of the Methodist orphanage at Raleigh, suffered a stroke of paralysis and is critically ill.

Monroe, N. C. July 2.—At his home in New Salem township, this county, J. W. Hill shot and instantly killed Marion Burgess between nine and ten o'clock this morning. The cause of the killing was undue intimacy of Burgess with Hill's wife. The trouble began in May when according to Hill's account, Burgess forced Hill's wife at the point of a pistol to submit to his improper proposals, threatening to kill her and her husband if she ever told of the occurrence.

Building and Loan.

The board of directors of The Home Building & Loan Association met Tuesday afternoon in monthly session. The report of the secretary and treasurer showed very gratifying results. Since the association began business two months ago applications for loans aggregating about $8,000 have been passed upon. Work has already started upon houses being erected through the aid of the association and several others are in early contemplation.

House of Concrete.

A. F. Kennedy's new dwelling, corner Pitt and Third street, is going up quite rapidly and makes a good appearance. It is being built of concrete blocks, the first house of the kind to be erected here.

to

Mr. Russell Benjamin Wiggin of Boston, Mass.

The marriage will take place in the Fall.

She Could Defend Herself.

One evening last week a negro stopped at the home of Mrs. H. B. Goodnight and Mrs. Tremaine, who occupy the same house, and asked if "the men folks" were at home and was told that they were not. He then told Mrs. Goodnight that her husband had sent him for a pistol that he (the negro) wished to buy. Mrs. Goodnight went in and got the pistol and upon her return told him if he didn't leave the door he would get it in a way he did not want. He left in short order.—Rocky Mount Echo

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1906.

President Roosevelt's summer jaunt brings Oyster Bay into mind once more.

During the summer vacation most of the Congressmen will put in their hardest work of the year.

If you want to buy some bonds, the government is offering $30,000,000 Panama canal bonds for sale. They will draw only two per cent. interest.

When a rich man commits murder he gets lots of notoriety. It is time to thaw out that kind of sentiment and give him the same treatment that the ordinary murderer gets.

The United States treasurer expresses only half a truth when he says "we need more $5 bills." Our need is for more bills of any denomination from $1 up, with a little silver thrown in for change.

It is a fact worthy of note that the congressional conventions so far held in this State have renominated the present Congressmen, and in nearly every instance by acclamation. It shows that the people are satisfied that North Carolina is well represented in Congress.

An old time specimen of Republican counting was shown in a convention recently held in Waynesville. By actual count there were forty-nine Republicans present, yet when a ballot was taken enough votes were counted for the different candidates to bring the total up to sixty-five.

The Democrats of the Second Virginia District congratulate the Democrats of the First North Carolina District upon having renominated the Hon. John H. South for the National House of Representatives. The interests of these adjoining districts of Tidewater Virginia and North Carolina are almost identical. The development of either assists the other. Having found the right man the first North Carolina District is doing the right thing in keeping him in Congress where his influence is constantly rising to a point justified by his ability and the interests he represents.—Norfolk Landmark.

A correspondent at Elizabeth City states that the people of Currituck county are becoming very active in their opposition to the Audobon Society. They claim that it robs them of their rights, since many of them are dependent upon the game and fish for a livelihood. They have organized what they call a "game and fishermen's club," the members of which they declare will fight to the last ditch that game and fish may be free for all.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

The Infallible Test For Distinguishing Mushrooms.

The best way to tell the common English mushroom from a toadstool is to have some one show you one where it grows, if possible, says a horticulturist. Then take the mushroom or a little of the soil or compost where it grew and smell at the root, or what you would call the root. The fine, white, threadlike filaments adhering to the lower end of the mushroom are the fungus proper, and they emit a very peculiar odor, rather pleasant, that is an unerring sign of the true mushroom. When one has noted it once it will never be forgotten. The lamellas on the lower side of the umbrella should be violet pink, but if the mushroom is past its prime they will be brown or almost black, when it is only fit for gravies. The size, color and shape all vary according to the locality where found. As they are often gathered before they are open, one cannot see the violet pink lamellas, but the odor is the same, always there; and is, in short, the infallible test.

Old Fashioned Mead.

