

MISS FRANCIS BAGWELL ENTERTAINS.

Complimentary to Miss Helen Jenkins, of Gastonia, and Miss Nora Howerton of Halifax.

One of the most enjoyable receptions given here in some time was given Thursday evening by Miss Francis Bagwell in honor of her guest Miss Helen Jenkins, of Gastonia, and Miss Nora Hampton, of Halifax. The home was beautifully decorated and never looked prettier than on this occasion. Mr. Frank Wilson received with Miss Bagwell at the front entrance and gave all a hearty welcome. Miss Rosa Wells received in the parlor and introduced all to the guest of honor. Miss Jenkins and Mr. J. Burt James served punch in the rear hall which was tastily decorated with potted plants, palms and other flowers, Japanese lanterns shaded by the dark red shades made a scene almost like a Japanese garden, which was a favorite spot all during the evening.

The porch was also decorated and one of the largest in Greenville, added much to the pleasure of the evening, as dancing was in order and lasted till eleven, after which a very amusing contest was passed among all present, consisting of 43 different numbers, one number was the name of an animal and you were required to draw a picture of the animal your number called for, on a small cardboard which was given, then the boards were passed all around and you had to guess the names of the different animals drawn by the guests. This contest was rather a novelty and afforded much laughter and pleasure. It was found that Miss Rosa Wells, of Wilson, was entitled to the prize and was presented with a beautiful box of paper by Walter Wilson, Jr. Miss Janie Tyson sang great many selections one of which was "Dearie" which took down the house, Miss Tyson has a strong clear voice and her singing was very much enjoyed.

The guests were invited in the dining room where delicious ices were served. The following guests were:

Misses Helen Jenkins, of Gastonia, Nora Howerton, of Halifax, Rosa Wells of Wilson, Frances Bagwell, Alice Blow, Janie Brown, Janie Tyson, Mary James, Mae Schultz, Margaret Skinner, Ethel Skinner, Mary Cobb, Alice Lang, Katie Tunstall, Miss Anderson, Frank Wilson, Frank Skinner, J. Bert James, Walter Wilson, Jr., W. E. Goolsby, Alex. Blow, Argall Vick, David James, W. G. Waid, Cary Warren, Burney Warren, Claud Tunstall, Mr. Black, Mr. Penick, Jack White, John Shelburn, Mark Williams, John Ivey Smith, Mr. Chapman, Ben Higgs, Jack Saunders, Jack Goodwin, Fred Forbes, Dock Horne.

Big Sale.

The tobacco market had one of the old time big breaks today. All the warehouses had large sales, the total running above 150,000 pounds. It took far in the afternoon to get through. Prices were entirely satisfactory and the farmers well pleased.

NORTH CAROLINA GENERALS.

Names of Those Who Served in the Civil War.

Thirty-three generals were appointed from North Carolina in the war between the States. Perhaps more than forty native born Tar Heels reached the rank of general in the armies of the Confederacy. Among those born in this State who served in other States were Braxton Bragg, C. M. Wilcox, J. F. Gilmer, G. J. Rains, Felix Zollicoffe, Ben McCulloch. There were others. Of the generals appointed from North Carolina two were lieutenant-generals: T. H. Homes and D. H. Hill. Six were major-generals: W. H. C. Whiting, Robert Ransom, W. D. Pender,

THE GOVERNORS ADDRESS.

Governor Glenn issued an "Address to the people of North Carolina," in which he declares that until a few weeks ago, for four years this state was blessed with law and order, and peace and plenty reigned but that lawless men in three instances have taken the law into their own hands, and by violence, and with a strong hand have overthrown law and willfully and deliberately committed murder by lynching persons in jail. That in none of these instances was there the slightest excuse for these acts, for in all the cases special terms had been ordered and in one case the court was actually sitting and trying the prisoners. He special orders to all sheriffs and captains of military companies in the State to prevent a recurrence of the disgraceful scenes. In concluding the address the Governor declares these orders show his desire to preserve the law and protect the State, but that these efforts will be futile unless the good citizens aid him. The law-abiding citizens should keep out of the mob, use every effort to get it to disperse.

