SEVEN-YEAR-OLD CHILD DIES DRUNK.

If ever angels weep over what mortals do in this world, they must have wept over what took place in Lincoln county on last Tuesday.

We are informed that Mr. John Keener and Traver Lawing started to Lincolnton and got some brandy on the way. The little seven-year-old boy of Mr. Lawing died from the effects of what he drank.

My countrymen, think of a child seven years old going into eternity a victim of strong drink.

We cannot save some men who are set in their ways and are slaves of strong drink, but in the name of humanity, let every man who is a man raise his voice and use his vote and his influence to save the mothers and children from the curse of strong drink.—Catawba News.

The extent of the manufacturing industry of the South is not generally understood, its agricultural interests attracting most attention. Yet in 1905 there was more than a billion and a half of capital invested in manufacturing, producing goods worth two billions. The increase in capital invested, and in products shows a larger percentage than in the rest of the country. The increase in capital in the five years ended with 1905, was 65 per cent. against 40 per cent. in the country at large, and the increase of product was 44.4 per cent. against about 30 per cent. in the country at large. The South is no longer the land of promise, but of accelerated performance.—Baltimore Sun.

Entire Family Drowned.

Oswego, N. Y., August 3.—An entire family was drowned by the capsizing of a boat on Lake Neapawanta, near Fulton. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Stenweetenburg and their two children, girl of twelve years and a boy, about nine years, and a sixteen months-old infant daughter of Casimer Studer.

Gates of Exposition Not to Open on the Sabbath.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 3.—The usual vexatious problem of Sunday opening at the exposition has been definitely settled and eliminated very early in the case of the Jamestown Exposition, near Norfolk, Va., which will open on the 26th of next April. The gates will be closed on Sundays.

Pitt County Boys.

Our boys are always making themselves heard from wherever they go. We see from the Kinston Free Press that E. G. Barrett has been elected president of the merchants' association in that town. Elmer moved from Greenville to Kinston and is taking rank among the leading merchants there.

Day Current.

Without any unforeseen mishap in placing the machinery, Superintendent Dunlap thinks he will be ready to turn on day electric current Thursday. Good! It will put new life in Greenville and make living more comfortable.

LANIER FOR REGISTER OF DEEDS.

Eight years ago, our fellow citizen, J. C. Lanier wanted to be Register of Deeds for our county, but he found that the people wanted some one else in that office, so he did not let his name go before the convention. Four years ago, with the same ambition he again went among the people to learn their wishes and again he saw that he was not the strongest candidate for the office he wanted and again dropped out of race before the convention, giving his support to stronger brother. And now he comes again to the people asking support for the office he aspires to fill. Mr. Lanier is a loyal and worthy man. Let us nominate and elect him. A VOTER.

Town Financial Statement.

The Reflector today begins publishing the financial statement of Greenville for the past fiscal year. This statement will first appear in installments each day as fast as the printers can get it in type, and then will appear complete as a whole in supplement form. The people should study this statement carefully, as it shows the amount raised from the different sources of taxation and just what goes with the money in conducting the affairs of the town.

Buy Land—Buy Now.

So long as babies are born into the world so long will the world continue to advance, and so long will real estate continue to advance in price. Now is the time for the young people to buy real estate. It will never be cheaper. If you haven't the money take stock in the building and loan association and borrow the money. It will prove a good investment.—Gaffney Ledger.

Beautiful Solo.

As an offering in the Methodist church, Sunday morning, Miss Rachel Borden, of Goldsboro, who is visiting Mrs. J. W. Aycock, sang "Face to Face." It was beautifully rendered, with Miss Helen Forbes accompanist, and delighted the large congregation. Miss Borden has a magnificent voice.

Schedule Changed.

There has been a slight change in the schedule of the north bound morning passenger train. It now passes Greenville at 8:23 a. m. People should make a note of this change, as failure in that particular might cause somebody to get left.

Should Send the Money.

Several letters endorsing candidates for office, but unaccompanied by the money to pay for them, have been received by The Reflector in the last few days. The writers of these letters may take this as the reason for their not appearing in print. A charge of one-half cent a word is made for printing such letters.

It is not enough to make the folks wish for a hurrying of the day electric current so fans can be operated.