To make the old time beverage called mead proceed as follows: To every gallon of water put five pounds of strained honey (the water must be hot when you add the honey) and boil it three-quarters of an hour, skimming it well. Then put in hops tied in a thin bag (allowing an ounce or a handful to each gallon) and let it boil half an hour longer. Strain it into a tub and let it stand four days. Then pour it into a cask (or into a demijohn if the quantity is small), adding for each gallon of mead a gill of brandy and a sliced lemon. If a large cask, do not bottle it till it has stood a year.

Keeps Out Ants and Bugs.

To keep ants out of closets and the drawers, draw a line with a brush dipped in the following solution round the shelf to be protected. No ants will cross it: Corrosive sublimate, one ounce; muriate of ammonia, two ounces; water, one pint. This solution will also destroy bed-bugs if applied with a brush or a feather to the cracks in the bed. The mixture is a deadly poison, must be labeled as such and kept out of the children's reach.

To Tie Shoe Laces.

The following is a good hint for tying shoe laces, so that they shall not come loose: Proceed exactly in the same way as if you were tying an ordinary bow, but pass the right-hand loop through the knot before drawing it up, and give a steady pull on both loops. It should be remembered, however, when untying that the right-hand string must be pulled, for if the other is pulled it will only tighten the knot.

Helpful Hints.

Handkerchiefs will look better and iron better if a little borax is added to the last rinsing water.

A piece of camphor put into the water will keep flowers fresh for a long time, so it is said.

Mud spots on silk can generally be removed by rubbing with a piece of linen dipped in benzine or alcohol.

Cleaning Painted Surfaces.

When cleaning paint use warm water and a little ammonia. Take a clean, soft flannel and wet as much as the arm can reach. Wash and wring the flannel and rub the paint until quite clean. Dry the surface thoroughly and polish with a soft cloth.

Cleaning Copper Kettles.

Take a handful of common salt, enough vinegar and flour to make a paste and mix together thoroughly. There is nothing better for cleaning copper. After using the paste wash thoroughly with hot water, rinse in cold water and wipe dry.

The Care of Pillows.

Don't expose the pillows to the sun, as it draws the oil out of the feathers. The bed and bedding should be given a daily sun bath, but the pillows should be placed out of the sun, and in a direct current of air.

How to Clean Linen.

To take stains from linen rub the spots with soap, scrape chalk over them, rub them well, lay the linen on the grass in the sun and as it dries wet it a little. The spots should come out in two applications.

A BATCH OF QUEER TRADES

Fly and Flea-Catchers—Lion Hunters
Human Incubator.

A request was recently sent out by an English paper for suggestions of novel ways of earning money. Some of the replies have novelty enough and to spare. Here are a few "professions" which were proposed:

A professional flea catcher, a custodian for safety pins, a collector of dried flies for hens' food, purveyor of fads to the leisure classes, a lion hunting agency for society's use, a motor car library to call at out of the way places with the newest books, a maker up of minds, a grievance abater, a manners teacher.

Among the queer occupations described as already followed is that of artistically painting with harmless pigments fictitious, if scanty, hair on bald heads.

"A man I know," says one answer, "makes his living out of funerals and weddings. He attends a funeral, gets a list of the wreaths from the undertaker (on reciprocal terms), takes a shorthand note of the minister's address, draws up a souvenir report of the whole thing and offers it to the survivors.

"Bereaved people are an easy prey. Not infrequently he receives encouragement also from the printer or typist if he can persuade them to have it put in type.

"His tactics are similar in regard to weddings. But there, as he suffers severely from the competition of the newspapers, his great source of profit is acting as agent for the loan of wedding presents. It is said that at the second wedding of a well known politician at Birmingham the presents were valued at £60,000, and two-thirds of them were hired. Commission on £40,000 worth of business is not to be despised."

Another case is that of a busy farmer's wife in Australia, who had the misfortune to have a paralytic son who was bedridden. She was a notable manager, and, considering the great cost of the invalid and the loss of his services on the farm, she persuaded him to allow clutches of eggs to be placed with proper precautions in the bed, that the equal and continual warmth might hatch them. This was accordingly done, and the paralyzed youth was as proud of the broods as possible and thoroughly earned his living besides gaining an interest in life.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Vanishing Ball Trick and How it is Performed.

