"Weakness" For 7 Cent Tobacco.

Mr. R. J. Reynold of Winston, who buys practically all of the Stokes county crop of tobacco yearly—not at the price fixed by the farmers, but at the price fixed by Duke's central office in New York, says this so it is reported:

"I would gladly pay the farmers more for their tobacco but if I did they would go wild and raise too much and the overproduction would ruin them."

Mr. Reynolds may be thus kind and considerate for our farmers' interest, but he will have a hard time making them believe it. Most of us prefer the idea that he is paying the farmers seven cents because having driven all substantial competition from the markets, he doesn't have to pay more, and that he would take the crop at a still less figure but that the Trust knows it has reached the danger line and to cut the price further would mean that there would be none raised.

No, the Trust is not going to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. It will continue to pay you about seven cents, and you who believe seven cents is enough and that the Trust is the 'farmers' best friends may go to sleep and dream 'happy' dreams.—Danbury Reporter.

The hall and parlor were the scenes of much merriment as the guests were ushered in. They were received by Miss Bertha Patrick and Walter Patrick. From this time on the guests were highly entertained. This was one of the most enjoyable social functions ever held in this city.

A very interesting contest was had. The prize was won by Preston Tyson, who gave it to Miss Vernessa Smith, who in turn presented it to Miss Mabel Craft, of Wilmington. The consolation prize was awarded to Miss Mary J. Smith. She also presented her prize to the visiting ladies. Cards were cut, and Miss Willie Grimsley, of Snow Hill, was the final winner. Thurman Moore presented the prizes in a very appropriate manner.

FOUND DEAD IN BOAT.

Supposed to Have Shot Himself Accidentally.

Dr. William Fountain, coroner, went to Grifton this morning to hold an inquest over the body of a white man, named Norris.

It seems that Mr. Norris, who lived a short distance from the creek at a place known as Jolly Old Field, 4 miles from Grifton, was on the creek in a small boat Tuesday afternoon and had a gun with him. His gun was heard to fire, and about twenty minutes after the report he was found dead in the boat by his wife. There was a gun shot wound in his breast and the empty gun was lying near the body in the boat. It is supposed that Mr. Norris shot himself accidentally. He leaves a wife and six children.

 Rosebud—What nonsense to say that a woman never means what she says. She can always give a direct answer.

WEDNESDAY JULY 18 1906.

Taft wants the Solid South broken but we doubt his living to see it.

Greensboro does not know when she has had enough. She is calling for more conventions.

Chicago allows one saloon to every 500 population. That ought to be enough to keep them from getting dry.

Greensboro is now taking a turt at the Southern railway for tooting locomotive whistles in the corporate limits.

We have not yet seen the announcement that a present was being made up for the Greensboro hotel waitress who shielded the plate at the guest's head.

Peoria, Ill., must have money to spare when it goes about erecting a statue to Ingersoll. That is not quite as bad, however, as the town that wanted to erect one to the devil.

Governor Glenn has ordered a special term of court in Rowan county, beginning on the 30th, to try the murderers of the Lyerly family. That is a good way to keep down the mob spirit.

The United States is taking the roll of peacemaker in the trouble between Guatemala and Salvador, but we have not seen any statement yet that Uncle Sam is taking steps to stop the butchery of the Jews in Russia.

The Greensboro Tar Heel remarks that if there is no joint canvass in the eighth district the Democrats will know the reason why. Certainly they will. They already know it is because Blackburn declined the challenge to come out in the open and face Hackett.

TOBACCO TRUST TO PAY DEATH BENEFITS

The American Tobacco Company has made an unusual departure from the methods pursued by large corporations, in issuing a circular to all employees announcing that hereafter the company will pay death benefits to the beneficiary of all employees who receive a salary of less than $50 a week and who have been in the service of the company as long as one year previous to death. The amount of such benefit is to be equal to the wages received by such employee during the last year of service, provided the sum shall in no case exceed $500, that figure being set as the maximum.

At first glance this plan looks very plausible, and no doubt it will prove attractive to the employees of the company, the statement having been sent out that they received the proposition with great enthusiasm. It will certainly be a help to the beneficiary of any dead employee. On the other hand the company had a motive in making such a departure, and a close observer is forced to the conclusion that the underlying motive is selfishness—a desire to further its own interests and to make friends of many hitherto opposed to trust methods. The holding out of such a benefit will naturally attract a good class of employees that will want to stay in the service of the company, hence the securing of such employees is made easy and the company can afford to pay the benefit when it needs to maintain a force of employees reaching up in the hundreds of thousands.