ADOPT THE SALARY SYSTEM.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

We notice that several of the counties in this State have laws which abolish the fee system and places the county officers upon a fixed salary, and it has proven satisfactory to the people. In the recent primary election in Wake we believe every candidate for the Legislature pledged himself to have such a law enacted for that county. These laws provide that the officers shall charge the same fees as are allowed by law, but they are required to pay the same into the county treasury, and after paying the salaries of the officers whatever excess there may be is applied to the repair and construction of the public roads.

Pitt county is a large county and the amount of fees paid to the public officers is considerable, in fact no one knows what it is. Of course a fair and reasonable salary should be paid to the several officers. We feel sure that such a law would not decrease the crop of candidates, but would add greatly to the fund for improvement of the public roads. This suggestion is made at this time for prayerful and careful consideration by the delegates to the Democratic convention to be held in Greenville on Wednesday, August 15th, 1906.

Died.

Mr. J. L. Griener, a former citizen of Greenville and who for awhile resided at Dover, died in the latter town Saturday afternoon. He was about 50 years old. The remains were brought here on Sunday evening's train and the burial took place in Cherry Hill cemetery, services conducted by Rev. J. A. Hornaday.

Mr. Edgar Ballard died Saturday afternoon at his home near Smith's store, in Beaver Dam township. He was about 40 years old and leaves a wife and one child. He was a brother of Mrs. J. S. Congleton, of Greenville. Mr. Ballard was an industrious farmer and also engaged in the mercantile business, being a member of the firm of C. D. Smith & Co. He was a member of Ayden Masonic Lodge, and was buried Sunday afternoon with Masonic honors. Several from Greenville attended the funeral.

Brother Kills Sister.

Thursday afternoon, Mack Jenkins, a colored lad about 15 years old and living with his father, Mack Jenkins, on Mrs. M. E. Weathers bee's farm in No. 5 township, in handling a pistol which he thought was not loaded accidentally discharged it. The ball struck his little six year old sister Maggie penetrating the abdomen and puncturing the intestines in six places.—Tarboro Southerner.

Special Term.

Governor Glenn has ordered a special term of court for Pitt county, for one week beginning August 27th. Judge T. J. Shaw will preside and the special term will be for the trial of criminal cases.

COTTEN FOR THE HOUSE.

Belvoir Township, Aug. 4.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

We are glad to learn Mr. R. R. Cotten's name will be presented to the county convention on the 15th, for one of the members of the Legislature. This township has wanted Mr. Cotten in the Legislature for some time. We know him to be in sympathy with every interest of the farmers and up to date in all lines of progress. He has had much experience in State matters and is well and favorably known over the State, all of which would be of use to him in the Legislature. He is conservative, and we feel safe in saying no man would come nearer watching over the interest of all than Mr. Cotten, and that Pitt county will serve her best interest in sending him to the Legislature. Respectfully,
D. J. Holland.

BROWN FOR THE HOUSE.

Carolina Township, Aug. 4th. 06.

EDITOR REFLECTOR:

Having seen letters from Belvoir and Bethel townships, endorsing Julius Brown for Representative to our General Assembly, we the undersigned citizens and Democrats of Carolina township do hereby concur and agree with Belvoir and Bethel townships in the endorsement of Mr. Brown, and we feel sure he will get the hearty support of Carolina township, and we ask the Democrats of the south side of the river to unite with us in his nomination.

Respectfully,

Firefly Lanterns.

The fireflies of South America are very beautiful and brilliant. So bright, indeed, are they that two or three will illuminate a hut as well as candles, and the natives often read by the light they give.

When the Indian hunter prepares for a journey through the forest at night his lantern is one of these beetles fastened to his toe. Not only does it light his way, but it frightens away snakes and other dangerous reptiles.

FRANCE HAS A NEW POET.

The committee recently appointed by the French minister of public instruction to examine the claims of candidates for the Bourse Nationale de Voyages Littéraires and award the traveling scholarship, worth $600, has unearthed a new poet. He is M. Abel Bonnard, aged twenty-one, concerning whom the committee opines "the world will hear much."

M. Bonnard won the scholarship by his volume of verse, "Les Familieres," descriptive of nature, pastoral life and animals. The new poet has been bracketed with Abbe Delille, a famous versifier, who translated Virgil and Milton, and with La Fontaine, the author of the fables. He has also a good deal in common with George Rodenback, the singer of "Bruges la Morte," who died a few years ago in Paris. The committee which has chosen the new poet had to grapple with 257 productions in prose and verse. One of the first places to be visited by M. Bonnard when he receives his $600 is England.