DUKE MAXIMILIAN.

The Only Money He Ever Earned as a Musician.

The following amusing incident is related of the Duke Maximilian, who was a great lover of the zither, a singularly plaintive instrument and the national guitar of the German Alps. During the summer he delighted in wandering over the mountains in the garb of a common hunter, armed with a rifle, and the zither hung around his shoulders. During one of these excursions he sat down on the trunk of a tree and awakened the echoes of the opposite chain of hills. Concluding he was alone, he reveled long in the sweet sounds. When, however, he ceased some peasants who had been his secret auditors drew near to him, and one addressed the duke in the cordial way of the country, as follows: "Thou, indeed, canst play it wonderfully; now come with us and we will dance to thee in the inn down there. We will pay for as much beer as thou canst drink."

"Thank you," replied the duke, "I am not thirsty, but I shall certainly go with you," which he did, and played for more than two hours in the inn down there. The peasants and their lassies were in ecstasies while dancing to the tunes of their new friend. With the poetical feeling native to the mountaineers of the Alps, they sang, jumped about and kept up a steady demand for more tunes. The duke, whose face beamed with joy, at length became weary and prepared to leave. "Thou mayst go," said one of the peasants, "but not till thou hast played the new dance composed by Duke Maximilian. It is the most exquisite piece of music I ever heard. Play it and I'll give thee 24 kreutzers."

The duke complied with the request, took his kramers and then departed, when one of the peasants made the following speech to his fellows and their partners: "My dear comrades, permit me to tell you that you are all asses. Every one of you plunges himself on his knowledge of the zither, and none of you while hearing the best player in the land recognized Duke Max. I did at once."

The peasants, still more delighted with the condescension of their illustrious friend, ran after him, thanked him for the promise that he would play for them once more. "As to the 24 kreutzers," the duke said, "I will leave them. They are all I have ever made by playing my zither."

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. H. Stocklan, pastor of the first M. E. church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." The Widow He Married.
A clergyman who was a widower had three grownup daughters. Having occasion to go away on a visit for a few weeks, he wrote home from time to time. In one of his letters he informed them that he had "married a strapping widow with six children."

You may imagine what a stir this vicar returned home one of his daughters, her eyes red with weeping, said: "Where's the widow you married, father?" "Oh, I married her to another man."

"Make Hay While the Sun Shines"

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale by J. L. Wooten, druggist.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. what they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. FIGHTING A PANTHER.

Cunning and Skill of the Lithe and Agile Brute.

It was dark, and the windy darkness was full of the mysterious noises of the jungle. My shikari and I were huddled silently on a platform built in the boughs of a tree on the edge of the jungle. Below us the undergrowth was black and still, for the moon had not yet risen. Suddenly there was a movement as though a portion of its blackness had detached itself from the rest and begun to creep away. Just at that moment the moon rose and revealed to us the lithe body of a panther slinking through the undergrowth. A shot rang out, and with a yelp of pain the panther disappeared into the bushes.

With the sunrise we descended from the platform and began to examine the panther's trail. The effect of the shot was shown by the patches of blood on the ground, which led us through a couple of hundred yards of thick jungle. After crawling on hands and knees under the brushwood we reached a narrow nullah. A little beyond this we came upon the wounded panther scaling a tree. I fired, but the range was too long and the shot proved futile. The disturbance had the result, however, of startling the animal into falling from the tree to the ground.

The shikari and I followed quickly on its track. It led finally to a deep and thickly wooded nullah, which had taken the form of a horseshoe. The panther entered the nullah at the center of the bend and turned along the left arm, growling angrily as it covered the ground in heavy strides. We kept about twenty yards from the nullah and skirted it along the right until the top of the bend was reached. Here a halt was made, while I approached the nullah, the panther growling away at the other end, about 200 yards distant.

Then all was still. The animal seemed to have vanished. Suddenly it sprang out right from under my feet, having doubled back along the water course, without making the slightest noise. Caught by surprise I fired rapidly and stepped back to avoid the animal's spring and in so doing fell into the nullah. The next moment the panther was on me and had fixed its teeth in my arm.