With a sharp penknife whittle a large cork in the form of a ball about an inch in diameter. Take a human hair and form a loop in it about 1 1/2 inches long, affixing the ends to the ball with a little wax, or, better still, by forcing the ends into the cork. Now pass the forefinger of your right hand through the hair loop, letting the ball lie on the palm when you show it. Place your left hand over the right, and at the same time separate the forefinger from the second of your right. Quickly push the ball with the thumb of the right hand between the open fingers. The ball falls at the back of the hand, which you keep in such position that the company cannot see the ball hanging behind. Remove the left hand closed as if it contained the ball. Then open the hand and show it empty. With a little dexterity you may with a quick jerk throw the ball over your hand from the back into the palm and show that it has returned. For this you must make a movement as if catching it in the air. Now break off the hair and give the ball to the company for examination.

How Seaweeds Grow.

Those of you that are fortunate enough to get to the seashore this summer no doubt will gather some specimens of seaweeds. Do you know that they grow without roots? In this respect they are altogether different from plants that grow on land, obtaining their sustenance entirely from the water. Many of them float about in the water, but some are fastened to rocks and other things at the bottom of the sea by means of a stem with a sticky surface. Deep sea explorers tell us that some of the weeds found at the bottom are larger than any of the trees that grow on land. They form great groves and woods, with their branches interlaced, making arches and grottoes of wonderful beauty and of many colors—yellow, different shades of brown, olive, pink, green and carmine.

When Lord Eldon was appointed deputy professor of law at Oxford university he was made the victim of an embarrassing practical joke, of which he gives the following account in his journal: "Immediately after I was married I was appointed deputy professor of law at Oxford, and the law professor sent me the first lecture, which I had to read immediately to the students and which I began without knowing a single word that was in it. It was upon the statute of young men running away with maidens. Fancy me reading with about 150 boys and young men all giggling at the professor!" The secret of the situation, of course, lay in the fact that Lord Eldon had just returned from his own elopement.

No Turners For Him.

"There was a millionaire," said an art dealer, "who decided that he would form a picture gallery. Accordingly he visited a dealer and bought a large number of costly works of art. Toward the end of the visit the dealer said:

"By the way, if you want something unique, something really extraordinary, I have a genuine Turner, 'The Shark and the Sailor,' that I'd like to show you."

"But the millionaire, all puffed up with newly acquired art lore, frowned and shook his head.

"No," he said pompously. "No. A picture that's painted on one side is good enough for me. Always providing, of course, that it's well done."

Needed Wetting.

When a delightfully open winter was suddenly followed in March by a spring of deep snows and heavy ice many New Englanders were puzzled to understand the need of such unwelcome weather. Not so Uncle Ned W. Blagby.

"I told 'em! I told 'em!" he said cheerfully, as he drove his express sleigh about town in the teeth of the third blizzard.

"What'd you tell 'em, Uncle Ned?" asked a curious villager.

"Oh, I told 'em! I says, says I, 'Winter,' I says, 'can't rot out yit,' I says, 'not without more wettin' 'n it hez had.'"—Youth's Companion.

Not Exactly Reassuring.

A boy who was sent to a boarding school sent the following letter to his loving and anxious mother:

"I got here all right, and I forgot to write before. It is a very nice place to have fun. A fellow and I went out in a boat, and the boat tipped over, and a man got me out, and I was so full of water that I didn't know nothin' for a good long while. The other boy has to be buried after they find him. His mother came from Lincoln, and she cries all the time. A boss kicked me over, and I have got to have some money to pay the doctor for fixing my head. We are going to set an old barn on fire tonight, and I should smile if we don't have bully fun. I lost my watch and am very sorry. I shall bring home some mud turtles, and I shall bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get 'im in my trunk."

That Was Jenkins.

A chemist who for many years was the manager of a concern in Massachusetts manufacturing various high grade explosives recently revisited the place of his former employment.

During a talk with his old friends of the institution he made inquiry with reference to a certain colleague of the name of Jenkins.

"By the way," said the chemist, "what has become of Jenkins? Fine fellow?"

"Fine chap indeed," agreed the foreman, "and very skillful in the use of chemicals, but a little absent-minded, Jenkins. See that discoloration on the wall over there?"