Seeing New York.

Among the group of men who come to New York every few months from Charlotte, N. C., partly on business and partly on pleasure is a lieutenant of the Bumblebee rifles, a militia organization of some repute in the Tar Heel State. Not long ago one of the friends of the lieutenant, meeting him at a Broadway hotel, proposed a trip to the polo grounds to see a ball game. "Where are the grounds?" inquired the North Carolinian. "At One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street," was the reply. "Say, you don't mean to tell me this town has grown to be as big as that?" the visitor exclaimed. "I've been coming here every few months for ten years, and only last year everything was woods north of Fifty-ninth street."

It developed that the lieutenant had taken a walk up Seventh avenue and upon seeing the trees of Central park had decided he was at the end of civilization.—New York Post.

A Remarkable Spring.

One of the most remarkable springs in the world, says J. A. Eddy in the Engineering and Mining Journal, has recently been discovered in New Mexico. It is located by a spring saturated with sodium sulphate. Distilled water weighs one and one-third pounds per gallon, the water of this spring weighs ten and two-thirds pounds. The temperature of the spring is a little over 110 degrees F. As the saturated liquid overflows and cools it forms a crystalline mass like ice, which in the course of ages has spread into a snow white bed of solid sodium salts miles in extent and as level as a lake. The warm brine, Mr. Eddy reports, is inhabited by a minute shrimp-like organism, and a species of plant is found growing in the dry expanse of sodium sulphate.

His Rare Resolve.

John Forrester, living northwest of Moran, boasts of the fact that he has lived fifty-five years and resided in Kansas since 1859 and yet has never been on a train. Mr. Forrester does not have any particular fear of riding on a train, but has never had occasion to ride. Several times his children have made up a party to have him take in some of the Sunday excursions, but as his religious principles are against riding on the train on Sundays he has each time refused to take the trip.—Kansas City Journal.

Rewarded at Last.

Here is a woman whose sense of gratitude was not misplaced. The Marchioness Isabella Lucini of Pavia has left a legacy of $3,000 to a local comic paper to which she was a lifelong subscriber. Her will also directed that $300 in addition should be spent on a sumptuous banquet, to which the staff of the paper should be entertained "in recognition," so the will textually reads, "of the many pleasant hours spent in perusing its humorous columns."

Places of Amusement.

The walls of stations on the new tube from Waterloo to Baker street are embellished with maps of London, on which, according to the index in a corner of them, "theaters and places of amusement" are printed in red. Among the places so indicated on the body of the maps are Holloway cattle market, the Foundling hospital, the courts of justice, the Bank of England and Surgeon's tabernacle.—London Tribune.

Ask the Busy Woman.

If you want some one to do something for you and it needs to be done promptly and well ask a busy woman to do it, says Mrs. Homer Hoch. Don't ask a woman who has plenty of time. She will never get it done.—Kansas City Journal.

How Animals Doctor Themselves.

Man might often take from the lower animals a lesson as to the care of himself when ill. All sorts of animals suffering from fever eat little, lie quiet in dark, airy places and drink quantities of water. When a dog loses his appetite he knows where to find chiendent (dog grass), which acts as a purgative and emetic. Sheep and cows when ill seek certain herbs. Any animal suffering from chronic rheumatism keeps as far as possible in the sun. If a chimpanzee be wounded he has been seen to stop the bleeding by a plaster of chewed up leaves and grass.

He Was Real Industrious.

Two Washington negroes, meeting in the street, fell into a discussion of the peculiarities of a mutual friend. Said one: "What kind of a pison is dat man anyhow? Seem to me he never do no work." "Oh, he is industrious, all right," promptly responded the second negro. "Even if he don't do nothin' else, he only las' week dat he spent two whole days tryin' to get his wife a job!"—Success Magazine.

How He Got Invited to Dine.

A story is told of a couple of farmers who live a few miles apart, according to the Buffalo Times. One day one called on the other, happening around at dinner time. The person called upon, by the way, was rather a generous old fellow. He sat at the table enjoying his dinner. The visitor drew toward the table, expecting the old farmer to invite him to dine. The old farmer kept on eating. "What's the news up your way, neighbor? No news, eh?" "No, I believe not." Presently a thought struck the visitor. "Well, yes, friend, I did hear of one item of news that is worth mentioning." "Ha! What is it?" "Neighbor John has a cow that has five calves." "Is that so? Good gracious! What in thunder does the fifth calf do when the others are feeding?" "Why, he stands and looks on, just as I do, like a dumb fool." "Mary, put up another plate."