Suddenly my little fox terrier Toby flew at the panther and fixed itself on its back, tearing hard at its neck. This diversion caused the panther to leave me to attack the dog, and I was able to stagger up and out of the nullah and run to where the native trackers were cowering. There I fainted and was carried back to the bungalow bleeding from fourteen wounds.—Missionary Press of Central China in Chicago Tribune.

Remenyi's Route.

On one of his early concert tours of the west, before the famous violinist, Eduard Remenyi, was thoroughly familiar with the railway routes of the United States, he inquired in Chicago concerning the best way to reach a town in Illinois.

"C. B. and Q.," replied the hotel clerk without looking up. Remenyi was quite dazed. But, says the contributor of the story to the memoir of the violinist, his sense of fun carried him through. "Ah!" he said gravely. "Then I will go D. A. T."

It was the clerk's turn to be puzzled. "What does that mean?" he said, looking up this time.

"Well, what did you mean?" demanded Remenyi. "Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, of course." "Ah! I meant day after tomorrow."

Sermon Stealers.

"Sermon stealers," said a minister, "ought to be careful. They ought to read over several times the sermons that they steal before delivering them."

"I know a young man of twenty-one or twenty-two who preached a stolen sermon he had not read over, and in a most impressive part he found himself declaiming, 'My friends, when I first came among you more than forty years ago these thin, white locks were thick and brown and this bent back,' etc.

"Another sermon stealer, preaching in a village of about 100 souls, said, before he could check himself, 'In the teeming streets of this great metropolis.'"—London Mail.

THE REFUGEES

BY A. CONAN DOYLE

Creator of the Famous Sherlock Holmes Stories

Every reader of fiction is familiar with the work of this writer whose stories have fascinated and entertained people of every nationality.

The Refugees

Is one of his most famous productions, said by many to be the best he has ever written. It is a stirring tale of the troublous times when the Huguenots were driven from France. The scenes are laid in France and America, then the newly founded home of the free and oppressed from all climes.

Beginning in the court of Louis XIV, detailing the life of the vacillating and pleasure loving king, exploiting the intrigues of the leisure class about him, the story carries the reader to the shores of the new world where a band of brave refugees have thrilling experiences with ferocious Indian warriors and find peace at last when they reach the English provinces about New York and Boston.

Texas has lined up in the Bryan column. The big state is all right.

They are talking about the county convention yet, what a big affair it was.

If such a big Democratic convention in Pitt county leaves any comfort to the Republicans they are welcome to it.

A smart kodak artist put pictures of the recent Salisbury lynching on postal cards to be sent out as souvenirs. The government forbid such cards being sent through the mails.

It is given out in Washington that North Carolina dollars are going in very slow to the Republican campaign fund. The crowd in this State will be pulling for the money to come back this way.

If the people living along the rural free delivery routes want to keep these routes in operation they should take more papers. The surest way is for every farmer on each route to take a daily paper. In that way they will benefit themselves and also help maintain the route.

COMPROMISES IN MARRIED LIFE.

"If marriage meant the marriage of a saint and an angel there would be no problems to solve, no perfection to attain, no progress to make. This may be why there are no marriages in heaven. On earth, it is different; husband and wife are strongly human. No matter how lovingly united or how sweet their accord, they never have the same temperaments, tendencies or tastes. Their needs are different, their manner of looking at things is not identical, and in varying ways their individualities assert themselves. At any critical moment if both express at the same time, a desire to defer to the other's taste, the result is preordained for happiness. This makes matrimony not merely union, but union and unity. The spirit of compromise does not mean a continuous performance in the way of self-surrender and self-sacrifice; it does not mean ceasing to be a voice and becoming an echo; it does not imply or justify the loss of individuality; it means simply the instinctive recognition of the best way out of a difficulty, the quickest tacking to avoid a collision, the kindly view of tolerance in the presence of weakness and errors of another, the courage to meet an explanation half way, the generosity to be first to apologize for a discord, the largeness of mind that does not fear a sacrifice of dignity in surrendering in the interests of the highest harmony of the two rather than the personal animosity of one—From the September lineator.

