PRESS BROKE.

Good Help Soon Had it Repaired.

The Reflector press met with an accident Wednesday night that for a while looked like it had put us out of action. Foreman Billie Burch was phoned for and hurried to the rescue. Superintendent J. A. Dunlap, of the water and light plant, also proved a friend indeed in this time of need. He was in his office and heard the unnatural rattling of gears when the accident occurred and came over to see what was the trouble. A quick inspection disclosed the nature of the mishap, and about two hours good work by the clever superintendent and Billie put the press to running in as good shape as ever. It was a big relief to have such men in reach in time of emergency.

Sherman Grimes Dead

Sherman Grimes, the young colored man who was shot by Policeman Tally during the difficulty at Grimesland, Saturday evening, died Wednesday morning. Dr. William Fountain, county coroner, went down to hold an inquest. The coroner's jury found in their verdict that the shooting was done in self defense.

NEW PASSENGER RATE.

Pennsylvania Announces Reduction of Fares--Other Roads Will Probably Follow.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug 1.—The Pennsylvania railroad company today announced a reduction of its maximum one way passenger fare from 3½ and 3 cents to 2½ cents. At the same time it was announced that hereafter thousand mile books will be sold for $20 each the cash deposit heretofore required being done away with. This action will involve a re-adjustment of all through fares from the south and owing to the vast amount of work entailed by reason of the changes the new rate of fare will not become operative for some time, probably November 1. It is assumed that the competing lines which reach New York by way of Cincinnati and Louisville will meet the Pennsylvania railroad company's reduction by readjustment of fares so that all southern passenger traffic whether by way of Washington, Cincinnati, or Louisville will be on an equal basis.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

R. W. KING ENDORSED BY THE GREENVILLE TOBACCO BOARD OF TRADE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

Greenville, N. C., Aug. 2, 1906.

At a full meeting of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade Mr. R. W. King was unanimously endorsed for County Commissioner, because the entire Tobacco Board of Trade believe him to be the man for the position for the following reasons:

1st. Because a Commissioner should reside at the county seat.

2nd. Because he is thoroughly familiar with the needs of all parts of the county.

3rd. Because he could be easily communicated with from all parts of the county day or night.

The citizens of Greenville as well as all our farmer friends know the difficulties under which they have labored in reaching the town because of the almost impassible condition of many of the roads leading to Greenville, thereby causing our market to lose hundreds of thousands of pounds of tobacco annually.

We earnestly appeal for our farmer friends throughout the county to co-operate with us in securing the nomination of R. W. King, whom we believe will do all in his power to secure these very much needed improvements in our deplorable situation.

NO TIPPING IN VIRGINIA.

"People who go to the Jamestown Exposition next year," says a contemporary, "will have the benefit of the Virginia anti-tipping law. The act forbids the giving of any gratuity to an agent, employe or servant without the knowledge or consent of the employers. Guests at hotels will therefore be taking the risk of fine and imprisonment if they follow the usual practice of tipping waiters and other attendants. It is not likely to prove a drawback to the exposition but the law may become troublesome to strangers, all of whom cannot be expected to be familiar with it." People learn quickly anything they want to know and all visitors to Virginia want to know that the tipping nuisance is unlawful in that State. A nuisance is what the tipping business is. A guest at a hotel would much rather have added to his bill the amount he is supposed to be under obligation to disburse in tips than to be compelled to keep his hands forever in his pockets, feeling for money. It will not hurt the Jamestown Exposition for it to become generally known that the visitor will be free of the necessity of tipping every servant he comes in contact with. This is a bad custom that Americans have gotten from Europe and it has become so nearly universal in this country that the man who does not conform to it is in danger of falling under the contempt of servants and few, except the stingy have the moral courage to stand out against it.—Charlotte Observer.

TEACHING IN CHINA.

The Schoolmaster's Life is One of Dignity and Drudgery.

"Most village schoolmasters in China have qualified themselves for the post by having failed at least once in the government triennial examinations," says a critic in the China Mail. "After two failures the scholar turns without any hesitation to this lucrative employment—it furnishes him usually with two coarse meals a day. He needs no diplomas, no apparatus, no assistants, not even brains, only a fairly retentive memory and a few old books. He simply puts out a few days before the old year expires a flaming proclamation of red paper and announces that it is his intention to open a school and receive pupils—if they will come. Not even a schoolhouse is necessary. He sits in a straight backed chair in the ancestral hall, which he owns in common with his clansmen, the hens, the pigs, the farming implements and the ancestral tablets, to receive ragged, shoeless urchins and chopped dollars.