Heat Near the Equator.

It is generally supposed that equatorial Africa is the warmest place on earth, but it is not. The nights in the torrid zone frequently are cold. Travelers sleep, right under the equator, under a quilt and a pair of blankets. During the hottest month in central Africa the thermometer never registers above 36 degrees. The interior of equatorial Africa is not low land, not a steaming jungle, as is commonly supposed. The land rises from the coast, plateau on plateau, until it is from 3,000 to 5,000 feet above sea level, and with every 300 feet of ascent the thermometer falls a degree.

The Widow He Married.

A clergyman who was a widower had three grown-up daughters. Having occasion to go away on a visit for a few weeks, he wrote home from time to time. In one of his letters he informed them that he had "married a strapping widow with six children." "You may imagine what a stir this created in the household. When the vicar returned home one of his daughters, her eyes red with weeping, said: "Where's the widow you married, father?" "Oh, I married her to another man."

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

A Clever Trick With a Handkerchief and a Coin.

All that is necessary to have in order to perform the trick are a handkerchief, a ten cent piece and a piece of soap. With a knife cut off a piece of soap about a quarter of an inch in diameter and stick this piece of soap on the hem of the handkerchief in one corner. Place the dime in the center of the handkerchief, which must lie flat on the table. Take the corner which has the soap on it and fold it over, placing it gently on the dime; now fold the other corners over, placing each corner on the dime. The corner that has the soap on it is the one to your right. When the corners are folded the handkerchief will be in the form of a diamond, with one of the points toward the performer. Place the thumb and forefinger of each hand at the point of the diamond nearest to you. Pick it up, letting the four corners fall apart, at the same time sliding the right hand to the corner where the dime is. Shake the handkerchief and show that the dime has disappeared. —American Boy.

About Steel Needles.

It is said that steel needles were invented by the Spanish Moors. Before their introduction thorns and fish bones, the latter with a hole pierced for an eye, were in use. The first needles used in London were made by a Moor in the reign of Henry VIII, and in Queen Mary's day steel needles were sold in Cheapside, says Home Chat. After this time the manufacture increased rapidly, many Germans going to England and establishing needle works in various places.

Now is the Watchword.

"Now" is the syllable ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. Whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or bodily, we should do it with all our might, remembering that "now" is the only time for us. It is a sorry way to get through the world by putting off till tomorrow, saying, "Then I will do it." "Now" is ours. "Then" we may never have.

THE PHILANTHROPIST.

His Persistent but Futile Efforts in First Aid to the Injured.

An elderly philanthropist who was walking home one night from his club passed a prosperous looking apartment house and noticed a man in evening clothes lying motionless on the sidewalk. "First aid to the injured," murmured the philanthropist as he shook the invalid gently. "What's the matter, my dear sir?" "No'n's; jes' takin' rest," said the sleeper. "Where do you live?" pursued the E. P. "Thish 'partment house, thir' floor front." This was rather a large freight order for the old gentleman; but, being willing to do good, he put the invalid on his shoulder, bore him laboriously to the third landing, found his room and tossed him into a large curtained bed in the front of the apartment.

The philanthropist immediately went downstairs and out into the street. And the first thing he saw on the sidewalk was apparently the same man he had just carried upstairs. "Strange, strange!" muttered the philanthropist, leaning over the man. "Where do you live, my dear man?" "Thir' floor front," replied the fellow almost inaudibly. So the philanthropist picked him up, groaned up to the third floor front and again dumped his snoring burden into the mysterious canopied and curtained bed. And for the third time he went out into the street and for the third time found what appeared to be the same man in the same place, lying in the same attitude. "Where do you live?" he asked, trembling with excitement. "Thir' floor front," said the man very faintly. "I must be going insane!" groaned the E. P. as he ran for the janitor. "Janitor, for heaven's sake, tell me how many young men are living in your third floor front?" he gasped.

"Wan, and he do be the divvil's own," said the janitor. "Is he tripplets?" was the next question. "He is not." "Well, how does it come, then, that I have carried this fellow upstairs to his room twice, put him into that curtained bed to the front, yet each time find him here on the sidewalk before I have time to get downstairs?"