The statement is also made in connection with the matter that no employee will be called upon to contribute, directly or indirectly, a single penny to the fund out of which the benefit will be paid. Certainly not, there is no need for such contributions. The farmers who raise the tobacco handled by the trust are the ones who will contribute the fund. The prices at which the farmers are forced to sell their tobacco leaves enough margin to make the trust rich and enable it to pay the benefits stipulated without missing the money. While taking such interest in its employees, to which no one can object, if the trust would also show enough consideration for the toiling men who grow the tobacco as to pay them a reasonably fair price for it it would be more commendable. If the tobacco trust wants to benefit people the growers of their products are the ones who need it most.

TWO MAGNIFICENT PIERS.

Uncle Sam Will Build a Colonial City and an Unrivalled Approach at the Jamestown Exposition Next Year.

Norfolk, Va., July 17—Of the sums appropriated by the United States government in aid of the Jamestown celebration to be held next year near Norfolk, five hundred and fifty thousand dollars are specifically set aside for the construction of buildings and the collection of exhibits. Of this amount the larger part is the building fund.

It has been the purpose of the Jamestown exposition from its very inception to create a colonial city on the shores of Hampton Roads, and the policy of the United States government is to further this end by the erection of buildings all of which will belong to that distinct type of architecture. Dotted here and there along the six miles of roadway connecting the exposition with Norfolk are several fine examples of colonial architecture, and in the city of Norfolk there are some houses which are perfect specimens of that type.

None of the exposition buildings will be reproductions of Greek or Roman temples: nothing bizarre will be shown in the outdoor decorations or interior adornments. The lines of the buildings will be chaste, and the gardens reminiscent of the seventeenth century.

To enable free and ready communication between the ships of the fleets that will assemble in Hampton Roads and the exposition shores, and in order to furnish a safe and ample harbor for small boats and launches, the government has appropriated four hundred thousand dollars for the construction of two mammoth piers projecting eighteen hundred feet into Hampton Roads connected at the sea end by a third pier. Each of these piers will be two hundred feet wide, and the lateral piers will be eight hundred feet apart, thus forming a basin eight hundred by eighteen hundred feet in area.

This water basin will be unique among exposition sights. It will be brilliantly lighted at night, and at sea terminus will have two tall towers, one for the lighthouse service, and one for wireless telegraphy. The connecting pier will be arched sufficiently high to permit all the small craft to enter the basin. Shrubs will be planted all along the piers, and booths will be erected at intervals.

Besides its use as a harbor, the enclosed basin will serve as an arena for water sports, swimming matches, water polo and such games, and possibly for the exhibition of various models of motor launches.

The dimensions of this enormous basin can hardly be comprehended without some comparisons. The greatest length is about nine ordinary city blocks; the connecting pier at the end is six blocks long, and the width of each of the piers is the length of the average block two hundred feet.

Excessive Rainfall

Mr. C. V. York, who is the government river observer at this point tells us that the rainfall of Greenville for the month of July up to this date has been 8 4-5 inches. This is a greater rainfall by nearly two inches than has fallen in any one month in the past fourteen months. The rainfall for July 1905, was 5 9-10 inches, and for both July and August of that year it was 3 2-5 inches.

CHRISTMAN'S OINTMENT

For all Skin Diseases on Man or Beast.

This Ointment has been used nearly two hundred years with the most wonderful success in the treatment of nearly every form of Skin disease, and in many instances, it has effected cures where other remedies had failed. While we do not claim that this Ointment will cure everything we say, a fair trial will convince any reasonable person that it is equal to any, and superior to most of the remedies for skin diseases on the market. This Ointment is made by the Christman Ointment Co. Greenville, N. C. and is for sale by druggists at 25 and 50 cts per bottle.

BACON AS A FOOD.

Properly Cooked It is Valuable and Easily Digested.