"The conditions of life under which a schoolmaster lives unite to foster his vanity. His neighbors cannot indulge the love of long nails. He can. They cannot wear the long robe. He does—on feast days and special occasions. If they write a letter they confuse the Chinese characters. When they send to their honored dominion a present of roast pork they unwittingly describe it as a small gift of pearls and jade. He always writes correctly. His practice has made him as familiar with a certain number of elementary characters as an Englishman is with his alphabet. By comparison with his neighbors he is a veritable 'tsun tsz,' or superior man. He cannot be deceived. The rustic, wearing every morning worshipful Confucius, afterward the god of literature, next the dignified occupant of the high backed chair.

"Were it not for the honor attached to the post the drudgery of the life would be unbearable. From 6 in the morning until 5 in the evening, with one short interval for rice, amid shouting and howling which would silence the parrot house at the zoo, with voice and stick, he devotes his life to the driving of Chinese characters into the almost impervious skulls of his pupils. But he perseveres, believing that no position—except the mandarin's—is so respected and no profession so honorable. When an old man, according to Chinese custom, he looks to his son for support. At last, with deafening noise of cymbals, flutes and firecrackers, his wornout body is laid in the hillside grave."

"Colognian" Architecture.

One of the young architects who delivers lectures on modern architecture in the series of free public school lectures in New York, says a writer in the New York Sun, had just shown his audience the beauties of the Cologne cathedral when he thought of an experience he once had on a similar occasion.

"It was at the conclusion of my lecture," he told his audience, "that a woman came to me, explained that she, too, was a student of architecture and thanked me for enlightening her on one point that she had never been able to understand before. 'I have always wondered,' she said to me, 'where the colonial style of architecture came from. Now, of course, I see that it comes from Cologne.'"

Prentiss and His Wit.

Sergeant S. Prentiss was a great lawyer and an eloquent orator as well as a humorist, but his humor, though at times excessive, never obscured his oratory or weakened his argument. He was once engaged in a political discussion on "the stump" with a gentleman who was wordy, dull and spoke "against time" so that Prentiss might speak at a disadvantage. It was nearly dark when Prentiss rose, and the same moment a jackass in a neighboring pound began braying and kept it up until Prentiss' friends were annoyed and his opponents delighted. When the jackass stopped, Prentiss, casting a comical look at his unfair antagonist, said:

"I did not come here today to reply to two equally eloquent speeches." Then he sat down, and his friends carried him from the stand in their arms.

ATTACKS ON ROYALTY.

There is an unwritten law in Europe that all relics of attempts upon royal lives as well as the instruments used for treating the wounds caused in such attempts shall be destroyed. There was a solemn assembly of Austro-Hungarian officials in Geneva in 1898 to witness the destruction of the instruments which caused the death of the Empress Elizabeth and of the surgical implements used in making the post-mortem examination. The custom is based to a certain extent upon superstition, but more solidly upon the determination to prevent the relics from falling into the hands of exhibitors of such tragic trifles.

It was once the custom in this matter to grind to pieces the weapon which had been employed. When, however, the dagger was secured with which the priest, Martin Merino, attempted to murder Queen Isabella of Spain, rather more than half a century ago, the blade was found to be of such finely tempered steel that it resisted every effort of file and stone. Something like a panic was caused when the news got abroad. The Spanish peasants imagined that there must be magic in the blade.

So a cabinet meeting was specially summoned to deal with the crisis, and it was determined to submit the steel to the influence of acids. This proved successful, and all implements used for the like purpose have undergone similar treatment—knives, swords, daggers, revolvers and bombs.

Blackberry Cordial.

Put the berries into a preserving kettle, let simmer until they break, then mash and strain. To each pint of juice add one pound of white sugar, half an ounce of cinnamon, half an ounce of mace and one-fourth of an ounce of cloves and let boil fifteen minutes. When cold a little brandy may be added, though it is not essential. Seal in bottles and keep in a cool dark place.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF DOGS.