"Where did you say you put him in his room?" "Why, I put him in that large curtained bed to the front." "Well, yez poor old ijyt," said the janitor pityingly, "thot ain't no bed; thot's a window!" —Wallace Irving in Success.

Saved His Comrades Life.

"While returning from the Grand Army Encampment at Washington City, a comrade from Elgin, Ill., was taken with Cholera Morbus and was in a critical condition," says Mr. J. E. Houghland, of Elgin, Iowa. I gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and before saved his life. I have been engaged ten years in immigration work and conducted many parties to the South and West. I often carry this remedy and have used it successfully on many occasions. Sold by J. L. Wooten.

A Tragic Finish

A watchman's neglect permitted a bear in the great North Sealyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a furious break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth Melver, of Vaneboro Me., permitted a little cold to go on until a tragic finish was ordered by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold, but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life. Guaranteed best cough and cold cure at J. L. Wooten's drug store, 50 cent and 1.00 Trial bottle free.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements: what they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten.

Only 82 Years Old.

"I am only 82 years old and don't expect even when I get to be real old to feel that way as long as I can get Electric Bitters," says Mrs. E. H. Brunson, of Dublin Ga. Surely there is nothing else keeps the old as young and makes the weak as strong as this grand tonic medicine. Dyspepsia, torpid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by J. L. Wooten druggist. Price 50c.

Removes the microbes which impoverish the blood and circulation. Stops all trouble that interferes with nutrition. That's why Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Wooten's Drug Store.

Tied down to his desk in the office while others are free and at play, Papa faculties he is having a vacation, while drinking Rocky Mountain Tea.

BUILD IMPROVEMENTS WITH BONDS

Greenville has some good public improvements, notably electric lights and water works. Other improvements are needed and must come. Already there is a movement for sewerage. The Reflector believes, however, that it is a mistaken idea on the part of the aldermen to construct the sewerage system by direct taxation. Already $5,000 have been taken from the pockets of the people for this purpose and another levy to the same end has been recommended by the finance committee of the aldermen and will be considered at a meeting of the board Tuesday night. A better plan would be to let this money stay in the pockets of the people and construct the sewerage with a bond issue. The legislature will in session in a few months and authority for the bond issue would be obtained from the body. Then the sewerage could be constructed and the people would only be taxed with interest on the bonds.

Why place all the burden of providing permanent improvements on the present generation for the benefit of the future? Let such things be provided for with bonds. Then the present generation can get the benefit of them and have on y the interest to pay, and the next generation can take hold where we leave off. As the town grows and develops the bonds can be readily taken care of and the burden will not fall heavily on any one generation.

There is already much complaint that taxes are too high in Greenville. It is burdensome to the people and disparaging to prospectors who would come in and take part with us. Low taxes are as good an advertisement as a town can have. Levy only sufficient direct taxes to meet the general expenses of the town and keep all the money possible in the pockets of the people.

It looks like The Reflector has lately suggested enough things a chamber of commerce could do, to make the business men of the town almost tumble over each other to organize one and go after those things. But they have not tumbled. Yet we have not given up hope. The Reflector belongs to the optimistic class and believes things will come to pass. The chamber of commerce is one of the coming things.

The Reflector has before expressed itself in favor of paying county officers fixed salaries instead of fees, and commends the communication of Mr A. L. Blow on that subject, which will be found elsewhere in this paper. The question should be considered by the coming county convention.

THE HOROVOD.

Peculiar Type of Song Universal All Over Russia.

One peculiar type of song, the horovod, is universal all over Russia. Horovod means leader of a chorus. Every Russian villager, man or woman, knows a horovod. It always begins with the chief melody sung by one voice or by a number of voices in unison.

The secondary parts are a free imitation of it, and once the chief melody has been given out every member of the company develops it according to his taste. The two sexes never mix and sing with each other. There are always male and female horovodi. Some of these folk songs are collected from phonograms by Eugenia Lineff in "The Peasant Songs of Great Russia."

The broad, slow flowing rivers of Russia seem to exercise a strong fascination upon the peasant's imagination. On the banks of the Wolga groups of men and women may often be seen in summer dragging out timber which has floated down, and as they tug at their burden they sing.