"Why, yes. But what has that to do with Jenkins?"

"That is Jenkins."—San Francisco Argonaut.

High Rents In New York.

What a wonderful neighborhood the city hall district in New York city is as a retail business center may be judged from the statement that the proprietor of one candy store, facing the City Hall park, pays $16,500 a year for the rent of his shop. This shop, too, is open only for twelve hours a day.

Snails as Food.

The Lancet advocates the use of snails as food. The snail, it says, has been called "the poor man's oyster." It makes an excellent fish sauce and may be used for the same purpose as oyster sauce. Care must be exercised in the choice of the snails for food purposes, as it is well known that snails feed on poisonous plants, and it is the custom in France to allow a few days to elapse after they have been taken from their feeding ground in order that any poisonous matter may be eliminated.

Of a Cheerful Turn of Mind.

The genial young man slapped the merchant on the back and exclaimed:

"How's business?"

"How's business?" the merchant repeated thoughtfully. Then he took a bundle of notes at anything from thirty days to six months from his pocket, and with an effort at cheer exclaimed:

"My boy, I never saw a time when business was more promising."

Only a Hint.

The old colored "mammy" who had ruled the Greenough household for more than twenty years was known to the tradesmen and the world in general as "Mrs. Washington," although she allowed the Greenoughs and their friends to address her as "Aunt Ephrasia."

She had a flow of language which has seldom been equaled, and delighted in it more even than in her skill in cooking. On one occasion Mrs. Greenough overheard Aunt Ephrasia berating a tardy grocer's boy.

"Whar yo' been, yo' trillin' lazy, destructful, owdacious, aggrvatin', presumptious boy, while I's been a-waitin' and a-yarnin' for dese yer condimental spices?" demanded Aunt Ephrasia, her turbaned head threatening the delinquent, who cowered before her. "Ef I hadn't got ter put dese yer right into my cake dat's been kept on'ish for yo' to go dawdlin', philanderin', sojerin' round, I'd stop a minute and gib yo' some idee ob my opinions regardin' yo'!"—Youth's Companion.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Wonderful Woman Was This Wife of Noah.

In a certain old family it was the father's custom to read each evening a part of the Bible to his family and then explain what he had read. One day his sons pasted a couple of the pages of the Bible together and eagerly awaited the evening's reading. That evening, when all the family was gathered together, the father began:

"When Noah was 140 years old he took unto himself a wife. This wife was—"

Here the father turned over the page. Not noticing that they were pasted, he continued:

"One hundred and forty cubits long and sixty cubits wide, made of solid timbers and coated with pitch on the inside and out."—Judge's Magazine of Fun.

One Woman's Way.

"I am going to marry my employer," said the typewriter boarder.

"But he is neither handsome nor wealthy," protested the dressmaker.

"I know," rejoined the t. b., "but I guess there's nothing else for me to do. I'm tired of having him dictate to me, and after marriage I'll show him how dictating should be done."—Chicago News.

Minus.

"When our heiresses bring back foreign noblemen with them when they return from Europe it's a wonder the government doesn't charge them duty."

"Huh! If the duty were ad valorem the government would be owing the heiresses money."—Philadelphia Press.

Perfectly Clear.

Rosebud—What nonsense to say that a woman never means what she says. She can always give a direct answer.

Fred—Of course she can! She means it either to mean yes or no when she says no or yes, or to mean neither when she doesn't mean it to mean what you think she means it to mean—it's perfectly clear.

Rosebud—Of course it is!—Exchange.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is not to be repaid to the good you can possibly derive from them. Laughinghouse Applauded
J. J. Laughinghouse, of Pitt in seconding the nomination of Long, said the present Corporation Commission had refused, after an almost unanimous vote of the House in favor of it, to reduce passenger rate, and had favored the railroads in property valuations and freight rates. Asked if the Senate passed the reduced passenger rate bill, Laughinghouse said no. Asked why, he shouted: "Because the Senate was full of railroad lawyers." When the speaker shouted this, there was a perfect hurricane of applause, rising, dying down, then swelling and prevailing again until the greatest demonstration of the convention took place—From News and Observer report of state convention.