Always Hope for a Man Who is Fond of a Ordinary Cur

I have seen a few wretches in my day, but I never saw one so utterly lost to decency that he could not be flattered by the friendly attentions of a strange dog. There is a great lesson in that. No matter how superior we try to seem to ourselves and others, a small voice within us will not let us wholly forget what humbugs we are. In the presence of our kind we are brazen. The calm gaze of a child sometimes shakes our self confidence. The knowing look of a dog shatters it. There is something in brute psychology that perplexes the intellect of man and disorganizes his intuition. Man is so made that what he cannot understand exercises greater influence over him than that which he can. In the presence of many phenomena he reveals himself openly and quite unconsciously. He is then no longer master of the fortifications of his soul. He drops his mask—his grotesque outer garb—his brazen shield falls to the ground, and he either cowardly retreats or succumbs without resistance.

There is some hope for the man who is capable of feeling ashamed in the presence of an honorable dog. That man has avenues open to him for advancement. His soul is still fit for expansion. His brain is something more than a dried nut. His heart has not turned entirely into a thing of rubber and valves. When a strange dog greets him he thinks better of himself. Unconsciously he reasons: "Villain that I am, I am not so bad after all as I might be. You can't fool a dog, and a dog is no hypocrite. Therefore I have good in me which he recognizes." The fellow is a little surprised at himself and not a little flattered. If a noble dog shows him marked favor he becomes "stuck up" almost immediately. If several dogs should display great preference and affection for his person he would soon become unendurable to society—quite too vain for association with men. Contrarywise, should dogs bark at him generally or perchance should one bite him he would not feel himself good enough to associate with snakes, but would forthwith get himself locked up as a victim of hysterical rabies, and if he had any pathetic kinfolk at large they would at once insist upon having the dog put to death.

Proclamation by the Governor.

$100.00 REWARD

State of North Carolina
Executive Department

Whereas official information has been received at this department that W. H. Harrington Jr. late of the County of Pitt stands charged with conspiracy and assault upon W. J. Tell, and whereas it appears that the said W. H. Harrington Jr. has fled the State or so conceals himself that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him.

Now, therefore, I, R. B. Glenn, Governor of the State of North Carolina, by virtue of authority in me vested by law, do issue this my proclamation, offering a reward of One hundred Dollars for the apprehension and delivery of the said W. H. Harrington Jr. to the Sheriff of Pitt County at the Courthouse in Greenville N. C. and I do enjoin all officers of the State and all good citizens to assist in bringing said criminal to justice.

Done at our City of Raleigh the 16th day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six and in the one hundred and thirty-first year of our American Independence.

R. B. GLENN,
By the Governor.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Importance of Teaching Children Table Manners.

Parents even in a humble cottage home should pay attention to the conduct and manners of their children at mealtime. They cannot tell what position they will fill in after life, and a man or woman who is ignorant of the most simple laws of table etiquette is terribly handicapped. Were the parents to reprove the child who conveys its food to its mouth with a knife, who drinks its tea from the saucer or who sticks its elbows out at right angles the lesson so taught would never be forgotten. There is a certain amount of freedom at the family table, where one scarcely expects to find the ceremonious deportment of a set dinner party, but even in the home there are minor rules and observances which should always be followed, says Woman's Life.

Almond Macaroons.

Half a pound of sweet almonds, a coffee cup full of white sugar and the whites of two eggs; blanch the almonds and pound them to a paste, add to them the sugar and the beaten whites of the eggs, work the whole together with the back of a spoon, then roll the mixture in your hands in balls about the size of a nutmeg; dust sugar over the top and lay them on a sheet of paper at least an inch apart; bake in a cool oven a light brown.

To Darken Floors.

Put into a bottle two tablespoonfuls each of linseed oil and good vinegar and one teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine (naturally the quantities may be increased, though the proportions must be kept), cork this up and shake it well to mix. Wash the floor thoroughly with hot soap and water, then while the boards are still warm, though fairly dry, apply the polish, shaking the bottle well before each application, rubbing it well in.

Try This One.

Did you ever try this one? Take any number between one and nine. Add one to it. Multiply by nine. Cross out the left hand figure. Add fourteen. Add the original number selected. Then follow the advice of the answer.—Pittsburg Post.

Saved His Comrades Life.

"While returning from the Grand Army Encampment at Washington City, a comrade from Elgin, Ill., was taken with cholera morbus and was in a critical condition," says Mr. J. E. Houghland, of Eldon, Iowa. I gave him Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and believe saved his life. I have been engaged ten years in immigration work and conducted many parties to the south and west. I always carry this remedy and have used it successfully on many occasions." Sold by J L Wooten.

A Tragic Finish

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Seadyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro Me., permitted a little cold to go unattended until a tragic finish was averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes "three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold" but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life. Guaranteed best cough and cold cure at J L Wooten's drug store. 50 cent and 1.00 Trial bottle free.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J L Wooten.