The gist of most of their river songs is that if you are born to labor you must toil on, "Toil on, toil on bravely, one, two, three, and yet once more, and the task is done." Many songs belong to the Wolga district, and one is dedicated to "Mother Wolga" herself. The Russian peasant also believes his rivers to be inhabited by mysterious beings. Chief among these is the Roussalka, a harmful kind of naiad. The voices of the Roussalki are heard in the rustling of the grass by the water's edge, and the splash of the running stream betrays their dancing feet. Women and young girls washing their clothes or bathing are liable to be spirited away by these Roussalki unless they be careful to hum some potent charm as long as they remain in or near the water.

Spoiled in Transmission. This is the way the railway man heard the conundrum: "At what time shortly before noon is it 3 o'clock? At a quarter of 12, because a quarter of twelve is three." And this the way he worked it off on his friends: "At what time shortly before noon is it 3 o'clock? At 11:45, because 11:45 is 3. It doesn't sound right either, blame it, but that's the way I heard it."

WHY WE DO SOME THINGS.

Certainly Not Because We Look Pretty When We Do Them.

A man does not take off his hat to a lady because he looks nicer without it. The instance of bold men would be alone sufficient to suggest such an explanation.

He does it because you must positively do something when you meet a lady or your whole civilization goes to pieces, and taking off your hat is easier than taking off your necktie or lying face downward on the pavement.

The primary point is that you must do something, not that you must do something beautiful. And as long as cultivated people cannot grasp this fact they will find their efforts quite futile in dealing with what they often consider the dullness of the middle classes or the vulgarity and morbidity of the poor.

In so far as the bourgeois thinks it more important to wear a Sunday hat than a becoming hat he is perfectly right. It is more important; the religion of the tribe is more important than the pretty appearance of Mr. Jones.

In so far as the charwoman thinks it more important that her husband should have a "proper" funeral than a pretty funeral she is perfectly right. It is more important. Decorum is as permanent a human sentiment as art and a much more pressing one. Any healthy savage would understand the charwoman's sentiments exactly and perhaps clamor for with demonstrations of barbaric approval.

They would also understand perfectly the sentiment of a Sunday school teacher in saving my child from a great many in a Sunday school to represent the declining moral and moral influence of the world. There is nothing so common as to see a man who has a certain disposition to your top hats.—London Illustrated News.

Left It All to Noah.

A good story is told with reference to the publication of a certain Biblical dictionary. The editor is said to have given the article on the deluge to what he considered a safe hand, but when the article was sent in it was found to contain views which would certainly have shocked orthodox readers. What could be done? The volumes had to be published forthwith. In this dilemma he put in his dictionary, "Deluge—see flood." This, at any rate, postponed the difficulty, and the article on the flood was given out to a writer who it was thought could be better trusted. But when this second article came in it was found to be worse than the first, and another postponement was necessary. The new volume contained another reference, "Flood—see Noah," the bewildered editor trusting that by the time Noah was reached he would succeed in finding a man who would be able to mingle science and orthodoxy in due degrees.—London Tit-Bits.

Prayed For More Snakes.

In a rural town in Michigan lived a family named Beaver noted for their hardihood in all manner of naughtiness. They were the great torment of the minister's life. Finally one of the boys was bit by a rattlesnake and sent for him. He found the lad greatly scared and very penitent. After some conversation the reverend gentleman closed the interview by prayer.

"O Lord," he began, "we thank thee for rattlesnakes. We thank thee that a rattlesnake has bit Jim. Send another, we pray thee, to bite Tom and one to bite Joe. And, O Lord, send the biggest kind of a rattlesnake to bite the old man, for nothing less than rattlesnakes will bring this Beaver family to repentance."—Metaphysical Magazine.

Arctic Birds.

It has been a source of interest and wonder to arctic explorers to find such quantities of singing birds within the arctic circle. They are abundant beyond belief. But the immense crops of cranberries, crowberries and cloudberry that ripen in the northern swamps account for the presence of the birds. The berries are preserved in the snow, which begins to melt about the time the songsters appear, and then they feast royally on the crystallized fruits nature has so marvelously kept for them.

Hulled Corn.

One quart of yellow corn makes four quarts after cooking. To each quart use two heaping tablespoonfuls of saleratus. Boil in cold water to cover until hulls are loose—two or three hours—rinse in several waters and rub between the hands or with a brush to remove hulls. Put on the stove in cold water, boil and rinse until clear. Then boil again until the corn is soft. This will take several hours.

Improving Bananas.