HUNDREDS OF HORSES DIE IN HYDE

The terrible condition of affairs regarding the deaths of hundreds of horses in Hyde county and other counties in the east, told of some days ago in this paper, is corroborated by Dr. G. A. Roberts, Assistant State Veterinarian, who has just returned from an investigation.

Dr. Roberts says the disease is the same as that which five years ago killed about eight hundred horses in the east, and that while the disease is commonly or locally called "blind staggers," it is really a forage disease, and is caused by molds or a fungus growth on the feed given the horses, this evidently being the feed given in the stall, as it does not appear to be from pasture feeding. He says that the remedy is for farmers to send to highland sections for feed and not to use that grown in the wet sections of the east.

The disease he considers to come because of the rainy conditions of the east, and he fears that if the rains keep up the deaths will be as great as those of five years ago. In Hyde county, largely in Lake Landing and Currituck townships, he found 100 cases, and of these only three horses had a chance to live. He only found one case at Swan Quarter and that was of a horse brought there. In some cases the farmers have shipped their horses to other sections. But Dr. Roberts says that the disease is not contagious, and that there will be no trouble if feed from sections not affected is used.

The disease is from toxine, or poison that gets into the horse with its feed, perhaps with water contaminated from the mould or fungus on the feed. It deadens the horse, which becomes listless and droopy, its head hanging to one side. The horse leans up against a barn or fence, or hangs its head over the stall, the evidence being of a congestion of blood vessels in the brain, the horse going blind. In from 24 to 36 hours after the first symptoms the horse dies, though the poison is evidently at work before the symptoms are noticed, the disease doing rapid work. While it is some poison at work science has not yet found out what this is.

There are some cases reported from Pamlico, Craven and Beaufort counties and Dr. Roberts will today leave for those counties to make further investigation and during his visit will again go to Hyde county to more fully investigate the disease, taking with him appliances for combatting and studying the poison which is doing so much damage.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Liquor sentiment, liquor distilleries, liquor stores all have their accompaniments. They enrich the soil in which wickedness grows strong and lawlessness fortifies itself. It need surprise no one that the two most dastardly lynchings that ever stained the State or the South, the more dastardly because so conspicuously excuseless, are to be set down to the demerit of two whiskey towns in a temperance state. Their neighbors have a right to hold it against Wadesboro and Salisbury that they are in the business of debauching with drink their own people and the stranger who comes within their gates and that they cannot preserve order within their own boundaries! When a community votes for distilleries and bar-rooms it votes for the things that go along with them.—Gastonia Gazette.

ENORMOUS INCREASED RATIO IN VALUE OF AD. SPACE.

Every one who deals in diamonds knows that their value of increase in weight is not based upon any ratio. That is, a diamond of one carat weight is not worth one half, the stones being equal in all qualities, to a diamond of two carat is worth more than twice, and the three carat is worth more than the ratio of weight indicates over the one and two carat stones.

This increase in ratio of values, is found in advertising space, and a Wisconsin professor is the authority, who has found by inquiry among the users of ad space, that a one page advertisement was not twice the value of a half-page advertisement, as might be imagined, but twenty-five times the value; that a half-page was fifteen times the value of a quarter-page, and a ten line advertisement, in comparison even with a quarter-page advertisement, was not to be mentioned at all.

Like diamond values, the big ad space seems to command the prestige that a two carat diamond will command over a one carat. It impresses every one that there must be great value behind the quarter or half page ad which the liner or one inch ad cannot command.

Take the great display ad in the newspaper, two to ten times the size of the other ads in the same newspaper, and its striking size makes itself felt upon the readers of the paper, and the result is seen in the crowded store where people push each other along or aside, in order to reach the goods enumerated in the great ad.

The success of the big newspaper ad has been demonstrated by every merchant that has used it, for through it has come the publicity which has brought and developed trade, as nothing else could have done. It is in the big ad stores where will be found the crowds of buyers.—New Bern Journal.

YOU WILL NEVER TIRE OF

The Edison Phonograph.