Only 82 Years Old.

"I am only 82 years old and don't expect even when I get to be real old to feel that way as long as I can get Electric Bitters," says Mrs. E. H. Trunson, of Dublin Ga. Surely there is nothing else keeps the old as young and makes the weak as strong as this grand tonic medicine. Dyspepsia, torpid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by J L Wooten druggist. Price 50c

THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1906.

Congressmen John H. Small, of this district, has been appointed one of the committee to welcome Hon. W. J. Bryan on the return from his trip abroad.

A wave of crime seems to have been sweeping over the county during the last few weeks, and North Carolina has had her full proportion. Wonder if the weather has anything to do with it.

The farmers of the county will miss an opportunity for information on several subjects of interest to them if they fail to attend the farmers institute in Greenville on the 10th. It is useless for the State to continue the expense of holding these institutes unless the farmers attend and get the benefit of them.

It is amusing that when a North Carolina Republican gets a seat at the pie counter he forthwith sees visions of the whole State going to his party. It reminds us of the fellow we heard one loud mouthed fro. crossing guard thought to be the whole State was full of frogs.

The Secretary of State recently granted a charter to the Blackwell Durham Tobacco Company at Durham to engage in the manufacture of tobacco in this State. The new company at once brought suit against the American Tobacco Company to enjoin the latter from manufacturing tobacco in this State. There was formerly a Blackwell Durham Tobacco Company at Durham, and it was absorbed by the American Tobacco Company. Then the North Carolina charter of the company was dissolved or abandoned and the Blackwell company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey but never domesticated in this State. The new company will now fight for the exclusive right to use that name in this State and it promises to be a big litigation.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Now a Bumble Bee Made a Sprinter Out of Critic.

One day as the Bumble Bee was sitting on the top rail of a fence and swinging his legs and taking things easy a man came along and called out:

"Ah, here you are, loafing around as usual. Do you know that you are called the laziest of the insect kingdom? You toil not, neither do you spin, but are always eating the bread of others."

"That's a little way I have fallen into," replied the Bumble without ill feeling.

"Then you had best fall out of it. My dear sir, everybody works but father, and if you want to save your character get busy."

"I think I will, and thanks for your interest in me."

Thereupon the Bumble went at it and "lifted" the man three feet from the ground and ran him around two haystacks and a cider mill to be met with the complaint:

"Alas, but owing to your activity and the vigorous manner in which you do business you have given me palpitation of the heart and caused me to lose a whole day's work."

Unconscious Greatness.

"The ancestors of whom you boast," remarked the reproving friend, "displayed no such pride as yours."

Dough For Rib Roast.

When your rib roast is nearly done make a nice dough of one cup of sour milk, a scant teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, shortening the size of an egg and sufficient flour to thicken well. Roll about one-half inch thick, cut several inch gashes in the same, place over your roast and bake twenty minutes without uncovering.

Mint Vinegar.

Put crushed mint leaves in a wide mouthed bottle, then fill up with good cider vinegar. In three weeks pour off clear into another bottle. This is fine for flavoring purposes when fresh mint cannot be had and almost a sure cure for headache when bound upon the forehead.

Care of Pianos.

A small bag of unslacked lime placed inside the piano will prevent the springs from rusting. This is particularly good for a piano that is in a house which is closed for the summer.

He Answered.

There is a good story told by Senator Pettus of Alabama on himself about what happened to him when he was a little chap attending church service, says the American Spectator.

"I was only ten years old," said the veteran of the senate chamber, "and had been sent to attend Sunday service alone. I always accompanied my mother, but on this particular Sunday she was slightly indisposed and thereby forced to remain at home.

"I was occupying a seat very near the pulpit, and the theme of the divine was 'Am I my brother's keeper?'"

"After preaching about fifteen minutes he reached the climax of his remarks with the words of his subject, and his gaze seemed to rest directly on me. I commenced to fidget a little, but he didn't turn his eyes from mine for a second, and after a short pause he burst forth again, 'Am I my brother's keeper?'"

"I could stand it no longer, and I answered in a meek voice, 'No, sir.'"

THE SWEET VOICES OF THE SINGERS

And the entrancing Melodies of the Music, that flow from the Edison Phonograph, should be placed within the reach of your wives and children.

MUSIC breaks the discords of a busy day, tranquilizes the restless mind, soothes the pain of the sick and afflicted, and is the delight of all.

THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH makes it possible to get the best, whether it be from the Orchestra, the Military Band, the Solo, duet or the Quartette. It places in your home that for which the multitudes in the cities pay large sums to hear, and for which you pay the cost of a record.

Do you envy your city friend who is always able to sing the latest music, and who can tell off-hand the name of every popular air? Why should not keep up with the musical world as well as the social or political affairs of the nations? It costs no more.

TO prospective purchasers, we would take a delight in exhibiting the Edison Phonograph at your homes. Ask us about prices and terms.

If you have never heard it, you don't know what a treat awaits you at

SHE LEARNED THE TRUTH.

The queen of Roumania, better known as Carmen Sriva, has many gifts. In addition to being a writer, she is a musician and in her youth was something of a singer. Of this last gift an amusing story is told. Praised by flattering courtiers, her majesty almost thought herself a second Patti. But she is nothing if not practical, and she therefore visited in strict incognito a celebrated French singing master. He listened gravely to his visitor's rendering of a test song and then said: "You have, madame, no voice at all, though much musical feeling. I could train you for the operetta, but, to be candid, you haven't a face worth anything." Her majesty is said to have been naturally disappointed, but too kind hearted to disclose her identity, and it was only after some little while that the over-frank maestro learned that he had been unwittingly guilty of leze majesty.

King Charles' Modest Crown.

King Charles of Roumania, who has just been celebrating his kingship of a quarter of a century, wears a remarkable crown. It was fashioned, in accordance with his wish, of steel from a Turkish gun captured at Plevna as a remembrance to all time of the achievements on the battlefields of Bulgaria and of the fact that the new kingdom was not hampered by traditions. At his coronation when he took the crown in his hands King Charles said: "I assume with pride this crown, wrought from a cannon sprinkled with the blood of our heroes and consecrated by the church. I accept it as a symbol of the independence and power of Roumania." The queen's golden crown is also without jewels or ornaments.—London Chronicle.

MAIL BOXES WITH NAMES.

The rack of mail boxes in the lighthouse department building on Staten Island is labeled with some names that strike one as having a gay and festive and familiar air until one realizes the reason why. One box is labeled "Daisy," another startles one with its "Darling," and the stung impression left by "Nettie" is slightly assuaged and the reader made to feel that all is not familiar hereabout by the solid respectability of "John Rodgers." If any one had any lasting doubts as to the reason for these appellations it would probably be cleared away by another compartment labeled "Robbins Reef," and for the benefit of those to whom the mystery has not been cleared away it may be stated that the Daisy and the Darling of the letter boxes are not young ladies, but the boats employed by the department in its work along the coast in this section of our seaboard.

SHERRY WINE.

How the Grapes Are Tramped Out and the Juice Is Treated.

The vintage of sherry wine in Spain occurs between Sept. 15 and the last of October. After the grapes are cut they are left in the sun for two or three days, being covered at night to protect them from the dew. All bad and unripe grapes are separated from the bunches, after which the good grapes are thrown into large square wooden troughs, when men, bare legged and wearing heavy shoes with projecting iron nails, tramp out the grapes, and the liquid runs into an adjoining vat.

The residue of stems, pips and skins is put into another trough and, after adding water, is crushed with a wooden press. The pulp is used for feed for hogs. The liquid obtained, called "must," runs into another receptacle and is of an inferior quality. When the butts and barrels are filled they are put in the cellars, each barrel having a tin funnel inserted in the bung-hole to permit circulation of air. These barrels must have a vacuum of at least four gallons to allow the wine to ferment without overflowing.
After the fermenting period of about two months the clear liquid is transferred to other barrels carefully, so as not to disturb the sediment at the bottom. The barrels for the ultimate reception of the wine must be of white oak, perfectly clean and smoked with sulphur to prevent dampness. The barrels are then stored and carefully classified by experts and a name given to the wine in the different butts.

It always happens that different kinds of wine are obtained from the same grapes grown in the same vineyards and subject to the same treatment. From the same grapes come the mellow (head), light (fines) and bouquet (body). Some of the wines are so light that they are sold as vinegar or brandy for alcohol.
Alcohol of 25 per cent must be mixed with wine at the rate of twelve pints to the butt of fifty-five gallons for each degree of strength desired. To properly preserve wine it should have a certain alcoholic strength of at least 15 per cent, and as pure wine does not possess that it must be strengthened. There are some wines produced in their natural state, but they are very few.