Lean bacon which contained fairly large proportions of both protein and fat formed a part of the ration in a number of experiments made at the Minnesota experiment station, about nine ounces being eaten per man per day. It was cut in thin slices and baked or broiled in the oven until crisp and brown. All the fat which cooked out was saved and eaten with the bread and other food which made up the daily fare.
On an average about 90 per cent of the protein and 96 per cent of the fat of the ration containing bacon were digested, and about 83 per cent of the energy was available. Calculated values for bacon alone showed over 90 per cent digested protein and 96 per cent digestible fat, figures which compare favorably with those which have been obtained for other animal foods.

Allowing 5 per cent for waste, a pound of bacon will contain from one-tenth to three-tenths digestible protein and from four-tenths to six-tenths pound digestible fat, which is about two-thirds as much as is found in butter. "Lean bacon contains as much protein and about twice as much digestible fat as other meats," says the experimental station professor, "making it at the same time and even at a higher price per pound a cheaper food than other meats. Bacon fat is easily digested, and when combined with other foods it appears to exert a favorable mechanical action upon digestion."

Many who are fond of bacon hesitate to eat it, since they believe that, being very rich in fat, it is a frequent cause of indigestion. As has been pointed out by a number of writers, it seems fair to say that in the majority of cases such digestive disturbances are not due to the fatty nature of the food, but to the fact that the bacon was overcooked, or, rather, cooked at too high a temperature. It is not surprising that this should be the case when it is remembered that fat heated to a high temperature is decomposed, and one of the products given off is acrolein, an unpleasant smelling compound which attacks the eyes, makes them smart, and irritates all mucous surfaces.

This compound is plainly noticeable in the acrid fumes of burning or scorching fat. When bacon fat is heated to 350 degrees F. this chemical change is brought about to a greater or less extent. Very often bacon is hurriedly cooked in a very hot frying pan over a bright fire, and more or less scorched fat is an almost inevitable result. When broiled or cooked in the oven there is less danger of scorching, but under all circumstances great care should be taken to avoid too hot a fire.—National Provisioner.

THE HUMAN EAR.

Its Range of Hearing and Some Sounds That Escape It.

A careful observer writes: "The range of the human ear is only supposed to be some nine octaves—two octaves more than the ordinary parlor piano, which, of course, is a ridiculously small section of the actual range of sound. It is only necessary to watch a cat out on the grass on a summer day to become convinced that it hears many things that we do not, and numbers of insects we know make noises which are far outside the compass of the human ear. We can see certain insects possessed of certain stridulat-ing organs going through certain motions, and we hear the sound which they produce. We can also observe the effect which that sound has on others of the same kind of insect that are within earshot.
Then there are smaller insects allied to them generically, with the same organs, which we can see going through the same motions. Again, we see precisely the same effect on other insects of the same kind that happen to be near. But no human being has ever heard the noise they make nor probably could any microphone make it audible—at all events experiments have failed. The air around us must be full of noises which we do not suspect.

"One of the Norse gods, so the sagas say, could hear the hair growing on a mouse's back. I know one little girl who, if she cannot quite do that, has, if not some octaves, at least a tone or two outside the normal range. 'What a noise the mice are making!' she will say as we walk beside a hedge row, where everything to all others of the party is as silent as one's bedroom at midnight—and that, we may be sure, if we could hear, is far from silent.
Again and again I have known her when walking along a lane or across a field suddenly to stand still and listen and then to flop down on all fours, plunging her hands into a tuft of grass, from which they emerge with a struggling vole in the fingers.

"In the middle of a game of croquet she will drop her mallet and disappear into the shrubbery, to come back later with the information that 'it is only the young willow wrens,' and there is difficulty in convincing her that not her father or mother or any of the elders present, young or old, can hear the sounds which, she declares, are 'as loud as anything.' Most of us drop a tone or so for every decade we leave behind us."—Chicago News.

MEAT PACKERS IN GERMANY.

We do not pretend to be letter perfect on German regulations, but we happen to know a little about the lordly butcher and the lordly packer who undertake to do business under German rule. If he ventures to kill a steer or a hog before it has been duly inspected and he is caught—as he is sure to be sooner or later—the carcass of the animal, whether healthy or unhealthy, is taken away from him and burned to a cinder.
Two or three experiences of this sort teach him that the regulations in this field are not made for show or for the delusion of meat eaters, but for plain, everyday use, seven days in the week. And the inspection before the animal is slaughtered is only the beginning. After it is slaughtered the carcass is inspected from the inside, and when a doubt arises as to its condition it also is taken away and burned. Finally those carcasses that are in sound condition are quartered and otherwise cut up for the butcher's stall where the people go to buy their meat. Here a third official guarantee of the purity of the product is given to the consumer. Every piece of the carcass thus prepared for sale, no matter into how many pieces it is divided, must have a little official label on it before an ounce of it can be sold.—Hartford Courant.