Bananas, bought by the bunch for family use, may be greatly improved in flavor if hung with the larger end of the stalk upward, so that the little sap left may flow down and nourish the fruit. Scoop out the pulp in the larger end to the depth of two or three inches. Keep this filled with water, as you would water your plants. Thus fed the bananas will be much improved.

To Rid a Rug of Moths.

First have the rug beaten well from the wrong side. When no dust remains spread it to full size in a disused room and drench it with gasoline. Roll it up wrong side out, to retain the strength of the gasoline, and close the room for two days. Open in broad daylight, unroll and air your rug and return it to its usual place. There will be no moths left alive in it.

Tan and Freckles.

A lotion of one part good Jamaica rum to two parts lemon juice and a little glycerin is one recipe for removing freckles. Another one, which is prepared easily, requires one ounce of alum, one ounce of lemon juice and one pint of rosewater. Rosewater and lemon juice are excellent for removing tan, one spoonful of lemon juice in a half pint of rosewater.

Kerosene For Cleaning.

When washing woodwork if kerosene is put in the water instead of soap fly specks and grease will come off quicker and easier. A good quality of kerosene cleans windows and mirrors best, but a poor quality or oil with dregs in it leaves the glass streaked. Soap must not be used with kerosene for glass.

The Library of an Emperor.

In 1808 Napoleon formed the idea of having a traveling library in order to make his hours of intellectual recreation independent of the exigencies of a campaign or the delays of a courier. The proposed library was to form about a thousand volumes. The books were to be of small duodecimo size, printed in good type and without margins in order to save space. They were to be bound in morocco, with flexible covers and limp backs. The boxes for their conveyance were to be covered with leather and lined with green velvet and were to average sixty volumes apiece in two rows like the shelves in a library. A catalogue was to accompany them so arranged that the emperor could readily find any desired volume. The distribution of subjects was as follows: Forty volumes on religion, forty of epic poetry, forty of the drama, sixty volumes of other poetry, sixty volumes of history and a hundred novels. "In order to complete the quota," ran the instructions, "the balance shall be made up of historical memoirs."—James Westfall Thompson in Atlantic.

In and Out of Cork.

The Soane museum in England contains a cork model of the Coliseum. This was probably acquired by Sir John Soane chiefly because cork is difficult to cut. Mr. Clouston tells in "The Burlington" a story connected with it. The late keeper, Mr. Birch, was showing a party of American visitors over the museum and mentioned that this was "made in cork." "That is curious," said one of the ladies. "We are just going to visit some friends there." "I mean, madam," he explained, "that this model was made out of cork." "That is still more curious," she replied. "Our friends live just a little way out of Cork."

Result of a Visit.

"How lean and lanky that Miss Wadleigh is, isn't she?" "You shouldn't say that." "Why not?" "She has money. You should say she is divinely tall."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

No Deal.

"She's worth her weight in gold!" the proud American mother asserted.

Assuming pure gold worth approximately $20 per ounce and knowing her weight to be 110 pounds, the count by a rapid mental calculation arrived at the figure $15,400.

"Oh, ah, a most charming young lady, of course!" he said, hastily gathering up his hat and cane. "But I had been led to believe—aw—that is, I couldn't think of that price, you know."—Puck.

A Definition of Logic.

A certain member of the Yale faculty is famous for his power of condensing his many strong antipathies into trenchant epigrams. His pet abhorrence is logic, a fact which was unknown to the student who recently approached him with the question:

"Professor —, I am thinking of taking logic next year. What do you think of the course?"

"Horse sense made asinine," responded the professor tersely.—Harper's Weekly.

He Made Good.

"Give me plenty of rope," said the poor but honest youth, "and I'll get there."

And he did. Ten years later he had acquired a fortune from the manufacture of campaign cigars.—American Spectator.

And He Lost Out.

It had been all over between them for nearly thirty-seven seconds.

"Well," he queried, "why don't you give back the ring?"

"Oh," she answered, "I shall retain it just to keep my hand in."

Parental Consideration.

"Bliggins says he values his opinions because they are the children of his brain."

"Well, in that case he should realize the impropriety of trying to get everybody else to adopt them."—Washington Star.

CONDENSED STORIES.

How a Celebrated Statesman Was Treated to a Surprise.

Famous men are sometimes just like other men in the eyes of children. One day the celebrated Edward Everett was riding along a road in Massachusetts. At Lynn a bright and pretty girl got into the cars and took the vacant seat by his side. He entered into conversation with her and was much entertained by her fresh and vivacious comments.