Be Careful of Teeth.

Pretty teeth are a pearl. False teeth will not be in demand in Germany if the free care of children's teeth continues to grow in popularity. Strassburg started the movement in 1902, and Darmstadt, Muhl-hausen and other cities have followed suit. The third annual report from Strassburg says that there were 12,691 visits to the clinic last year and that the children are improving in the care they give their teeth.

Drinking With Meals.

A fact that thin persons who wish to become fat should bear in mind is that much more food may be eaten and it will be more thoroughly digested if one drinks than if one does not drink while eating. No doubt many have noticed the relief experienced when, replete with food, they have sipped water. Frequently I have seen children writhing with the pain of colic instantly relieved by a few swallows of water. Dr. Jacobi has said that the colic of infants is due to a too concentrated milk or other food and that the free drinking of water will often cure it.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Hot Water a Valuable Remedy For Many Common Ills.

A strip of flannel or a napkin folded lengthwise and wrung out of hot water and applied around the neck of a child who has croup will usually bring relief in a few minutes. A towel folded several times, then quickly wrung out of hot water and immediately applied over the seat of the pain in toothache or neuralgia will afford prompt relief.
This treatment in colic works like magic. Cases on record having resisted other treatment for hours have yielded to this treatment in ten minutes. Pieces of cotton batting dipped in hot water, then applied to all sores and new cuts, bruises and sprains is the treatment now generally adopted in hospitals.
Hot water taken freely a half hour before bedtime is an excellent cathartic in the case of constipation, while it has a most soothing effect on the stomach and bowels. This treatment continued for a few months, together with proper attention to diet, will alleviate mild cases of dyspepsia.

To Boil Salmon.

Carefully wash the piece of fish and see that it is quite free from blood inside. Tie it in shape, if necessary, with tape; place it in enough boiling water to just cover it. To each quart of water add one tablespoonful of salt. Bring the fish quickly to the boil, skim it and draw it away to a cooler part of the stove to simmer till done.

To see if it is done pass a skewer close down by the bone right into the fish. If it passes in perfectly easily it is cooked enough. Usually about eight to ten minutes is allowed for each pound of fish to be boiled.

Terms Used in Cookery.

To break flour is to mix in gradually a small quantity of cold liquid, stirring it until it is smooth.

To bind a mixture is to add milk or eggs to make it hold together.

To burst rice is to put it on in cold water and bring it to a boil.
This bursts the grains of starch.

To parboil is to boil anything until half cooked.

To scald milk is to bring it almost, but not quite, to a boil.

To shred suet is to cut it with a sharp knife so thinly as to be almost scraping. The suet should be so thin as to curl up.

Choosing a Cantaloupe.

The first point to be considered in buying cantaloupes is weight. A heavy melon is always a good melon if sufficiently ripe, and the best test of ripeness is the odor. A ripe can-taloupe is always fragrant and spicy.
The furrows of muskmelons are worth noting. If the surface is rough and the furrows deep the melon is sound and sweet. If the color is too green it is apt to be un-derripe, and if yellow it is mushy.
A very smooth surface indicates that the melon is overripe.

Warm Weather Tonic.

For the everlasting tired feeling that is bound to come during hot weather when the appetite apparently goes on its summer vacation and the system needs building up there is nothing more nourishing or beneficial than olive oil and grape juice. The proportions are one dessert spoonful of olive oil to four of grape juice, taken after each meal.
If it is agreeable the amount may be increased to a tablespoonful of oil to four of grape juice.

A Boy and a Bird.

A Capitol Hill small boy received a pair of pet pigeons from his aunt.
The youngster was very much interested in them and paid them much attention. He fed them a dozen times a day at least. He was very desirous that some eggs should be laid, but the hen pigeon did not seem inclined to please him in this respect. One day the little boy came running to his mother. He was excited.

"Mamma," he said, "I know why Mrs. Pigeon don't lay an egg."
"Why?" asked his mother.
"Because her egg is stuck in her neck," he replied. He had felt the pigeon's full crop.—Denver Post.

A Weighty Consideration.

"I wish," said the bookkeeper discontentedly, "that I had taken up a scientific career. I've a great mind to be an astronomer yet."

"Are you tired of figures?"

"A little."

"But if you were an astronomer you would be obliged to make calculations on a scale that you never have to attempt now. You'd have to deal with millions and billions and quadrillions of miles, instead of hundreds and thousands of dollars, as you do now."