It is one of the blessings of this enlightened age. The marvelous results of Mr. Edison's greatest invention are within the easy reach of all music lovers.

The Edison Phonograph was made by Mr. Edison for the entertainment of the family circle. Its production is not so loud as that of others, but it has a richness and sweetness of tone that surpasses them all.

Is there an invalid in your home? If so, let the Edison Phonograph drive away the weary hours for her. Are the children hard to amuse? The Phonograph fails to keep them out of mischief.

A short story had to do with a ticket. Asker for the ticket. "I have paid for it." "Then what's your ticket?" "I have lost it." "Then you must pay again." "No, now, my friend," said the clerk, "just look into my face and tell me do I look like a man who would tell you a lie for such a trifle as twopence?" The cash taker inspected the countenance that offered as a guarantee for its own integrity and then dryly said, "I'll just thank you for the twopence."

HENRY HARDING, AGENT

A KNOCK AT THE DOOR.

Strange Incident in the Childhood of Alexandre Dumas.

Alexandre Dumas was a little more than four years old when he lost his father, yet he relates a strange incident connected with the event to which he attached so much importance as to have it accompanied by a plan of the house in which it occurred. This was the abode of a locksmith, whither young Dumas had been removed the day before his father's demise.

"I remained," he says, "till a late hour in the smithy. The forge gave out at night effects of light and shade—fantastic reflections which greatly pleased me. About 8 o'clock my cousin Marianne came to fetch me and put me to bed in a little impromptu couch near a larger one, and I went to sleep with that good sleep that heaven vouchsafes to children like the dews of spring.

"At midnight I woke up—or, rather, we were roused, my cousin and I—by a loud knock at the door. A night lamp was burning in the room, and by the light of that lamp I saw my cousin rise up in bed, much alarmed, but not saying a word.

"No one could knock at the door without getting through an outer one.

"But I, who even at the present day shudder in writing these lines—I felt no fear. I got out of bed and went toward the door.

"Where are you going, Alexandre?" my cousin cried out. "Where are you going?"

"You see where I am going," I answered quietly. "I am going to open the door for papa, who has come to bid us goodby."

"The poor girl jumped out of bed terrified, caught me just as I was opening the door and brought me back by force to my bed. I struggled in her arms, shouting with all my strength: 'Goodby, papa! Goodby, papa!'

"Something like a dying breath passed over my face and calmed me. Nevertheless I went to sleep again with tears in my eyes, sobbing vehemently.

"The next morning we were awake at break of day.

"My father had died at the very moment I had heard that loud knock at the door!

"Then I heard these words, without being able to understand thoroughly what they meant: 'My poor child, your papa, who loved you so dearly, is dead!'

Disillusioned.

Little Jonathan Edward had often begged his mother to take him to church. That was his heart's desire. So one fine Sunday morning mother took little Jonathan Edward, who, all agreed, was marked for the ministry, to a neighboring sanctuary. There was much in the church to arrest the lad's attention. He seemed to be deeply impressed, and then, becoming thoughtful, he turned and asked in a rather loud whisper, "But, mother, where's the monkey?"

When mother recovered her presence of mind she said: "Why, my dear, there's no monkey in church. What made you think of such an absurd thing?"

"Why—why—you said there was an organ in church, and I thought there would be a monkey too."—Buffalo Commercial.

An All Round Raise.

A man owning a double house sublet the half he did not occupy to a noisy tenant. Such a racket was kept up that he notified the party to quit.

"What's the mater with me?" he asked, much hurt in his pride.

"Ah, you raise too much noise all the time, and I can't stand it."

"Why don't you balance matters by raising something yourself? I don't object."

"Don't you? Well, I'll just raise the rent." And he did to such an extent that the tenant left.—Strand Magazine.

The Archer Fish.

The archer fish has a natural blow-gun. This animal possesses the curious property of being able to shoot drops of water from its mouth with extraordinary accuracy to considerable distances. This singular faculty is of use to the animal in securing its food. A fly or small insect passing over the water has very little chance of escape from the deadly aim of the archer fish. The drop of water brings down the insect, which is then immediately devoured.