When the train was entering Boston he determined to give her a pleasant surprise and so said blandly:

"Now, would you like to know who it is with whom you have been talking?"

"Oh, yes," answered the girl, upturning her beaming face.

The statesman smiled benignantly.

"I am Mr. Everett—Mr. Edward Everett."

The girl stared at him vacantly. He smiled again, for the mortifying thought that his name could be unknown to her had not yet taken form in his serene mind.

The pause became oppressive. Finally the girl bethought herself.

"Do you," she said desperately—"do you live in Lynn?"

Mark Twain's Best.

After Mark Twain had spoken for half an hour or more at one of his lectures years ago, says the Boston Record, he concluded to take a brief rest, and without a word of explanation he stopped talking and sat down. The audience hardly knew what to do. After awhile some one more bold than the rest got up, strode down the aisle and went out. Some one else followed, and in a few minutes the hall was empty. "Very good lecture, Mr. Clemens," said a local dignitary, who was trying to be polite. "You mean the first half of it," was the reply. "The second half has not been delivered." "Not delivered!" almost shrieked the local dignitary.

"No," said Twain, his composure not in the least disturbed, while the usual merry twinkle was seen in his eye, "but we have the money for the whole, and I don't see why we need to worry if they only take half."

Chip of the Old Block.

Eddie Foy, besides being renowned as a comedian, is celebrated in Larchmont, his home, for the number and precocity of his children. A few days ago his third, a boy of seven, wanted to go down to New York city to a matinee with his father. He pleaded hard and clung to the paternal coat tails so persistently that Foy nearly lost his train.

"No, you can't go today," said the funny man, finally breaking away and sprinting for the station.

"Boo-hoo!" cried young Foy after his father, and then, brightening up, he shouted:

"Well, anyhow, give my regards to Broadway!"

George M. Cohan sent the youngster a bicycle next day.

At the Fair.

We sold some cake and lemonade
Inside our little tent,
And fifty-seven cents we took,
And sixty cents we spent.

We spent for lemons forty cents
And twenty cents for cake,
And fifty-seven cents we got,
Now, how much did we make?

DEAD FLIES.

A ton of dead flies was the strange cargo a vessel from Brazil unloaded at the London docks. Dead flies are admirable food for chickens, birds in captivity and captive fishes. The river Amazon abounds with flies. Brazilians float down the stream in boats and scoop in millions of the flies which circle in dense clouds just above the water's edge. The flies are killed, dried thoroughly in the sun and packed in bags. They are then shipped. Dead flies constitute one of the richest of foods for animals. For chickens the flies are mixed with other ingredients, such as millet and corn. By themselves the flies are too rich, but their power of nourishment is so great that a small quantity of them has a most beneficial effect. Two years ago the Brazilian government stopped the exportation, being afraid that the fish in the rivers would suffer by being deprived of this fly food. But the prohibition has been removed. Formerly dead flies sold at 10 cents a pound, but the demand has grown and the supply so lessened that 30 cents a pound is now charged.

Splitting Granite With Air.
The expansive force of compressed air is employed in a very interesting way by the North Carolina Granite company. On a sloping hillside, composed of granite which shows no bed planes, but splits readily in any direction when started, a three inch bore is sunk about eight feet deep, and the bottom is enlarged by exploding a half stick of dynamite. A small charge of powder is fired in this hole, which starts a horizontal crack or cleavage. Charges increasing in size are exploded until the cleavage has extended over a radius of seventy-five or a hundred feet. Then a pipe is cemented into the bore, and air is forced in under a pressure of from eighty to a hundred pounds. The expansion of the air extends the cleavage until it comes out at the surface on the slope of the hill. A horizontal sheet of granite several acres in extent may thus be separated.

Mrs. Burns Her Own Housekeeper.
Mrs. John Burns, wife of the labor member of the English cabinet is her own housekeeper, and when she was presented at the reception drawing room of the king and queen was probably the only woman present who could cook her husband dinner. A story is told of Lord Laversham, who wrote to Mrs. Burns, asking her to come to his "at home," the lady wishing to pose as one of the Liberals. Lady Laversham excused herself for not coming first, as she explained that "Battersea was so far from Grosvenor square." Mrs. Burns replied that upon consulting a map she found that "Grosvenor square was just the same distance from Battersea."