"That's very true. But I wouldn't be nearly so likely to lose my position if I made a mistake."

The tentacles of the devilfish are less wonderful than those of a vigorous grapevine in the spring. Grasping ambition is as nothing in comparison therewith. See the tender yet audacious tendrils reaching out in blindness for something to catch hold of. The new vine may grow five, seven, ten feet, without support, and the tendrils may grope for weeks in search of something to tie to, but their groping invariably succeeds. They hitch on at last and their grip is tenacity itself. No sooner do they wind their way several times around the newly discovered support than they lose all their tenderness and being to harden into a wirelike coil. Their groping is finished. Their sense of feeling is lost.
They become mere hoops of steel.

The weeping willow tree came to America through the medium of Alexander Pope, the poet, who planted a willow on the banks of the Thames at his Twickenham villa. The twig came to him in a box of figs sent from Smyrna by a friend who had lost all in the south sea bubble and had gone to that distant land to recoup his fortune.
Harper's "Encyclopedia of United States History" tells the story of the willow's arrival in America.

A young British officer, who came to Boston with the army to crush the rebellion of the American colonies, brought with him a twig from Pope's now beautiful willow tree, intending to plant it in America when he should comfortably settle down on lands confiscated from the conquered Americans. The young officer, disappointed in these expectations, gave his willow twig, wrapped in oil silk, to John Parke Custis, Mrs. Washington's son, who planted it on his Abingdon estate, in Virginia. It thrived and became the progenitor of all our willow trees.

Drew's Boarders Differed.

Under the proprietorship of L. S.
Drew the old American House at Burlington was one of the most popular hotels in Vermont, and it was the scene of many a humorous episode. One night after supper Mr.
Drew was welcoming a new arrival in the office when an extremely corpulent guest came out of the dining room. Pointing to the fat man, Mr. Drew said: "You can see how well we feed our guests. Just look at that man." It chanced that a permanent resident of the hotel overheard the remark. This man was extremely thin—just the opposite of the guest referred to.
Mr. Drew. The thin boarder once spoke up, saying: "Yes, I fat man has been here three days.
I have been here thirty years. Look at me!"

Among the queerest languages used by humankind throughout the world are those of the Gomeros, inhabitants of one of the Canary group of islands, and the Kameruns of west Africa. The Gomeros whistles what he has to say to his neighbors, using both fingers and lips so expertly as to express all the signals that are required to make the conversation intelligible. A Kamerun man uses a drum. The instrument is rather peculiar, its surface being divided into uneven halves, so that when it is struck it yields two different notes. With a code in character not unlike the taps of the telegraphic system, the people make this drum express every syllable of their language. A Kamerun chieftain can summon any one of his subjects and at the same time intimate the purpose for which he is required by the mere use of the drum.

Fanning.

Outside of Spain and the orient fanning is not a graceful art, but a manual labor. It is not soothing, but heating. The only persons to whom fanning is a real relief are those who follow the oriental fashion and wave their generous palm leaves with the same sang froid with which Cleopatra's slaves on her immortal barge swung theirs to and fro. Fans are as old as history, and the ancient Egyptians well knew their use, but it is not possible to imagine those stately queens of ancient days permitting in their presence anything so vigorously undignified as the modern method of fanning.

Turning the Tables.

Clergyman (to his wife, returning very late from a gossiping party)— Whatever made you stay out so dreadfully late, wifey?

Wife—Oh, I did not wish to disturb you in the preparation of your sermon.

Clergyman's Wife (ready for the fray on Monday night, to her husband, returning very late from his club)—Whatever made you stay out so dreadfully late, hubby?

Clergyman—Well, you see, dearest, I didn't want to disturb you in the preparation of your curtain les-ture.—Fliegende Blätter

RARE MAP OF LONDON.

Only Two Copies, One at Paris, Other at British Museum.

It does not appear to be widely known that the second copy of the celebrated map of London, engraved at Fithborne in 1558, which was accidentally discovered half a century ago, can now be seen in the print room of the British museum. There is only one other original copy in existence, and that is in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris. There are at least two pieces of internal evidence by which the date of the survey can be definitely determined as having been made between the years 1643 and 1647. Cheapside cross, which was demolished in the former year, does not appear in the map, but that long known as Charing cross, which was cleared away in 1647, is depicted as standing in all its glory.