Billing a Big Circus.

The press agent of a big circus which recently showed in Philadelphia said that it took more than ten tons of paper a week to bill the show when its route lay through cities the size of Philadelphia. This paper is sent out ahead in special cars, which carry a foreman and from fifteen to twenty-five men. Besides being fitted up with living accommodations for these men, such a car has a capacity for twenty tons of paper and about twelve barrels of paste. When it reaches the town to be billed—and this is always as early as possible in the morning—it is met by a number of wagons which have previously been arranged for, and these carry the paper and paste over the bill route. Owing to the systematizing of the billposting business everything in the way of wall space, method of covering and the like is easily provided for, but it must be by a definite agreement made beforehand, and when this has been overlooked there is a hard tangle to straighten out.—Philadelphia Record.

Punished For Kindness.

William Hilton has recently been released from an English prison after being punished for cruelty to animals, and yet he was guilty only of excess of kindness. Not liking the idea that a useful beast of burden should be shot at the end of his honorable career and also regarding the command, "Thou shalt do no murder," as applying to the killing of a beast as well as a man, he has been

It Was on the Bag.

An American traveling in Europe engaged the services of a courier.
Arriving in Austria, the American asked the servant to register his name according to the police regulations of that country. The man replied that he had already anticipated the order and registered him as an American gentleman of means.
"But how did you write my name?" asked the master. "I can't exactly pronounce it, but I copied it carefully from your portmanteau, sir."
"But it is not there," was the reply.
"Bring me the book." The register was brought and revealed, instead of a very plain English name of two syllables, the following portentous entry: "Monsieur Warranted Solid Leather."

An Extraordinary Light.

What is believed to have been an aurora of such extraordinary brilliancy as to obscure the sunlight is thus described in an old number of the Gentlemen's Magazine: On the 2d of January, 1756, an unusual light, far above the brightest day, struck all beholders with amazement. The time was 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and it soon faded away.
At 7, however, from east to west, streams appeared like rivers of bright fire. A general feeling of alarm was caused by these, but they gradually faded away to the north, their disappearance being accompanied by shocks which were felt by all, but which did no particular damage.

Two Able Liars.

Two amateur hunters in the northern woods once saw a deer, and both fired at once. "That is my deer," said A. "I shot it." "No, you did not," hotly replied B. "It is my deer, because I killed it." A third party was approaching from the opposite direction with fury in his eye and a club in his hand. "Which of you two rascals shot my calf?" roared the farmer. "That fellow B. just now told me he did it," said A.
And B, now thoroughly alarmed for his personal safety, answered: "He lies. He shot it himself. I saw him do it, and I'll swear to it."—Liver-

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten.

Those citizens of other sections of the country who every now and then say something about the injustice of North Carolina in permitting illiterate whites to vote and barring illiterate negroes may be interested to know that after the next presidential election—or rather beginning January 1st following—neither white nor black who is unable to read and write will be able to vote. In other words, white men becoming 21 years of age after 1908 must fill the same requirements as the colored voters. —Charlotte Observer.

How It Changes.

It rained hard awhile Tuesday night and in a few minutes after it was over every cloud had vanished and stars were shining brightly. Then a little while later the rain was again falling in torrents.

THIS IS FOR YOU

I take this method to thank every one who has sold a load of Tobacco with me for the past nine years. Since on the Greenville market I have always, as auctioneer, at all times, looked after your best interest in the sale of your tobacco and if you will continue to sell with me I will see in the future, as I have in the past, that every pile of your tobacco is well looked after. This season you can find me at the "Liberty Warehouse" to welcome you at all times and with Mr. S. T. Hooker, one of Greenville's best judges of tobacco, and as we all know the strongest bidding warehousemen in the State, I feel safe in saying that I am in a better position this season to look after your interest than ever before. You will also find Mr. H. S. Hardy to see that nothing is left undone that is to your best interest.

Yours to serve,
THE LIBERTY WAREHOUSE, Co.