The engraving of the map was not completed until 1658, and advantage was taken of the delay to introduce the new buildings and improvements up to that date, as, for example, the new buildings on the west side of Lincoln's Inn Fields and Clare market, which was opened by John Holles, earl of Clare, in 1656. Pall Mall is represented as a pleasant walk, with a double row of trees on the north side.

A windmill marks the site and origin of the name of the present Windmill street. The gaming house that existed at that period at the top of the Haymarket is also represented. From Stepney to London is open country, the only water shown in St. James' park runs from north to south across the present parade ground, and in the middle of the roadway of Holborn, near the top of Chancery lane, is shown a row of small houses that completely obstructed the view along that thoroughfare.

It is considered questionable, it may be added, whether the map was ever published, for the period was one of considerable turmoil, and there seems little doubt that the plates and their impressions perished in the great fire of 1666.—Pall Mall Gazette.

His Excuse.

In a local business house a night watchman has been under suspicion for some time of falling asleep at his post. The other night when the house was open until near midnight the manager came suddenly upon the watchman and found him fast asleep in a chair in a secluded part of the busiest room in the establishment. Waking him rudely, he said: "John, you had better go to the office and get your money. You were asleep! You're fired!"

"I was awake all the time," expostulated the watchman.

"Rats! Didn't I hear you snoring?"

"Sure, but there is a couple of crooks in the vicinity, and I've been piping them off. I was snoring to let them think I was asleep."

The excuse was so brazen that the manager decided to give him one more chance, and so he escaped with a reprimand.—Albany Journal.

Sailors' Trousers.

"Why," said a landsman, "are sailor trousers so baggy at the bottoms?"

"They are baggy at the bottoms," the mariner replied, "so that they will roll up above the knee conveniently and easily. Sailors are great deck washers, and in deck washing it is necessary to have the legs bare to the knees. Trousers of ordinary cut rolled above the knees would cramp the flesh of the upper leg and impede the circulation, but sailor trousers may be taken by their wide bottoms and pulled in a jiffy up to the hip. They fit the upper leg like a hip boot.

"Sailor trousers, in a word, have so odd a shape because they are cut from the knee down to fit the leg from the knee up."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Black Men in Persia.

Old inscriptions and carvings have shown that there existed in ancient Persia members of a race of black skinned men who possessed features resembling those of Africans. The origin of these people as well as their apparent disappearance in modern times has furnished puzzling questions for ethnologists. Some have supposed that in prehistoric times the greater part of southern Asia was occupied by a primitive black race, of which only vestiges remained when the empires of Babylonia and Assyria arose.

OVER THE STATE

Happenings of Interest in North Carolina.

Greensboro, N. C., Aug. 1.—At the largest meeting of capitalists ever assembled at any one time on a common purpose in the history of the State, the stockholders of a new fire insurance company in session here this afternoon met and organized the Dixie Insurance Company.

Durham, N. C. Aug. 1.—One of the saddest deaths of the recent past occurred here this morning, at 10:45 o'clock when John W. Carleton, Jr., son of ex-Mayor John W. Carleton, died of heart trouble and other complications. He left a bride of just seven weeks having been married on June 12th to Miss Eva Cox.

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 1.—Nease Gillespie, his two sons, John and Henry, Jack Dillingham and George Irvin, the five negroes now in jail at Charlotte charged with the murder of four members of the Isaac Lysterly family at Barber's Junction, Rowan county, on July 13, will be arraigned for trial in Salisbury next Monday the 6th inst. At this time a special term of the Superior Court will convene for the trial of the negroes, Judge B. F. Long, of Stateville, will preside.

Gastonia, N. C., Aug. 1.—John Kincaid killed W. M. Brown at Bessemer City this morning. Mr. Kincaid accused Mr. Brown of evil relation with his (Kincaid's) sister. At seven o'clock this morning Brown married another woman and had bought a ticket intending to leave on the next train. Kincaid called him into a store and told him that he was going to kill him for not marrying his sister. Persons present foiled him in the first two shots, but the third took effect, and Kincaid fired two shots after Brown fell.

EXCESSIVE RAINFALL

This July Larger Than June, July and August of Last Year Combined.

Mr. C. V. York, who keeps a record of the rainfall here for the government gives us some interesting figures.

The total rainfall here for last month, July, was 16.32 inches, while for the same month last year it was 5.93 inches.

The total for the three months June, July and August, 1905, was 14.79 inches, while for two months this year, June and July, it was 22.77 inches.

In the month of July this year it was 1.53 inches more than for the three months, June, July and August of last year, combined.
